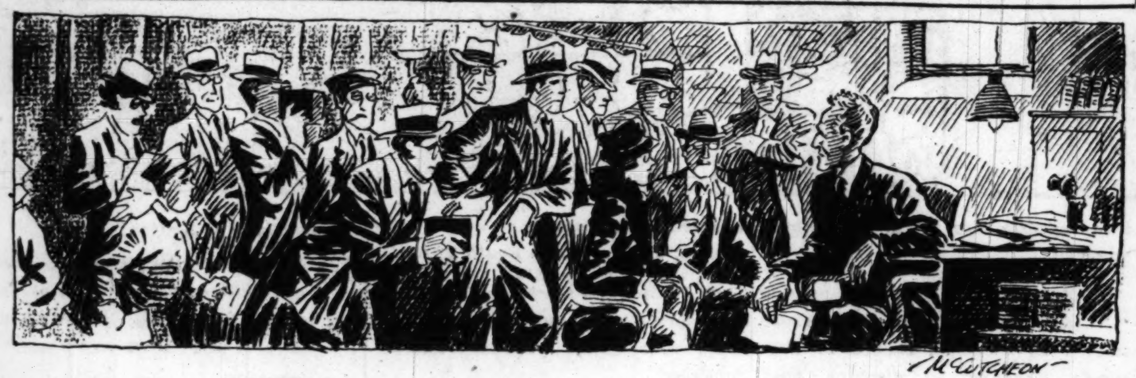
THE MASTER OF THE WORLD



SYNOPSIS.

Paul Rayburn, scientist with the Grannett company, makes a discovery he is convinced will startle the world. Eleanor Grannett, daughter of the company owner, visits Rayburn's laboratory and immediately suspects that he is keeping something from the firm because he answers evasively when she questions him about a mysterious machine.

Grannett discharges Rayburn, as he is convinced the experiments are the work of an unbalanced mind. Rayburn keeps on and perfects a device for recording the cosmic rays which penetrate the earth's atmosphere. He receives signals that he converts into sounds and discovers that the Martians, aware of our infancy in scientific knowledge, are giving instructions on how to create a sending device sufficiently powerful to reach Mars. He keeps his discovery a secret.

Rayburn's joy is interrupted, however, by the arrival at his door of a lawyer and the man who had made the machine for him. They have come to collect money Rayburn had promised, or, failing to do so, take back the instrument.

Theodora Downs, Eleanor's cousin, whom Rayburn had met when he dined with the Grannetts, anonymously sends the young man a sum of money to aid him in his work. He receives it just as he is about to sign an agreement with Foxstone, an unscrupulous lawyer, giving the latter a share in the proceeds of his discoveries.

Rayburn builds a sending device, following instructions received in the message from Mars, and with alternate hopes and fears sends a message and waits. Suddenly Rayburn hears an answer from Mars and is told that the world is a million years behind the times scientifically and that he will be instructed how to perform unheard of marvels.

Beautiful Eleanor Grannett and her rather plain cousin, Theodora Downs, talk of Rayburn, and the latter decides to look up the young man. She writes him a note and he recognizes her writing as that of the person who sent him the money. Remembering her plain features, he asks Mars to send him a formula to make women beautiful, which is done. The young man builds the necessary machine and gives Theodora a number of treatments, and soon even Eleanor notices the change.

Following instructions from Mars, Rayburn is able to get working capital by changing gold into platinum. Then, in order to patent the process, he calls in two scientists whose integrity he knows he can depend upon, reveals his secret, and gives them permission to make it public.

Grannett reads of Rayburn's discoveries and discusses the possibility of claiming a right in the inventions with his attorneys.

CHAPTER XIX.

Within twenty-four hours of the public announcement of Paul Rayburn's success in changing gold to platinum his name became known throughout the world.

Cabinet meetings were hastily called. Steps must be taken at once to protect the gold reserves. Already there were laws forbidding the mutilation of gold coin, but what would these laws avail against avarice inflamed by the certain promise of huge profits?

Governments saw a grave menace to existing conditions. The nation that could secure the secret of the process would have a powerful advantage. Emissaries empowered to offer millions for the secret were hastily dispatched to see Rayburn.

Financial bodies in all centers of capital held anxious meetings. By steamer, train, automobile, and airplane, special newspaper and magazine writers were hurrying to the scene.

Another result of the announcement was that the Grannetts abruptly canceled their European trip. Europe could wait. There was big work to be done here at home. Mr. Grannett resolved to fight for a share in the financial benefits of the discovery and immediately summoned his attorneys to perfect the strategy of the coming battle.

"First we must get a temporary injunction restraining Rayburn from using or disposing of his process," declared Mr. Craft, the chief of the legal staff. "Then we'll be in a position to bargain. He'll have to yield or else we'll block him every step of the way.

"The strength of our position," he continued, "lies in the fact that Rayburn has been in the employ of the Grannett companies for years. His previous inventions, of very great value, have been the property of the companies. His only return has been his fixed salary. We must maintain that the same arrangement prevails in the present case on the ground that his experimental work was done while in our employ, even though he is no longer in said employ."

Mr. Craft looked over his glasses at his associates, who solemnly nodded approval.

"Now, is there anything in your knowledge"—he glanced at Mr. Grannett—"which might weaken that position? Have you had any conversation or correspondence with Rayburn that might militate against us?"

Mr. Grannett frowningly regarded the table top. There was a temptation to disclaim the existence of any such thing, but he realized the danger of this course.

"Well," said he, combatively, "I discharged him in a note and I believe I intimated that the companies couldn't afford to be identified with his inventions."

Mr. Craft looked grave. "Um-m! That may complicate matters. However, he may not have preserved the note. We'll have to take that chance. If he still has it, our position is seriously weakened. Not hopelessly, however, although it will involve some work not quite in our line. I suggest that we retain a certain resourceful young lawyer I know—Harry Foxstone—who has been successful in handling cases involving——" He winked and the others smiled understandingly.

"Good! By all means retain him!" exclaimed Mr. Grannett. "What's the next step?"

"Well," said Mr. Craft, "we might send for Rayburn, explain matters, and perhaps reach an agreement. He won't want to get tied up by an injunction."

There being no objection expressed, Mr. Craft put in a call. After twenty minutes, during which Rayburn's line was repeatedly reported busy, a connection was secured. A moment or two later Mr. Craft hung up.

"He says he is very busy. The place is besieged by reporters and photographers, but if Mr. Grannett cares to come over he'll see him as soon as possible."

Mr. Grannett exploded. "The impertinent pup! I'll see him in hell first."

"Perhaps I might go," suggested Mr. Craft.

"I wouldn't go near him! Get your injunction. That'll bring him to time."

The conference broke up. Mr. Craft departed, shaking his head dubiously. If Rayburn had preserved the Grannett note of discharge, his position would be practically unassailable. They would have to rely upon Mr. Foxstone's peculiar talents. There would be dirty work to do, work beneath the dignity of a reputable lawyer like himself, but not beneath the dignity of an associate counsel.

Mr. Foxstone gladly agreed to coöperate. Mr. Craft then set about immediately obtaining a temporary injunction.

In the meantime Rayburn's laboratory was besieged and his ever-recurring thought was: "If they are so excited about this discovery, what will they be later when I begin to spring some real surprises on them?"

In the interviews, which he willingly gave, he stuck to the simple statement: "There isn't much to say. The experiments speak for themselves. For the present I must decline to explain the secrets of the process. It is my intention later to donate the whole process to the public."

"Have you been working long on these experiments?" asked a reporter.

"Only about two weeks," answered Rayburn, quietly. "A month ago I hadn't dreamed of it."

Rayburn permitted the reporters to make public, if they wished, the cablegrams from foreign governments stating that emissaries were on their way and begging him not to commit himself until they had arrived.

The message from the Grannett companies interested him greatly. What was behind that friendly overture?

When at last he was alone he got into touch with Mars and asked for a certain formula, which was duly sent. With this Rayburn awaited confidently the future course of events.

Tito Schipa Is Host to Apes in Regal Suite

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, March 10.—London was the scene of astonishing monkeyshines today, and a couple of dozen Simians are sick with excitement this evening following the strain of a brilliant reception in a palatial suite of the Hotel Savoy as guests of the great Chicago songbird, Tito Schipa.

The curtain went up on an amazing monkey drama yesterday afternoon when the distraught Mr. Schipa, arriving from America to sing in London, was obliged to part with his pet monkey, Toto, just after landing from the Berengaria at Southampton. The emigration authorities said a four months' quarantine was necessary for the monkey.

Terrified at the prospect of singing twice tomorrow without his jungle mascot in his dressing room, the tenor and his manager resolved to ransack London in order to dig up a monkey understudy, but finally resorted in desperation to the want ad columns in this morning's papers, as follows:

"Urgent need—will any one in London led Tito Schipa, Italian tenor, a Marmoset monkey? Apply 10:30 a. m. Saturday, Suite 474, Savoy Hotel, London. Please bring the monkey."

At 10 o'clock the monkeys began to arrive. At 11 the dainty salon resembled a corner of the Lincoln park zoo. Mr. Schipa ordered his accompanist, Frederick Longas, to play "Sole Mio," while he broke in with the strains of the Italian love song before Mickey, who is a rat-tailed Simian brought by Miss Iris Evans, daughter of a famous London physician.

Mickey Wins Tenor.

Mickey grinned, scratched his ear, and stuck out his paw and the bargain was closed. He will share Mr. Schipa's dressing room in Albert hall tomorrow afternoon and at the swanky Mayfair hotel concert in the evening, while his mistress will beam across the footlights.

The other long tailed guests were permitted to shake hands with the tenor before leaving, and all were invited to be guests at the fashionable concert tomorrow afternoon.

REGISTER TUESDAY

Next Tuesday (March 13) is the only registration day before the national, state, and county primaries on April 10.

Those who must register in order to vote include those who failed to register last year, those who have moved since that time, those who have become of age or have become citizens, and those who have acquired the residence qualifications.

Voters who registered last year but whose precinct boundaries have been changed need not re-register because of that fact.

200 BURIED AS MOUNTAINSIDE SLIPS IN BRAZIL

2,000 Dig in Debris; Hospital Crashes.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, March 10.—Eighty bodies had been recovered from the ruins of the landslide at Santos tonight. The disaster paralyzed the city's activities. There were many indescribable scenes of horror. Many persons became insane.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTOS, Brazil, March 10.—More than 200 persons are believed to have been buried and probably killed by a landslide this morning. Huge boulders on Mount Serrat, virtually in the center of the city, hurtled down, carrying hundreds of tons of small rocks and earth. This mass buried a hospital and adjoining houses.

The city was panic stricken by the disaster, which was attributed to erosion caused by the recent rains. Dock workers and excavators, together with firemen, rushed to the scene from Sao Paulo.

So far it is impossible to verify the number of people buried under the débris. It probably will require a week to clear away the ruins and determine the total casualties.

Up to 5 o'clock this evening forty-six bodies had been recovered. Many injured were taken to hospitals.

2,000 Work to Rescue Victims.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, March 10.—(AP)—Two thousand men were at work tonight in Santos in an effort to rescue people in the section of the city stricken by the landslide from Mount Serrat. There were indications that the slide on one side of the mountain had weakened the dirt on another side, and there was fear that another catastrophe in an adjoining area was impending. Mount Serrat, a moderately high peak, has residence and business buildings spread around it on three sides.

Although there had been previous warnings of a possible shifting of the side of the mountain there had been no indication that any such danger was immediate. Coming as it did, it unodubtedly caught many residents of the stricken area asleep.

16 Houses Crushed by Slide.

Dispatches to the Buenos Aires papers said sixteen houses were completely crushed and buried. Other estimates were even higher. Between three million and four million cubic meters of earth are said to have shifted, completely burying to a depth of upward of twelve meters (about thirteen yards) an area whose bounds were placed as a hundred meters from the old base of the mountain.

Among the buildings nearly destroyed is said to be the hospital of Santa Rosa, and it is believed a number of patients are among those killed. Operations at the place were suspended after the avalanche and all medical materials that could be salvaged were sent to the Quirogico sanitarium for use there.

Soldiers Join Relief Squads.

Rescue forces were recruited from the Santos army and navy forces, from the city's sanitation department and the firemen. Their work was hampered considerably by the mobility of the shifted earth. Entire families, in homes which crumpled as if built of paper, were among those whose bodies had been recovered.

Although Santos, the leading coffee exporting port of the world, is more than 300 miles from Rio de Janeiro, the catastrophe has excited consternation here. At Buenos Aires large crowds are said to have thronged around the bulletin boards of local newspapers throughout the day.

Makes Tryst With Wife; Another Wife Shows Up

Robert Fairbanks, 21, of 2820 Ogden avenue, made arrangements by telephone from Cincinnati with his bride of five weeks, Mrs. Sylvia Kalos Fairbanks, 19, of 1621 West 23d street, a former student of the Chicago Normal school, to meet her in the lobby of the Palmer house last night. The appointment was kept not only by his bride but also by Mrs. Lucille Price Fairbanks, 23, of 2967 Fifth avenue, whom he married three years ago, and two detectives with a warrant charging him with bigamy.

Buying Orgy Again Thrills Stock Market

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—Today was the heaviest Saturday in the history of the stock exchange and records fell right and left in frenzied trading. Radio corporation stepped into the limelight and provided a fresh sensation as General Motors began staggering under a wave of profit taking.

Sales totaled 2,198,100 shares in what might be called Wall street's "three ring circus," for Radio and General Motors accounted for more than two-thirds of the business and Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing for a large part of the other third. General Motors transactions were 396,000 shares and Radio deals were 398,500 shares.

At the furious rate of trading a full day's total of sales would have been 5,000,000 or more.

Stage Battle Royal.

In the three issues mentioned in United States Steel, there was staged a battle royal between the bulls and the bears which is destined to become an epic in New York stock exchange history. It was a stock market replete with thrills, a game in which only millions counted. The smaller traders were content to stand around the tables and watch the chips of the big players fall on the cloth.

The principals in the drama were the weary specialty traders who had to fight their way to the posts and place bets by invisible investors outside the exchange. Their orders poured in over the long line of telephones ranged along one side of the exchange.

Bids Shouted Hysterically.

During the mêlée around the Radio posts, bids were shouted hysterically. The bids were at most fantastic prices, as frightened shorts lost courage and wanted only to retreat with something left.

But it is not so much the fluctuations in prices that will make this market go down in history as the enormous blocks of stock that was taken out of the market from the opening gong until the closing.

Blocks of 25,000 down to 10,000 were the order of the day. Any order under 1,000 shares was almost an odd lot.

One of the sensations of the session came just at noon, when it was announced Radio had been sold at 119 while it was still selling on the tape at 117.

Shouts of "A Corner! A Corner."

Shouts of "A corner! A corner!" went up in the various commission houses and those who had been unable to cover in the stock trembled.

The possibility of a "technical corner" developing, however, was believed to be remote.

Today and the day before it was reported that the Fisher brothers of Detroit and the Du Ponts of Wilmington, Del., had bought a great deal of the stock through various houses. Radio is classified as a "Morgan stock," like General Motors, United States Steel, General Electric and others. Buying of these stocks is frequently traced in Wall street gossip to interests identified with J. P. Morgan & Co.

Pool Traps Short Interest.

If Wall street had any information today as to special developments affecting the Radio corporation it was not divulged. The most likely explanation of the rise, according to well informed interests, is that a well-equipped pool has trapped a large short interest and that the speculative element has easily been led into the market by the stock's violent advance.

When the last transaction had been recorded at 12:12 o'clock and the din and smoke of battle had cleared away, it was revealed that Radio had made a net gain of 12¾ points, while General Motors had suffered a loss of two points. Steel lost half a point on the day and Westinghouse moving in sympathy with Radio was up 8½ points on the day.

MELLON GIVEN $50,000 BONDS; SENDS 'EM BACK

Tells of Bundle from Will H. Hays.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Those Liberty bonds out of Harry Sinclair's box, which Will H. Hays sent around to eminent Republicans rather promiscuously after the Harding election, bobbed up again today in a new spot. It developed that Mr. Hays, at the time chairman of the Republican national committee, sent $50,000 of those more or less "hot" bonds to Secretary Andrew Mellon, but Mr. Mellon slipped them right back to him. That was in 1923.

When Mr. Hays dispatched the $50,000 to Mr. Mellon there was no accompanying explanation. Like James A. Patten, to whom Fred W. Upham delivered $25,000 worth of the same Sinclair lot of Libertys, Mr. Mellon didn't like the looks of it. Mr. Patten gave his to the Evanston hospital. Mr. Mellon returned his package directly to Mr. Hays.

Hays Recalled to Stand.

To answed further questions puzzling the senate's Teapot Dome investigators, Mr. Hays, now czar of the movies, has been recalled to the witness stand. The attempt to unload the bonds on Mr. Mellon will be one subject on which he will be quizzed.

Also William M. Butler, now head of the G. O. P. committee, has been called to explain a mysterious "Weeks, Andy, Butler, Du Pont memorandum submitted to the senators today as they resumed search for the Continental Trading company Liberty bonds.

These names—and "Andy" may mean Mr. Mellon—were scrawled in the corner of a penciled notation in the handwriting of the late John T. Pratt of New York, recording his receipt of $50,000 in Liberty bonds from Hays on Nov. 27, 1923, and his $50,000 contribution to the Republican national committee's deficit lifting fund on the following day.

Mellon Explains Action.

Secretary Mellon revealed tonight, in an explanatory letter to Senator Walsh, that he had declined in 1923 to accept Liberty bonds from Hays in exchange for a contribution of $50,000. Mr. Mellon advised the senator, however, that he had later made a gift of $50,000 of his own funds to aid in cleaning up the deficit of the Republican national committee.

"Some time in 1923," Mr. Mellon said, "I was asked to contribute to the fund then being raised to clean up the deficit of the Republican national committee. I said I would help, but no amount was specified. Subsequently, Mr. Hays telephoned me one day that he was sending me by messenger a package containing valuable documents and that he would see me shortly and explain what was involved.

"The package contained, as nearly as I can remember, $50,000 of Liberty bonds. There had been no previous understanding of any kind as to sending me bonds, and until I saw Mr. Hays later, I had no knowledge as to the purpose in sending them to me. Nor did I have any knowledge as to contributions in the form of bonds.

Learned Part from Hays.

"When Mr. Hays called shortly thereafter, he told me he had received these bonds from Mr. Sinclair and suggested that I hold the bonds and contribute an equal amount to the fund. This I declined to do. Accordingly, I at once returned the bonds to Mr. Hays. At the same time, or shortly thereafter, I made a contribution of $50,000 of my own funds, which was the amount I had intended to contribute, and which, incidentally, is the only contribution made by me to the national campaign fund of 1920, exclusive of $2,000 contributed during the campaign."

Mr. Mellon denied knowledge of the "Weeks, Andy, Butler, Du Pont" memorandum, and stated that he had no knowledge as to contributions made to the Republican committee by Mr. Pratt. The treasury secretary acknowledged receipt of the exhibits in connection with the memorandum submitted to him by Mr. Walsh, and returned them with the statement that he could shed no light on the reasons why the notations had been made.

Identify More of Bonds.

Twenty-five thousand dollars of the $50,000 in bonds turned over to Pratt by Hays were definitely identified this morning as part of the $3,080,000 profits of the Continental Trading company, out of which Harry F. Sinclair drew the $233,000 he paid Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, after a Sinclair subsidiary oil company secured a lease on the navy's Teapot Dome oil reserve.

Hays, who admitted to the committee last week that Sinclair had advanced $260,000 in Liberty bonds to help wipe out the national committee's 1920 presidential campaign deficit, was called as a result of discrepancies in his story disclosed today by the Pratt memorandum.

Bond Sale Disclosed.

Out of the $260,000, Hays asserted, $60,000 in bonds was sent to the late Fred W. Upham in Chicago, $25,000 was sent to the late Secretary of War John W. Weeks in Boston, $75,000 was turned over to Senator T. Coleman du Pont [Rep., Del.] to cancel the committee's indebtedness at the Empire Trust company in New York; $50,000 was given to Pratt, and $50,000 was returned to Sinclair unused.

The memorandum which created a sensation in the hearing was produced by Edmund T. Bechtel, attorney for Pratt's estate, and L. C. Amos and V. E. Hommel, trustees for the estate. Their combined testimony indicated that Pratt had sold $25,000 of the bonds received from Hays on Nov. 28, 1923, and on the same day, apparently anticipating the sale of the remaining $25,000 in some other quarter, sent his personal check for $50,000 to Upham in Chicago.

"It gives me great pleasure," Pratt wrote to Upham, in a letter accompanying the check, "to make the enclosed contribution to the work of the Republican national committee."

"I am sure it will be appreciated all along the line," wrote Upham, in his acknowledgment of Pratt's "fine contribution."

Who Was "Andy"?

The mysterious memorandum which Pratt had attached to the canceled check, and the slip indicating the sale of the $25,000 in bonds, read: "N. B. received this Nov. 27, '23, and had it cleared through C. H. & Co.; it is not on my books. Money was deposited in U. S. Mortgage and Trust company, and check sent 9 a. m. Nov. 28."

Beneath this notation appears the name "Fred W. Upham," and in one corner, in an almost illegible scrawl, under each other, the names "Weeks," "Andy," "Butler," and "Du Pont."

Senator Nye called for a large magnifying glass and, after studying the four names intently, passed the glass and the memorandum to Hommel, asking the latter whether the second name was "Andy" or "Candy." Hommel ventured the guess that it was undoubtedly "Andy."

"And who is or was 'Andy'?" asked the senator.

"I would not venture to say who he was," answered Hommel, as senators and spectators laughed.

Point of Difference.

Except for a difference in time, the testimony and the records of Bechtel, Amos, and Hommel appeared to substantiate Hays' story of the transaction with Pratt.

The main point of difference in the stories told by Hays and in the evidence today, was the time when the return was made. Hays' testimony indicated that the return was made almost immediately. The records show that it was not until three months after he received the bonds from Hays that Pratt withdrew $50,000 of bonds from his vaults ostensibly to make the return.

The registry numbers of the bonds withdrawn by Pratt were submitted to the committee by Hommel, and investigators were immediately assigned by the senators to trace the bonds to determine if they ever reached Sinclair, and if not, who did get them.

May Come to Chicago.

As a result of the failure of Ira B. Hipsley of Chicago, Upham's secretary, to throw new light on how Upham disposed of the $60,000 in bonds he received from Hays it is probable that two members of the Teapot committee —Chairman Nye and Senator Bratton [Dem., N. M.]—will go to Chicago some time next week to examine the thirty-five or forty Chicago business men who are listed as heavy contributors to Republican national committee campaign funds in 1921, 1922, and 1923.

Whether Senators Nye and Bratton actually make the trip depends largely, it was asserted this afternoon, on the testimony to be given by A. V. Leonard, formerly a clerk in Upham's office.

Leonard is under subpoena to appear before the committee on Tuesday, and if his knowledge of Upham's methods and activities is as hazy as Hipsley's was today no time will be lost in moving the probe to Chicago.

Hipsley asserts that, while he enjoyed Upham's confidence, he had never heard of the Sinclair bonds until James A. Patten, retired Chicago Board of Trade operator, testified a few days ago that Upham had sold him $25,000 of the securities and credited him with a $25,000 contribution to lift the national committee's 1920 presidential campaign deficit.

By checking the serial numbers of the bonds handled by Mr. Patten and by him donated to the Evanston hospital building fund, the senators established that the entire $25,000 lot was part of the $3,080,000 profits of the Continental Trading Company, Ltd.

What the senators sought to learn from Hipsley this morning was how many other Chicagoans, listed on the statement furnished a few days ago by W. V. Hodges, treasurer of the Republican national committee, actually made contribution out of their own money and how many merely bought some of the $60,000 Sinclair bonds and were credited with gifts by Upham.

Insull on List.

Among those listed in the Hodges statement who may be questioned by Senator Nye, or the subcommittee which may go to Chicago for the purpose, and the amount of their contribution, as shown in the statement, are:

E. M. Rosenthal, vice president, Rothschild & Co., $25,000; George F. Getz, coal operator, $11,000; William Wrigley Jr., $10,000; Edward F. Cary, $8,000; Samuel Insull, $5,000; A. Lanquist of Lanquist & Illsley, $5,000; Rawleigh Warner, $4,000; S. L. Avery, $2,500; Joseph J. Morand, $2,500; John Burke, Congress hotel, $2,000; L. B. Kuppenheimer, $2,000; and E. J. Lehmann, $2,000; J. Ogden Armour, deceased, $10,000, and Bernard A. Eckhart, millionaire miller, former assistant treasurer of the Republican national committee, now in California convalescing from an illness, according to his secretary, Miss Flora H. Johnson, who appeared before the senators for the second time this morning.

Miss Johnson's inability to explain in detail how Eckhart came to contribute $1,000 to the committee on Nov. 28, 1923, and $5,000 on Dec. 6, 1923, brought the warning that it may be necessary for the committee to compel Mr. Eckhart's appearance.

RUSH PLANS FOR U. S. BRIDE-TO-BE TO BECOME HINDU

NASIK, India, March 10.—(AP)—Invitations have been issued for the initiation into Hinduism of Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, Wash., on March 13, preliminary to her marriage to the former Maharaja of Indore.

Arrangements for the initiation are being hastened. The ceremony will be divided into two parts. The religious rituals are to be performed on the morning of March 13 at Gangapur, on the banks of the Godavery, five miles from Nasik.

The general ceremony is to take place in the evening. Admission to this will be by ticket only and many Europeans are clamoring for cards. Arrangements also have been made to film the ceremony.

GIVE LIVES TO RESCUE 263 IN SHIPWRECK

Passengers and Crew of Robert E. Lee Saved.

Plymouth, Mass., March 10.—[Special.]—One hundred and fifty men, women, and children were brought ashore here early this morning from the wrecked steamer Robert E. Lee, unaware of the extent of the peril in which they had passed the night. Three coast guards perished in the rescue effort.

Immediately after the coast guard had taken the last passenger ashore, the officers and crew of the vessel, numbering 113, said they were ready to be taken also. They left the Eastern Steamship company's latest and finest vessel, wrecked on its run from Boston to New York, already filled with water up to the main deck. Every wave drove it harder between the jagged edges of the inner and outer Mary Ann rocks, which seized it last night in a blinding snowstorm, but which also served to hold the wreck firmly all night.

Passengers' Fears Allayed.

A shift of the weather this morning alone permitted the rescue, but the passengers did not know about that. With the usual reliance of the public on its specialists, the passengers accepted the declarations of the ship's officers that there was no danger; they were simply aground close to shore and would be taken off in the morning. This morning, however, although less than a mile from the shore, it was the same impassable mile of surging water which threw the veteran crewmen of the Manomet point life saving station back on the shore again and again during the night with the surf boat they were trying to launch.

Eight Thrown into Sea.

And finally, when the surf boat was launched later this morning and made a successful trip to the Robert E. Lee to determine how far her breaking up had proceeded, the boat was flung out of the water by a great wave on the return trip to shore, and two of the eight men that were thrown clear of the overturned boat were rolled under the next great wave.

Later the body of one was found. He was W. H. Cashman, captain of the life saving station, a man of many heroic rescues. Surfman Frank Griswold is lost. Surfman Edward P. Stark, one of the six who clung to the boat, suffered so severely as the surf boat rescued him that he died en route to a Boston hospital. A fourth man is expected to die.

There were no such heroic episodes among the passengers because none among them realized the dangers they were braving. According to the invariable account, they had decided to travel from Boston to New York on the Robert E. Lee last night because they expected a more comfortable night's sleep than would be possible in a railroad Pullman. They were simply disappointed when the vessel stopped with a jolt at 7:50 o'clock last night and the officers announced that it was aground and that nothing could be done about going on to New York until this morning.

Sleep Through It All.

When the 125 foot patrol boats of the coast guard brought the passengers over eight miles of heaving sea from the Robert E. Lee to a wharf at Plymouth at about noon today the passengers set foot on shore declaring that the rescue was much more disagreeable than the shipwreck.

There was so little confusion that in two cabins passengers slept through it all on the wreck and woke up this morning inquiring for breakfast, only to be told they would have to wait until they went ashore.

Mr. and Mrs. David Bornstein of Dorchester, Mass., went to sleep early last night and awakened at 7 o'clock this morning.

"Then I went to the dining room for coffee," said Mr. Bornstein, "and they told me I could have only black coffee and that the boat was on the rocks."

Mrs. Bornstein seemed equally undisturbed.

NURSES MIGHT HAVE HAD ONE HIGH TIME, IF—

Somewhere in Chicago there are this morning four nurses who might have had a high powered time last evening. That they didn't is no fault of the three gentlemen from Detroit and their friend, the Chicagoan, who intended, they told the police, to provide the good time.

Lieut. Paul Riccio and his squad saw the men in an automobile with a Michigan license at Ogden avenue and Van Buren street. All were highly haberdashed. The police found suitcases containing 140 pints of choice Canadian whisky in the car.

"Bootleggers?" said the Detroiters, lifting their eyebrows. "How absurd. No, no. It was like this. Mr. Braden was going to introduce us to four nice nurses tonight and . . ."

A room they had rented in the Great Northern hotel was found to contain a dozen more pints of whisky. The four are in the hands of the federal authorities this morning.

Son of Udell Now Occupies Cell as Auto Violator

While B. B. Udell, Wilmette, publisher, yesterday was still fighting on appeal the $10 and costs assessed him during the week for driving an automobile into a truck as he attempted to escape from the Evanston police, his son, Rutherford, 20, was arrested for speeding and placed in a cell in the Evanston station. Asked for a $25 cash bond for his release, the youth refused to put up anything but a real estate bond and so was locked up until he could obtain it.

Boy, 10, Carrying Meat Is Bitten by Stray Dog

South Park Policeman John Turner went to his assitance and shot the animal. Another dog bite victim was Herbert Hoffman, 5449 Cornell avenue. His pet terrier, Rex, bit his hand. This dog also was shot. The heads of both will be taken to the city laboratory for examination.

FINANCIAL AID TO WOMEN IN POLITICS PLAN OF LEGISLATORS

An association to help defray the expenses of women in seeking public office was suggested last night by Mrs. Mabeth Hurd Paige, member of the Minnesota house of representatives, in an address before the Women's Bar Association of Illinois at the Congress hotel. This method of getting high grade women into office has been started in England, she said, and was something for the women lawyers and others to think about. Time and expense keep too many women away from this duty, she said.

Pioneering days for women in law and politics are over, Mrs. Paige told the audience of several hundred women lawyers. Women today are in all fields of public service, filling positions of great responsibility. She said that there are ten less women in the legislatures of the country this year than in 1925, and thought that something should be done to encourage women to aid men in making the laws.

William Rogers Clay, chief justice of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky, also gave an address. Greetings were extended from Justice Frederic R. De Young of the Illinois Supreme court, Carl R. Latham, president of the Chicago Bar association and Justice Chancellor, president of the Lawyers' Association of Illinois. Judge Mary M. Bartelme of the Juvenile court presided.

EDITOR'S DEATH BY SHOT BARED BY CONFESSION

Youngstown, O., March 10.—[Special.]—Floyd Streitenberger, former city detective of Canton, and Louis Mazer, an underworld character, fired the shots which, on July 16, 1926, ended the life of Don R. Mellett, editor of the Canton Daily News, while the latter was parking his automobile in his garage.

This "confession" was made by Parrick Eugene McDermott, serving a life sentence in the Ohio penitentiary, according to a copyrighted article published by the Youngstown Vindicator.

Both Streitenberger and Mazer are serving life sentences in the state penitentiary at Columbus for their participation in the crime.

FIND TRACES OF OXALIC ACID IN MYSTERY DEATH

Possibility that three Michigan City, Ind., relatives who were recently attacked by a mysterious malady and two of whom died, were victims of a poison was seen last night in the statement of Dr. Ralph W. Webster of Rush medical college that traces of oxalic acid, a poison, were found in the viscera of Richard Bohle, 4 years old. Dr. Webster telephoned his finding to Coroner C. E. Mayfield of La Porte county, Indiana, last night.

"The traces found are too slight to provide any basis of conclusion, however," Dr. Webster said. "The salt of oxalic acid may be present in the body normally, and these traces were not more than might be found under normal conditions." Dr. Webster said he would not complete his analysis of the child's organs for several days.

Dr. Frank R. Warren, who is attending William Sims, uncle of Richard Boyle and his sister, Orvilla, 2 years old, who died nearly a month ago, expressed a strong belief that all were victims of a poison. Sims is in a serious condition.

Oxalic acid is quickly eliminated from the system, and Dr. Webster stated that in the boy's illness of a week traces of the poison may have been greatly diminished. His sister, Orvilla, was ill for only six hours before she died, however, and exhumation was being discussed in the belief that if oxalic acid poisoning had caused her death it would probably be present in her organs in more readily determined quantities.

Michigan City police were unable to learn of any tangible motive for any poison plot if it does enter into the cases.

Boy of 10, Shooting at Bird, Wounds His Father

Conrad Newman, 10 years old, accidently shot and seriously wounded his father, Conrad Sr., 40 years old, a barber living in Northbrook, yesterday afternoon. The boy fired with a .22 caliber rifle at a bird in a tree near where his father was fixing a fence in the rear of their home. The bullet pierced Newman's right arm and punctured his lung.

U. C. CO-ED HURT IN MYSTERY FALL FROM 3D FLOOR

Hurtles to Ground from Campus Hall Window.

Irma Harbeck, 18 year old University of Chicago sophomore, is in the Albert Billings hospital recovering from a broken leg and other injuries suffered in a mysterious fall from the third floor of Ida Noyes hall, on the university campus, at the Midway and Woodlawn avenue.

Although the girl's condition is not grave, she is said to have suffered such a shock that her mother, Mrs. Theodore Harbeck, has been permitted to visit her for only two fifteen minute periods.

Another Girl Is Sought.

Miss Harbeck, who entered the university last fall on a transfer from Wellesley college, where she had completed her freshman year, fell or jumped from a high, narrow window of the woman's rest room of Noyes hall on Friday afternoon. It was reported that another girl was in the room at the time, but her identity has not been discovered.

Two men picked up the young woman and carried her to the hospital at 928 East 59th street. Thinking that it might have been a case of attempted suicide, Dr. Dudley B. Reed, head of the university health service, made a report to the coroner's office.

Fall Puzzles Her Mother.

Mrs. Harbeck was unable to think of any motive for her daughter to attempt suicide. The girl was considered a brilliant student, it was said, having received five A's in as many courses during her first term at the university. She did not belong to any of the girls' clubs on the campus.

Irma told her mother, Mrs. Harbeck said, that while she was in the rest room she became suddenly faint. "She went to the window and the next thing she knew she was in the hospital," Mrs. Harbeck said her daughter told her.

The girl lives with her parents at 1226 Norwood street.

BERWYN OFFICIAL IS ARRESTED FOR FIGHTING EDITOR

Stanley G. MacLaren, city collector of Berwyn, was arrested yesterday by Oak Park police on a warrant charging him with disorderly conduct. The warrant was taken out by Arnold L. Lund, 3214 Winonah avenue, Berwyn, publisher and editor of the Berwynite and Ciceronian, suburban newspapers, who accuses MacLaren of attempting to assault him in the Berwyn city hall.

MacLaren, some time ago, filed a $25,000 suit against Lund charging he was libeled in a story in the Berwynite. When they met in the city hall Friday words were exchanged and MacLaren attempted to strike Lund, it is charged. Friends separated the two. Police Magistrate James M. Feron of Oak Park, who issued the warrant, will hear the case March 20.

POLICE PUZZLED AS BUTCHER IS AGAIN WOUNDED

Angelo Morreale, 29 years old, was shot and seriously wounded last night by a man who entered his butcher shop at 501 West Oak street and ordered a roast. The butcher was on his way to an ice chest when the patron drew a revolver, started shooting, and then fled.

Only one of three bullets struck Morreale. He was taken to the Columbus Memorial hospital, where it was said he probably would recover.

The police were puzzled to account for the attack. They recalled that an attempt was made to kill Morreale in front of his shop last June. He was fired on with a machine gun from an automobile and was struck several times in the legs. Two theories were advanced then: one that he had been too domineering in the conduct of a church festival and the other that he might have been regarded as too close to Joseph Aiello, a baker who was credited with an ambition to supersede Al Capone as the underworld leader in Chicago.

JOLIET TRIO FLY INTO CANADA AND HANDS OF POLICE

Three residents of Joliet were arrested yesterday when the airplane in which they were riding landed at Sarnia, Ont., and no report was made to the customs officials.

Edward J. Nicholson, 35, the son of Police Magistrate John J. Nicholson, announced that he was the owner of the plane. He was promptly fined $250, as was his pilot, Bernard Harms, 22. The third occupant, Herman Herbst, who claimed to be an aviation student, was released without punishment.

Nicholson asserted that they were on a trip to Detroit and had lost their way, but Magistrate Woodrow, before whom the case was tried, declared he had heard they came "for a cargo." At Joliet it was said the trio left there Friday to make an inspection trip. Harms conducts an air field near Joliet.

FIGHTS TO KEEP BRIDE HE HELPED CLIENT DIVORCE

Woman Has Right to Change Mind: Judge.

Walter Hamilton, lawyer and police magistrate of La Grange, yesterday refused to surrender his marital claims upon his estranged bride, the former wife of his client, Dr. Clarence H. Courtney, 3159 Washington boulevard.

The doctor came before Circuit Judge George Fred Rush with a motion to set aside the divorce decree he obtained with the assistance of Attorney Hamilton on Feb. 4, the same day she became Mrs. Pauline E. Courtney Hamilton. The wife, who has left her second husband and been reconciled with her first, joined in the motion, but it was fought by the lawyer.

Court Urges Annulment.

"You can't deny a woman's right to change her mind," the judge told Attorney Hamilton, and added: "Why don't you let her go back to her former husband? I can set aside the doctor's divorce and grant you an annulment of your marriage."

"There's a principle involved," Attorney Hamilton replied. "I don't want to consent to anything at this time."

The court was told that the Chicago Bar association is investigating the lawyer's professional services to Dr. Courtney.

Says Lawyer Urged Divorce.

Attorney A. Paul Holleb appeared at the hearing representing both the physician and his former wife.

"She has returned Mr. Hamilton's gifts of a diamond ring and an automobile, and wants to return to the doctor," said Attorney Holleb. "Dr. Courtney also wants the divorce set aside, declaring that he would not have prosecuted his suit had not Mr. Hamilton urged him to go through with it."

"Better think over my suggestion," Judge Rush advised Attorney Hamilton. "I'll continue the motion for a week to see if you won't change your mind."

"Let's let the woman take her choice of husbands," suggested Nicholas A. Socrates of counsel for Dr. Courtney, and there was a general nodding of heads, with the exception of Attorney Hamilton's.

Try in Vain to Save Life of Child with Oxygen

Efforts of Squad No. 5 of the fire department to save the life of 5 year old Bobby Haab, 7829 Coles avenue, with artificial respiration proved futile yesterday afternoon. Bobby, the son of Police Sergeant Joseph Haab, became ill of pneumonia several days ago. He was kept alive by oxygen administrations, the supplies being purchased at a drug store. Yesterday Capt. Thomas Cannavan, in command of the fire department squad, offered his services to aid the child if he became worse. He was summoned at 5 p. m., but it was too late.

PAPER CONCERN HELPS IN $75,000 OPIUM SEIZURE

Finds Drug Here Hidden in Japanese Crates.

Opium worth $75,000, extracted in China and shipped across the Pacific from Kobe, Japan, by international smugglers, turned up in Chicago yesterday.

Packed in burlap bags of sixty 6 ounce tins, each a total of 2,520 ounces, the drug was discovered by employés in the west side branch of a paper company as they uncrated a special consignment of nfie Japanese paper.

Says Seizure Sets Record.

The federal men were at once called in and Maj. Joseph Manning, local chief of the anti-narcotics division, said it was the largest seizure made here since the narcotic law took effect in 1915. He added the quality was the finest of smoking opium.

Maj. Manning said the consignment had been directed by some one of several international rings of smugglers and there was some confederate in the employ of the paper company, some mistake had been made in packing it for shipment or agents of the ring had lost track of it.

However that might be, the federal agents pointed out that the big operators in running drugs across the Pacific must have decided that the seventy shipments of paper received by the west side concern from Japan each month, gave them an excellent opportunity to slip in their contraband goods and to get them out again while it was in transit.

Cites Smugglers "Tricks."

"That is a common trick of the smugglers," one agent said. "Some of the smugglers ride the ship that brings the drugs to American waters. When the ship is close in the ytoss it overboard, and later their accomplices come out in power boats and take it out of the shallow water with grappling hooks."

The theory that this was the program, but that the drugs somehow slipped out of the smugglers' hands was strengthened by the fact that all the tins were carefully waterproofed.

$15,000 Given to Charity in Will of Mrs. Emilie Seeger

Three charity bequests of $5,000 each to the Ulrich Orphan asylum, The Bensonville Orphans' home, and the Chicago Home for Incurables, are included in the will of the late Mrs. Emilie M. Seeger, 5921 Kenmore avenue, filed yesterday before J. William Brooks, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner. She died Feb. 7, leaving a $200,000 estate.

HOOVER, SMITH LEAD IN CONTEST FOR NOMINATION

Neither Expected to Win on First Ballot.

Delegates Elected

Delegates to the Republican convention elected to date are instructed or pledged as follows:

	Total.	Lowden.	Hoover.	Curtis.
Iowa	29	27	2
Kansas	23			23
Louisiana	12	0	2	0
North Carolina	20	2	0	0
Georgia	16	0	16	0
Tennessee	19	1	0	0
Missouri	39	4	3	0
†New Hampshire	11	0	10	0
		47	33	23

Note—New York named 90 uninstructed delegates.

Georgia preferred Coolidge first.

Two Missouri delegates are for Dawes.

†No instructions, but they have expressed choice for Hoover.

††Indorsed Lowden in convention; must be chosen at primary, but he has no opposition.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Political observers are in virtual agreement on three points as the pre-convention presidential campaigns get into full swing. They are:

1—No candidate in either the Republican or Democratic party will have a sufficient number of pledged delegates in advance of the conventions.

2—Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover will start the Republican balloting in the lead with Frank O. Lowden a fairly close second and the favorite sons trailing.

3—Gov. Al. Smith will be far ahead of any of his rivals at the opening of the Democratic convention with either Senator Reed (Missouri) or Senator Walsh (Montana) a poor second and a dozen or more others dividing the balance of the vote.

The first important state convention took place during the last week and the first presidential primary is scheduled during the coming week in New Hampshire.

Out of about 100 Republican delegates thus far elected 42 are either pledged to or are listed as friendly to Lowden, 23 are claimed for Hoover, 23 for Senator Curtis, Kansas' favorite son, and two are credited with support of Vice President Dawes. Others are unpledged.

These include 29 Iowa delegates, 27 of whom are listed for Lowden and two for Hoover; 23 Kansas delegates, all for Curtis, 16 from Georgia with a preference for Coolidge but with Hoover as second choice; 11 South Carolina delegates, all for Lowden but with a contesting Hoover delegation in prospect; 9 from Missouri of whom 4 are credited with being Lowden supporters, 3 for Hoover and 2 for Dawes, and 2 from Louisiana for Hoover. The 7 delegates at large elected yesterday in New York are uninstructed.

The South Dakota Republican convention during the week indorsed Lowden but the actual selection of its 13 delegates takes place in primaries on May 22. Lowden will have no opposition.

The New Hampshire primaries, to be held on Tuesday, do not provide for a preferential vote on presidential candidates and there is not a contest over the selection of delegates. All of the Republicans seeking election as delegates are pledged to Hoover except one who announces himself as favoring the renomination of President Coolidge.

The Democratic delegates will be for Smith. New Hampshire will have eleven delegates to the Republican convention and eight to the Democratic.

Dates of Primaries.

Sixteen other states are to elect their delegates in primaries. The dates of these primaries together with the candidates already in the field or likely to be entered are as follows:

NORTH DAKOTA, March 20—Lowden will be unopposed on the Republican side and Smith on the Democratic. The state has thirteen Republican delegates and ten Democratic.

MICHIGAN, April 2—Hoover has a clear field on the Republican ticket and Smith on the Democratic. There are 32 Republican and 30 Democratic delegates.

WISCONSIN, April 3—Senator Norris, Nebraska's favorite son, has been entered by the La Follette organization. No other candidate's name will be presented, but regular Republicans will have a slate of uninstructed delegates. On the Democratic side there will be a three-cornered fight, with Gov. Smith and Senators Reed and Walsh as the entrants. There are 26 Republican and the same number of Democratic delegates.

Illinois Votes April 10.

ILLINOIS, April 10 — Lowden's name will be the only one on the preferential primary ballot, but delegates put in the field by the Small-Thompson organization say they are for Coolidge. The Democratic delegates will be uninstructed, with those who follow the leadership of George E. Brennan of Chicago favoring Smith and some of the southern Illinois delegates likely to be for Reed. Illinois will have 61 Republicans and 58 Democrats.

NEBRASKA, April 10 — Senator Norris will be the only one on the Republican preferential ballot, and with the Lowden forces supporting him. Friends of Hoover will be for a slate of uninstructed delegates. On the Democratic side former Senator Gilbert N. Hitchcock will be unopposed as a favorite son choice. The Nebraska delegates total 19 for the Republican convention and 16 for the Democratic.

PENNSYLVANIA, April 24—Uninstructed delegates will be selected by both parties. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will be in control of the Republican delegation and is certain to be a powerful figure in the convention. There will be an active contest for delegates to the Democratic convention in many of the districts, with the chances favoring the control of the majority of the delegation by the organization friendly to Gov. Smith. There will be 79 Republican delegates and 76 Democratic.

MASSACHUSETTS, April 24 — No contest is in prospect on the Republican side and former Senator Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee, will be in control of an uninstructed delegation. The delegation is likely to swing in line for Coolidge if the movement to draft him gains headway, and otherwise the majority of the delegates are claimed for Hoover. Gov. Smith is expected to get the Democratic delegates. There are 39 Republican and 36 Democratic delegates.

OHIO, April 24 — There is nationwide interest in the outcome of the Republican primary contest between Senator Willis, favorite son candidate, and Secretary Hoover. The Hoover forces will regard it as a victory if they win from 20 to 24 of the 51 delegates. The 48 Democratic delegates will be instructed for former Senator Atlee Pomerene, a favorite son, but will be ready to swing to Smith after the first ballot.

CALIFORNIA, May 1—Hoover will have no opposition in his home state. There will be a three cornered fight on the Democratic side, with William G. McAdoo heading a slate of delegates pledged to Senator Walsh, a dry candidate, and the wets divided between Gov. Smith and Senator Reed. There will be 29 Republican delegates and 30 Democratc.

MARYLAND, May 7 — Hoover's name is the only one entered thus far in the Republican primaries, but the question of making a fight for Lowden delegates is still under consideration. Gov. Ritchie will have the Democratic delegation as a favorite son choice. The Republican delegates number 19 and the Democratic 16.

INDIANA, May 8—The Republican contest between Senator Watson, favorite son, and Secretary Hoover will be one of the hottest of any of the primary states. Evans Woollen, favorite son candidate, will have no opposition on the Democratic side. There will be 33 Republican and 30 Democratic delegates.

NEW JERSEY, May 15—Hoover will get the 31 Republican delegates without a serious contest, and Smith is similarly assured of the 28 Democratic delegates.

OREGON, May 18—Hoover has a clear field in the Republican side, the Lowden managers having decided to remain out. Senator Reed is understood to be considering the advisability of entering this state against Smith in the Democratic primary. Oregon will have 13 Republican delegates and 10 Democratic.

SOUTH DAKOTA, May 22 — Lowden, already indorsed by Republican state convention will be unopposed on the Republican side. Smith and Walsh will provide a lively contest in the Democratic primaries, the former having been indorsed by the Democratic state convention by a narrow margin over the latter, and the names of both going on the primary ballot under the terms of the South Dakota law. There will be thirteen Republican delegates and ten Democrats.

WEST VIRGINIA, May 29.—The situation in this state has not developed definitely as yet. A Hoover petition may be filed and either Lowden or Watson may oppose him in case the name of Senator Goff is not entered as a favorite son candidate. The Democratic delegation is expected to be for Smith. There will be 19 Republican and 16 Democratic delegates.

CONGRESSMAN FROM OHIO TO OPEN FIRE ON HOOVER IN HOUSE

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—An airing of the issues involved in the Hoover-Willis primary contest in Ohio is assured in the house on Monday or Tuesday.

Representative Brand [Rep., O.], a supporter of Senator Willis, Ohio, favorite son candidate, Republican presidential nomination, will champion the Willis cause, and Representative Burton [Rep., O.], supporter of Secretary of Commerce Hoover, will reply to him.

A row developed in the house today when Representative Brand sought to obtain recognition for a speech attacking Hoover. Representative Brand had prepared an address and was granted permission by the house earlier in the week to deliver it today.

Republican house leaders sought to have the Brand speech deferred until next week because of a desire to go ahead with the Radio bill today.

Representatives Dickinson and Ramseyer [Rep., Ia.], both Lowden supporters, sought to get permission for Brand to go ahead today, apparently eager to have some one open fire on Secretary Hoover. Representative Burton and others objected.

Finally, on the motion of Representative Mapes [Rep., Mich.], the house gave permission to Representative Brand to proceed for 30 minutes at the conclusion of the radio bill on Monday or Tuesday, and for Representative Burton to follow him with a 30-minute address.

Wyoming Republicans Ask Coolidge to Be Drafted

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 10.—(AP)—The Wyoming Republican state central committee today passed a resolution urging President Coolidge to waive his "personal preference" and consent to continue an additional four years that "leadership which has brought honor and prosperity to this country." A certified copy of the resolution will be forwarded to the President.

Veteran Asks Police Aid in Search for Mother

Chicago police will aid in the search for the mother of an ex-soldier who lost all trace of her when he returned to America after the war. Lindsey Frank Ackerman, now living in Towle, Cal., yesterday appealed to Commissioner Hughes to help him in the search. His mother is Mrs. Gertrude West, the wife of Frederick Du Bois West. They are believed to be living in or near Chicago.

CONVENTIONS SHOW MINNESOTA IS FOR SMITH

St. Paul, Minn., March 10.—(AP)—Gov. Al Smith of New York will be the favorite for President when Minnesota Democrats attend their state convention in Minneapolis next Thursday, results of county conventions held throughout the state today indicated.

More than half of the 87 counties will be represented by delegations instructed to work for the nomination of the New York governor, while other delegations, although going uninstructed, are made up of persons known to be favorable to his candidacy.

In virtually every county where instructions were given, the delegates who were picked at precinct caucuses Thursday, Smith was given first place.

Ramsey and Hennepin county conventions, held in St. Paul and Minneapolis, respectively, were among those which went strongly on record in favor of Smith.

WIFE'S STORY TO SENATORS COSTS MINER HIS JOB

Coal Hearing Enlivened by Stormy Clashes.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Stormy, vivid doings this evening at the United States senate's coal hearings.

The mother of eight children, at the torial conference table, with a baby in her arms, testified in half a e how the Pittsburgh Coal company's general store keeper at Pricedale, Pa., had told her a few days ago that she could have shoes for an 8 year old daughter, who was barefoot in February, but that if she got the shoes she would get no food.

Officials of the Pittsburgh Coal company crowded around the conference table after the woman had departed and said to the senators that they wanted her back for cross-examination, that their attorneys had left Washington until Monday, and that they wished her held in Washington until Monday.

Operators Call It Unfair.

Senators told them that they would not hold in Washington over Sunday a mother of eight children who was ote from her home.

The coal officials clamored: "This is unfair! We were not warned."

"You were warned two days ago," said Senator Gooding [Rep., Idaho], when the United States senate issued a subpœna for this witness. She will r return to her children in Pricedale."

The forlorn appearing woman, who was received with utmost deference by members of the senate's interstate commerce committee, which is conducting the coal hearings, is the wife of C. E. Barr, who until a few days ago was employed in the Pricedale mines of the Pittsburgh Coal company. It was his house—or, rather, "company house 49," occupied by him—which the senate's subcommittee investigating conditions in the Pennsylvania bituminous fields visited at 1 o'clock on the afternoon of Feb. 25. Four hours and a half later Barr was discharged.

What Committee Found.

The committee's report to the senate on that visit reads:

"The committee then visited the house of Mrs. Barr, known as house of the Pittsburgh Coal company. Mrs. Barr said she had eight children, the oldest 16 years and the youngest a 9 month old infant in arms. She said her husband made .08 a day and that by the time they paid their food bills there was very little or nothing left for clothing; the family was generally in rags and the year old child was without shoes and forced to stay away from school."

Last Wednesday the subcommittee announced that Barr had been discharged "because his wife talked too much."

Officials of the Pittsburgh Coal company immediately replied that Barr is still in their employ. Barr and his wife were then subpœnaed by the senate. Both took the witness stand today.

Barr Tells His Story.

The husband testified first. His head was bandaged, owing to an injury said to have been suffered in the mines. He answered the senators' questions promptly, though with obvious wonderment as to why he suddenly has become an object of interest and solicitude. He spoke of his wife as "the woman." She spoke of him as "the mister." The senators asked him whether he was a drinking man. No, he said, he did not drink.

They asked for his story of what happened on Feb. 25. He said:

"I came to work at 5:30 on the day you were at my house. Mr. Baughman, the superintendent, called me in and said I'd have to get out."

"Why?"

"He said the woman had talked too much. I started to go. Mr. Chew, the outside boss, called me back and told me to stay at work until I got a house and got out."

Senator Gooding—You mean until you got another house to live in and got out of the company's house?

Barr—Yes.

Why Children Were Shoeless.

Senator Gooding—When we were at your house—or the company's house at Pricedale which you lived in—we noticed your children were without shoes and stockings and their clothes were ragged. Why was it?

Barr—Because I got hurt once and got back a little—got back and owed the company, and they wouldn't let me have 'em—shoes and stockings.

Since he was told by Outside Boss Chew to "get out when he had got another house," he said, he had been looking for a house. He looked discouraged, feeling, he said, that "they had got it in for us, anyhow."

His wife took the witness stand.

No, she said, she had not sent for the senate committee to come to her at Pricedale. No, she was not in any way responsible for the visit. Yes, she had tried to answer the questions the gentlemen asked when "the mister" was away.

"Why," Senator Gooding asked, "was your eight year old daughter without shoes?"

MRS. BARR—I sent to the company's store for them. They would not let us have anything in the store. The school inspector came and said she must go to school. She couldn't go without shoes. So I sent to the store. They said if they give me the shoes they would stop my eats. I did not know what to do. Then the mister was discharged. Mr. Baughman told the mister about it.

Once more for the purposes of the records the question was asked: "You are sure you had nothing to do with bringing the committee to Pricedale?" Yes, she was sure.

The woman departed. Then broke the clamor between the Pittsburgh Coal company officials and the senators as to whether Mrs. Barr should be held in Washington until Monday, when this coal hearing will be resumed.

Says Mob Awaits Organizers.

There was more clamor when B. L. Wildermuth of Columbus, O., general manager of the Lorain Coal and Dock company and director of mines in West Virginia, testified that neither the nonunion miners nor the mine operators of properties in Logan county, W. Va., would let union organizers into the county to present the claims of organized labor. "They would mob them," Wildermuth added.

Then Senator Gooding, who is good at clamor, released a batch of it.

"That," he shouted from his prime shouting point at the head of the table, "is an outrageous violation of the right of free speech. If Organizer Tetlow, of whom you yourself have spoken in the highest terms, went into Logan county to preach the gospel of organized labor and to tell the miners that a wage of $4.40 a day is not enough, the miners would, you say, mob him! If you let selfish interests of this country rule, the condition of workmen will be little better than that of the slaves of Rome. If it were not for union organizations that would be their condition.

Thousands of Protests.

"I am now receiving petitions, not hundreds, but thousands of them, from West Virginia protesting against conditions down there, such as robbery in company stores.

"When you destroy the unions you are going to have the I. W. W. on your hands. I am not a stranger to that organization. It got its start in my state and I fought it when I was governor. The only force I know of that's fighting the I. W. W. in the open field today is organized labor.

"Destroy the unions if you want to, but do it and you will face conditions in this country in comparison with which the conditions in Russia today will be a small toy. . . . I am insisting upon a man's right to free speech on the public highways in Logan county or anywhere else in this country."

The Earlier Proceedings.

Earlier in the day Senator Gooding held out hope of legislation by congress for the correction of chaos in the bituminous industry. He said:

"With the coöperation of the witnesses here assembled this committee will be able to recommend to congress legislation that will help the industry as a whole. We think it's the great problem before the American people today—this problem of harmonizing wages with the new standard of living, the new standard of civilization, indeed, which has come into being since the world war. Certainly, the present chaotic and deplorable conditions in a basic industry cannot continue if the American people are to maintain the new standard."

The senator bore it into the railroad and coal magnates who have come to Washington to testify on their troubles that what the senate wants is their information and not their combativeness.

Senate Wants to Be Helpful.

"The United States senate," he said, "wants to help the operators, but to do that it must have their help, their facts, their recommendations."

Testimony on operators' losses was put into the record today.

"Do you mean to say," Senator Gooding asked Witness John W. Searles of New York, president of the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke company, "that you have lost money on every ton of coal you have mined in the last three years?"

President Searles replied: "From April, 1924, to April, 1927, we lost money on 90 per cent of all the coal we mined."

Senator Fess (Rep., O.] interjected: "It looks as if the operators were up against a difficult situation!"

Under cross-examination, the losses of President Searles' company were ciphered out at $900,000 for the last three years.

The witness reluctantly acknowledged that he could see enduring salvation for the operators only in further reduction of the miners' wages.

Troops Avert Clash in Ohio.

St. Clairsville, O., March 10.—(AP)—Prompt action by Col. Don Caldwell, representative of the state adjutant general's office in the Belmont county mine fields, was credited with averting possible trouble at the Florence mine near Martins Ferry this morning.

Hastily assembling guardsmen and deputy United States marshals on receipt of information that a large body of men was attacking nonunion workers, Col. Caldwell went to the mines, escorting nonunion miners to their work and inducing the crowd to disperse.

About 250 men had gathered, Col. Caldwell reported, but he had little trouble restoring order. A few stones were thrown but no one was injured.

The situation was reported quiet tonight.

MARRIED 60 YEARS AGO.

The 60th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Kelley of Elburn, Ill., was celebrated at their home yesterday. Several hundred friends were received at a reception in the afternoon. They have four children, five grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

300 Guests Flee

Fire that started at 8 o'clock yesterday morning in the baggage room, sent smoke sweeping through the building and caused some 300 guests of the Pershing hotel, Cottage Grove avenue and 64th street, to flee to the street, some of them hurriedly and in scant raiment. No one was injured but damage from smoke was estimated at $20,000.

HOUSE APPROVES ALL BUT SINGLE ARMY BILL ITEM

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—The house today approved all but one item on the conference report on the four hundred million dollar army appropriation bill, and the measure is now virtually certain to go to the President within the next week. The senate had knocked out the item providing $500,000 for the promotion of national rifle matches at Camp Perry in 1929, and the house today declined to concur in this action. As the report was returned to the senate it contained an added clause providing that funds should be made available for financing the rifle matches if any unexpended balances remained from appropriations that could be used for this purpose.

The army bill as it now reads substitutes $54,000 for fire control apparatus for anti-aircraft batteries in insular possessions for an item of $50,000 for fire control apparatus in connection with the installation of anti-aircraft batteries in the United States.

ARMY OFFICIALS WILL BEGIN HOP TO INSPECT CANAL DEFENSE TODAY

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war in charge of aviation, and Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the air corps, will start at dawn tomorrow on a 7,500 mile round trip flight to Panama to study the aerial defense of the canal.

In two Amphibian observation planes they will go overland through Mexico and Central America. Plans call for daylight flying all the way, with arrival at Panama Thursday.

It will be the first time that government officials have employed the airplane to make inspections outside the borders of the country.

KILLS SELF IN CHURCH.

Morris Fine, 45, of 1214 North Lincoln street, a janitor in the Tiperith Zion church, committed suicide yesterday in the boiler room of the church. He was found lying on the floor with a gas hose in his mouth.

$483,686 BOOST MADE IN INCOME TAX PAYMENTS

Income tax of $3,810,247.49 on 62,300 returns had been paid up to date yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Mabel G. Reinecke, collector of internal revenue for the northern district of Illinois, announced. This is an increase of $483,686.51 and 7,477 returns over the same period for last year.

Mrs. Reinecke estimated that there are 250,000 persons in the thirty counties comprising the local tax district who should file returns. The total collection last year on 1926 incomes was $206,237,166.

A penalty of 25 per cent of the payment with 1 per cent interest for each month may be assessed against any person filing later than midnight Wednesday. Income tax workers said returns are being received in greater number this year through the mails.

MAYOR ORDERS DRAFT COOLIDGE HEADQUARTERS

Chooses Pike to Conduct Campaign Here.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

"I think we should open a Coolidge headquarters here," Mayor Thompson said last night to Eugene S. Pike, president of the Lincoln park board, "and you had better take charge of it."

It is the mayor's opinion that Mr. Coolidge will be the next President and, he said, "it appears the men of the stock market think so, too. Stocks are soaring, which they wouldn't be doing if there was any uncertainty about the presidential situation."

He mentioned stock after stock that had advanced in value during the last few days, and to him it was a sign that he had reasoned wisely when he decided upon his "Draft Coolidge" slogan for his Republican presidential delegate candidates.

Sees Influence in Election.

"We were instrumental in blocking the instruction of the Georgia delegation for Hoover," he declared, "and next week the Mississippi delegation will be instructed and we'll have to keep that from Hoover. Gene Pike may help elect a President."

The mayor then said he had conferred with Gov. Small and that it had been agreed that George Hitzman, committeeman of the 36th ward, is to be appointed state grain inspector to succeed Charles J. Peters, who until yesterday was the governor's representative in the 36th ward and a candidate against Hitzman.

"There will be other changes," the mayor said, "and it makes me happy to announce that from now on the Poor Swede (Fred Lundin) can retire to his farm and think. We convinced the governor this afternoon that Lundin had betrayed him at every turn of the road, as he had done to me."

Claims Labor-Small Peace.

At the conference with the governor and mayor were Ald. Oscar Nelson, vice president of the Chicago Federation of Labor and Thompson candidate for sanitary trustee; Michael J. Kelly, president of the Cook County Wage Earners' league and an employé of the school board; Patrick F. Sullivan, president of the Building Trades council; Jerry Horan, president of the Chicago Flat Janitors' union; William Rooney, business agent of the Sheet Metal Workers' union; John Sheridan, president of the Chicago Teamsters' district council; William Maloney of the Hoisting Engineers' union, and Arthur Wallace, secretary treasurer of the Painters' district council.

"We discussed road contracts," Ald. Nelson said. "There had been some differences in wages and it was decided that in the future no road contracts would be let unless the contractor agreed to pay the union scale."

The mayor said this meeting had smoothed out differences between union labor and Small.

Fear 19 Trapped by Mine Fire Dead; 2 Bodies Found

MEXICO CITY, March 10.—(AP)—A check up today showed that nineteen miners are entombed in the burning shaft of the Aurora mine near Texiutlan, state of Puebla. The bodies of two others were recovered. Little hope is held for the lives of those still imprisoned.

JUDGE IN JAIL

LOUIS BACHMAN.

CAN'T KEEP ME IN JAIL, JUDGE CRIES; BUT THERE HE IS

There was no court in Schiller Park yesterday because Police Magistrate Louis Bachman of that village, who had a date with speeders and other law violators, was in the county jail.

Attorney John Fitzgerald, representing the magistrate, begged and did everything except supply a bond for his client, who is held on a charge of assault with an automobile. The Criminal court authorities, including Assistant State's Attorney L. W. Winchester, who has charge of the bond department, listened to the attorney's pleas but said law is law and the magistrate must stay in jail.

Bachman was charged two years ago with driving his automobile while intoxicated. He was subsequently indicted by the grand jury for assault and gave bond. He paid no attention to the pending case and his bond was forfeited. Recently Prosecutor Winchester started to collect.

The bondsmen protested that the magistrate was not a fugitive and they were told to have him surrender. This he did Friday, but he was unable to make new bond arrangements and was promptly lodged in a cell.

"They are all wrong, they cannot keep me locked up when I have a court call to attend to," protested the magistrate to Warden Edward J. Fogarty.

"I do not know whether they are wrong or not, you are locked up and that seems to settle the question," said the warden. "Here you stay till you get a new bond."

Jeritza Knows Nothing of Announced Strauss Revival

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Maria Jeritza, Metropolitan Opera soprano, sailed for Europe today on the Majestic with her husband, Baron Leopold Von Poper. The singer said she knew of no plan for the revival of Strauss' "Salome" at the Metropolitan next season, although an announcement said she would sing the title rôle in the production. She added, however, that she would sing "Salome" in San Francisco next year.

4 DEATHS IN AUTO CRASHES MAKE TOLL 176

Four deaths yesterday as a result of automobile accidents in Cook county raised the 1928 toll to 176.

Alvare Arrigone, 37 years old, 1933 Oakdale avenue, died, the second victim of a headon collision between two cars Friday night at 21st and Robey streets. John J. Hauser, 38 years old, 2339 South Grove avenue, Berwyn, was instantly killed in the crash.

Mrs. Theresa Ryan, 65 years old, 3122 West Jackson boulevard, died from injuries received Thursday when she was struck in front of 3100 West Jackson boulevard by a car driven by Harold Levy, 21 years old, 122 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park.

Injuries received Jan. 13 proved fatal to Max Schwarz, 69 years old, 117 East 29th street. He was hit by an automobile driven by Alan Pierson, 2638 Winnemac avenue.

Rolland Powers, 37 years old, 5658 South Park way, died at the Montrose hospital from injuries suffered Friday when he fell from a motor truck at Hoyne and Gladys avenues and was struck by an automobile driven by Getzel Horwitz, 105 South Central avenue.

ELECTRICAL WORKER KILLED.

Breckenridge, Minn., March 10.—(AP)—Ford McCormick, 26, of Dwight, Ill., a line foreman employed by the Ottertail Power company of Fergus Falls, was killed while working on an electric high line near here, when he came in contact with a high voltage wire.

WINS DEATH DUEL WITH ROBBER AND $100 HERO AWARD

Policeman J. E. Gorman Given Tribune Prize.

For the last six years Patrolman John E. Gorman has tramped a beat near the Wabash avenue station. In that time he has been a good, hard working policeman, his superiors say, but while his comrades in that reputedly tough district have repeatedly distinguished themselves, he remained just a copper.

Gorman wanted to do something important, something daring and he watched for a dangerous job. Three weeks ago he made one for himself and, as a result, today he joins the ranks of the heroes. He is awarded THE TRIBUNE'S $100 hero prize for February. Gorman's battle wasn't so spectacular but as a display of deliberate, individual bravery it outranked the half dozen spectacular police gun battles with criminals during the month.

The Story of a Hero.

It happened like this: Zoll Zilderbrandt, who runs a grocery store at 4801 Prairie avenue, came into the Wabash avenue station on Feb. 18 and complained that a masked Negro holdup man had robbed him three times in as many weeks. Each time the bandit had escaped with the day's receipts and although the police had his description, they had failed to find him. Furthermore, a man could not be spared just then to guard the store.

"Say, I'd like to get this fellow," Gorman spoke up. "You think he may come back again?"

"He sure will," Zilderbrandt replied. "He may come tonight."

That evening after walking his beat all day, Gorman went home, took off his uniform, changed to citizen's clothes, and went to the store. He waited six hours in a rear room and then the bandit, as the store owner predicted, appeared, masked and with gun in hand.

Wins Duel to Death.

Zilderbrandt threw up his hands and the Negro started rifling the cash register. At that point the policeman interrupted with a terse, "Stick 'em up."

Instead of complying, the Negro wheeled and fired, but the policeman was quicker. His bullet struck the bandit's head and he sagged to the floor, trying to shoot again as he fell. Gorman's second bullet killed him.

"Gorman's attention to duty and his act of bravery are examples of what make the Chicago police department noted," Capt. Richard P. Gill wrote in his report to Deputy Commissioner W. F. Russell. "I am glad to recommend him for the highest commendation."

TRIBUNE HERO

POLICEMAN JOHN E. GORMAN

The new hero lives at 456 West 44th street. He is married and has a family of four children.

Among the other demonstrations of valor during the month, the most outstanding was that of Patrolman William Smith, Albany Park, who, with Patrolmen Joseph Stryzinski and Joseph Dornbrecht, shot it out with three alleged robbers, two of them ex-convicts, near 4137 Kimball avenue on Feb. 16. The trio of officers sighted their men in a parked automobile and Smith stepped on the running board to question them.

As he did, one of the men shot and wounded him. Clinging on, Smith returned the fire and the car crashed into a tree. Thrown to the ground, Smith continued to fire until the other policemen ran up. Two of the men were wounded and captured. They are being held to the grand jury and Smith is convalescing at the Belmont hospital.

Kills Armed Maniac.

Lieut. Sylvester Cotter of the 22d district, distinguished himself on Feb. 3 by shooting an armed maniac in a flat at 1247 West Taylor street. As leader of a detective bureau squad, Cotter entered the flat alone, disregarding personal danger, and killed the man who had been shooting wildly at every one in sight.

Honorable mention also goes to Lieut. Patrick B. O'Connell and to Sergt. Frank Reynolds, both of the detective bureau. O'Connell killed a desperate Negro who a few minutes before had shot another. Reynolds and his squad wounded and captured a bandit after a thrilling automobile chase on Grand avenue on Feb. 19. The bandit confessed to having taken part in twenty-five robberies.

HUNT MICHIGAN FUGITIVE HERE.

Police here are seeking Raymond Fox, 7052 Ada street, who is alleged to have engaged in a pistol battle with Detroit policemen who tried to arrest him several days ago. Fox is a paroled prisoner from the Michigan penitentiary.

LIFER SHOT AND CAPTURED AFTER PRISON ESCAPE

BULLETIN.

Columbus, O., March 10.—[Special.]—John L. Whitfield, Negro desperado, died late tonight of wounds received in a fight with a posse after his escape from the Ohio penitentiary today.

Columbus, O., March 10.—[Special.]—Following a sensational escape from the Ohio penitentiary, where he was serving a life sentence for murder John L. Whitfield, Negro desperado, was shot and seriously wounded today by a posse which captured him in the home of Oren Hill, a penitentiary guard, who confessed to aiding in the escape.

Whitfield twice before had shot his way to freedom when he was the object of a man hunt throughout the middle west five years ago. His captors today took no chances when the convict seized a butcher knife and resisted arrest. He was shot twice and was said to be near death.

Tells of Bribe Offer.

The escape had been carefully planned, Warden P. E. Thomas discovered in his questioning of Hill, the prison guard. Whitfield had been furnished civilian clothes and he had manufactured a rope from bed ticking. The scaling of the prison wall was managed under the supervision of the guard, who said he had been promised a farm and from $2,000 to $3,000 in cash for helping the Negro.

Hill at first denied complicity in the escape but the posse went to his home near the prison and surprised Whitfield in hiding.

Whitfield was convicted in 1923 of the murder of Patrolman Dennis Griffin of Cleveland. The policeman arrested Whitfield on a minor charge and started to take his prisoner to the station. The two disappeared, and several weeks later the body of the officer was found buried beneath the ashes of a bonfire in a Cleveland suburb.

A widespread search followed and Whitfield was arrested in Madison, Wis., in company with a girl. While he was being taken to the station, he again made a sensational escape after a street revolver battle in which it was believed he was wounded.

He was finally arrested in Detroit, where he was found working in a lumber yard. Twenty-five policemen and detectives armed with riot guns made the capture.

Storm Prevents Rescue of 43 on Wrecked Steamer

TOKIO, Japan, March 10.—(AP)—The Japanese steamer Koryu Maru, out of Vancouver on Feb. 17, carrying lumber, has gone aground 10 miles off Inubosaki point in the prefecture of Chiba in a heavy storm. Storm conditions make rescue of the crew of 43 men impossible at present, but the Japanese navy is sending a destroyer to the scene.

FORESTERS PLAN MARDI GRAS FOR NEW ORPHANAGE

Illinois members of the Catholic Order of Foresters have organized a campaign to raise funds for the purchase of a site on which to erect a home for orphans and old people.

On April 12 and 13 the order will hold a Mardi Gras celebration at the Hotel Sherman. Arrangements are now being made and a number of women's auxiliary organizations have pledged their support to it.

The Catholic Order of Foresters has a membership of 22,000 in Cook county and 130,000 in the United States. Thomas R. Heaney is chief ranger for Illinois.

GETS 5 YEAR TERM; PAROLED.

Fond du Lac, Wis., March 10.—[Special.]—Elmer Heideman, 23, of Waupun, was sentenced to five years in the state prison but was paroled when he pleaded guilty in Circuit court today to placing an obstruction on a railroad track.

DEMOCRATS FEAR SMALL'S DEFEAT IN G. O. P. REVOLT

Watch Preprimary Trend to Emmerson.

BY PARKE BROWN

Signs of the big and more or less secret worry of the Democrats came to the surface yesterday—the fear that they won't have the Thompson-Small-Smith ticket as their target next November.

Privately state and county headquarters have been growing more and more frightened over the situation for some time. They have only insignificant troubles in their own camp in the primary stage, but downstate and local reports have indicated such a strong trend of sentiment toward the Emmerson-Glenn-Carlstom ticket that some of the rank and file have talked about throwing whole blocks of Democratic votes to Small and his associates in order to aid toward their nomination.

Ready to Assail Small.

Even the biggest of the leaders admit privately that they hope for a Small victory as they have a whole warehouse full of ammunition ready for such an event, but they say they really want to keep their own voters at home on April 10.

They realize that this will be difficult without many important contests of their own. Several of the Democratic candidates were called into conference with members of the county managing committee yesterday to devise ways and means of keeping their own forces intact.

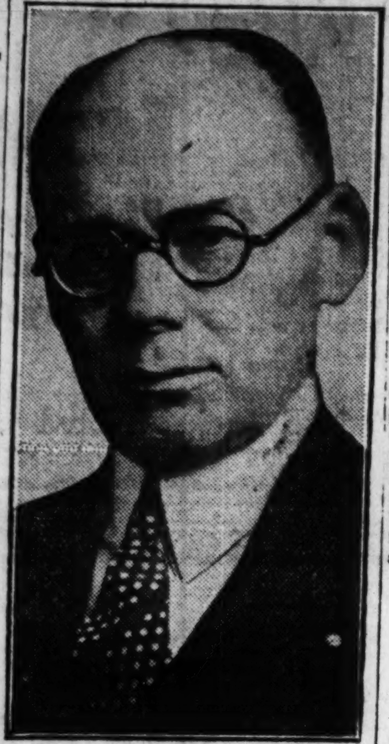
The session was executive, but it was reported that it was determined to rely on the heads of the state and county tickets to keep up the morale during the next four weeks. While he will not make any campaign or political speeches until he leaves the state supreme bench after its June term, Justice Floyd E. Thompson, candidate for governor, will be asked to attend some organization meetings in Chicago before April 10.

Lindsay to Press Fight.

In the same way Circuit Judge William J. Lindsay, candidate for state's attorney, will loosen up although he has no primary battle. He probably will go further than Justice Thompson. He may deliver several speeches and has agreed to issue a statement outlining his views of the whole situation in reference to the state's attorneyship.

Another possibility discussed was calling of at least one large massmeeting before April 10 at which all of the state and county candidates will appear.

Heads G. O. P. League



[Moffett Photo.]

Edward L. Jarl, assistant cashier of the State Bank of Chicago, who was elected president of the John Ericsson Republican League of Illinois at convention in Rockford on Friday. He succeeds Truman Johnson of Rockford.

These steps, it was predicted, would serve to some extent to hold the Democratic lines, but it is contended that even more than this program will be necessary to prevent what would appear to be a sign of Democratic weakness—an unprecedentedly light vote.

Many of the leaders now regret that the name of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York was not put on the ballot in the April primary. They are extremely anxious to make a showing of his popularity in the state and the only way open for them to do it is by putting on a campaign to get out a big vote for the candidates for national convention delegates pledged to Smith.

This effort probably will be made as the big windup of the state campaign and by that means the bosses will pray for a demonstration of strength that not only will help Smith in other states, but will aid their own county ticket in the fall.

Eager to Make Showing.

They are more anxious to make this showing, they say, than they are to contribute to their November chances by letting some of their forces cross over into the Republican column and aid Small in the primary. State Chairman Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet particularly is insistent that the party keep hands off the Republican fight in April and marshal its own full strength in preparation for November.

The Democrats are paying particular attention to the condition of rebellion against Gov. Small that is spreading through many branches of the Thompson-Crowe-Galpin organization. Their own ward leaders in most instances are on fairly confidential terms, with the committeemen representing the city hall and state's attorney combination, and the reports to headquarters are that there will be no effort to boost Small, except by a few local chiefs personally friendly to him.

Point to Pledge Cards.

They also point with emphasis to the style of pledge card being used by the Thompson-Crowe forces. It is headed by the "Draft Coolidge" slogan, but it contains only the names of the county candidates. The precinct workers circulating these cards are not trying to get votes for Small or the other candidates on his ticket. This is in conformity with the attitude originally taken by the organization's executive committee before Mayor Thompson forced the gesture of an indorsement for Small and his associates.

ERICSSON LEAGUE REFUSES TO MAKE POLITICAL CHOICE

Following the precedent of its Illinois organization the executive committee of the John Ericsson League of America, in session yesterday at the La Salle hotel, refused to make any indorsements of candidates.

A resolution pledging the league to harmonious backing of the Republican candidates and platform picked at the Kansas City convention was adopted. The importance of getting out the vote at the national and state elections was stressed.

Col. Oscar N. Solbert of Rochester, N. Y., was reëlected president. He was formerly military aide to President Coolidge. Francis J. Flyn, newspaper publisher of Niles, Mich., was named vice president. Leonard F. Erickson was reëlected secretary, and Nelson T. Thorson of Omaha, Neb., will serve another term as treasurer.

RECAPTURE ASYLUM INMATE.

Allah Abraham, 47, who escaped from the Kankakee State Hospital for the Insane two weeks ago, was arrested yesterday by Des Plaines street police, who recognized him when he applied for a night's lodging.

DECLARES NOMINATION OF SMITH WILL SPLIT MICHIGAN DEMOCRATS

Detroit, Mich., March 10.—[Special.]—In a letter to William A. Comstock, Democratic national committeeman, Mrs. George E. White of Grand Rapids, former president of the State Women's Democratic clubs, declared today that the outstate wing of the Democratic party will go Republican next fall if the Democrats nominate Gov. Al Smith.

Mrs. White attacked Comstock bitterly for the statement in one of his letters to Senator Ferris that "Michigan Democrats are set for Al Smith." She charged that the stand of the state organization for Smith is the work of a clique of Detroit wets.

USES "2D HAND" LICENSE; FINED $25.

Decatur, Ill., March 10.—[U. P.]—John Finch paid $8 for a second hand flivver. He equipped it with license plates which didn't belong to him. The fine was $25 and costs.

THREE WORKMEN FALL 13 FLOORS; ONE IS KILLED

One workman was killed and two others were injured so seriously that one of them is not expected to live, when they fell thirteen floors from the De Paul building, under construction at 64 East Lake street, yesterday.

John Fox, 38, of 1919 North Spaulding avenue, a laborer, died after he had been taken to the West Side hospital. Those injured are Amon Thompson, 40, of 2144 North Kedvale avenue, foreman, and Richard Ostrom, 5554 South Washtenaw avenue. The former is in the West Side hospital and expected to die. Ostrom, whose fall was broken when he struck a wire, is expected to recover.

The accident occurred when a temporary platform, on which the men were standing while dismantling a skip hoist weakened and gave way. Thompson and Fox fell into Garland court on tope of a lumber pile.

START CAMPAIGN TO REGISTER ALL VOTERS TUESDAY

For New Citizens and for Those Who Have Moved

All the political organizations and extensive independent forces began a week-end drive yesterday to get all qualified voters on the poll lists next Tuesday, the only registration day before the national, state, and county primary of April 10.

All those who were registered for the mayoralty election a year ago and have not changed residence since that time are still on the books, but all others otherwise qualified to vote who live within the jurisdiction of the Chicago election commissioners or any other election board must register themselves between 8 a. m. and 9 p. m. on Tuesday or be denied their ballots four weeks later.

These potential voters include those who have moved since the last registration, those who failed to register last year, and those who for the first time have become eligible by reason of coming of age, the acquisition of citizenship, or the attainment of qualification by meeting the residence requirements—one year in the state, ninety days in the county, and thirty days in the precinct.

Precinct Lines Changed.

The boundaries of hundreds of precincts in Chicago and some of its suburbs have been changed by the election board recently. But in all such cases the board has transferred to the correct poll books the names of those affected by the change in lines. In other words, the registered voter thus transferred to a new precinct need not register again.

There are now 2,690 precincts in Chicago. In the country towns there are 366, making the total for the county 3,056, the greatest in its history.

Another interesting feature of election board work this year is that election judges and clerks will receive more pay than they ever did before, because their compensation was increased by the legislature. The clerk employed for the registration, the canvass, the revision, and the primary itself will receive $47 for his work. The judge, who takes no part in the canvass, will be paid $40. In the fall the total will be $10 more, since there will be two registration days, giving a clerk a total of $104 for the year.

Emmerson Issues Appeal.

"There is evident everywhere a determination on the part of Republican voters to clean house and reëstablish good government in this state. This determination is opposed by a political machine plentifully supplied with money and patronage. The machine leaders will see to it that all those who can be depended on to vote to keep them in power are properly registered. It is highly essential that the large army of independent voters who believe in responsive and official government also make sure that they are qualified to vote.

"The first important step towards a new deal in Illinois government is a large registration of public spirited citizens. I earnestly urge all who are interested in putting an end to political misrule in Illinois to be sure that they are registered and to influence their neighbors and friends to do likewise."

Highland Park Approves $515,000 Improvements

Bond issues totalling $515,000 for an improvement and building program were approved yesterday in Highland Park by a majority of 3 to 1. Approximately 1,800 votes were cast at the election. The main issue is one of $150,000 for the widening of Green Bay road. Others are of $100,000 and $55,000 for the purchase of new library and city hall sites. The sites will be adjoining and the new city hall and library will be in one building. Other issues voted were of $100,000 for corporate purposes, $85,000 for new bridges and repairing and improvement of old bridges, and $25,000 for a municipal yard.

LARGEST WOODEN ICE SHIP AFLOAT TO CARRY BYRD

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Commander Richard E. Byrd announced today that in addition to the tri-motored Fokker, Fokker Universal and Bellanca monoplane already assembled for his flight to the South Pole, he is having built a tri-motored Ford all-metal plane. The expedition will sail from New York about Sept. 1.

When the Samson, the largest wooden "ice ship" afloat, arrives from Norway April 1, Commander Byrd said, preliminary preparations will be completed. The Samson will carry the party to the ice barrier, and also will take two or three of the four planes and 10,000 gallons of gasoline. The equipment includes $25,000 worth of radio devices.

Living Room Furniture

at about Half Price

One of the greatest events of the kind in years begins Monday, offering at about half price this season's exhibition samples from a maker noted for his low regular prices.

The furniture is beautiful, hand-carved of solid walnut and mahogany and covered in the finest of friezes, mohairs, damasks, brocatelle and Italian velvets. Only because few stores can handle such a large number of fine things was this remarkable discount made necessary.

We illustrate a few typical pieces from the great assortment with some other characteristic sale bargains. There is only one each of some items but there are so many pieces that a satisfactory selection is assured all who attend this event.

THE RADIO IN DANGER.

Congress has nothing to be proud of in its record of radio legislation in recent years. When congressmen have not been timid, as if dealing with an unspeakable wickedness, they have been greedy to use the new means of communication for their own selfish purposes. It is not a pretty record. If there is any mitigative circumstance, it is the failure of congressmen to grasp the essentials of the problem with which they are dealing. They have not realized that at bottom it is a question of property.

There can be only a limited number of radio broadcasters. Many persons wish to broadcast for whom no radio wave is available. That is the chief, and indeed, the only valid reason for federal regulation. All the radio legislation in the world cannot alter the fact that there are not enough waves to go around. Congress has taken upon itself the task of deciding to whom the property right in radio waves shall be given and on what terms.

There are only two ways to transmit title to property: one is by sale or gift, which is voluntary, and the other by confiscation, which is involuntary. The feudal system was confiscatory. The king who had title to all land alienated it to feudatories for their lifetimes. Gradually the hereditary right of a family to its lands was recognized. By the time of Charles II. the idea of individual ownership of land was pretty well established in law as in custom. With this concept of ownership as a foundation, modern society has created an era of unprecedented wealth and well being.

The problems of radio regulation must be viewed in that perspective.

In the infancy of radio, when it was used chiefly for communication at sea and program broadcasting was unknown, a law was passed vesting supervisory powers in the department of commerce. Congress did nothing to extend the department's powers in the years when broadcasting was becoming a national institution. Eventually the courts decided that the department had exceeded its authority. Thereupon, the restraints having been removed, broadcasters sprang up all over the land, but particularly in the regions which already were crowded to the limit with broadcasters. At the same time stations which for one reason or another were dissatisfied with the wave lengths assigned to them chose others more to their liking. The result was chaos.

A roar of protest arose from the millions of owners of radio receiving sets. Even the most delicately adjusted sets were not sufficiently discriminating to shut out all the interference and relatively few of the listeners had the most delicately adjusted sets. Congress over a year ago heard and knew that it had to do something. Congress faced the fact that there is room in the country for only a limited number of stations and some means had to be devised of parceling out the wave lengths among all the broadcasters and would-be broadcasters. Some stations would have to be abolished. Others would have to operate with less power. Congress would have to delegate the supervisory authority. To whom? And what principles should govern the radio authority?

Two theories sharply divergent appeared almost as soon as the problem was formulated. One school favored recognition of property rights in wave lengths as established by priority in the field. By protecting property rights the nation has achieved unprecedented well-being, but experience was disregarded by the statesmen in congress, though they knew it promised the public what it wanted in programs and reception.

The opposing view reflected fear and equalitarianism. Those who held it said it was dangerous to intrust the right to broadcast to a relatively small number of broadcasters, and accordingly every one who wanted to broadcast should be permitted to do so, in so far as that was at all possible. The waves and hours of broadcasting should be divided up among the applicants as nearly equally as possible, and no property right in wave lengths should be recognized. The practical fact that no station owner, unless he had enormous sums to throw away, would dare invest in equipment and expensive programs under such circumstances was ignored.

The rival principles were compromised in the last congress through the creation of a radio commission with a year of life, but the solution then achieved was only an armistice. The fight is on again at this session. The new radio bill as reported to the house carries the Davis amendment, whose object is to divide the number and power of radio stations equally among the five districts into which the country is divided. If that amendment is enacted, some users of wave lengths will be deprived of their property and this property will be given to others who will not pay for it. They will get it by favor, which, of course, means by graft, just as subpostal stations are given out by senators to corrupt their electors.

Meanwhile the senate has passed the Watson bill, which continues the armistice for another year. This step can be justified by the fact that, hamstrung as it has been, the radio commission has been unable to do what was expected of it in the year originally allotted. To the Watson bill the senate added the amendment by Senator Pittman providing that the terms of the commissioners expire in February, 1929. We do not know what excuse was given for this amendent, but its practical significance is plain. The senate, which has the power to confirm all appointments to the commission, will have this provision to use as a club over any commissioner desirous of reappointment. Senators in this way can hope to control the commission in this critical year and convert the radio broadcasting into another item in their already long patronage list.

Congress is not content with experimenting with the theories of property held by communists. It is obvious, upon consideration, that congress has been trying to do with radio what Russia has endeavored to do with all kinds of property, and the result is the same—anarchy. The entire radio industry, including manufacturers, artists, and broadcasters, to say nothing of the owners of receiving sets, is suffering from this congressional madness. It has hampered the development of the radio as industry and as entertainment. There is small comfort in the realization that congressmen are activated less by sympathy with communist doctrine or a desire to provide for the small or piratical broadcaster than by lust for more patronage.

CHURCH, STATE, AND STRIFE.

Some of the bloodiest, most tragic episodes in the histories of all races and all nations have had their source in religious differences. Unleashed in its own defense and fortified with a sense of its inherent rightness, no emotion can surpass religious fanaticism in its thirst for the heretic's undoing.

In Darwen, England, mobs of seven or eight thousand people demonstrated against two clergymen of the established church of that town. The police were called out and ugly violence for a time seemed imminent.

These clergymen had committed no crime. They were not accused of any of the usual deeds that commonly call forth mob violence. The offense with which they were charged was that they adhered to the revised, more ritualistic, prayer book which was approved last year by the assembly of the Church of England, but which parliament failed to ratify. The specific offense was that the officiating clergyman sang, instead of spoke, the Eucharistic service. This offended those with Protestant sympathies, who elected to see such practices as an effort to Romanize the church. Therefore, the disorder, the mob, and the hounding of the clergymen through the streets.

When fundamentalism in the United States broke out in laws against the teaching of evolution in state supported schools, English critics were very free in pointing out America's low intellectual state. We in America would not be human did we not return the gesture now; but we can be fair by noting that it has less to do with nationality and race than with a nature and emotions common to everybody. Men who will grant that there are a hundred ways to live and all of them right will insist that there is but one way to worship. Where they would not think of imposing their will in matters of daily routine, they will attempt at any opportunity to impose their will on others in matters of religion and its kindred field of morals.

Because of this, where church and state are not separated, clashes are bound to occur. In England the established church is the Church of England. In the United States, though church and state are officially separated, they touch all along the line of government and it has been in communities where they are identical, to all intents and purposes, that the most serious dissensions have occurred.

In England, it is said that the outcome will be the disestablishment of the church. In the United States it is a safe prediction that state and church again will be separated; there are prophetic signs of protest. In England disestablishment is likely to cause the downfall of a monarchy which has served its purpose. In the United States it is to be hoped that it will mark the end of a dictatorship which has served no purpose but to bring about a disrespect and hatred for authority.

Editorial of the Day

PROTESTING THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

[Times, Davenport, Ia.]

Having failed to undermine the United States at the Pan-American conference at Havana, Argentina opens fire on the Monroe Doctrine before the league of nations commission on security.

Article 21 of the league covenant includes the Monroe Doctrine "as a valid example of international engagements or regional understandings." Jose Cantillo, Argentine minister at Berne, protests this as a "historical untruth" to which no nation other than the United States has subscribed.

If the Havana conference emphasized anything it was dependence of Latin-America upon the United States for the maintenance of sovereignty. Expression was given to faith in the honesty of purpose of the Washington government. Greater trust was implied in the "Colossus of the North" than was indicated by the smaller republics in each other.

Argentina is aggrieved since its maneuvers to break down barriers which this government has erected to keep out its surplus crops and live stock failed at Havana.

A majority of the countries beyond the Rio Grande subscribe to the principle of the Monroe Doctrine. Suspicion of the motives of the Washington government is abating. Much of the distrust of our intentions springs from the inability of certain small republics to contemplate power without abuse. Many of the Latin-Americans cannot conceive of possessing power and not utilizing it for aggrandizement. Looking about them they see the various governments existing through force alone. The United States has clearly revealed its sense of responsibility to the weaker nations it has undertaken to safeguard against European interference. It is measuring up to the obligations which the Monroe Doctrine imposes upon it.

Argentina will occasion us less embarrassment at Geneva than it created at the Pan-American parley. Events at Havana put our Latin policy in a more favorable light than ever before. This belated war on the Monroe edict is truly ill starred.

A MAN'S A MAN FOR A' THAT

BY THE REV. DAVID E. GIBSON.

[Priest in charge of Cathedral Shelter, Episcopal, Washington boulevard and Peoria street, and of work of church at Cook county jail and House of Correction.]

No man can labor with persistence, courage, and hope in behalf of the poor, the wayward, and the criminal unless he has a profound conviction that what Robert Burns, the poet of the poor, says about the inherent value of a man aside from titles, wealth, or position. The Bible puts the case on even a higher plane when in Psalm 8 it says: "What is man that thou art mindful of him? . . . For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels," or, as the revised version says, "a little lower than God."

I am sometimes asked, "How can you devote your life to such so-called undesirable people?" and I reply, "Because I love them." I see in every man, woman, or child one who was once a baby in the arms of a loving mother, who hoped and probably prayed for his future. I see in every one a soul for whose salvation Christ died, one for whom immortality waits, and, more than all, one who can by the grace of God come to nobility of life.

Christ went about doing good. He touched the lepers. He fed the hungry. He made disciples out of despised tax gatherers and sinning Magdalenes, and who am I that I should be above my Master? It was Jesus who took a basin and towel and washed his disciples' feet and declared, "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many."

If the reader should stand some morning or noon and watch the bread line stretching down Washington boulevard in front of the Cathedral Shelter, or sit in the Shelter office on any morning and observe the groups of men who come looking for work, counsel, or advice, he might be tempted to say, "This is the work that ought to be done by the municipality."

Well, some such work is done by the city. Provision is made for the homeless in municipal lodging houses and at the police stations. When morning comes the transients get up and go out into an unfriendly world, with no word of encouragement and no attempt at moral reënforcement. At the Cathedral Shelter we gave lodgings last year to 30,184, furnished meals to 72,702, gave office interviews to 15,253. We aided 925 discharged prisoners, financially assisted 4,587, and procured employment for 2,865. We also wrote 12,289 letters.

Only in rare instances, if in any, in language spoken or written, was there an omission of encouragement, an appeal to those helped to begin a new life through God's help, accompanied by an invitation to attend church. At services held at the Cathedral Shelter there were 15,151 who attended, 3,191 of whom partook of the holy communion. Back of every act of service we want those who are helped to know that it is God who is the real author of our ministrations, and the church, that is seeking through these various agencies to reveal to them the truth of what Jesus said, that not a sparrow falls to the ground without the Father.

When an automobile gets out of gear it must be repaired. Likewise when men get out of gear they must be repaired. One is a mechanical task, the other a spiritual one.

Every type of need is represented by those who come to the Shelter. Here is a recently arrived immigrant from Russia, seeking to find his way in a great city of which he is ignorant. Here is a bright looking lad from England, energetic and willing. Here is a clergyman, once a man of character in his community, who has fallen and is now trying to struggle back. Broken homes, divorce, improper training in youth, unfortunate companions are among the most frequent contributing causes to the drab stories told. Perhaps it is merely a guiding hand the man needs to help him. Perhaps he has never found his proper sphere in life. In either case he gets help.

Experience seems to indicate that the salvaging of human souls can be accomplished to the good of the man and the city as a whole. Cases of rehabilitation are endless. Ministers of almost every denomination have come to the Shelter and been helped. College graduates who have fallen by the wayside are not infrequent visitors. Here is the case of a business man from downstate who got into trouble. His home was broken up. He found himself in Chicago in a hopeless condition and without funds. He was fed and clothed and provided with a job. Today he is making a decent living. Here is a man who was found in prison. He was secured a release and now is making a success on a farm which he owns himself. Another, tramping from the far south, with wife and children, was given shelter, and now holds a steady job in Michigan.

Nor is it merely the matter of the remaking of men. Women and children also are frequently found in need of help. A pale faced boy, the son of the widow of a war veteran, in need of fresh air and rest, was sent to a good country home, his transportation and board for a month paid. A young wife whose husband was in prison was given aid and found a home. A mother whose husband had deserted her was enabled to keep her family together.

It is tragic to see how quickly combined sickness and unemployment can transform a happy family into an object of pity. Rent, food, fuel, clothing and other necessities point their ghostlike fingers at the helpless father and his little brood. It is because of such situations that the worthy poor who have no reserves come knocking at our doors.

Seldom on a Sunday morning are there empty pews in the Shelter chapel. These broken souls seem to grasp readily the spiritual significance of their remaking. The other day a man who was helped out of the gutter came to the Shelter office and asked that his children be baptized. Such cases are numerous. The Shelter files are full of letters from men who have been placed back into a normal life telling of their successes and happiness. Some send money to repay in part for the aid so that others in turn may be helped.

The kinds of men in Chicago who need aid is startling to the average individual. Generally it is assumed that those who need salvaging are only the down-and-out type, the hobo, and the man in the street. But there are others—college graduates, ministers of various creeds, former business men who have met with misfortune.

That even city governments recognize the scriptural fact that man cannot live by bread alone is evident by the provision made for the union of spiritual help with charity at the Cook county jail and the House of Correction. We endeavor at these institutions to introduce as much of the beauty and solemnity of sacred worship as is possible. The hymns of the church are sung and often special soloists give the charm of their voices to this service.

Many of the unfortunate classes come to this country from Europe, where they are accustomed to seeing stately cathedrals and hearing the vested choirs. There are those even in the lowliest ranks of life who have an innate love for music and can be appealed to through such a ministry as they could not be simply by exhortation and preachment. The same element of beauty and worship is introduced in the services at the Cathedral Shelter, where we have two altars. It is my conviction that an appeal to the manhood and to the divine spark that is in even the lowest is a surer way to lead to rehabilitation than simply the corrective discipline of law, however important and just such discipline may be.

It must not be thought that I would undertake this work in my own strength or as a private enterprise. I have back of me the church, the bishops and clergy and all the spiritual comfort and divine help of the blessed sacraments.

The Cathedral Shelter is not the only institution in Chicago which links together the church and social service, for the need of the city is immeasurable, but we are thankful that we can do our part in binding up the wounds, in caring for the widows and the orphans, and in raising up those who fall. This is what the Master taught, and if we expect the church that he has promised to be with to the end of the world to progress, we must follow in his footsteps. He will help us.

ARTIFICIAL VS. NATURAL VENTILATION.

HOWEVER much modern ventilation may have added to comfort, it is not worth what it costs when it comes to improving health. The New York Commission on Ventilation, through its executive secretary, has gone this far, and very much further, in a report made in January, 1928. He says: "This preliminary study strongly suggests that natural ventilation has some inherent virtue which mechanical ventilation does not possess, or that mechanical ventilation involves some harmful influence from which natural ventilation is free."

This conclusion is based on a study lasting eleven weeks, not counting some trial or experimental periods.

This study was made in six public schools in Syracuse, N. Y. Three were modern, up to date school buildings with modern, mechanical ventilation, except that there was no air washing. Three were school buildings 40 to 50 years old, heated by rather old style furnace heating and ventilation supplemented by the opening of windows.

In the half century old buildings the children were healthier than in the new buildings. They had a lower sickness absentee rate, and they had fewer colds and coughs. Mr. Duffield, who made the study, said the statement of findings would have been much stronger except for three "ifs":

If the diagnosis of coughs and colds had been made by physicians rather than by teachers; had the Syracuse home visiting follow-up service been better (however, that service is exceptionally good); and had more schools and more pupils been studied.

The excesses in absenteeism and in different kinds of respiratory disease on the part of children in the modern, mechanically ventilated schools ranged from 67 per cent to 84 per cent.

An incidental finding was that where there is mechanical ventilation there should be less fresh air; that the air should flow slower than is now the custom; and that schoolrooms ventilated that way should have special provision for warming and drying the feet in stormy weather.

BENEFITS OF CANNED SUNLIGHT.

H. H. R. writes: Will you say something regarding the benefits to be derived from taking the light treatments? By this I mean what has been called canned sunlight. How often should treatments be taken and for what duration?

REPLY.

Some hold that ultra-violet light is more beneficial than high grade sunlight, but that is rather generally denied. The nays have more votes than the ayes.

Many hold that ultra-violet light is more beneficial than low grade sunshine. On that question the ayes have it.

Light sensitizes a chemical called ergosterol in the body. This substance, when sensitized, increases the amount of calcium and phosphorus in the blood or puts them in better balance. It increases the germicidal powers of the blood, promotes resistance to infection, stimulates growth, protects the body against colds and rickets, cures rickets and colds, and possibly some other diseases.

The subject is a new one and many points remain to be settled. It is certain that ultra-violet light does harm to certain people and at certain times.

Exposures should not be given oftener than twice a week, nor for longer than ten minutes; nor should the skin be reddened by the exposure. None of these limits should be exceeded except under the direction of some physician of experience.

FOODS WITH VITAMIN B.

A. N. writes: 1. Is aromatic spirits of ammonia a sedative or stimulant? I have seen it recommended for both.

2. Will you give a list of foods rich in vitamin B?

REPLY.

1. It is a stimulant. There are conditions in which a stimulant quiets nervousness and is, therefore, said to be sedative.

2. Vitamin B seems to be a combination of two vitamins, a growth principle soluble in water and a principle which prevents beri beri and various forms of neuralgic pains.

The growth principle abounds in vegetables. Calves get it from grass. Young people get it from greens of several kinds. The part which prevents beri beri abounds in grains of all kinds. It is found particularly in the bran. Therefore, it is found in cereals, whole grain breads, and brans.

POLICE GET HIGH HANDED.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I left my car in front of my home last night, simply forgetting to put it into the garage which is to the rear of the house. The car was hauled by the police to a garage over two miles away. When I went to get it this morning the hauling services were $6 and storage handling $1, a total of $7. I naturally kicked against such extortion but the cashier of the establishment told me that the police had set the charges. This is the very first time I ever left my car out over night. I wonder if the officials of the city of Chicago permit such outrages as this. B. V. F.

This is a common though a somewhat new practice. Some lawyers question the legal soundness of the course that you describe, but until the courts have passed upon it we must consider the question an open one.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. A bought a lot from B, being assured there was no back assessments to be paid. B inserted in the deed the following words: "All taxes and assessments levied after 1926." Records show improvement assessments prior to date mentioned, notwithstanding assurances given to the contrary.

2. When are improvement assessments levied?

3. Is B liable for assessments stated above? A. E. S. C.

We assume that the words which you quote were preceded by the words "subject to." In such case, the grantee would have to pay taxes and assessments which became liens after 1926 and the grantor would have to pay taxes and assessments which became liens before 1926 or during 1926.

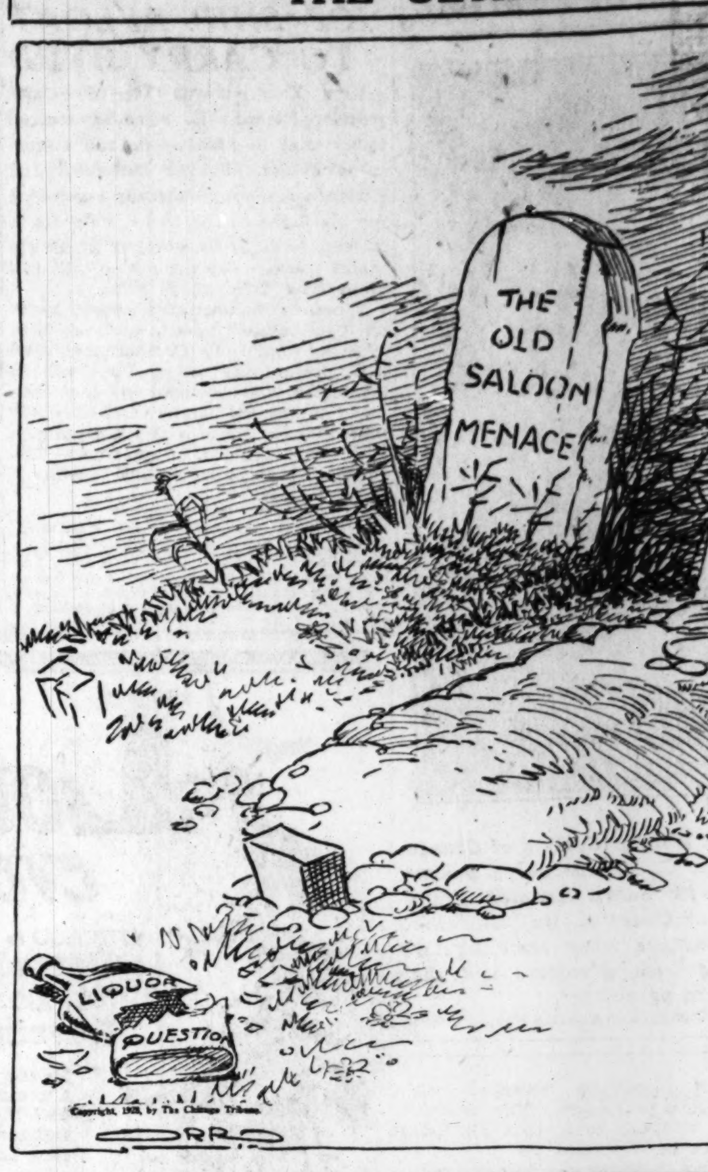
THE ULTIMATE SOLUTION



FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 11, 1863.

NASHVILLE.—Jason Hall, Indiana military agent, telegraphed Gov. Morton of Indiana: "I am off with surgeons and ambulances and I will get our wounded in the battle at Franklin if it is possible." The rebel force under Van Dorn has retreated south and is reported to be across Duck river. All is quiet at Murfreesboro.

CHICAGO.—We scarcely believe the report of our special dispatch that Gen. Grant sent a steamer express from Young's Point to order ex-Maj. Charles M. Willard out of Memphis, it is understood, because of his speculating prospects. That would be like procuring a double gross of fine tooth combs to get rid of a nit.

WASHINGTON.—The senate confirmed the nominations of Ebenezer Peck of Illinois to be judge of the Court of Claims and Samuel C. Park of Illinois to be associate justice of the United States Court for Idaho.

CHICAGO.—One hundred and twenty of the rebel prisoners at Camp Douglas have taken the oath of allegiance.

WASHINGTON.—When they put up the "war railing" at the navy department things mean business. This is a historic piece of furniture intended to bar the general public, correspondents included, from the officers at work in the navigation bureau. It is always brought into use when there is a crisis. It appeared today.

LONDON.—Hubert Duncombe, a Conservative member of the house of commons, gave notice he will put his formal question to the government in parliament: "Whether, with a view to recognizing the identity of the interests of all English speaking peoples, her majesty's government will consider the advisability of placing the service of the British fleet at the disposal of the United States in the event of complications arising between them and any foreign power."

HAVANA.—The situation is growing more and more serious. Police are arresting men whom Weyler had banished and Gen. Blanco pardoned. The latter is doing his best to stem the tide of public anti-American sentiment, but two big Spanish warships afloat and one American warship sunk in Havana bay are having an influence which is growing daily.

CHICAGO.—John T. Shayne, the State street furrier, was central figure in a lively fracas in the rotunda of the Leland hotel. With his fists he compelled Peter Gabel to make good a worthless check for $200 Gabel had given for a sealskin sacque. Shayne landed several blows, and got the cash.

MARCH 11, 1918.

PARIS.—The American secretary of war, Newton D. Baker, has arrived at a French port. With a staff of seven he came on an American cruiser. The party was met at the pier by a French general, representing the French army; Maj. Gen. Squier, representing the American army; Admiral Moreau, representing the French navy, and Rear Admiral Wilson.

CHICAGO.—In three capacity gatherings at his tabernacle, morning, noon and night, Billy Sunday "played to" about 50,000 people. He climaxed the night session by walloping his trusty chair into flinders as he belabored the floor with it in wrathful damnation against Germany. "As long as God gives me life," he cried, "I'll never again buy anything marked 'made in Germany.' Those murderous Germans. God damn such a bunch." He defined a Prussian as "A damnable, rotten, vile cruel assassin," and pictured the kaiser as "a weasel-eyed, pig-jowled, bull-necked, pot-bellied, God-hating, dirty, stinking cut throat who will get his when we lock the devil's dirty mouth and manicure his paws." Of our girls he said: "They'll flirt, they'll paint—and if you kiss one of them you will die of painter's colic inside an hour."

CHICAGO.—Socialists of this city adopted resolutions calling upon members and sympathizers to rally to the support of those indicted here on Saturday for obstructing the draft. The list includes Victor Berger of Milwaukee, Adolph Germer, J. Louis Engdahl, William F. Kruse, and the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker.

THE CLAIMS OF WRIGHT AND LANGLEY.

Chicago, Feb. 29.—Orville Wright's excuse for sending his first (1903) airplane to the British museum, as stated in your issue of the 27th, is exactly what all students of aerodynamics expected to hear from him. The stand of the Smithsonian institution in this matter is exactly correct and thoroughly borne out by recorded facts. There is plenty of glory for all concerned and when Mr. Wright attempts to pose in the same class in the science of physics as the late Prof. Samuel P. Langley he simply makes himself ridiculous.

Here is one item of the record that it would be well for him to dispose of: In the summer of 1891, when Prof. Langley was already well along on the road in the science of flying, and when he, as was his nature, preferred not to pose as an inventor, giving all his discoveries to science freely, refused to be interviewed, the editors of the Scientific American requested me to procure from him facts and opinions and permission to illustrate his work for a series of articles in their magazine. This I did and these facts and illustrations appeared at that time and are still procurable.

There had then been nothing done in the way of aluminum that would greatly aid him and the engines of that time were unsuited for the work expected of them; but Prof. Langley had mastered the art of flying with a heavier than air machine and I had the pleasure of flying with him over the Potomac flats in his rather crude machine, twelve years before Wright made the machine now in the British museum. The records are so complete that it is strange that Wright should now attempt to dispute them.

Prof. Langley never claimed to be a mechanic or an improver of mechanisms. But as a student of aerodynamics he easily led his fellow Americans, as all scientific men then and now recognize.

GERMAN BOOKS.

Chicago, Feb. 29. — If Mr. Oscar C. Pfaus, who wrote you about the lack of German books in Lewis institute branch of the public library, will visit that branch again he will find, like the fisherman in the fairy tale, that his wish has been fulfilled. A new shipment of German books was sent a few days ago, although the call from Lewis for German books has hitherto been very slight. Unfortunately the place is too small for comprehensive collections in any one class, but there are always our mimeographed bulletins of foreign books newly received from which patrons may order what they desire to be sent out from the central depositary. We recommend these lists also to the friends of Mr. Pfaus who, he says, have "read them all." We have about 16,000 volumes of modern German literature in circulation besides more than 20,000 volumes of the older and classical literature which is shelved downtown only.

Our best German collection on the west side is at the spacious Legler branch at Crawford avenue and Monroe street, where there is ample room for books and patrons. There are also several German periodicals on file. There is none at Lewis because none has been called for. The French periodical referred to was put in at the request of language teachers in the high schools.

POLITICAL ACTION.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—You say "Senator Borah is presenting the new audacity that no man can be nominated by the Republican party unless the Anti-Saloon league passes on his qualifications and finds them exactly right." I wish to ask in all fairness, "Does not every organized group of voters attempt to learn exactly where candidates stand on all issues in which it is particularly interested?" I think you will grant me that they do, and if so is it an audacity for the league to do likewise? As an organization representing the dry interests of this country, is it not their duty to determine by every open and fair means where each candidate stands on the wet or dry issue, and to put the results of such determination before those whom they represent?

You say the "Anti-Saloon league . . . is responsible by its influence and demands for governmental terrorism, destruction of rights, for court protected killings and manslaughter." Is it a "destruction of rights" for a majority of voters to take away from all men that which some men abuse and as a consequence not a few rob their own wives and children of their natural protectors, or are willing to barter their own and their families' future welfare for the satisfaction of an unnatural appetite? Admitting for the sake of argument that some of the dry agents recently acquitted in federal courts might not have deserved acquittal, can we justly accuse the league of "court protected killings" when we realize that hundreds of men accused of similar and other crimes are acquitted every month in other courts solely and simply because the prosecution involved fails to present sufficient evidence to prove them guilty "beyond a reasonable doubt"?

ROY S. HUBBS.

JIGGETY-JIG.

Jacksonville, Ill., Feb. 28.—In the army we used to use the words "zigzag" and its variants, among them "jiggety-jig," to mean intoxicated, generally happily so. As I was reading nursery rhymes to Priscilla today, I wondered whether that was the meaning intended in the one beginning "To market, to market, to buy a fat pig." It interested me as a speculation in word survival and it ought to interest the W. C. T. U., etc., as a possible menace to the morals of the very young. Unfortunately, there is, so far as I can discover, no Murray within a fifty miles of where I write. Can any of your readers supply the information from his knowledge of his library?

THESE ALL MOHAIR COVERED MAHOGANY PIECES represent the Rigid QUALITY STANDARD so definitely adhered to in this Big Store. For over Fifty Years the hand made method outlined step by step on this page has been our only way of making SMYTH UPHOLSTERY, Soft and Strong. Every piece we make is carefully constructed in this manner, regardless of the price at which it may be offered. We invite you to visit the Upholstery Shop on our 7th Floor, where these illustrations were made. Here you may watch each operation and learn for yourself the care and skill employed in the assembly of only the best of materials; then you will know that Upholstery made by this method deserves the pride we take in calling it our own and the satisfaction it assures in the homes of our patrons.

THIS OFFERING IS IN NO SENSE RESTRICTED TO "WHILE A CERTAIN NUMBER LAST"—IT IS ON ALL NEXT WEEK; COME ANY TIME CONVENIENT TO YOU

Solid Mahogany Carved Davenport

$100

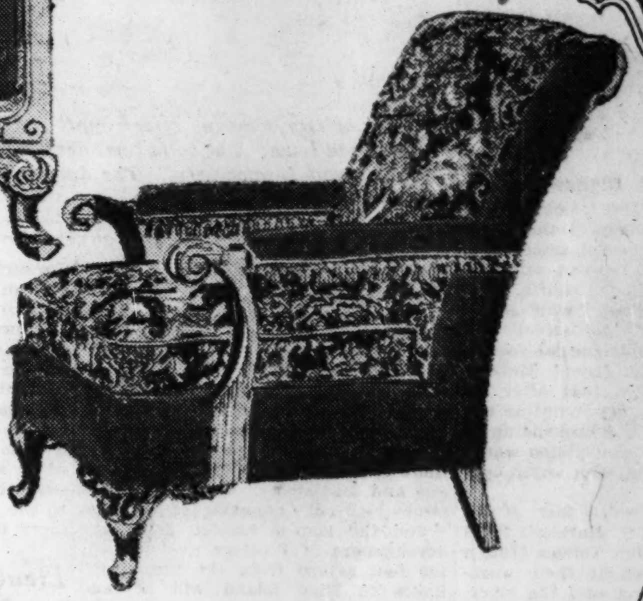
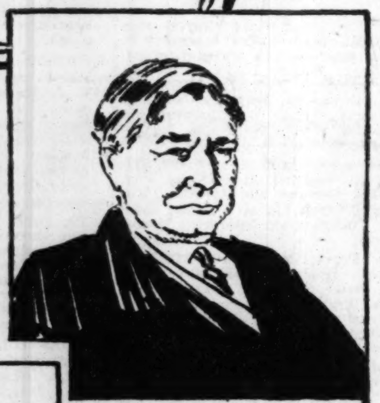
IN Genuine Mohair covering and on the reverse of the three cushions the Floral Linen Frieze combines in colorful harmony. The carved one piece rail which spans the back classifies this model as one of the most popular of the newer designs. Introduced in the base and in the turned legs is the same carved motif so effective at the top. Davenport $100

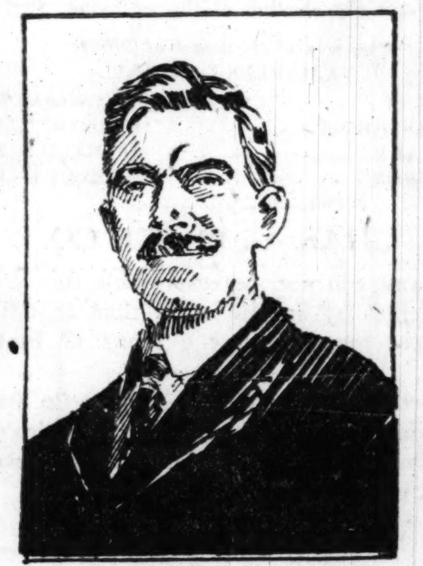


The Armchair, above, is an attractive companion piece for the Davenport, matching in detail and covered in same combination of Mohair and Linen Frieze . . . $65

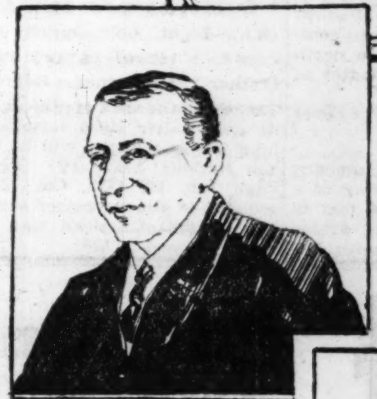
The Wing Chair, also matching this group, may be had for . . . $75



MR. ANTHONY JARINEK made his first piece of Smyth Upholstery back in 1892, 36 years ago.



MR. GEORGE FISCHRUPP, Superintendent of our Shops, started in 1884—44 years ago. He is responsible for the exacting standards in the manufacture of Smyth Upholstery.



MR. JOSEPH KOPECKI first entered our Shops in 1886 — 42 years experience making Smyth upholstering.

This Coxwell is covered on the back and one side of the reverse down filled cushion in Linen Frieze which matches the cushions of the other pieces of this group; in combination we have used the matching Mohair $65

"There is scarcely a thing in this world that some man can not make a little worse and sell a little cheaper and the buyers who consider Price only are this man's lawful prey."

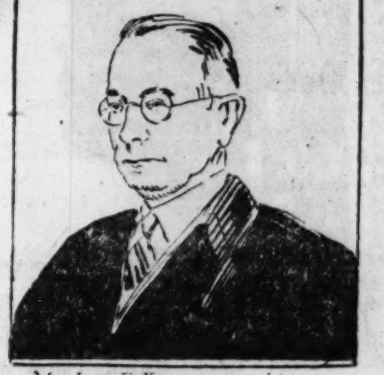
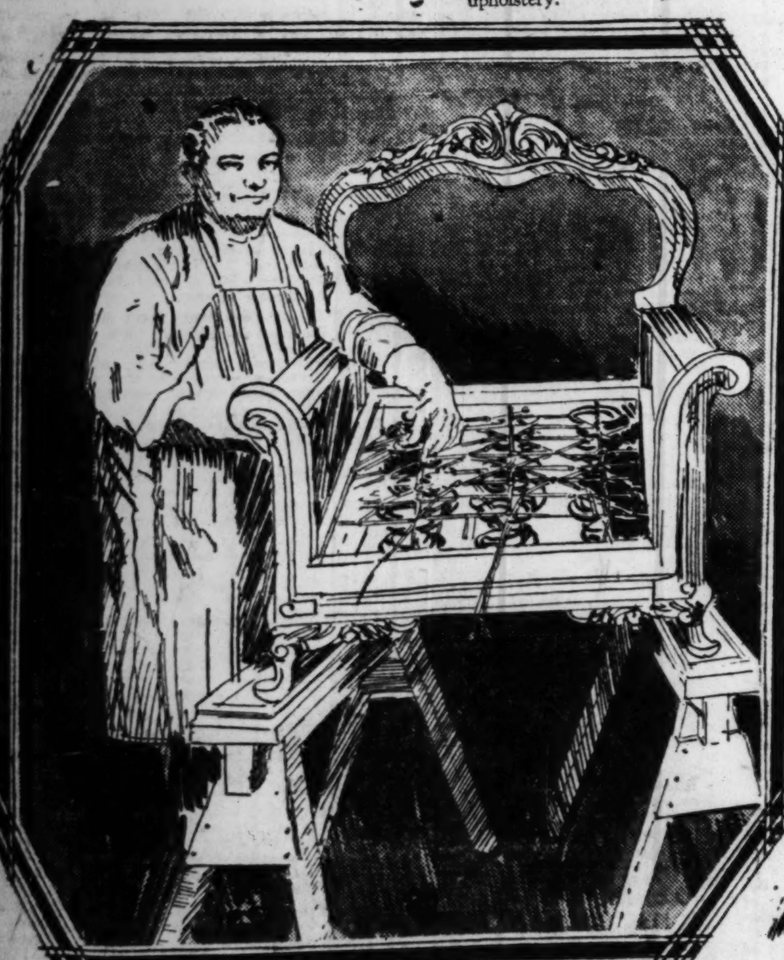
7 of the Skilled Craftsmen Who Make This Group

MEN, whose careers have been spent entirely in the making of Smyth Upholstery, soft and strong. It is of men like these that our Shop is composed. Not all of them have been here as long as forty-four years—and many not twenty-five years, but there are few in this 'Largest of Retail Upholstery Shops' who have made this product for less than ten years. No man is permitted to produce Smyth Upholstery without four years of careful training. These interesting facts explain why Smyth Upholstery is unexcelled. Men happy in their work always achieve most satisfactory results—and the men in our Shops are happy men—their long service records emphasize this. Making Upholstery to them is not just an occupation. Every piece each man makes is to him an example of his own handiwork. Because he is proud of the art of his occupation he strives to build into every piece QUALITY which will reflect credit to him as a craftsman.



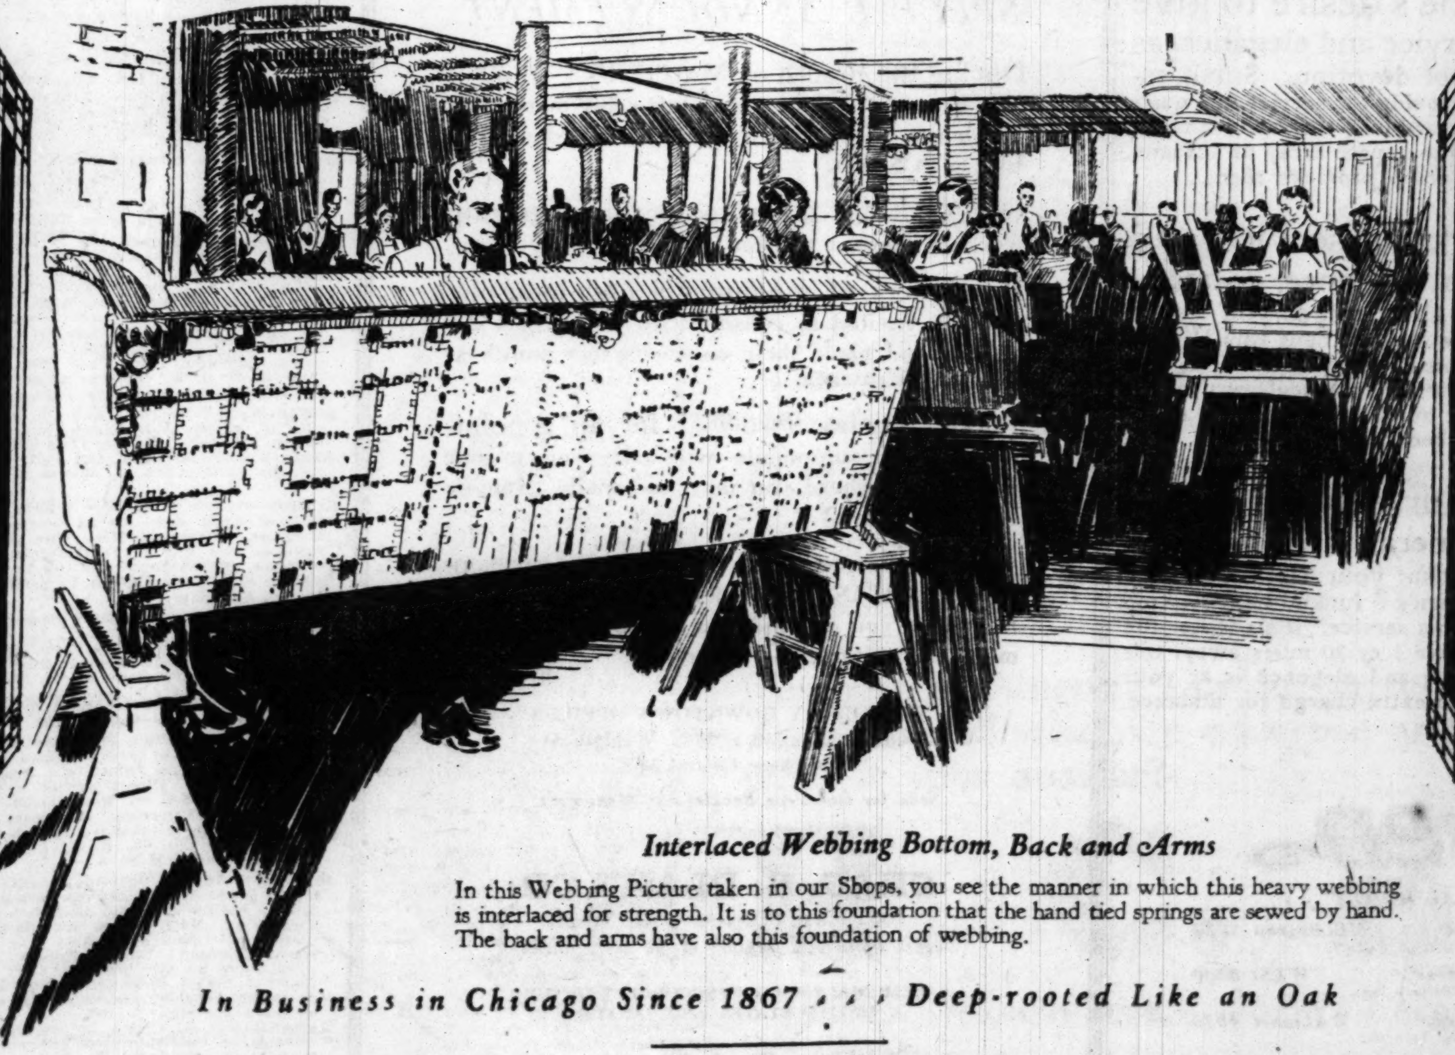
MR. JOHN F. KALLSEN started in our Upholstery Shop in February 1900—28 years without interruption in this service.

The printed words in this advertisement are chosen for their exactness in describing the merchandise so also are the illustrations . . . . .



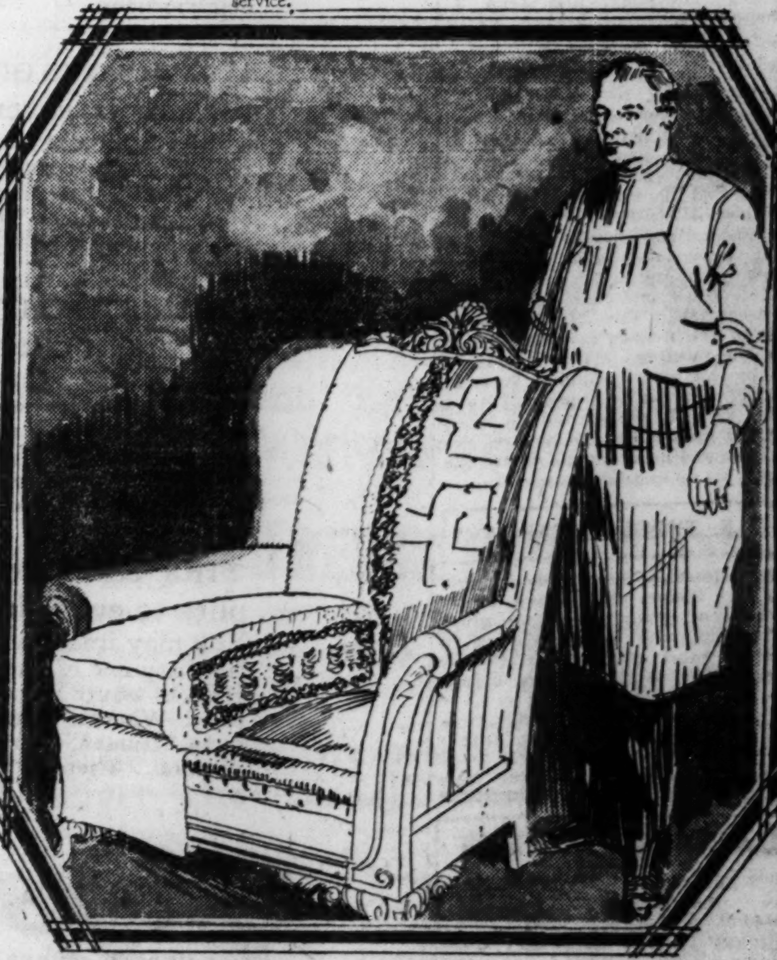
Steel Tempered Springs, Hand Tied

The steel tempered springs we use in all of our construction are hand tied with best Italian Hemp, as illustration shows. Mr. Tony Offgren, who has just completed this operation has been making Upholstery in our shops for nearly Twenty Years.



Interlaced Webbing Bottom, Back and Arms

In this Webbing Picture taken in our Shops, you see the manner in which this heavy webbing is interlaced for strength. It is to this foundation that the hand tied springs are sewed by hand. The back and arms have also this foundation of webbing.



Top Sewing of Springs and Filling and Spring Filled Cushion

The springs are finally top sewed to heavy burlap and then follows the different layers of soft Upholstering materials. It is over this that the Genuine Mohair is finally placed. MR. JOHN GORSKI at the right has been in our shop over 20 years.

VOTERS TO PASS ON $77,959,000 BOND PROJECTS

Council Action Breaks All Improvement Records.

when carried out, an estimated total cost of $300,000,000. The improvements would spread a spiderweb of high speed traffic arteries from the loop to each side of the city, linking there with state and county highways, and open a half dozen thoroughfares. In addition it would provide street lights, fire and police stations and so on.

Bonding Power Doubled.

The huge bond program was made possible by the Thompson finance bills passed by the legislature last June, one of which doubled the city's bonding power. The new limit is approximately $89,000,000.

Only two projects of the thirty-one met with any opposition in the council. These were the initial bond issues to start the Avondale highway and to widen Madison street. Twelve votes were cast against the former and three against the latter.

Three northwest side aldermen, Max Adamowski [38th], Frank Ringa [39th], and John A. Chapman [40th], turned against the Avondale project. Previously they supported it warmly. They said they had believed the final total cost, $60,000,000, was to be paid for by bond issue without special assessments. Taxpayers in their wards, they declared, could not bear the assessment burden.

"Only two sections are going to benefit—the loop and Lake county," asserted Chapman. "We will have a Chinese wall through our wards on which the motorists will speed by, but we pay for it."

Clark Defends Highway.

Ald. John Clark [30th], pointed out that it will be the duty of the court to decide what the special assessment will be and if it is spread unjustly the remedy will lie in the courts. The north siders, he averred, "want something for nothing." No street was ever improved without special assessments, he said. Ald. Joseph McDonough [13th] surmised that after all of their previous oratory, painting the glories of Avondale, the backsliding of the three northwest councilmen would not be very popular with their constituents.

"Well, I think we're just giving this first $5,000,000 to Marshall Field & Co.," said Ald. John Toman [23rd]. "It is going to benefit their warehouse at Wells street and the river, and nobody else."

Voting against putting the Avondale project through were Ald. Guy Guernsey [6th], Sheldon Govier [9th], D. S. McKinlay [19th], Joseph Cepak [22d], John Toman [23rd], Joseph Smith [32nd], Joseph Petlak [33rd], George Self [35th], Wiley Mills [37th], Max Adamowski [38th], Frank Ringa [39th], and John Chapman [40th]. There were 29 votes for it.

Although the opposing votes were fewer, the debate on Madison street flamed much hotter. This was the pet project inserted by Mayor Thompson to fulfill a campaign pledge over the protest of James Simpson, chairman of the Chicago Plan commission. Mr. Simpson acquiesed to avoid upsetting the whole program. In the discussion, he was repeatedly criticized for thus "selling out."

"Nobody wants Madison street widened except those who put it on," declared Ald. McKinley. "This is the only white elephant in the lot and I doubt if it will stand up at the polls. No estimates have been made on its costs." Ald. Guernsey added that the thought of cutting off business building fronts when Monroe or Congress, both residence thoroughfares, are available, is "a dream and an absurdity." Members of the council, he predicted, will regret their action.

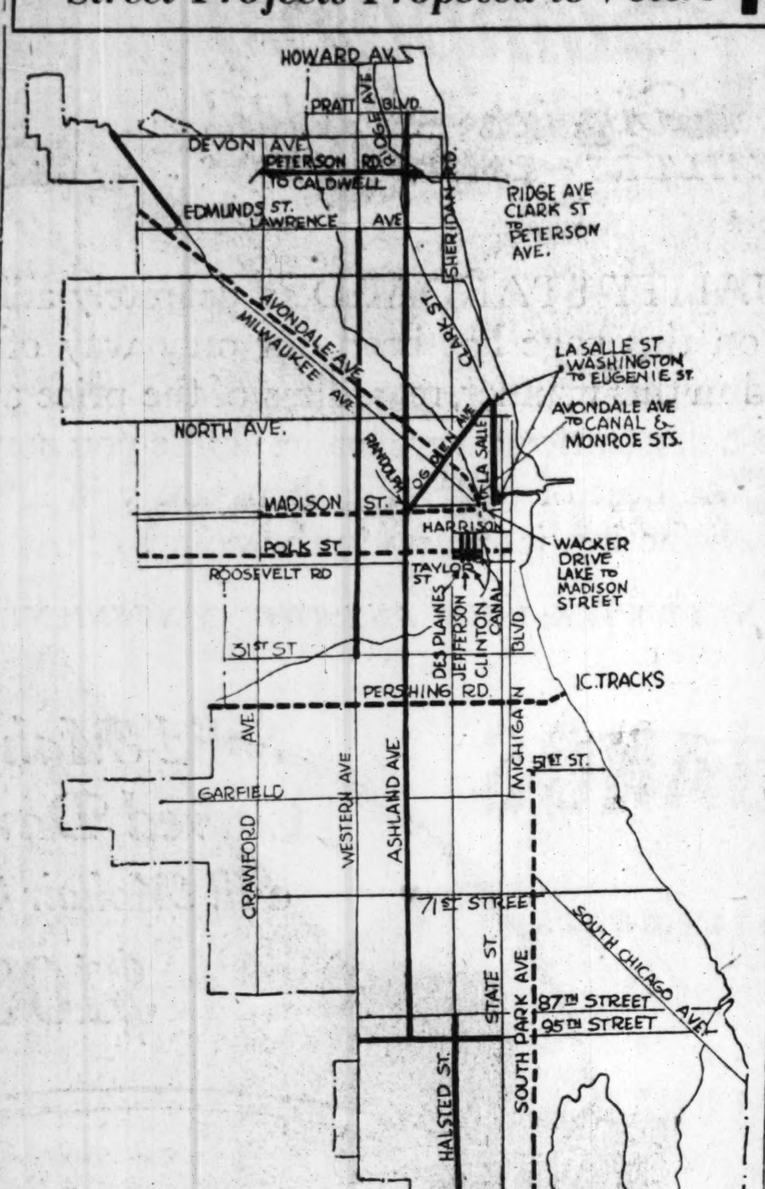
There was no defense of the Madison street project worthy of mention. The mayor's floor leaders passed the word around that it must go on and it went on. Voting "no" were Ald. Guernsey, McKinlay, and John J. Hoellen [47th].

Mayor Avoids Wrangling.

Upsetting predictions, the mayor did not attempt to strike out the neighborhood subways, street openings, and departmental requests piled by the finance committee on top of the program agreed upon by Mr. Simpson and himself. As they totaled only about $5,000,000, he chose to accept them, his friends explained, rather than cause a deadlock and further wrangling in the council.

"Every nook and corner of the city has been taken care of," Chairman Clark of the finance committee, said after the meeting. "I believe there will be an overwhelming vote in favor of the entire program. As a result, we will get started on work that will give thousands of men employment and make all the rest of the country sit up and take notice."

Street Projects Proposed to Voters



Map of city, showing street improvement projects proposed in $77,959,000 bond issue. The solid lines denote unfinished projects to be completed if issue is successful. The dotted lines show new projects to be started with bond issue money.

O. K. THREE WIDENINGS

Three detached street widening projects, all factors in through artery development of the city, were given judicial approval yesterday, two in Superior court and one in County court. They legalize special assessment rolls for the following:

Other Decisions Due Soon.

The Western avenue section approved for widening is one of five widening sections up for court proceedings, affecting portions of the thoroughfare between Fullerton avenue and 31st street. Decision on the other sections is expected shortly. When the last is handed down the development of Western avenue as a 100 foot artery from the north city limits to Blue Island will be well under way.

The Kimball avenue approval is destined to create a new north and south motor traffic artery, which when completed will connect the western north McCormick road, which terminates at Devon avenue.
side with the north shore territory over

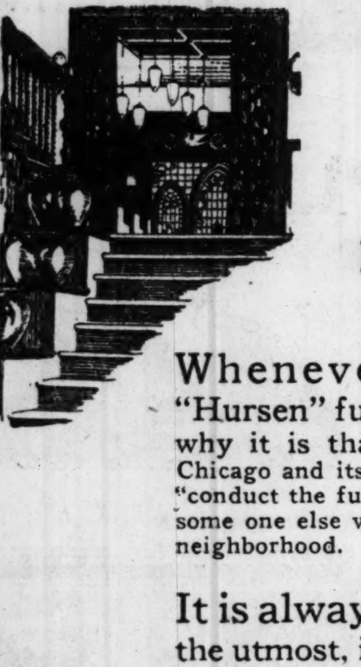
Near Devon Avenue.

There remains only a small amount of paving work and the opening of a connection for a few hundred feet to Devon avenue, to create an artery which, used in combination with McCormick road, will serve a large volume of traffic between the north and west sides.

Approval of the widening of 16th street from Michigan to Indiana avenue to a width of 100 feet is an important phase of the development of Indiana avenue on the near south side, as it provides an outlet into Michigan avenue to the west and makes the basis of an eastward extension of the street over the Illinois Central railway and to the outer park drive, south of Soldiers' field.

Lieut. Col. J. R. McAndrews Dies After Long Illness

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Lieut. Col. Joseph R. McAndrews, a retired cavalry officer and brother of former Representative James McAndrews of Chicago, is dead at the Walter Reed hospital after a long illness. Burial will be in Arlington National cemetery. Born in Chicago Jan. 18, 1872, Col. McAndrews enlisted in the volunteer army during the Spanish-American war. He was commissioned in 1901.



"Hursen" Funerals In Your Neighborhood

Whenever you attend a "Hursen" funeral, you realize at once why it is that thousands of families in Chicago and its suburbs have chosen Hursen to "conduct the funeral," in preference to engaging some one else who happens to be located in the neighborhood.

It is always one's desire to give the utmost, in service and elegance, as a final expression of devotion. Small establishments cannot provide the service, the quality, the elegance of materials, the environments of a "funeral-home," the superb array of automobile equipment, as Hursen provides them.

All this remarkable service, and new and unusual elegance, cost you less, far less, than the charges you would have to pay anywhere else, without this Hursen super-elegance and unmatched service. It is this higher quality and low price policy upon which Hursen's, the greatest of all establishments of its kind in America, has been built.

This same Hursen policy applies to every funeral, large or small. You may imagine that your distance away from any one of Hursen's 3 funeral-homes is too great to assure you this service. This is not the case. Whether you live 1 or 20 miles away, this same "Hursen" service and elegance is at your disposal. There is no extra charge for distance.

INVENTORY TELLS CAREFUL USE OF BINGHAM MILLION

General's Wife Advised by Late J. J. Mitchell.

An inventory of the $1,000,000 estate of the late Mrs. Pamela Addison Mitchell Bingham, cousin of the late John J. Mitchell and wife of Brig. Gen. Theodore A. Bingham, U. S. A., retired, shows a well selected variety of conservative investments. The document, reflecting a desire for minimum risk rather than maximum yield, was filed yesterday before Leon Edelman, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner. Many of the investments were made, it is said, upon the advice of Mr. Mitchell.

2 Trainmen Given Blame for Fatal Alton Wreck

Responsibility for the rear-end collision between train 78 and train 10 on the Chicago and Alton railroad on Dec. 31, in which two persons were killed and 58 injured, was placed yesterday on Engineman Van Ness of train 10 and Flagman Salmon of train 78 by W. P. Borland, director of the bureau of safety of the interstate commerce commission, in a report made public in Washington yesterday. According to the report Van Ness failed to operate his train under proper control and Flagman Salmon failed properly to protect his train by flags.

CHARGES COATH DODGES LAW FOR SCHOOL SPOILS

Lawyer Says Merit Rules Are Disregarded.

J. Lewis Coath, president of the school board, is violating the civil service law in order to build up political patronage in the schools, according to charges made yesterday by Michael F. Ryan, legal advisor for the school engineers' union. The attorney based his charge on Coath's failure to hold examinations for schools janitors, engineers, firemen, scrub women, and window washers.

Approval of ward committeemen rather than civil service is the only requirement met by the 2,100 men now employed by the board in the maintenance of the schools, the attorney said. Working conditions in the schools has never been worse, he asserted.

"Each of those 2,100 political appointments constitutes violation of the civil service law," Mr. Ryan declared. "These employés are appointed for 60 days on the O. K. of ward committeemen in order that Coath can make good his promise to deliver into the hands of the patronage committee 2,100 school employés to be dumped into the political basket."

Political Duties Required.

Men employed under the sixty day appointment scheme are required to work at the polls and to contribute to the patronage committee, a direct violation of the civil service code, Mr. Ryan said. "The whole system is an evasion of the law which stipulates that temporary appointments may be made only in an emergency," he asserted.

"Coath expected to have this new political army placed under his generalship, but it was taken out of his hands and given to the patronage committee. "Now, in order to regain control of the maintenance system, he is attempting to have the work let by contract to private cleaning companies. He's stalling off attempts to put the system in working order, just as he has stalled on the selection of a superintendent and the completion of the McAndrew trial."

No examinations have been held for employés since the school engineer contract system was dropped last July, the attorney explained. At that time the state Supreme court in a decision directed that all school firemen be placed under civil service. The board of education then directed that all employés in the maintenance department be placed under civil service, asserting that the board would be in contempt of court if they failed to take that action.

"Only the firemen were affected by that decision, but Coath deliberately interpreted the decision broadly in order to get control of the 2,100 jobs," Mr. Ryan charged. "He had no intention of living up to the civil service law."

Increased Cost Shown.

Figures obtained from school records show the following comparison between the cost of maintaining all Chicago public schools over a period of two weeks with the contract system and with civil service employés.

Civil service system..................	$197,170
Contract system.....................	123,048
Increase for two weeks............	$ 74,122

Blame for the $2,205,991 estimated deficit in the 1928 budget Mr. Ryan placed on the board president. 'It was Coath's broad interpretation of the court decision which brought the new system of cleaning and maintaining the schools that costs the taxpayers two million dollars more annually, the attorney charged.

"Under the old contract system a blanket appropriation was made for the engineer custodians, who supplied their own labor. Most of the cleaning about the school was done outside school hours," Mr. Ryan asserted. "Under the new arrangement the employés work during the day, and what cleaning is done must be accomplished in the short time before and after school hours. Dirty windows in the schools show that the school board requirement of five general cleanings a year has not been lived up to."

FALL DOWN STAIRS FATAL.

RESERVE OFFICERS OF NINTH NAVAL DISTRICT TO MEET HERE TODAY

Naval reserve officers from the thirteen states represented in the Ninth naval district will meet in annual session today aboard the United States steamship Commodore at the foot of Randolph street. Capt. Edward A. Evers, commander of the vessel, said the meeting is expected to adopt resolutions calling on congress to approve an expenditure of $320,000,000 for national defense.

"We want the world to know that we are for President Coolidge's program for a bigger and better navy," said Capt. Evers.

CHARGE MARINE INSURANCE FIRM FAVORS ALIENS

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—Charles R. Page, chairman of the American Marine Insurance syndicate, was submitted to a close questioning by members of the house merchant marine committee today on alleged discrimination in insurance rates by the syndicate against American vessels in favor of foreign vessels.

Two Democratic members of the committee, Representatives Abernethy of North Carolina and Briggs of Texas, declared that higher rates were charged shipping board vessels, together with a number of other American privately owned lines.

The differential had been defended on the ground that foreign operators were more experienced than Americans in ocean commerce.

McANDREW PUTS ONE OVER WITH OLD GLORY'S AID

He Foils City Watchdogs and Gets His Papers.

How William McAndrew, former superintendent of schools, made two trips last week to his former offices in an effort to get possession of his personal files and how he finally loaded his property on a truck, spread an American flag over it and rode down State street, came to light yesterday.

It was on Monday that Mr. McAndrew went to his former office at 460 South State street. He hadn't been there since a few days after his suspension last Aug. 29, but there, still on the door, was the plate reading, "William McAndrew, Superintendent of Schools." So he stepped in, intending to remove his personal papers and books.

Bogan Calls a Halt.

"You can't do it," Acting Superintendent William J. Bogan told him. "The board has given me orders not to let you touch a thing."

Mr. McAndrew bowed and withdrew. But as soon as the report of his visit reached the board offices at 650 South Clark street, a corps of clerks was despatched to inspect his personal goods.

"I just wanted to make sure he wasn't stealing any more records," said Frank S. Righeimer, attorney for the board. His use of the word "more" referred to the fact that Mr. McAndrew had been accused last August of taking records. But, it was added, the clerks found everything all right.

He Returns with Truck.

On Tuesday Mr. McAndrew returned. With him came a truck and a driver. They invaded the basement of the building and with the help of George Braun, custodian of the building, removed several large boxes and loaded them on the truck.

This done, Mr. McAndrew surveyed his work for a moment. He ran his right hand reflectively over his famous "pink" whiskers. Then his teeth flashed in a smile. Perhaps he threw a glance over his shoulder in the direction of the city hall. Then from somewhere he produced one large copy of Old Glory.

Spreading that over the whole load, he triumphantly mounted the truck, saying to the driver as he leaped aboard:

"Home, James!"

President of Shoe Company Shoots Himself to Death

Knoxville, Tenn., March 10.—(AP)—Oscar Tate, president of the Haynes Henson Shoe company, shot and killed himself in the shoe store today. Directors of the shoe company issued a statement saying that Tate's financial affairs outside of the company "had been in an unfavorable condition for some time." Tate last week had resigned as a director of the Union National bank here.

URGES TEST OF EDUCATION FOR ALL IMMIGRANTS

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—A move to add educational tests to the present requirements placed upon aliens applying for citizenship was initiated today by Representative Kelly [Rep., Pa.]

He introduced a measure to require "reasonable understanding of American history, institutions and ideals" of petitioners for naturalization. This knowledge would be proven by certificates issued by public school authorities in accordance with the regulations to be laid down by the secretaries of labor and interior.

BANDIT SHOOTS STORE OWNER.

Herman Silber, 37, owner of a second hand furniture store at 719 East 43d street, was shot in the shoulder and arm last night by a robber when he was a little too slow in obeying a command to raise his hands. The bandit fled without loot.

Warmington Balcony Floor

Hotel Shoreland

Fifty-fifth Street at the Lake

The "Spirit" of The Shoreland is a factor that you should consider in the choice of a hotel home.

For, even though the ultra modern appointments and lavish spaciousness of Shoreland apartments hold promise of happier, more comfortable living... they are but physical properties which must be serviced willingly and efficiently to make your individual apartment truly your home.

This is why a thoughtful management has organized a service that those who can command and know better living will instantly appreciate:—American efficiency combined with Continental finesse.

Far more than a fashionable residential hotel, Hotel Shoreland has priced its apartments neither to appeal to those who spend without consideration nor to those to whom home is "price" rather than a higher standard of living. You, to whom a well-ordered, genteel home... beautiful, refined and in good taste, is the paramount issue, to you—we offer the most select living accommodations with rentals that are consistent and reasonable.

An unrivalled view from every apartment; a location that affords luxurious seclusion if you prefer it;... and our private motor coach transportation, or Illinois Central electric to take you to the loop in ten minutes.

SPANK CHILDREN, JUDGE ADVISES ANXIOUSPARENTS

But Don't Be Cruel; Jailed Mother Is Defiant.

Kansas City, Kan., March 10.—(AP)—Disobedient daughters of the high school age who are spanked will find no comfort in the courts here unless the punishment is cruel and unusual, parents were assured today by two judges.

Following the conviction of Mrs. Christine Woodside, 34, on a charge of assault brought by her daughter, Lorene Jones, 16, who was whipped with a wooden coat hanger, many parents called on officials to determine whether in wielding the rod they made themselves liable to jail sentences or fines.

They were assured by Probate Judge Henry Meade and Police Judge Fred R. White, who fined Mrs. Woodside $100, that times haven't changed so far as old fashioned spankings go. Fathers and mothers were cautioned, however, not to make the punishment too severe.

Spank Them, Judge Advises.

"Go ahead and spank them," Judge Meade told those who telephoned him and asked what their recourse was to be when their children needed disciplining.

Judge Meade said he knew at least 150 girls in the city who needed a good spanking. Most of them were between 11 and 16 years of age, he added.

"I believe that more whippings would help," Judge White said. "Parents have a perfect right to administer punishment in enforcing discipline, but it should not be excessive. They need have no fear that they will be haled into court for ordinary spankings."

Mother Stands Pat.

Mrs. Woodside, after a night in jail, stood pat today in her refusal to pay her fine and also rejected a parole conditioned on her agreement not to mistreat her daughter again. Acceptance of the parole would be an admission that she had been wrong, she declared.

The mother said she entertained no sense of guilt and was ready to spank the girl again when she lied or disobeyed.

Later Mrs. Woodside was released on bond of $250 when her attorney filed an appeal to the District court.

Meanwhile, the daughter was with Miss Inez Mackinnon, high school teacher and the head of Lorene's Sunday school class. She said she would not return home until her mother relented.

"SYNTHETIC"

This is the age of synthetic things. Its beginning can possibly be traced back to the red lemonade of circus days—when a pinch of sugar, a dash of vermilion and a lonesome lemon served for an entire day.

Today we have synthetic colors, flavors, and even ethics.

The temptation to underestimate the discriminative powers of the public is ever present in every business—once that a synthetic product has been successfully foisted onto a customer it seems fair enough to feel that all will react the same, but they won't—no one enjoys eating—wearing—or drinking synthetic things. Wise business is building lasting good will by selling only the genuine.

LINCOLN LETTER REVEALS BREAK WITH HIS CLIENT

New York Man Publishes Rare Documents.

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—More unpublished letters, a legal opinion and several other documents in the handwriting of Abraham Lincoln, have come into the possession of Emmanuel Hertz of New York, collector of Lincolniana, who made their contents public today.

The most important document is a letter written by Lincoln from Springfield, Ill., Dec. 21, 1860, to Andrew G. Curtin, war governor of Pennsylvania. The letter marked "confidential," follows:

"I am obliged by your kindness in asking my views in advance of preparing your inaugural. I think of nothing proper for me to suggest except a word about this secession and this union movement—on that subject, I think, you would do well to express without passion, threat or appearance of boasting, but, nevertheless, with firmness, the purpose of yourself and your state to maintain the union at all hazards."

Sends Draft to His Wife.

Another letter, which Lincoln wrote to his wife, dated May 24, 1848, when Lincoln was a member of congress. Although Lincoln began the letter "My Dear Wife," he signed it "Affectionately, A. Lincoln." The letter follows:

"Enclosed is the draft as I promised you in my letter of Sunday. It is drawn in favor of your father, and I doubt not, he will give you the money for it at once. I write this letter in the postoffice, surrounded by men and noise, which, together with the fact there is nothing new makes me write so short a letter."

On Value of Legal Services.

In a letter which Lincoln wrote while practicing law with Herndon, Lincoln takes issue with his client on the nature and value of the legal services rendered. Herndon was so opposed to what Lincoln wrote that on the top of the first sheet he made the notation: "Never to be published—Herndon," and at the bottom of the second page wrote: "This shall never be published." The letter said:

"Messrs. C. W. Davis and company. Gentlemen: Your letter to Lincoln and Herndon of Oct. 1, complaining that the lands of those against whom we obtained judgment last winter for you, have not been sold on execution, has just been handed to me today. I will try to 'explain how' [your] 'interests have been so much neglected,' as you choose to express it. After those judgments were obtained we wrote you that under our law the selling of land on execution is a delicate and dangerous matter; that it could not be done safely without a careful examination of titles and also of the value of the property.

Gets Report on Titles.

"Our letters to you will show this—to do this work would require a canvas of half the state. We were puzzled and you sent no definite instructions. At length we employed a young man to visit all the localities, and make as accurate a report on titles and values as he could. He did this, spending three or four weeks' time and, as he said, over a hundred dollars of his own money in doing so. When this was done we wrote you asking if we should sell and bid in for you in accordance with this information. This letter you never answered.

"My mind is made up. I will have no more to do with this class of business. I can do business in court, but I cannot, and will not, follow execution all over the world.

"I believe we have had, of legal fees, which you are to recover back from the defendants, one hundred dollars. I would not go through the same labor and vexation again for five thousand."

His Broadmindedness.

In a letter to G. W. Rives written Dec. 15, 1849, Lincoln disclosed how broadminded and big hearted he was.

"From the beginning of your acquaintance I had felt the greatest kindness for you and had supposed it was reciprocated on your part," the letter said. "Last summer, under circumstances which I mentioned to you, I was constrained to withhold a recommendation which you desired and shortly afterwards I learned, in such a way as to believe it, that you were indulging in open abuse of me. Of course, my feelings were wounded. On receiving your last letter the question occurred whether you were attempting to use me at the same time you would injure me, or whether you might not have been misrepresented to me. If the former, I ought not to answer you; if the latter, I ought, and so I have remained in suspense. I now inclose you a letter which you may use if you think fit."

SUPREME COURT OF MEXICO O. K.'S ALIEN LAND LAW

MEXICO CITY, March 10.—(AP)—The Supreme court has issued a decision upholding the constitutionality of the alien land law and article 27 of the Mexican constitution under which the law was enacted.

The effect of the decision is to reaffirm the provisions of the law and the constitution which no foreigner may own land within one hundred kilometers of the border, or fifty kilometers of the seacoast.

The law also provides that foreigners can only own land elsewhere in the republic by renouncing foreign citizenship and accepting Mexican citizenship in so far as such land is concerned, which is to say that foreigners must accept Mexican laws and renounce appeals to their home government concerning the application of the Mexican laws to the land.

Record Violent Submarine Quake in Indian Ocean

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, March 10.—Father Pigot of the Riverview observatory today located a violent submarine earthquake 300 miles west of Sumatra. Father Pigot said that in his twenty years' experience he never recorded an earthquake of greater distance between crest and crest of the earthquake waves. In one case the sweep of the needle was more than 6 inches, denoting a distance from crest to crest of 130 miles. The waves continued several hours.

CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERT TODAY.

A chamber music concert will be given by the Gordon string quartet this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the James Simpson theater at Field museum. The concert is the third of a series given under the auspices of the Chicago Chamber Music society.

WILBUR HALTS STUNT FLYING BY NAVY AIRMEN

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Secretary Wilbur today halted certain kinds of stunt flying as a safety measure. His order forbids the performance of inverted or outside loops by navy flyers without express authorization.

The secretary acted after Lieut. Al Williams, the navy's racing and stunt ace, had successfully negotiated the outside loop on several occasions within the last few days. Because of the danger attendant to such aerial gymnastics, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, forbid other and less experienced flyers from trying to duplicate Williams' stunt.

The secretary's order is a confirmation of the action of Admiral Moffett. It was explained that Lieut. Williams had geen granted permission to attempt the outside loop.

DIES IN STREET CAR.

An unidentified man about 50 years old slumped on the floor and died in a southbound Western avenue street car at Belmont avenue yesterday. A junkman's card was found in his pocket. The body was removed to undertaking rooms at 2058 Belmont avenue.

Seeks to Indict Nurses Missing in Contempt Case

Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers yesterday announced that he will go before the grand jury tomorrow morning and seek indictments for Lucille Altier and Lorraine Irwin, missing witnesses in the investigation of Attorney William Scott Stewart's recent conduct of the Rongetti murder case. The prosecutor stated he proposed to take action following a hunt by state's attorney's detectives for the two women and because they apparently are evading the call of the prosecutor's office.

New Tribunal Ends Easy Paris Divorces for Yanks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 10.—The palmy days of Paris divorces officially ended today with the opening of a special chamber devoted exclusively to the settling of matrimonial difficulties. Heretofore, any American who rented an apartment could establish a residence for divorce purposes, but the new law is so strict that divorce lawyers estimate that 90 per cent of the petitions already filed by Americans and Britons will be thrown out automatically.

Even if there had never been a Piano—Paderewski would have been a great man

AT the Auditorium this afternoon, Chicago will sit enthralled at the feet of the greatest pianist of our day. Thousands will hear the art of a man presented in the "grand manner" that only is possible to him who is a giant outside his art, and who has, upon which to express it, an instrument equal to his transcendent powers.

THE Paderewski Fund is one of his hobbies. Created by Paderewski, the interest on $10,000 is disbursed in the form of triennial prizes to composers of American birth.

THE original trustees of the Fund were Dr. William Gregory Mason, Major H. L. Higginson and William Steinway.

WHEN Paderewski offered to reward William Steinway for the overwhelming success of his first American tour, which Mr. Steinway arranged, the latter replied, "To have discovered you is pay enough."

WITH a spirit enriched by sacrifice and a valiant heart deepened by glorious devotion, Paderewski plays as could only one who has been inspired, his soul exalted by a tremendous experience.

AND if, as critics say, his art is limited only by his instrument, all honor to the Steinway that he has ever found it the one Piano to which he could entrust that art.

THE extraordinary mentality of the man, the sound judgment such begets, mark him as the world's greatest living authority on Pianos, beyond all doubt.

PLENIPOTENTIARY at Large of the Republic of Poland is a rank Paderewski still holds. This distinction permits him to travel on a diplomatic passport and empowers him to represent his country at official functions.

AMONG the distinctions he cherishes most is his honorary membership in the American Legion—the only civilian foreigner, we believe, upon whom this honor has been conferred. Paderewski recruited in America 25,000 men who were not subject to the draft. This army he had sent to the western front in 1917.

HE IS amazingly well read and a perfect linguist, speaking no fewer than seven languages.

"HE was the greatest orator at the Peace Conference," declared Frank Polk, who headed the American peace delegation after President Wilson's return from France.

WHILE Premier of Poland, Paderewski remarked to an American reporter, "Politics are very much like a keyboard, with this one difference, that unlike the piano, the political keys are all black." And again, asked to define Bolshevism, he replied, "The Bolsheviks are the sworn enemies of all users of the tooth brush."

"IF IT had not been for Paderewski," said Marshal Foch, "there would have been no Poland."

PATRIOT, statesman, scholar, ideal host, tender heart and brilliant wit, artist—that is Ignace Jan Paderewski.

AT the age of three he witnessed the burning of his native village of Kurylowa and the slaughter of its inhabitants by the Russians. Horror burned itself into his brain and pity seared his heart at a tender age.

"SOMEDAY I'll save Poland," he used to say after "battles" he used to stage when a child.

HIS private fortune in 1914 was over $2,000,000. This he entirely expended in the cause of his native land.

PADEREWSKI is one of the most decorated men in the world and besides, he holds honorary Doctors' degrees in seven universities—Yale, Columbia, Southern California, Oxford, Posen, Cracow, and Lemberg.

MR. PADEREWSKI is often a visitor at Lyon & Healy's when in Chicago. In our wide acquaintance among artists of the first rank—Galli-Curci may be in tomorrow!—we find added inspiration to do the music business in a way creditable to such recognition. Yet monthly payments make anything here easy to buy.

HICKMAN, HUNT FOUND GUILTY IN HOLDUP MURDER

Jury Asks Mercy; Pass Sentence Today.

Hickman and his pal, Welby Hunt, were found guilty in Superior court of the slaying of C. Ivy Toms, a druggist of Rose Hill, a suburb, in a holdup on Christmas eve, 1926.

Life imprisonment was recommended by the jury of six men and six women which found him sane, as did the jury that found him guilty of the slaying of Marian Parker, 12 year old daughter of a Los Angeles banker.

Hunt Only 17 Now.

Formal sentence will be imposed on the two by Judge Elliott Craig on Tuesday. Under the California law Hunt could not be sentenced to death in this case, as he was under 18 years when he committed the crime. His 17th birthday passed during the trial. Hickman is 22.

The case was given to the jury late yesterday. Before deliberations were resumed this morning the foreman asked if the jury could recommend leniency for either or both of the accused youths and was told by Judge Craig that the court was not bound by recommendations.

Hickman May Appeal.

Hickman already is under sentence of death for killing the Parker girl. The date of his hanging was set for April 27. The conviction has been appealed. Today's conviction also may be appealed.

Until Hickman was captured and held for the Parker killing, the slaying of Toms was unsolved.

Hickman and Pal Found Guilty

Child Stabbed Defending Mother Dies of Wounds

Isadore Rotskoff, 11 years old, 1529 South Homan avenue, died early this morning in St. Anthony's hospital of stab wounds received at the hands of James Scott, a demented Negro, when the boy tried to prevent the man from attacking his mother, Mrs. Rose Rotskoff, 48, in her home last Friday. Scott, a janitor, held the mother and son prisoners in their home for more than an hour, apparently intent on slowly killing them by repeated stabbings before help arrived. The Negro escaped.

Has Ex-Kaiser's Grandson Visited U. S. Incognito?

NAPLES, Italy, March 10.—(AP)—Young Prince Wilhelm, son of the former crown prince of Germany, is reported to have arrived here aboard the steamship Colombo from New York and to have motored to Torre Annunziata to join his father, who recently went there.

[The steamship Colombo left New York Feb. 25 and was due in Naples today. There have been no reports that Prince Wilhelm was in the United States recently.]

BORAH DEMANDS G. O. P. FACE ALL ISSUES SQUARELY

Don't Sell Soul for Campaign Funds, He Warns.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—A demand was made on the Republican party tonight by Senator Borah of Idaho that it face campaign issues squarely and nominate a man for President who has the courage to disclose his real views on public questions.

"Give the people issues and you will not need to sell your soul for campaign funds," said the senator in an address to the Idaho State society here.

"Give the voters policies squarely presented and you will not have to mortgage the future action of the party to concession hunters."

Calls Conditions Awful.

Asserting that he presumed "every Republican has of late suffered a deep sense of humiliation," Mr. Borah, who has been indorsed by the Republicans of his home state for the presidency, declared "the awful conditions which have been revealed to the voters of the party are as indefensible as they are intolerable."

"The modern system of avoiding issues which would interest the people and then depending upon organization and money to work up an artificial interest, together with manipulated and managed conventions, have borne fruit," he continued. "For this condition of affairs, the voters of the party are in no sense responsible.

"The system of running the campaign, permitting men who have business with the government at Washington to buy their way to favor by vast contributions, the organization method of running conventions and campaigns is responsible. It is time to try another system."

Wants Candidate's Views.

In Senator Borah's opinion, "a candidate who has no views upon public questions is unfit, a candidate who has views and is afraid to state them is unsafe."

"A voter is entitled to an opportunity to record his vote in accordance with his conviction," he declared, "and it is impossible for him to do that unless the issues are fairly presented.

"A political party which is unwilling to declare upon questions of general and public interest is no longer an instrument of public good, performing a great service, but is a scheming piece of organized chicanery for the utilization of millions of honest voters to the gathering in of patronage and despoiling of the public heritage."

One of the most serious questions in the election of a President, Mr. Borah told his fellow Idahoans, is whether the people as a whole will take an interest or whether it will be left to only a small portion of the people.

"In late presidential elections as high as 51 per cent of the voters in some states have remained away from the polls," he went on. "What is the remedy? The first and primary remedy is for candidates and political parties to speak candidly and plainly to the people upon subjects in which the people are interested.

People Not Indifferent.

"The most demoralizing and corrupting instrumentality in American politics is that of great political parties deliberately maneuvering and sidestepping with reference to questions of great public interest.

"The people are not indifferent to these public questions. They are baffled and discouraged because they cannot get them squarely and fairly presented. Compare the platforms and campaigns and the presentation of issues years ago with the recent years and you will have no trouble in determining why the people lose interest and stay away from the polls."

Mr. Borah, author of the questionnaire to Republican presidential candidates by which he is endeavoring to draw them out on the prohibition question, made no specific reference to dry law enforcement in his prepared speech.

Rushes to Altar Before Her Appendicitis Operation

Miss Juanita Carter, 22, 909 Argyle avenue, was due at the Lake View hospital at 10 o'clock yesterday morning for an appendicitis operation. She and Gillson Rhys Pryce Brown, her fiancé, determined to marry before she was operated upon and drove to Valparaiso, Ind., where a hasty ceremony was performed. She was then rushed back to the hospital. She was reported doing nicely at the hospital last night.

Fixes Blade in Electric Fan; Brother, 5, Killed

Walter Bloomstrand, 5 years old, of 4204 Ellington avenue, Western Springs, yesterday watched his brother replace a broken blade in an electric fan. After fixing the blade the older brother turned on the current. When the fan's revolutions attained a high speed the blade was hurled out again, striking Walter in his groin and cutting him so severely that he died shortly afterward.

Italy's Diplomats Ordered to Wear Fascist Emblem

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 10.—Italian diplomatic representatives have been instructed to sew the Fascist emblem on their full dress uniforms, along with the royal emblem of the house of Savoy.

WOMEN STAGE FISTIC SHOW IN STREET AND CELL

Mrs. Ann Bush, 34, 10567 Bensley avenue, has the idea that Mrs. Carrie Penner, 34, of 9021 Houston avenue, a widow, has designs on her husband John. She also has the idea that John is worth fighting for. Last night in the Saturday night crowds at [illegible] street and Commercial avenue Mrs. Bush sighted Mrs. Penner. She flung the charge at Mrs. Penner. The widow is not faint hearted herself, and accepted battle.

It was a noble battle, according to all witnesses, and was interrupted only by the arrival of the police. At the South Chicago station each of the combatants signed counter complaints charging disorderly conduct, and both were locked up.

But the clang of the cell door was the bell for another round for the women. Before the matron could bring husky policemen to pull them apart again new marks of the battle had been made. The police inclined to call it a draw, but if an edge was to be given, the wife had it, as Mrs. Penner's black eye gave evidence.

MISSING, HE IS FOUND IN BRIDEWELL.

After searching since Thursday for [illegible]phir La Jeunesse, 38, of 941 North Taylor street, Oak Park, when he failed to return home, police found him yesterday in the Bridewell where he was sent for failure to pay his fine on a charge of disorderly conduct.

GEORGIA ELECTS CATHOLIC, JEW, AND A YANKEE

Form Al Smith Club in McAdoo's Home Town.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Macon, Ga., March 11.—[Special.]—Evidences of a growing tolerance in Georgia are pointed to by politicians when they try to estimate the extent of the hangover of the Smith-McAdoo feud at the Madison Square Garden convention four years ago. A fight against the Ku Klux Klan and religious intolerance, led by fighting newspapers like the Macon Telegraph and the Columbus Enquirer-Sun, appears to be producing results. Here are a few recent signs:

1. In rural Georgia in Charlton county last week in the Democratic primary a woman ran for tax collector; she was a woman born and reared in the north and in addition was a Catholic, but despite these three supposed handicaps—a woman, Yankee, Catholic—she led the entire ticket and polled more votes than any other candidate with opposition in the primary. Not only this but she defeated a popular man who is a native of the county.

Macon Jew Leads Ticket.

2. In Macon, in the recent election, a Jew ran highest and becomes chairman of the county commission.

3. A few months ago A. Jesup, an enforcement officer, was sentenced for life for a liquor murder.

4. Georgia has not had a lynching since 1926, when eighteen men were convicted for lynching a white man. No lynchings in 1927 and none so far this year, the first time since the civil war.

5. In northern Georgia last year a school superintendent was convicted in a flogging case.

Commands Legion.

6. In Macon an Irish Catholic is commander of the American Legion, a position which down here carries great social distinction.

These are a half dozen of the straws to which politicians refer as indicating the dawn of a new day in Georgia, the old home of the Ku Klux Klan, and the McAdoo movement of 1924.

Mr. McAdoo himself is a defunct issue down here. The first Al Smith club in the country for the 1928 campaign was organized in Milledgeville, McAdoo's home town, so they heard here.

The politicians are critical of McAdoo's support of Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana. Some old McAdoo men say McAdoo has abandoned half of his political stock in trade of four years ago—the religious and wet and dry questions, for Walsh is a Catholic.

The Ku Klux Klan, which has shucked its pillow slips, is left high and dry by the man the Klansmen supported in 1924. Furthermore, some of McAdoo's utterances on liquor did not make the hit in the south that some expected. They still criticize McAdoo's Toledo speech of a year ago in which he recommended a sufficiently organized federal police to enforce the constitution in states that were "nullifying" it.

Corn Liquor Abundant.

Down in bone dry Georgia, where corn liquor is abundant, McAdoo is criticized for this by some who ask if McAdoo also would put in federal police to enforce the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments. Some of them paint pictures of the marines coming in empowered to shoot as is the coast guard in the case of rum chasing off the Florida coast.

Smith's friends down here appear to be growing, according to all accounts, but it is a question whether he will get a single vote in the national convention from Georgia. Senator Walter F. George is the "favorite son" of the state.

It is conjectured by the Smith supporters that some Smith men will be among the delegates. But they will be bound to George. There is a question as to whether a unit rule will be slammed onto the delegation and if not, if the nomination is not made in the early balloting some leaders think some of Georgia's delegates may go it on their own, and Smith may get some votes. As many of the Democratic politicians view it, Smith has the best chance for nomination. The state has not been on a winner at a convention since the days of Cleveland, they say, and some of them would like to get aboard.

PACIFISTS BEGIN FIGHT TO HALT ALL NAVAL CONSTRUCTION IN U. S.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Pacifists and the "big navy" group in the house will renew their fight this week over pending naval legislation.

Flushed with success after wrecking the President's "adequate navy" bill for replacing seventy-one obsolete ships in the American fleet, the "no navy" and "little navy" factions, both in and out of congress, have opened a new fight against the remnants of the administration program as outlined in the sixteen ship bill now before the house.

A new appeal to the pacifists and church peace groups throughout the country to shower their congressmen with letters and telegrams protesting against passage of any naval replacement legislation this session has been sent out by Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War and leader of the group largely responsible for cutting the Wilbur seventy-one ship program down to the present sixteen ship measure.

"We oppose this bill," Mr. Libby said in a form letter, "because it is a direct challenge to the British to keep on building 10,000 ton cruisers beyond their announced program. This bill literally provokes the British to build to match us. Let your representative know about this at once. Your letter—or, better, your telegram—is needed."

Representative Britten [Rep., Ill.], ranking member of the naval affairs committee, announced today that he will denounce the pacifists and other peace groups who have fought naval legislation from the floor of the house.

TELLS HOW U. S. AVERTED FOREIGN RULE IN HAITI

Writer Traces History of Yank Occupation.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, March 10.—The United States intervened in Haiti in 1915 to abate the international nuisance in our dooryard, just as it intervened for the same purpose in Cuba in 1898, and to avert intervention by France and possibly other European powers in contravention of the Monroe Doctrine. Revolutions and coups d'etat, accompanied by butchery of political opponents, looting of the public treasury and terrorizing of the people had been increasing in frequency for more than a generation.

President Leconte was blown up in the presidential palace in 1912; President Auguste was assassinated in 1913. Then followed three revolutions, whose leaders held presidential office a few months each before being overthrown. President Guillaume Sam came into power in 1915 and soon thereafter 175 of his political opponents were put to death in the national prison. An infuriated mob seized the president in the French legation, where he had taken refuge, killed him and paraded dismembered parts of his body through the streets.

U. S. Restores Order.

In this state of anarchy the United States intervened, restored order and set up a government, which it has continued to supervise and assist. Paradoxically, it fell to the lot of that arch anti-imperialist of 1900, William Jennings Bryan, to initiate a program of American "imperialism" in Haiti soon after he became secretary of state in 1913. Mr. Bryan, with a view to stopping revolutions, bloodshed and general disorder, and forestalling possible European intervention for protection of foreign holders of Haitian bonds, sought to establish a financial protectorate over Haiti.

He proposed to Haiti a treaty providing for the collection of Haitian customs and other revenues by an American receiver under the lines of the receivership Theodore Roosevelt had established in the Dominican republic, which shares with Haiti the island of Santo Domingo. Haiti, however, rejected these overtures.

U. S. Bank Takes Charge.

Intervention by France in Haiti had been threatened as a result of disputes between the Haitian government and French owned National Bank of Haiti. To remove the possible cause of such an infringement of the Monroe Doctrine, Mr. Bryan suggested to the National City Bank of New York that it purchase control of the National Bank of Haiti from the French. The New York bank acquiesced and embarked upon a profitable enterprise in the banking of Haitian government funds and in refinancing the government set up by the United States.

While Mr. Bryan was endeavoring to arrange the financial protectorate one of the transient revolutionary governments attempted to seize the government balance in the National Bank of Haiti, which appealed to the Wilson administration for aid. Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels dispatched a cruiser to Port au Prince. American marines went ashore and guarded the transfer of $500,000 from the bank to the warship, which carried the funds to New York and deposited them in the National City bank.

Prelude to Intervention.

Up to the time Mr. Bryan resigned his portfolio in 1915 the net result of his Haitian policy was to place the National City bank in control of the bank that was the fiscal agent of the Haitian government. Mr. Bryan's dollar diplomacy was but a prelude to the American armed occupation of Haiti, which was carried out by Woodrow Wilson.

About the time Mr. Bryan was resigning the long dreaded intervention by France in Haiti materialized. The commander of a French warship landed sailors at Cape Haitien to protect French nationals and their property.

President Wilson then decided that even temporary occupation of any place in Haiti was not to be tolerated, and dispatched Rear Admiral Caperton to Cape Haitien to oust the French and afford the protection to which the French nationals were entitled. Admiral Caperton landed American marines and the French forces were withdrawn. Shortly thereafter came the outrages at Port au Prince, culminating in the murder of President Sam, and Admiral Caperton hastened thither and took possession of the capital.

For several months after that the American admiral was the ruler of Haiti. Under his direction naval and marine officers collected customs and other evenues and administered all branches of the government. The population was disarmed and disorder removed. At the direction of President Wilson Admiral Caperton then proceeded to set up a native government. He convened the national assembly, which elected Phillip D'Artiguenave president.

Haitians Oppose Treaty.

A treaty between the United States and Haiti providing for essentially the present scheme of American supervision and assistance of the government was sent down from Washington. The Haitian executive accepted the treaty, but the assembly opposed it. Ratification by Haiti was accomplished only after a delay of several months and not until Secretary Daniels had served notice that unless the treaty was accepted the United States would occupy Haiti completely and indefinitely.

Under the terms of the treaty the United States assumed direction of finances, of Haitian public works, agriculture, police, sanitation, and health. The pact was to have terminated in 1926, but under the renewal provision it was extended ten years.

In 1917 Haiti was presented with a new constitution by the Wilson administration. It is said to have been written by Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy. The Haitian national assembly refused to accept it on a number of grounds, among them being the provision authorizing foreigners to acquire real property. Thereupon the American marines dissolved the national assembly and locked up its meeting place. The constitution was submitted to a plebiscite, which, in view of the 95 per cent illiteracy of the people, was farcical. It was adopted, 98,294 to 769.

CHILD IS BORN OF DEAD MOTHER THROUGH THE SKILL OF SURGEONS

New York, March 10.—(AP)—The rare case of the birth of a child after the death of its mother was reported at the Sloane Hospital for Women today.

Only once before in the past eight years has such an operation been successfully performed among the thousands of maternity cases which come to this hospital annually.

The mother died within four hours after being taken to the hospital, where the child was expected to be born in a few days.

The operation, performed by members of the hospital staff, was successful, and today a healthy girl, weighing six and one-half pounds, was thriving.

Report 29 Mexicans Killed as Troops Battle Rebels

MEXICO CITY, March 10.—(AP)—Dispatches from Guadalajara today said twenty-eight insurgents and one soldier were killed in a number of encounters with government troops. Unconditional surrender of 1,300 insurgents in the state of Nayarit was announced by the war department tonight.

STUDEBAKER SALES LARGEST IN HISTORY

Both January and February set new high marks in purchases by public!

SOUTH BEND, IND., Mar. 8.—Studebaker sales continue to climb to new goals of achievement! The number of Studebaker-built automobiles delivered to owners by dealers in the United States during the month just closed, was the largest of any February in history, and 31% in excess of February, 1927.

Coming immediately after the greatest January sales in Studebaker history, this continued flood of public preference for Studebaker is particularly significant.

Motorists appreciate Studebaker's advanced engineering—an automobile you can drive 40 miles an hour the day the new car is delivered—that requires lubrication but once in 2500 miles—that holds all the highest speed and endurance records for fully equipped stock cars, regardless of power or price. The public has rightly interpreted these achievements as conclusive evidence of Studebaker's championship value due to One-Profit manufacture.

By all means see and drive these new Studebaker and Erskine cars! Know the feel of championship power at the touch of your toe! Know the results of Studebaker's advanced engineering, tested on Studebaker's million-dollar proving ground. You'll realize then, if you know cars, that Studebaker stands for stability—76 years of it!

COUNCIL VOTES FAHERTY POWER TO PLAN SUBWAY

To Line Up Property Owners for Assessment

Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, yesterday received his long requested signal to start on the job of getting ready to dig subways. The council, with only two dissenting votes, passed an order directing him to go ahead.

The subway order, presented by Chairman Joseph McDonough [13th] of the transportation committee, contemplates procedure on the theory that no additional legislation is needed—that subways can be built under the local improvements act permitting the city to widen streets or dig sewers. Both Mr. Faherty and attorneys for the city are of the opinion that such a procedure is legal.

Waits on Property Owners.

"My first move will be to invite property owners along State, Wells, or any other street where they want a subway to come in and petition for it," Mr. Faherty announced. "That ought to be within a few days.

"The board of local improvements will then call a public hearing and if a majority agree to special assessments, we will prepare an ordinance and take it to the council. If it passes, the next step will probably be a court fight that will go to the Supreme court. Once we get a decision there that the special assessment paper is good, we are ready to start digging. The sooner we get the Supreme court decision the better and the sooner we start the sooner we'll get it."

Only Two Dissenting Votes.

The dissenting votes on the order were cast by Ald. Donald McKinlay [18th] and Ald. Wiley W. Mills [37th]. Ald. McKinlay argued that the subway negotiations should wait for a comprehensive settlement of the whole traction question, while Ald. Mills, who consistently has opposed a downtown subway, opposed it on that ground.

Several aldermen, after the meeting, said informally, that they foresaw in Mr. Faherty's action excellent campaign material for the Thompson-Small candidates at the primary and believed that it is designed for that purpose. They added, however, that if the administration is sincere, it should be given the chance to go ahead unhampered by lack of a council permit.

LITTLE FLOWER LENTEN NOVENA TO OPEN TODAY

The public Lenten novena honoring the Little Flower will open this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the national shrine, Provincial Carmelite church, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue. The novena, held under direction of the Society of the Little Flower, will be conducted by the Chicago Carmelite fathers from St. Clara and Mount Carmel monasteries.

The shrine's entire collection of Little Flower relics, including a painting of the Little Flower by her sister, Celine, will be shown.

Among the speakers during the novena will be the Very Rev. Matthew T. O'Neill, president of Mount Carmel High school; the Very Rev. Anselm Werner, prior of St. Clara Carmelite monastery; the Rev. Chrysostom Anderson, prefect of Mount Carmel High school; the Rev. Sylvester Snee, former president of the Little Flower college, Washington, D. C.,; the Rev. Martin O'Donnell, and the Rev. Joseph Moynihan.

BISHOP TO SPEAK

BISHOP J. E. FREEMAN.
[Walinger Photo.]

The originator of the idea of a "Westminster Abbey of America," Bishop James E. Freeman of Washington, will be the speaker at the Garrick theater Lenten services of the Church club this week, according to plans announced Saturday by Courtenay Barber, chairman of the services. Bishop Freeman also will speak before the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall tonight. The Washington bishop has become nationally known for the promotion of the national cathedral idea. Recently Gen. John J. Pershing accepted the chairmanship of a committee of well known persons to push to completion the thirty million dollar cathedral.

Mundelein Reaches Rome; Confers with Archbishop

ROME, March 10.—[U. P.]—George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago arrived today. He immediately went into conference with Archbishop Marchetti-Salvaggiani, secretary of the propaganda fide of the congregation of the hol yoffice of the Vatican.

[Cardinal Mundelein carries a loan of about $1,478,000, raised through Chicago brokers, to be used for constructing new buildings for the College of Propaganda Fide.]

INCOME CHECKS CARRY NATION'S DRY LAW PROTEST

Will Be Registered on Files of U. S. Treasury.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—A nation-wide protest against the Volstead act will be registered in the files of the treasury department on March 15, when the income tax for 1927 is collected. It will be sure to reach the attention of the highest officials, for it will be written across the back of many of the largest checks mailed into the collector of internal revenue.

This became known today when it was learned that a chain letter originating here early in February is spreading broadcast over the country, gaining in circulation each day, and is receiving the indorsement of men in all walks of life.

The original letter was mailed to seven prominent men on Feb. 11 by Thomas J. Gaines, New York insurance broker. It follows:

"On March 15, 1928, when I remit my check in payment of my income tax for the year 1927 I shall write the letter that follows to the collector of internal revenue. If this idea appeals to you, will you write to seven of your friends suggesting that they do the same?

"'Collector of Internal Revenue.

"'Dear Sir: I protest against any part of the enclosed check being used for the enforcement of the Volstead act or any other crank legislation.

"'Respectfully.'"

Sends Out Suggestion.

Mr. Gaines forwarded the letter to Edward C. Bowers of the Wickwire Spencer Steel corporation; Glover G. Beardsley of the Otis Elevator company; Theodore H. Wickwire Jr., Claire S. Wills of C. T. Wills, Inc.; Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, and Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Four of these men said they immediately mailed copies of the letter to their friends. The other three acknowledged receipt of the letter, but did not care to be quoted as to their actions. Investigation revealed that the letter had been received in cities throughout the country, and even had come back to some of the original senders from other sources.

May Wake Up Congressmen.

Mr. Gaines said he had one aim only in starting the letter of protest.

"I hope," he said, "that sufficient congressmen will have their ears to the ground to really learn something about public opinion, and that eventually we can stop these huge appropriations for the enforcement of crank legislation and the Volstead act in particular. In my opinion that is the best way to fight the dry law."

The decision to suggest such an indorsement on income tax checks was made by Mr. Gaines after he had read of the numerous killings by prohibition agents and had "seen the effect of prohibition enforcement" in his travels over the country as an insurance man.

BRITISH EMBASSY AID WILL MARRY AMERICAN GIRL

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Former Representative and Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips of Pennsylvania announced the engagement today of their daughter, Miss Janet Phillips, to Leander McCormick-Goodhart, honorary commercial secretary of the British embassy. Miss Phillips is a debutante of this season. No date has been given for the wedding.

Mr. McCormick-Goodhart is the younger son of the late Frederick L. McCormick-Goodhart of the county of Kent and of Mrs. Henrietta McCormick-Goodhart, who now resides at her country home, Langley Park, near Riverdale, Md. He has been in the British embassy staff since 1921. He is a grandson of the late R. Hall McCormick of Chicago.

Miss Phillips is directly descended from one of the founders of Phillips-Andover and Phillips-Exeter academies and from the Rev. George Phillips, who founded the first Congregational church in America in 1632. On her mother's side she is a lineal descendant from John Sherman, a fellow of Harvard, and one of the founders of the Massachusetts colony. She is also a descendant from William Brewster, "chief of the pilgrims," who came from England and landed in 1620.

CHICAGO FUGITIVE CAUGHT.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 10.—(AP)—Otto Schreck, 27, former convict, wanted for automobile thefts in Chicago and Minneapolis, was arrested here yesterday and will be returned to Chicago, where he jumped bond.

Corns
Lift Right Off!

Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes and callouses lift right off! You'll laugh—it is so easy and doesn't hurt a bit!

Just drop "Freezone" on any tender, touchy corn. Instantly it stops aching; then shortly you just lift that old bothersome corn right off with your fingers. It works like a charm, every time. Seems magic!

CONDUCTOR DECLARES MISSING COLLEGE GIRL IS IN QUEBEC CONVENT

New York, March 10.—(AP)—A renewed search for Miss Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith college girl, hinged tonight on the story of a railroad conductor who said in Montreal that he was certain the girl is in a Quebec convent.

While the girl's parents waited at their home here for direct information from J. H. Wilkinson, Canadian Pacific railroad employé, who gave out to newspaper men the new version of the case, they had the assurance of help of friends in Montreal who could identify the girl should she be found.

It was said at the St. John Smith home that the girl had never expressed any intention of entering a convent, but mentioned casually some time ago to a classmate that convent life might be pleasant.

Wilkinson said a girl, whom he was positive was the missing girl after seeing her picture in a newspaper, boarded his train, bound for Montreal, near Gardner, Mass., on Jan. 14, the day after she disappeared from school.

IRISH POET TO BE CHICAGO GUEST ON ST. PATRICK'S

George W. Russell, Irish poet, artist, and essayist, will make his first public appearance in Chicago on St. Patrick's day, next Saturday, at the Irish Fellowship club banquet in the Hotel Sherman. An announcement from the club states that because of the great interest aroused by Mr. Russell's first trip to America, the banquet will be open to the public.

GEORGE W. RUSSELL.

Mr. Russell will tell about Ireland as it is today. His topic will be "The Resurrection of a Nation."

NEW WEST SIDE KILLING LAID TO GANG VENGEANCE

Rooming House Owner Is Shot Down in Home.

Revenge by gangsters for some undetermined offense was believed by police to have been the motive impelling three men who yesterday shot and fatally wounded Stephan Sheen, 54 years old, proprietor of a rooming house at 1424 West Washington boulevard. Sheen died a few hours later without regaining consciousness.

The three assailants were at first believed to be bandits seeking $100 which Sheen had secreted in the house. But a neighbor heard one of the trio remark as they ran from the place: "Well, we got him that time."

Widow Blames Ex-Roomer.

Two of the men entered an automobile and drove west while the other man walked east.

Mrs. Johanna Sheen, the widow, told police she believed the shooting had been done by a former roomer, Joseph Novak, who had been asked to leave the rooming house, she said, because he was a gambler. Novak knocked on the door of her room and asked where her husband was, she said. A few minutes later, two men entered the room and slapped and beat her in an effort to make her reveal the hiding place of some money, she declared.

Finds Her Husband Dying.

A few minutes later she heard shots and rushed downstairs to find her husband lying on the floor in the kitchen, unconscious.

Sheen is also a carpenter and small building contractor, his wife said. Police questioned her as to whether her husband had been involved in any labor troubles. She said he had always employed union help in his contracting work.

FOUND ILL IN ROOM; DIES.

Michael Kozlowski, 45, of 624 Barber street, a laborer, died in West End hospital yesterday after he had been found ill in his room.

Fuelless Motor Inventor Is Still Seriously Ill

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[U.P.]—Lester J. Hendershot, inventor of the fuelless motor, still was in a serious condition at Emergency hospital here today from an electric shock received last Tuesday. His physician said he had difficulty speaking, since nerves in his palate were partly paralyzed.

Flog Dallas Constable for Whipping His Son

Dallas, Tex., March 10.—(AP)—A. B. Stagg, special deputy constable, reported early today that he had been flogged by four men who abducted him from in front of his home. He said he had whipped his son yesterday morning and that a complaint had been filed against him.

The NEW CENTURY EIGHT

ALL OF THE CENTURY'S MOTORING PROGRESS FINDS EXPRESSION IN THIS GREAT EIGHT

So completely does the new Hupmobile Century Eight represent the century's finest development in motor car design, that it offers startling contrast with fine cars of even recent date. Certainly no car surpasses it in distinguished beauty. And in the number and quality of modern aids to smooth performance it stands unrivaled among the finest productions of Europe or America. Typical of the care applied to its design, is the application of thermostats to the three important points of water circulation, carburetor and radiator shutters—automatically providing perfect operating temperatures at all seasons. To realize the full difference which this and a score of other features bring to motoring enjoyment, arrange to make your first test of the new Hupmobile Century Eight at once.

The Century 125 Eight

PROTEST ARREST OF GERMANS FOR "PLOT" IN RUSSIA

Berlin Officials Scout Sabotage Charges.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, March 10.—The German government has sent indignant queries to Moscow regarding the fate of six German engineers arrested by the Russians, accused of sabotaging soviet factories and mines in the Donetz basin. Three of these men are representatives of the Aeg, the German General Electric company, which was the first enterprise to resume connections with Russia and which denies that its men could be connected with a plot of any kind. The Berlin press and government share this conviction.

"The forgery of a huge amount of Russian bank notes in Germany led to the discovery of this monster plot," declared a leader of the soviet secret police, who is in western Europe investigating the background of the alleged plot. "We have proofs that it was financed by the same men who were engaged in a world-wide campaign to wreck the working agreement between soviet Russia and the American Standard Oil company and other anti-Russian campaigns.

Charges Counterfeit Plot.

"The plotters meant to plant forged chervonetz in foreign markets, smuggle the currency into Russia, and break the Russian currency.

"We found men behind the forgers trying to prevent the signing of the Franco-Russian agreement on Russian pre-war debts to France. According to this agreement French private owners of property, factories, and foundries in Russia before the war were to receive partial refunds from the yield on their former property. Suddenly the French owners were swamped with reports that the soviets were playing ducks and drakes with their plants. They refused to carry on negotiations.

"The reports on accidents in the plants were true. An epidemic of fires, machinery breakdowns, and stoppages has broken out in the whole Donetz basin. It extended to other departments. Brand new machinery from Germany broke down—sometimes it was ruined beyond repair by an act of carelessness.

Unlimited Finance, He Says.

"Russia's political police came to the conclusion that this epidemic was the result of a plot organized abroad, backed by almost unlimited financial means, as well as by secret service. Its organizers succeeded in bribing returned Rusian emigrants, foreign engineers, technicians, and workmen. The accused had, consciously or unconsciously, extensive relations with the Polish secret service and services of smaller Baltic states under English influence."

The Russian official admitted the arrest of three Germans, five Poles, four Finns, one man claiming American citizenship, and a number of former Russian emigrants. One of those arrested is the chief engineer of the Aeg. They probably will be tried by the Moscow Supreme court.

719 Complex Just Seems to Be Following HimAroun'

Belvidere, Ill., March 10.—(AP)—A 719 complex seems to be following Herman Klein, 719 Buchanan street. Mr. Klein received his state automobile license plate a few days ago and noticed the figures 719-719 were identical with both his house and telephone number, and today, purchasing a city vehicle tax tag he was again confronted with 719.

FOES LAMBAST PLAN TO PARCEL OUT RADIO ACCORDING TO ZONES

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—The "equitable distribution" amendment, which provides that radio stations and service shall be equally divided among the five radio zones was vigorously lambasted by numerous speakers during the debate on the Watson radio bill in the house today.

Representative Celler [Dem., N. Y.] declared that congressional approval of "equitable distribution" would plunge radio into greater chaos than it has ever been before. He contended that the equalization plan would place "radio in a straight jacket" and make it impossible for the commission to give the nation a fair radio administration.

"The pending provision looks to equal distribution of wave lengths, stations and power. It would be just as reasonable and just as practical to stipulate by law that every section of the country should have the same number of telephones and telephone poles regardless of the service needed in each."

He was followed on the floor by many other foes of the "equality" plan.

Both Representatives Gifford [Rep., Mass.] and Treadway [Rep., Mass.] attacked the radio commission. Mr. Gifford opposed the equitable distribution feature stating the opinion it would not work out as its sponsors predicted.

DIES ON WAY TO HOSPITAL.

Max Fuxman, 62, of 1328 South Springfield avenue, died in an ambulance on the way to Michael Reese hospital last night, supposedly from heart disease.

ATTACK GROWING POWER OF BUDGET OVER CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., March 10.—[Special.]—Two Republican members of the house attacked the growing power of the budget in legislative affairs today.

Representatives Johnson [Wash.] and Luce [Mass.] assailed the budget system and asserted that it virtually exercises a veto power over legislation. Chairman Madden [Ill.] chided his colleagues from their criticism.

Mr. Johnson charged that the budget is gradually developing into a "third house of congress."

"This bureau," he asserted, "turns down constructive legislation not because it is in opposition to the financial policy of the President, but because it is repugnant to the views of the coördinating officer"

In his attack on the budget system, Representative Luce asserted it has developed its original powers until now it "constitutes a dangerous innovation, infringing upon the legislative responsibilities of congress."

"This growth," he said, "got its start with the issuing of an executive order directing heads of departments upon receipt of inquiry from any congressional committee to send it to the director of the budget for report on whether the proposal is or is not in conflict with the administration's financial program.

"The trouble is that a negative reply has come to be accepted as a veto. The practical result is that the director of the budget has the whip hand over a very considerable part of legislation."

SOVIET RUBBER PLANT ADOPTS U. S. METHODS

Production Boosted 10% by New System.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LENINGRAD, Russia, March 10.—"We manufacture 85,000 pairs of rubbers a day, we employ 16,000 persons, our production totals nearly 200,000,000 rubles ($100,000,000) annually, and the buildings in the plant, end to end, would be more than a mile long."

The director general of the Red Triangle rubber factory, formerly the Russian-American Rubber works, was explaining all about the plant when a young man in overhauls, passing along the corridor carrying a few molds, stopped, listened to the conversation, and said:

"Say, are you an American? I worked in Gary, in the steel mills for three years, and came back over here in 1919."

"Yes, tovarich, he wants to see how we operate under the new régime," the director said.

Acts as Guide on Inspection.

"Wait till I leave these molds and I'll come along with you and explain things, I can do it better than this man because I've lived in the States," the worker said.

The Red Triangle plant makes about half the overshoes and rubber boots used in this country of 145,000,000 inhabitants, and nearly all the automobile tires, besides dolls, toys, chemical products, laboratory goods, hot water bags, and much similar stuff.

"We are up to 95 per cent of war time production, which was the highest, and we will begin to surpass it in six months, when we have entirely introduced the piece work specialty system," explained the director. "We are gradually installing the American system; for instance, these eight girls at these benches do eight different operations in assembling galoshes, whereas formerly each one assembled the whole shoe. The new system increases production 10 to 12 per cent."

The girls were there working like beavers, 800 in the vast room, fitting the bits of leather and felt together and gluing them. Most of them were bobbed haired, and they worked in sleeveless dresses, the necks cut rather low. Many were bare legged, as the plant is kept warm. Their street clothes are kept in big lockers, and there are baths for those who wish to take a shower after doing their shift. Passing the wash room, I saw groups of girls inside, all of them smoking cigarets during a minute's respite, and others drinking cups of tea.

We came to one end of a big workroom. Here were several very old women, slowly making up overshoes.

"I've been working in rubber factories for 53 years, ever since the Turkish war," one aged woman said. She was the veteran of the establishment. "Pretty soon they're going to retire me, but I'll keep on working as long as I can." Another had been there 39 years, she started when she was 16. They had bottles of milk and some black bread on a stool.

Garments Like Bathing Suits.

Cutting of the rubber sheets, as they come upstairs on conveyors from the shop downstairs where the molten rubber is treated, is done by girls. It is so hot in the cutting room that the girls strip down to little garments like bathing suit top pieces, with an apron. They are bare legged.

I met the editor and his staff, who publish the monthly and weekly house organ of the plant.

Some of the rubber goes toward the manufacture of airplanes and the officials showed me some photos of the new army planes.

"That's what we are getting ready for England if the capitalistic countries want to interfere with us," the editor said with a grin.

The director showed me the headquarters and council chamber of the local factory soviet. "They meet there and discuss matters of interest to the plant and the workers, but we never have any trouble with them," he said. "We haven't had any labor trouble at all under the new régime because, you see, it's their own régime."

The cashier was superintending the makeup of pay envelopes, for it was pay day. "Now they can nearly all sign for their money," he said. "Formerly they couldn't; they all signed a cross, or two crosses, or maybe three crosses, because they couldn't write their own names. They could always count, though, and knew to a kopeck how much they were entitled to. The older folk go to school in the evenings like the children and learn to read and write."

Coolidge Sends His Gift Eagle to National Zoo

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—An American eagle has been added to President Coolidge's private menagerie. H. B. Williamson of Gurley, Ala., sent the bird to the President with the request that he accept it. The President has done so but has sent the eagle to the national zoo.

Reports Home Robbed of $25,000

Drusilla Johansen, 11; Ralph Johansen Jr., 12, and their mother, Mrs. Ralph Johansen, in home at 850 Sheridan road, Glencoe. Mrs. Johansen is pointing to drawer from which she said robbers took $25,000 diamond bracelet.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

SHE TELLS POLICE BURGLARS' THIRD CALL GOT LOOT

Glencoe police last night practically abandoned an investigation of the reported robbery of a $25,000 diamond bracelet from the home of Mrs. Gertrude Johansen, 850 Sheridan road, Glencoe. Unless further evidence is furnished by Mrs. Johansen the case will be dropped, Chief of Police Jacob Rudolph said.

Mrs. Johansen is the wife of Ralph G. Johansen, president of the Hayes institute, 1412 South Michigan avenue, an engineering school. He is in the east at present.

Mrs. Johansen said a fashionably dressed man and girl tried to gain admittance to her home on two occasions Friday evening. Yesterday morning she awoke to find the house ransacked and the bracelet gone, she reported. Other valuables had not been disturbed. Two servants and three children, sleeping in the home, had heard no noises during the night and a dog there had not barked, police discovered.

BRITISH MAY SET UP IBN SAUD AS ARABS' EMPEROR

Would Make Him Boss of Puppet Kingdoms.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, March 10.—The departure of Sir Gilbert Clayton for Arabia to confer with Ibn Saud, king of Hedjaz and sultan of Nejd, has been delayed a few days pending the working out of a definite policy to be adopted in dealing with the Arab ruler.

Great Britain contemplates offering him a subsidy of £100,000 (about $500,000) annually and giving him at least a nominal lordship over Irak and Transjordania, thus setting up an Arab empire under British tutelage. This would satisfy Ibn Saud's old grudge against the family of the late King Hussein, father of King Feisal and Amir Abdullah, now the rulers of Irak and Transjordania.

King Feisal Loses Prestige.

King Feisal, it is said, is losing favor with the British owing to the attitude he took on his recent visit to England, when he made demands which were thought exorbitant. From the point of view of safety and economy, an arrangement with one strong ruler like Ibn Saud to police Arabia is preferable to the British over the present system of two weak kings and one strong, whose quarrels also are liable to upset the peace in the near east.

It also is stated that if Ibn Saud agrees Great Britain also would be willing to support his claim to the caliphate. Probably this phase will be discussed when Amir Amanullah of Afghanistan, another great Moslem ruler, arrives in London next Tuesday. Amir Amanullah, who is a modern king, has been touring Europe and intends to go home by way of Russia.

As his kingdom is a buffer state between Russia and British India, both countries are doing their utmost to impress him and arrangements have been made here to entertain the amir and his queen on a scale unknown in London for many years.

King to Greet Amir.

King George and Queen Mary will meet them personally at Victoria station and accompany them to Buckingham palace, along a route of five miles lined with troops and massed bands at various points. The finest guest suite has been prepared for the Afghan rulers, who will remain the personal guests of the English ruler and his queen until Thursday, when they will move to Claridge's hotel, where two whole floors have been placed at their disposal by the British government.

The floors have been refurnished and turned into a veritable palace. Twelve drawing and reception rooms have been set aside for the queen, while the king will have half a dozen reception rooms and fifty bedrooms for his personal suite. A special system of bells has been installed in every room, and in the reception room a gong will sound when the royal automobile is 150 yards from the hotel. A hundred footmen will be distributed over the floors and a host of women servants will wait on the queen. Special kitchens will be installed, where the visitors will be able to have native foods if they wish.

Russia Watches Arab Row.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, March 10.—The Moscow press is intensely interested in the development of the Wahabi outbreak in Arabia, where the communist international last November assigned a number of graduates of its Tiflis university for revolutionary agitation. Should the Wahabis and Mohammedans declare a holy war against Great Britain the communist international hopes to stir the Indian Mohammedans to an uprising in India.

The Irak crisis was carefully timed by Moscow to coincide with the visit of the Amir of Afghanistan to London to demonstrate to him England's imperialism and influence him to maintain a cool attitude toward the British overtures for friendship.

MILK CONDENSERY BURNS.

BANQUET U. S. ACE IN NICARAGUA FOR HEROIC RESCUE OF WOUNDED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 10.—A banquet of fifty covers, attended by President Adolfo Diaz, and Gen. Chamorro and Gen. Moncada, and leaders of all factions, was given to First Lieutenant Christian F. Schilt today. Lieut. Schilt recently was awarded the United States congressional medal of honor.

After the battle of Quilali, Lieut. Schilt made eighteen trips to remove wounded. He landed in a rough, unprepared village street, which was narrow and only 250 yards long. It had been believed it required at least 500 yards to land a Corsair type plane. Lieut. Schilt risked his life each time he landed. The town was under the fire of the bandits during the rescue work.

Rear Admiral David Sellers said that of the eighteen men brought out of Quilali, four would have died had not the lieutenant displayed heroism far beyond the line of duty in repeatedly carying out his dangerous mission.

Lieut. Schilt finished second in the Schneider races in 1926.

How Sal Hepatica helps correct 7 common ills of life

Colds, Indigestion, Constipation, Headaches, Rheumatism, Auto-Intoxication and Bad Complexion very often are caused by congestion and poisons in the intestinal tract. Get at the cause with Sal Hepatica.

PHYSICIANS for years have sent their wealthy patients to regain their health by drinking the saline waters of the Springs of Europe—Vichy, Carlsbad, or Wiesbaden.

For there is nothing like a saline solution to wash away the poisons of waste which are often the real cause not only of headaches, skin blemishes, and stomach disarrangements but also rheumatism, nervous disorders, auto-intoxication, kidney and liver troubles and a host of other ills.

Only a few of us find it convenient to visit European Springs. But you may gain from Sal Hepatica the same benefits which result from "taking the cure" at the Springs abroad.

Sal Hepatica contains the same health-giving salines as these famous Springs and like them, it is efficacious in relieving many everyday ills.

Promptly and gently Sal Hepatica flushes away the accumulated wastes and the systemic poisons which are the real source of 9 out of 10 physical ailments.

And in using Sal Hepatica to keep internally clean, physically fit, and free of "self-poisoning" you have the best of precedents and medical authority. For Sal Hepatica has been widely recommended by physicians throughout the land since 1895.

Dissolved in a glass of water, Sal Hepatica makes a bubbling, effervescent drink. The best time to take it is upon arising or half an hour before any meal.

If you do not have a bottle of Sal Hepatica on your bathroom shelf, buy a bottle today, and form the sensible habit of taking it at the first sign of stoppage.

Send coupon for our booklet that tells you more fully how Sal Hepatica helps correct the many physical ailments due to stoppage and to the poisons of waste.

MINE HOPE SEEN IN FREIGHT CUT AND INSULL DEAL

Merger Expected to Aid Coal Industry Here.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The ordered decrease in coal freight rates from Indiana and Illinois mines to Chicago and the proposed merger of the coal properties of the Insull interests with the Peabody Coal company have caused some comment, although there is no surface indication of any connection between them. Announcement of the two events apparently just happened to be published one day after the other.

While the decreed reduction of 5 cents a ton on coal freight rates will be a little aid to the slumping industry, coal men asserted yesterday that it is insufficient to return coal mining in Illinois and Indiana to its former normal vitality.

Eastern coal fields in 1918 shipped about 6,500,000 tons of fuel to Chicago, which the Illinois commerce commission says is the largest coal market in the country. In 1925 the east sold about 15,500,000 tons in Chicago, and approximately the same amount in 1926.

Supply from Illinois Drops.

Illinois in 1918 supplied Chicago with 16,000,000 tons, in 1925 with a little less than 11,000,000, and in 1926 with a trifle more than 10,000,000 tons. Indiana in 1918 shipped metropolitan Chicago 5,500,000 tons and in 1925 only 3,500,000 tons. In the period Illinois and Indiana mines lost 8,000,000 tons of Chicago's trade, while the east gained 9,000,000 tons.

To correct that situation the Illinois Coal Traffic bureau appealed on Sept. 5, 1925, to the interstate, the Indiana and the Illinois commerce commissions for a reduction in freight rates. The bureau presented evidence at a joint hearing of the commissions to show that the business of the mine owners had been "seriously interfered with and retarded with proximate economic depression and threatened destruction of the coal industry in Illinois and Indiana."

The interstate commerce commission on last Oct. 20 ordered a decrease of five cents a ton to Chicago from both the Brazil-Clinton areas and the Linton-Sullivan territory in Indiana. That knocked down the rate from the area from $1.60 a ton to $1.55, and from the other from $1.70 to $1.65. The Indiana state commission has not yet given a decision, although it is said that it can further reduce the rate on intrastate shipments.

The Illinois commission entered its decree on Feb. 29, to be effective 45 days thereafter. The railroads may contest it either by asking a rehearing or by an appeal to the courts. The commission determined that the coal freight rate to Chicago from southern Illinois shall be decreased from $1,95 a ton to $1.90; from the Springfield district, from $1.65 to $1.60; from Duquoin, $1.85 to $1.80; from Centralia, $1.65 to $1.60; from Peoria, $1.43 to $1.38; from Fulton county, $1.55 to $1.50; and from the northern Illinois area, $1.25 to $1.20.

Merger Inspires Hope.

Those who frequently seek profits from stock exchange transactions hope Insull will rearrange the coal trade so that Illinois and Indiana will again supply more than 55 per cent of Chicago's coal, because of his leadership in public utility management. Their hope lies in the negotiations by which it is proposed to merge the Insull coal properties with the Peabody Coal company, which has heretofore been ranked as the third largest in the nation.

The plan of merger has not been made public. Reports are that it will be presented to the Peabody stockholders for acceptance on March 26. It is known, however, that it is proposed to merge fourteen Insull coal properties, now controlled by the Commonwealth Edison company, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and other Insull utilities.

The Peabody company is credited with operating 42 mines in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, and Wyoming. But some of these mines—now operated by Peabody on a cost plus basis—are Insull properties, though the the number of these has not been made public.

It is said that practically all the coal shipped from the Springfield district to Chicago is destined for consumption by Insull concerns.

The Commonwealth Edison company has a contract with the Peabody Coal company by which 2,000,000 tons will be supplied to it annually. There is a clause in this contract which permits a considerable increase in the amount of coal demanded.

Since that contract is said to have been made the Insull interests have acquired the gas company, the Public Service company of Northern Illinois has more than trebled its service, the Central Illinois Public Service company has enormously increased its business and other growing properties have been acquired by the Insull interests. The demand for coal has therefore increased, although the constant effort of the management is to reduce the coal consumption per unit of service supplied.

The gossip places in the picture the Consumers company, the largest retail coal distributors in Chicago. The Peabody company and the estate of Francis Peabody control about 25 per cent of the Consumers stock and a five-year contract is in effect which provides a Peabody management of the company. The speculators therefore conclude that the Insull interests will control and operate the Consumers company and introduce some innovations in the coal trade of Chicago which will boost the value of the Consumers stock. On the strength of the reported negotiations, that stock has advanced.

Various stories are heard of the way this is to be effected. Whether Mr. Insull contemplates any of these plans could not be ascertained yesterday because he sailed from New York on the Majestic for a vacation in Europe.

One story involves improved transportation. Several of the large producing mines of the Peabody and Insull interests are on the Illinois Midland railroad, running from Taylorville to Auburn—less than 40 miles. Insull interests control that road, which has track rights from its intersection with the Illinois Central over the I. C. to Springfield.

The Insull interests also bought at a receivers' sale the old Bluff line between Springfield and Peoria. One report is that when the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway is completed Insull contemplates shipping his coal from Peoria to Chicago by water. The state capital has a story that Insull will electrify his line from Springfield to Peoria. Another bit of gossip is that Insull desires to own a railroad from Peoria to Chicago.

COUNTY SCHOOL PUPILS URGED TO HOUSE WRENS

"Own your own wren house," is the instruction being sent out this week by Edward J. Tobin, county superintendent of schools, to school children all over the county. In a letter Mr. Tobin tells the boys how a suitable wren house may be made from an ordinary cigar box with a hole the size of a quarter in its wall.

The house wren, the letter states, is an agreeable neighbor and an asset to the community as it eats insects which destroy plants and flowers, and chirps cheerfully all day long. Mr. Tobin urges the boys to make their houses now so they will be ready to hang outside when the governor announces Arbor and Bird day, which will be some time in April.

REPORT UNEMPLOYMENT GAINS.

Unemployment is worse now than at any time since 1914, according to a report of Harry E. Curtis, head of the state employment office of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, made yesterday to the executive committee.

Ex-Bank Cashier, Missing Since Jan. 16, Returns

William C. Boldt, former cashier of the First National bank of Elmhurst, who disappeared on Jan. 16, is back home at 138 South Kenilworth avenue, Elmhurst. He and his relatives assert that Boldt was a victim of amnesia and had wandered through the south for several weeks before he was able to recall his identity. A. G. Fischer, president of the bank, said that there was no shortage in Boldt's accounts, but that he had been dismissed because he failed to notify bank officials of certain loans he had made.

Japan's Premier Urges Closer Bond with Soviets

TOKIO, March 10.—(AP)—While emphasizing that reports of a Russo-Japanese secret treaty were groundless, Premier Tanaka told the press today that soviet Russia and Japan have greater need than ever for closer economic coöperation. He also expressed hope that the two countries would conclude a treaty of commerce and navigation.

USE OF GASOLINE IN 1927 INCREASES TWELVE PER CENT

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—Gasoline consumption for the United States increased 12.4 per cent during 1927, according to the American Road Builders' association. The announcement stated that California led all the states with 1,017,681,000 gallons and that New York was second with 892,800,000.

The association predicted that total gas tax collections would exceed two hundred million dollars.

France to Shut Theaters Showing Uncensored Films

PARIS, March 10.—[U. P.]—The chamber of deputies today approved a fine of from 100 to 5,000 francs and the right to padlock theaters from fifteen days to three months for displays of uncensored films. The franc is worth 3.9 cents. The chamber voted a tax on films of 15 centimes a meter.

SIX-TUBE Pfanstiehl OVERTONE A-C Radio

Single dial—with six A. C. tubes

In a Pfanstiehl Console, ready to operate

A radio selling by which the thrifty will profit. If you have wanted a radio, or if the receiver you now have is not satisfactory, be here tomorrow morning to take advantage of this amazing A. C. Radio offer.

Savings of about 1/2 and more....

AND MAY BE PURCHASED ON CONVENIENT EXTENDED PAYMENTS

Model 34-322—complete

$159

A. C. model incorporating special cone speaker, tone filter, and other marvelous improvements in a handsome, distinctive burled walnut cabinet—all are original Pfanstiehl products.

Here is tone mellowed, made truer by the "different kind" (A. C.) of current that works magic in its glowing tubes. Here is power—unwavering—always available.

IN anticipating the market for A. C. radios the Pfanstiehl Radio Company overproduced. They desired a quick turnover, and our Radio Salon, ever keen on radio value, took over their surplus stock at a drastically reduced figure. We pass the savings on to you.

Pfanstiehl Radios are ideal receivers

First of all—They are genuine A. C., using the new R. C. A. or Cunningham A. C. tubes—no batteries or eliminators—just plug into your light socket.

Secondly—They are easy to tune. The illuminated dial is marked in wave lengths.

Then the tone—the secret lies in the complete mastery of the "overtone" principle. Full, rich, well-rounded, life-like tones, increased to great volume, or reduced to a whisper, still maintain their full musical value by a unique double volume control.

Special terms

Model 34-302—complete

This is the A. C. model 34 receiver in a beautiful console, expressing the spirit of the present day in the application of the simple mouldings and curved lines.

$129

The chassis is self-contained in cabinet with Newcombe-Hawley speaker and special Baldwin concert-grand unit. All are specially designed for the Pfanstiehl Radio Company.

As the quantities on the above models are limited we urge you to be here early tomorrow

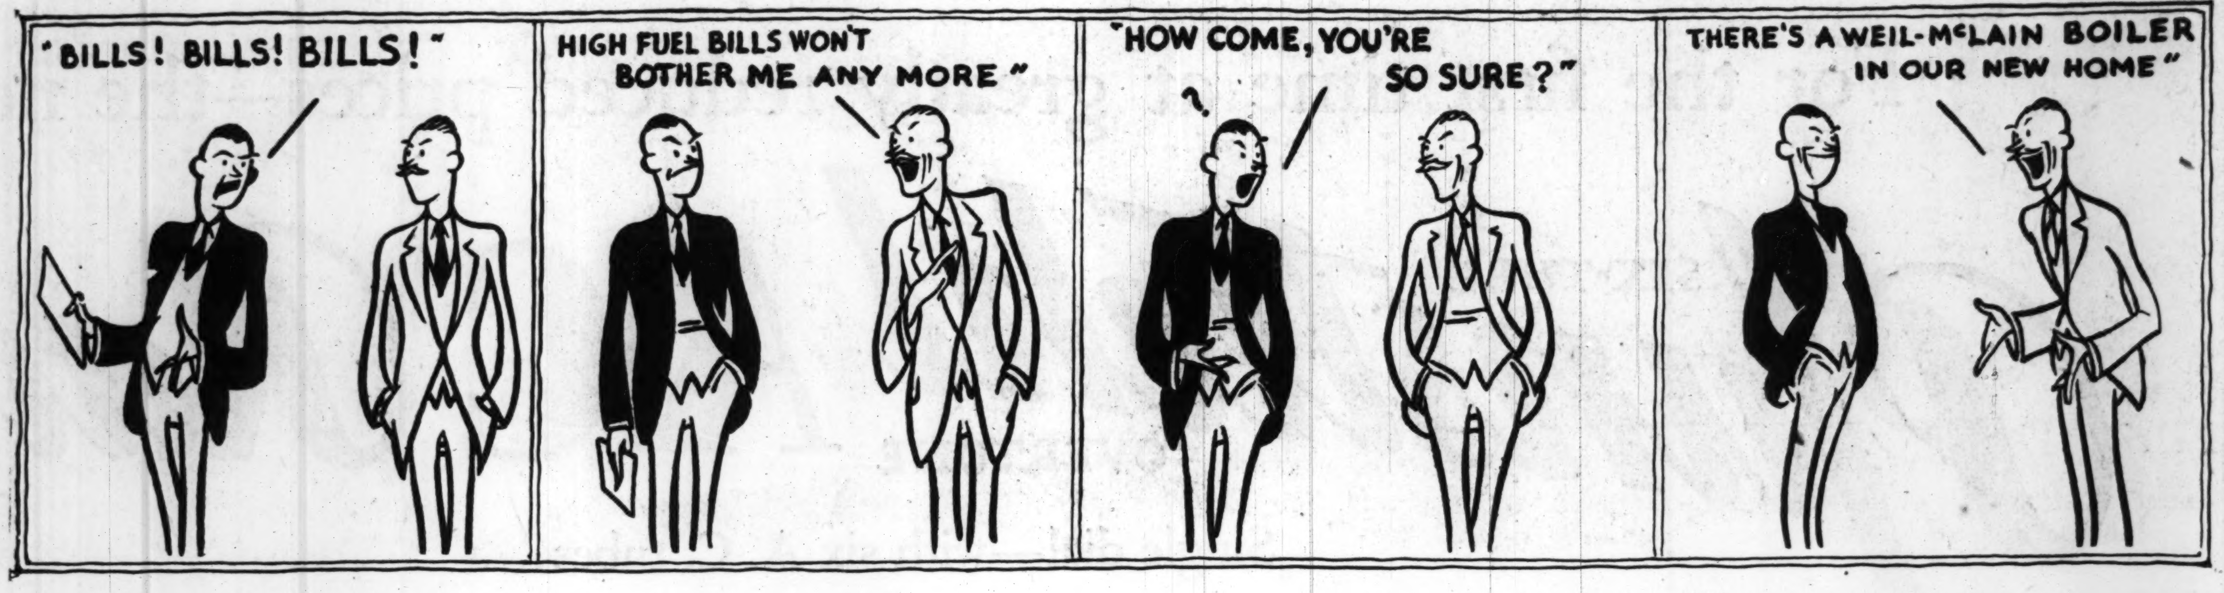
FUEL BILLS TOO HIGH?

—Perhaps your Boiler is wasteful!



"BILLS! BILLS! BILLS!"
HIGH FUEL BILLS WON'T BOTHER ME ANY MORE"
"HOW COME, YOU'RE SO SURE?"
THERE'S A WEIL-McLAIN BOILER IN OUR NEW HOME"

Get a Weil-McLain Boiler. It fights fuel waste. Ends waste up the chimney. Prevents waste down into the ashpit. Absorbs more heat. Assures cozy comfort and fuel economy.

Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boilers are designed with one single thought in mind—to give more heat and save fuel. They are built to fight fuel waste, because the principal cost of home heating is the year-after-year cost of the fuel consumed.

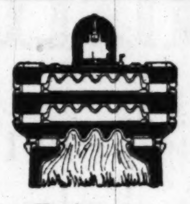
They are popularly priced, of course, due to modern manufacturing methods. But above all, they are efficient—assuring warm rooms, health protection, and a generous saving in your fuel bills.

Scientific combustion ends ashpit waste

Probably never before has there been a boiler in which the factors of costly fuel waste are so completely conquered. Among the Weil-McLain advantages, which insure warm rooms and a saving in fuel, is scientific combustion.

Due to scientific design, the fuel in the Weil-McLain Boiler is more thoroughly burned. The fire burns bright and clean. It lasts a long time and requires only infrequent attention. Costly waste down into the ashpit is ended.

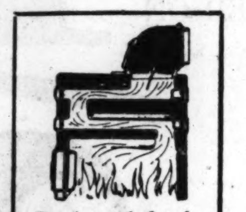
Fuel-saving corrugations and back-and-forth fire travel prevent waste up the chimney



Fuel-saving corrugations absorb more heat from the fire

The Weil-McLain Boiler has 40 per cent more heat-absorbing surface directly above the fire, due to a corrugated crown sheet section.

All other vital heating surfaces, too, have fuel-saving corrugations. You can see for yourself that corrugations like this 〰 permit crowding more heat-absorbing surface into the same space. Weil-McLain long back-and-forth fire travel eliminates all short cuts to the chimney and is a final safeguard against waste.



Back-and-forth fire travel ends waste of heat up the chimney

Not only do these two Weil-McLain features end waste of valuable heat units up the chimney, but they give further assurance of warm rooms and fuel economy.

See your heating contractor

Or write our wholesale distributor in your territory, for a copy of booklet Number 20-R, describing the complete line of Weil-McLain Boilers. Weil-McLain Company. General Offices: 641 W. Lake St., Chicago.

Factories and Offices: Michigan City, Ind.—Erie, Pa.

Weil-McLain Self-Feed Boilers

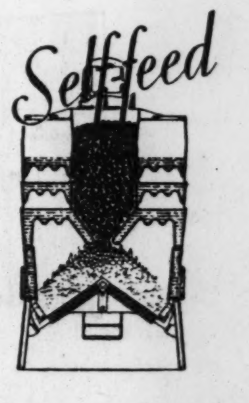
. . . the highest standard of clean, hard coal heating

The Weil-McLain Self-Feed is a new and more convenient boiler . . . a boiler you can leave for long periods without thought of shoveling coal . . . a boiler that assures home heating luxury . . . yet a surprisingly priced boiler of cleanly habits and amazing fuel savings.

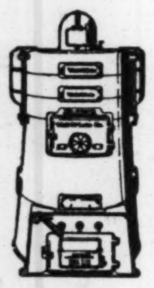
The Weil-McLain Self-Feed Boiler costs comparatively little more than regular type boilers, because its simplified design effects savings in manufacture and installation.

It saves fuel because of corrugated heating surfaces and long back-and-forth fire travel and because it burns inexpensive small sizes of clean hard coal, there is a further year-after-year saving in fuel cost. A handy ashpit spray adds to its cleanliness.

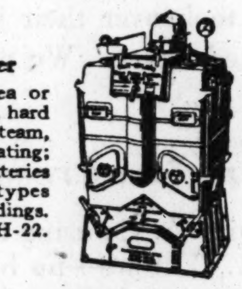
Write for our Self-Feed Boiler Catalog, giving complete details.



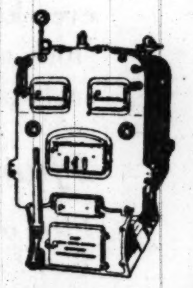
Round Type Boiler
For coal, coke, oil or gas; made for steam, vapor or hot water heating; in sizes for bungalows, residences, and small apartment buildings. Write for catalog H-23.



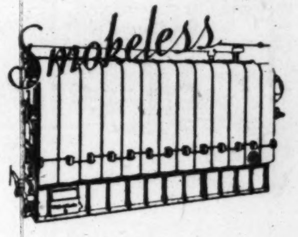
Self-Feed Boiler
For buckwheat, pea or small sizes of clean, hard coal or oil; made for steam, vapor or hot water heating; used singly or in batteries for homes and all types of medium sized buildings. Write for catalog H-22.



Square Type Boiler
For coal, coke or oil; made for steam, vapor or hot water heating; in sizes for homes, and all types of medium or large buildings. Write for catalog H-24.



Smokeless Boiler
With long-firing periods; used where soft coal and smoke is a community problem; in sizes for apartments, factories, theatres, schools, etc. Write for catalog H-21.



Oil Burning
Weil-McLain Boilers are unexcelled for use with oil burners. First, because their fire boxes and other parts are easily adaptable for oil burning. Second, because their principles of greater heat absorption are just as logically advantageous with oil as with other types of fuel.

ILLINOIS WINS BIG TEN TRACK GAMES

SCHALK'S PROUD OF THIS "BIG FIVE"

GABBY HARTNETT.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 10.—The formal spring debut of Joe McCarthy's Cubs today was more or less of a success, principally more. The men who are being rated good enough to bowl over the opposition in the pending National league campaign stepped out and gave a real demonstration of what is in them, the outcome of which was an 11 to 2 defeat of the Hollywood stars, not a few of whom were at one time or another measured for big league employment.

Being anxious to show some 3,000 customers, among them Frank Schulte, who was a pretty good hitter himself in his day, and Charles W. Murphy, who was equally good as a magnate, what they could do if they tried, the Cubs turned loose a mess of seventeen hits, two of which were homers by Norman McMillan and the irrepressible Gabby Hartnett. Most of these smashes were concentrated in the first few innings when seven runs were shoved home and another salvo was touched off in the ninth to add four more tallies to the final count.

Three Pitchers Get Trial.

Although McCarthy had intended to use almost two complete lineups, he changed his mind when he saw how good his starting combination was working. He did stick to his pitching program, however, by letting Johnny Welch, Henry Grampp and Pat Malone divide the pitching, but each member of the trio displayed unmistakable signs of needing additional work before reaching the best of condition.

Another change made in the course of the struggle was the substitution of Joe Kelly for Capt. Grimm at first base, but this was a matter of necessity. Capt. Charley was kicked on the shin by McNulty in the seventh inning and decided he would hasten away to let Trainer Lotshaw rub away the pain with liniment and conversation, mostly the latter.

Only two pitched balls were necessary for the two run blast when the Cubs introduced themselves to the first 1928 batch of cash customers in the initial inning. McCabe tossed one to English and the twenty-one year old shortstop slapped it on a line to right center for two bases. McCabe then wound up again and McMillan took a swing that hoisted the bulb over the left field wall for a homer.

Cubs Score Four in Second.

Grimm made the first contribution toward the four runs that marked the second inning. The captain doubled against the left field bricks. Hartnett plastered a double to the right field bleacher but Grimm went only as far as third on it. Butler pushed a single to left, scoring both Grimm and Hartnett. Welch shoved Butler up a peg on a sacrifice bunt, English fouled out and the activity then was renewed with a pass to McMillan. Cuyler launched a single into center, Butler crossing the plate and McMillan going to third, whence he scored on a double steal.

McCabe was around only for one inning after this but before he escaped Hartnett smacked him for a homer that whistled over the deep center field fence.

The only noticeable defect in the Cub pitching while Welch was serving during the first three innings was an inclination toward wildness. He walked the first two batters and then switched around and fanned both McNulty and Carlyle. Lee was doubled trying to

PHILLIPS BEATS HARRISON TO WIN PREP CAGE TITLE

Carey and Harper Sink 4 Baskets Apiece.

Speed that was dazzling, accurate shooting that was almost amazing, and a stout defense that thwarted Harrison's efforts gave Wendell Phillips the lightweight basketball championship of the City High School league yesterday at Crane gym. The south siders, complete masters of the situation at all times, triumphed, 23 to 10, before a capacity crowd which was limited to 1,700 by the lack of more seats in the west side gymnasium.

Phillips, with its quintet of rangy fast players, is easily the best lightweight team the City league has had for several years. The boys displayed a deadly aim for the basket and their passes seldom missed their marks.

South Siders Control Ball.

Perhaps if the south siders had elected to make as many points as possible they would have doubled their score, but instead they were satisfied to protect their advantage by controlling the ball most of the time.

After gaining a 12 to 6 lead at the half, Phillips started the third period by drawing Harrison out of its defensive formation and succeeded in gaining a couple of baskets by these tactics. But whenever Phillips really wanted a basket, Carey and Harper or Pullins would work the ball near the hoop and nonchalantly sink a toss.

The first period was a hotly contested battle with the honors even at the gun, 4 to 4. In the second period, Phillips quickly showed its superiority mainly through two shots by Pullins.

Then Carey and Harper took up the scoring and both helped themselves to four baskets. They generally succeeded in eluding their guards and made successful shots under the hoop or from the free throw mark.

Harrison Makes 3 Field Goals.

The tight defensive work of Harper and Gay held Harrison to three field goals. After the first period Harrison was able to make one basket. Uhlir and Cerihn tossed field goals in the first session and Uhlir added another in the second, but thereafter Harrison seldom had an opportunity to score from the field.

The game was cleanly fought and well handled by the officials. Phillips fouled more often than Harrison, but it was the speed of the south siders that caused them to commit a few more personals. Lineup:

Rain Keeps Up Its Game of Tag with White Sox

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Shreveport, La., March 10.—Pago Pago, that island that made rain famous, is a blistering desert compared to this here city of Shreveport.

The weather never has been our idea of snappy conversation, but just like Sadie Thompson and the Rev. Davidson, even a baseball author finds himself getting squirrelly as he listens to the patter, of the huge drops, night after night, knowing full well that each patter is a telegraphic message that another ball game will be called off.

And the aggravating thing about the Shreveport rain is that it is sandwiched between the most gorgeous sunshiny days—ideal for baseball if the players didn't have to keep their feet on the ground. But each night at the stroke of midnight it starts to rain. And it keeps on raining until the aforementioned gorgeous sunshine arrives each morning.

Slim Chance for Today.

With the foregoing dirge as a prelude it is scarcely necessary to mention that the second scheduled game of the White Sox exhibition series was called off on account of wet grounds. Even if there is no rain tonight there is some doubt whether the Texas league clay beds will be dried out sufficiently for a belated opener on the Sabbath.

Three young pitchers were placed on the guillotine this afternoon. All were pickups from the semi-pros and will go to Jackson, Miss., in the Cotton States league, which is a fair enough advancement in their chosen fields. They are: William C. Dowdney of Chicago, Clifford F. Nelson of Hammond, and John Krider of North Wales, Pa.

Although the first interleague game is yet to be played, it is now possible to state that of the rookie pitchers now on hand the following will be carried by the Sox at least till June 15 and probably throughout the entire summer:

Philip Henselk, who won 22 games for Monroe in the Cotton States league last year, and led the league in percentage; Al Williamson, who won 10 for Shreveport; Grady Atkins, who won 17 for Shreveport, and George Cox, who won 20 for Jackson.

Roy Wilson, from San Antonio, and J. William Goodell of Tulsa may survive for some time because they are left handers. Several Texas league managers already are after Eulogio [Speed] Luque, and if he never reaches Chicago this year he'll get there some day.

Set Win Quotas

The win quotas which have been set for the veterans, not at all visionary in view of past performances, are said to be as follows, not that it proves anything:

Ted Lyons, 22 [same as 1927]; Al Thomas, 20 [one more than 1927]; Ted Blankenship, 15 [three more than 1927;] George Connally, 10 [same as last year], and Red Faber, 10 [six more than last year].

Realization of this quota would place the Sox some place in the first division, but to guarantee entrance to the upper half of the heap the second string men will have to do much better than the reserve gang last year. Jacobs, Barnabe, and Cole won three games among them last season.

Barnabe, the sole survivor of the trio, pitched in 17 games, won none, lost five; pitched 61 innings, allowed 46 runs and 86 hits; gave 20 bases on balls, struck out five, hit five batsmen and made two wild pitches.

Two Purdue Cagers Placed on All Conference Team

BY FRED H. YOUNG.

[Big Ten Official.]

FRED YOUNG.

Singling out the leads from a cast of capable basketball players numbering well over 100 men and comprising the cream of the middle west is bound to bring forth criticism. The life of a sports writer is more or less given over to satisfying the public appetite, however, and the public demands its "all this and all that" teams.

The final performance has been given, the show is over, and the writer has endeavored to pick the men who, not only by their individual performance but by their team worth have meant the most to their respective teams.

The story of the 1927-28 western conference basketball race will go down into the archives as a year of brilliant offensive play.

Few Good Forwards.

The crop of forwards in many respects is not as good as it has been in recent years. The veteran Oosterbaan, Michigan's brilliant all around Apollo, was a great forward a year ago but was even greater this year, and despite membership on a team that wobbled badly at times, was always an inspiration to his team and never lost heart. His under basket work is as good as that of any forward in the country.

Dale Wells, Indiana's junior forward, is picked as Oosterbaan's teammate. Although changing back and forth with Correll frequently, Wells is really a forward and a great one, too. He is courageous, a wonderful basket shot and has the speed that is such a great asset in basketball. Strickland, his team mate, is a fine offensive player but is not nearly as strong on defense.

Big Ten's Best

F.—Oosterbaan, Michigan [C.].
F.—Wells, Indiana.
C.—Murphy, Purdue.
G.—Kemmer, Purdue.
G.—Hotchkiss, Wisconsin.

SECOND TEAM.

C.—Walter, Northwestern.
G.—Hoerger, Chicago [C.].
G.—Mills, Illinois.

THIRD TEAM.
F.—Fisher, Northwestern [C.].
F.—Gist, Chicago.
C.—McCracken, Indiana.
G.—Doyle, Wisconsin.
G.—Correll, Indiana.

Harmeson of Purdue is another splendid all around forward who will rank high next year.

Capt. Wheeler of Purdue wound up a brilliant career with a fine all around performance. Waldo Fisher of Northwestern, was another veteran who played consistently all season, while Johnnie How of Illinois is as neat a shot as the conference has seen in recent years. Twogood of Iowa, Cummings of Purdue, Stark of Minnesota, and Grim of Ohio all are valuable men.

Murphy Placed at Center.

Few will dispute the placing of "Stretch" Murphy, the Boilermakers' giant center, on the first team. He is a whole team in himself, both on offense and defense, and has not been outplayed all season despite the class of the other centers, which many rate the best crop in the history of the Minneapolis, Minn., March 10.—[Special.]—Purdue university shares the western conference basketball championship with Indiana as a result of its hard fought victory over Minnesota here tonight, 32 to 24. The Boilermakers finished the season with ten victories and two defeats. The victory kept Minnesota in the cellar for the second year with only two victories in twelve starts. A crowd of 10,000 saw the game.

Purdue had a hard struggle in order to emerge triumphant. At half time the visitors were leading by only 17 to 16. Only a fine rally in the last half gave Purdue the lead that won the game and clinched the championship tie. The excellent shooting of Stretch Murphy from the charity strip together with his 2 baskets turned the tide to the Boilermakers. He sank five of six free throw attempts.

Murphy was the key man in the Purdue victory as he controlled the tip off and constantly broke up the Minnesota attack. Harmeson and Stretch tied for Purdue scoring honors with nine points. Nelson was the outstanding star for the Gophers. Stark of the Gophers counted nine points. Lineup:

GEORGETTI AND DE BAETS WIN N. Y. BIKE RACE

Beat Out Belloni, Beckman by Lap.

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—Franco Georgetti of Italy and Gerard Debaets of Belgium won the forty-fourth international six day bicycle race before a crowd of 16,000 spectators who filled Madison Square Garden tonight. It was a popular victory and commemorated from the gallery by the throwing of torn up newspapers and other material into the arena below.

Gaetano Belloni and Anthony Beckman were second, one lap behind the leaders. They, too, got their share of flowers and applause. Both teams circled the arena with baskets or bouquets in their arms as the crowd yelled its appreciation.

It was an enthusiastic ending to a thrilling race. In 146 hours of going, which began last Sunday night, 429 laps had been stolen, a new record. The old mark of 356 had been set at the December race.

The final standing follows:

Believe It or Not, Florida's Sports Idol Is Californian

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Tampa, Fla., March 10.—Although there are approximately 400 ball players training in the state of Florida at this time, and a series of speedboat races and a $15,000 golf tournament are about to take place at Miami Beach, the one topic that seems to fascinate the customers more than any other is the business intentions of a California gentleman by the name of Jack Dempsey.

You may judge the magnitude of this compliment to Mr. Dempsey of California when you realize that it is not considered quite polite to mention California or Californians in mixed company in Florida. I even have heard that the maps in the geography text books in use in the Florida public schools show the area commonly known as California as a vacant expanse, labeled "desert." Last year, at a strictly stag dinner in St. Petersburg, I heard an orator refer to California, but it was only to point out a difference between the Florida oranges and the California kind.

Mr. Schacht Is Interested.

"When you peel a Florida orange," he said, "you should stand over a bucket, because statistics show that if you don't you will lost, on an average, three pints of juice before the gusher can be capped. But you can't peel a California orange. You have to use a mallet and crack it."

Considering this state of feeling with regard to all things pertaining to California, it would appear that a considerable tribute to this Mr. Dempsey of Hollywood, Cal., is implied by the interest which is being manifested in his intentions.

One of the most eager inquirers regarding the plans of Mr. Dempsey is Mr. Al Schacht of the Washington ball club. Last winter Mr. Schacht toured the country with Mr. Nick Altrock in a vaudeville drama entitled "A Worm's-Eye View of Jack Dempsey." In this vehicle, which was derived from the famous Chicago uplift spectacle, Mr. Altrock impersonated the Californian and Mr. Schacht played what you might call the title rôle.

Mr. Schacht looped a determined finger through your correspondent's lapel on a recent evening at the Tampa Bay hotel, where the ball club is stopping, and dragged your correspondent out into the solitude of a palm grove.

The Matter Grows Serious.

"I didn't want to mention a Californian in there because there are so many ladies sitting around playing bridge," said Mr. Schacht, "but do you think Dempsey is going to fight again?"

"I don't know," your correspondent replied. "Why do you ask?"

"My God!" exclaimed Mr. Schacht. "He asks why I ask! I ask because I want to know. I can't sleep. Nobody can sleep. Can't congress do something? What do we pay taxes for?"

Mr. James Downing, late of Jawbone, Utah, who boxed a twenty round main event in the back room of a refreshment resort out west one night after Mr. Dempsey had boxed a ten round preliminary for the sum of $12, minus the regular manager's percentage, is now promoting prize fights in Tampa for the local field artillery unit of the Florida National Guard.

Mr. Downing is what you might call the Tex Rickard of Tampa, although he persistently refers to Mr. Rickard as the Jim Downing of New York. He is quite a substantial Floridian, usually having a numerous representation of the celebrated best people at his uplift spectacles, and yet he confesses to a pulsating interest in the Californian's intentions.

Promoter Tells His Fears.

"I hope and trust that Mr. Dempsey's vision is not so badly impaired that he will be unable to see a $400,000 guarantee," Mr. Downing stated. "Because if Mr. Dempsey should retire permanently our profession would experience a distressing period of deflation. I do not wish to cast any reflections on Mr. Tunney, whom I regard as a great scholar. But, for the good of the profession, I do wish that Mr. Tunney had taken up law or singing, because when the heavyweight champion cannot draw the customers without the aid of a challenger, and there is no challenger, the depression extends all the way down the line.

"If Mr. Dempsey were to come back and box the professor again the customer would become interested once more and we would not have to slice the ham so thin at our house."

Jack Hurts the Golf Meets.

In Miami Beach I was most sorry for Mr. Steve Hannagan, whose business and purpose it is to promote conversation and reading matter about the impending $15,000 golf tournament. Whenever Mr. Hannagan would mention Gene Sarazen or Jock Hutchison, or start to describe the 14 karat gold kettle which will be presented to the winner, some ill-mannered character would mention Mr. Dempsey and the conversation would get completely out of hand.

"It is annoying," Mr. Hannagan said. "I have been thinking of the old neutrality days before the United States went into the war, when there were signs in all of the better saloons reading: 'Don't Talk War.'

"I think I will have to post some signs in the tearooms around Miami Beach. I wonder how 'Don't Talk Dempsey' would do?"

Princeton Trims Penn 29-12 to Tie for Basketball Title

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10.—(AP)—Princeton ran over Pennsylvania in an Eastern Intercollegiate league basketball game here tonight, 29 to 12, in the final game of the season. The victory placed Princeton and Pennsylvania in a tie for first place, necessitating a playoff later.

Columbia Cage Jinx on Yale Holds; Eli Loses, 30-29

New York, March 10.—(AP)—The jinx that has been tagging Yale in its basketball contests with Columbia was on hand again tonight as the Elis went down to a 30 to 29 defeat in the final game of the Intercollegiate league season.

Gould and Wright Retain Court Tennis Doubles Title

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10.—(AP)—Jay Gould and W. C. Wright, Philadelphia, retained their title as national doubles court tennis champions today by defeating Channing Frothingham and George W. Wightman, Boston, 6-0, 6-4, 7-5.

LAZY BABE HITS HOME RUN, THEN STOPS AT THIRD

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 10.—[U. P.]—Babe Ruth was lazy today and his first home run of the year only went for a triple. Playing first base for the Yannigans in a practice game against the New York Yankee regulars, he drove the ball into Alligator lake, but refused to run past third base.

Prep Sprinter Equals World's 100 Yard Record

Santa Maria, Cal., March 10.—[U.P.]—Samuel McBean, 20 year old sprinter from Polytechnic high school, San Luis Obispo, equaled a world's record here today when he ran the 100 yard dash in 9 3-5 seconds. Stop watches held by three local officials registered the same time. No official of the A. A. U. was present. McBean was aided by a slight wind.

Illinois	31	Indiana	7

Northwestern	8	Purdue	6½
Wisconsin	8	Chicago	6½
Michigan	7½	Minnesota	1½

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., March 10.—Scoring points in seven of the ten events, Coach Harry Gill's Illinois team won the eighteenth annual indoor western conference track and field championships held in the Iowa field house tonight by scoring 31 points. Iowa was second with 27 points and Northwestern and Wisconsin tied for third with eight points each.

The games were featured by the smashing of four Big Ten records, including an American indoor mark. Two others were established. The time made in other events indicates conference athletes will make a strong bid for places on the American Olympic team.

William Droegemueller of Northwestern cleared 13 feet 2½ inches in the pole vault. This mark not only shattered the Big Ten indoor record of 13 feet ⅝ inches, made by Dean Brownell of Illinois in 1924, but it broke the American record of 13 feet 1⅛ inches, held by Paul Harrington of Notre Dame.

Martin Breaks 880 Record.

Orville Martin of Purdue ran a great race to win the half mile in the record breaking time of 1:56 4.10, which bettered the old Big Ten indoor record of 1:56 6-10 made by C. A. Reinke of Michigan in 1925.

George Baird, the Iowa quarter miler, cracked the old mark of :50 8-10 made by Binga Dimond, the colored runner of the University of Chicago, in 1917. The youth stepped the distance in :50 1-10.

Iowa won the one mile relay in 3:24 2-10, which shattered the old mark of 3:29 made by Illinois back in 1920. The Iowa quartet was composed of Stevenson, Stamats, Baird, and Cuhel. This race was decided in two sections and comparative time determined the place winners.

Sprint Mark Established.

George Simpson of Ohio State established a new conference record of :06 3-10 for the 60 yard dash, and Frank Cuhel of Iowa set a record of :08 8-10 for the 70 yard high hurdles. These are new events on the Big Ten program.

At a meeting of the athletic directors held this afternoon it was decided to accept all new records. The track in the Iowa field house measures six laps to the mile, while those at Patten gym, Evanston, where all indoor championships have been decided, is ten laps to the mile. Despite the length of the courses, and allowing that faster time can be made on a six lap track, the directors decided to accept all records made not only tonight but in the future regardless of the size of the tracks. Summaries:

70 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Cuhel, Iowa; Allison, Iowa, second; Rockaway, Ohio State, third; Pahlmeyer, Wisconsin, fourth. Time, :08 8-10 [new conference record]; first time event held over this distance.

440 YARD RUN—Won by Baird, Iowa; Stephenson, Indiana, second; Chambers, Illinois, third; Wilmoth, Iowa, fourth. Time, :50 1-10 [new conference record]; old mark :50 8-10, made over a ten lap track by Binga Dismond of Chicago in 1917.

ONE MILE RUN—Won by Novak, Illinois; Stine, Illinois, second; Petaja, Wisconsin, third; Clapham, Indiana, fourth. Time, 4:27 2-10.

60 YARD DASH—Won by Simpson, Ohio State; Gleason, Chicago, second; Larson, Wisconsin, third; Root, Chicago, fourth. Time, :06 3-10 [new conference record].

TWO MILE RUN—Won by Abbott, Illinois; Bullamore, Wisconsin, second; Fairfield, Illinois, third; Fields, Indiana, fourth. Time, 9:27 6-10.

POLE VAULT—Won by Droegemueller, Northwestern, 13 ft. 2½ inches; Prout, Michigan, second, 12 ft. 9 in.; White, Barnes, and Heinsen, of Illinois, tied for third and fourth, 12 ft. 6 in. [New conference record, old mark 13 ft. ⅝ in.; made by Dean Brownell of Illinois in 1924.

SHOT PUT—Won by Lyon, Illinois, 47 ft. 5¼ in.; Nelson, Iowa, second, 46 ft. ½ in.; Forwald, Iowa, third, 44 ft. 11¼ in.; Bagge, Northwestern, fourth, 43 ft. 9½ in.

880 YARD RUN—Won by Martin, Purdue; Moulton, Iowa, second; Gorby, Northwestern, third; Williams, Chicago, fourth. Time, 1:56.4. [New conference record; old mark of 1:56.6 made by C. A. Reinke of Michigan over a ten lap track in 1925.]

RUNNING HIGH JUMP—Won by Carr, Illinois, 5 ft. 11⅛ in.; Rhea, Minnesota, Frey, Chicago, Waldo, Michigan, and Work, Purdue, tied for second, third and fourth, 5 ft. 10⅝ in.

ONE MILE RELAY—Won by Iowa [Stevenson, Stamats, Baird, Cuhel]; Michigan, second; Indiana, third; Illinois, fourth. Time, 3:24.2. [New conference record; old mark, 3:29, made by Illinois in 1920.]

Haines Beats O'Connor to Retain Squash Net Title

New York, Mar. 10.—(AP)—Rowland B. Haines of the Columbia University club successfully defended his title today by conquering B. H. O'Connor of the Crescent A. C. in the final of the national amateur squash tennis championships at the Princeton club, 15-9, 15-3, 15-1.

OKLAHOMA TRACK TEAM CAPTURES VALLEY TITLE

Grady Ties American Mark for Fifty Yards.

Des Moines, Ia., March 10.—(AP)—Oklahoma won the Missouri Valley indoor track meet here tonight. Missouri was second. Oklahoma's victory was largely due to Harold Keith's performances in the mile and two mile runs, both of which he won handily. He was the only man who won two first places. Jack Carmen, low hurdler, also contributed to the Sooners' victory by winning that event.

The outstanding performance was turned in by Lowell Grady, Kansas captain, who tied the American indoor record of 5 2-10 seconds for the 50 yard dash. The conference 50 yard record of 5 4-10 seconds previously had been tied by three competing athletes—Grady of Kansas, Easter of Nebraska, and Parks of Drake.

Another Valley conference indoor record was broken by Wallace English of Missouri, who cleared the bar at 12 feet 11 inches in the pole vault, exceeding the former mark by three inches.

NOTRE DAME CARDS 9 GRID GAMES FOR '28

Nore Dme, Ind., March 10.—[Special.]—The Notre Dame football schedule for 1928 was announced today by Coach Knute K. Rockne. Nine games complete the card. Three will be played on Cartier field and one at Chicago. Loyola university of New Orleans, Drake and Carnegie Tech will invade the Irish stronghold. The Navy will be played on Soldiers' field, Chicago, on Oct. 13.

With 10 regulars receiving sheepskins in June the outlook for the fall campaign is anything but bright. The back field will be built around Niemiec, Collins and Chevigney. Rockne must build an entire new line, having only one veteran, Capt. Fred Miller, left tackle. Jim Brady and Joe Morrissey are the leading candidates for the quarter back job. The schedule:

Sept. 29.—Loyola of New Orleans at Notre Dame.
Oct. 6—Wisconsin at Madison.
Oct. 13—Navy at Chicago.
Oct. 20—Georgia Tech at Atlanta.
Oct. 27—Drake at Notre Dame.
Nov. 3—Penn State at Philadelphia.
Nov. 10—Army at New York.
Nov. 17—Carnegie Tech at Notre Dame.
Dec. 1—University of Southern California at Los Angeles.

WOMEN TRACK STARS BREAK THREE RECORDS

Boston, Mass., March 10.—(AP)—Three world records were broken and a new record was established in a woman's track meet held tonight in the East Armory. The event was staged under the auspices of the committee on women's athletics of the New England A. A. U., and six national titles were decided.

Katherine Maerls of Boston set a new mark of 8 feet 3 inches in the national standing broad jump championship. The previous record was 7 feet 11¾ inches, established by Miss Maerls a year ago.

Mildred Wiley of Boston established a new mark of five feet in the running high jump. In the 8 pound shot put Mabel Travers, Brooklyn Edison company, established a record of 33 feet 3½ inches, bettering by one foot 2¼ inches the distance of Rena McDonald of Boston, the previous record holder.

FLOWERS TO BOX TOD MORGAN FOR TITLE MARCH 22

Boston, Mass., March 10.—(AP)—Tod Morgan, Seattle, Wash., junior lightweight boxing champion, has agreed to defend his title here on March 22 against Bruce Flowers, New York Negro, according to word from the office of Eddie Mack, matchmaker for the Argonne A. A. The match will go ten rounds.

South Shore Team Wins Inter-Club Trap Shoot

South Shore trapshooters won the sixth interclub team event of the Country Club league yesterday by shattering 487 morkers out of a possible 500 at the Glen View traps. Exmoor's team, which practically clinched the title last week was second with 481. Onwentsia captured third place with 477 while the home team was last with 470.

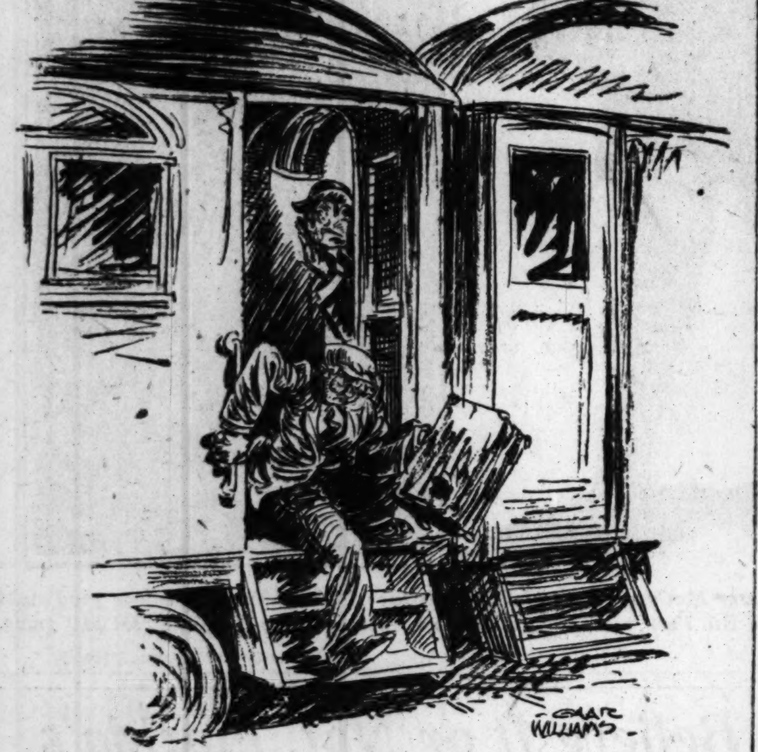
Holleran Yell Finds Life Full of Unexpectedness

How the Best of Enemies Failed Him, as Told

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Tampa, Fla., March 10.—To me, one of the most peculiar things about life is the way things will turn out differently from the way you expect them to. I suppose this uncertainty costs the country a great deal of money holding expensive trials for robbers and governors and people of that type because if we only had some sure way of knowing that these people are innocent in the first place, it would not be necessary to hold costly trials for them. It almost seems to me that after the citizens have been paying board bills and taxicab fares for a jury for a couple of weeks, the jury owes it to the public to find the defendants guilty of something, even if it is only murder.

But that is the way it is with life.



The other boy would get off the other side of the train.

If people could only tell what is going to happen, they could make their arrangements accordingly, saving much expense and avoiding painful mistakes.

I remember one time particularly when I wish I could have known what was going to happen, as it would have spared me very serious humiliation and I would have made other plans.

I Take the Boys to the Country.

At the time that I am speaking of I was managing two fine, high-spirited gladiators of Fistiana by the name of Rollo Rollova and Eddie Sprawl, but there was an unsportsmanlike element operating in fistic circles in New York City, so I decided to withdraw my boys from such sordid surroundings and take them out for a tour of the country. I will not go into details about this unsportsmanlike conduct, because it fills me with disgust even to think about people degrading the fistic sport in such a manner. I will only say that they did not have any decency and thought nothing of the finer aspects of the pugilistic science.

Brutality was their watchword and every time I would arrange for one of my boys to box one of their boys a ten-round gallop, their boy would reach out some time during the contest and hit my boy a treacherous paste on the kisser and knock him insensible.

After the contest I would remonstrate with them for these brutal tactics and they would say, "O, pardon us, we did not mean to paste your bum so vigorously." But the damage would be done and after several unfortunate experiences of this kind, my keen brain told me that they were using these unsportsmanlike methods deliberately.

So that was why I took Rollo Rollova and Eddie Sprawl out to tour the country.

Efficiency in the Fistic Business.

Well, I am considered a very good business man, so it occurred to me that it would be foolish for my bums to go around fighting strange bums everywhere and let the strange bums pick up all these purses. As a practical man I could see that it would be much better for us if my two boys would pretend to be enemies with a grudge between them. In this manner we could collect both ends of the purse and, of course, I would collect my honorarium of thirty per cent from each of my boys.

Well, we did a fine business and we were booked several weeks ahead because my two fistic knights understood each other perfectly and they worked up their contest into a highly realistic grudge fight. I would arrive in a town with one of the boys and the other boy would get off the other side of the train. If anybody would ask the second boy where his manager was he would reply, "I haven't got any manager, as I discharged my manager for becoming intoxicated."

In the evening we would usually hold a conference to decide which boy's turn it was to win the next night's contest and everything was going along in peace and accord and we were earning a great deal of funds besides giving the public a splendid exhibition of the fistic science.

To me, it was very touching to see the friendship that sprang up between my two gladiators. They would give each other little presents of neckties and wrist watches and when we were riding on the railroad trains they were constantly playing rhummy together.

I Dispel a Menace, As It Were.

Well, we held our grudge fight in Terre Haute, Covington, Peoria, Joplin, Grand Rapids and several other cities and finally we received an offer to take the contest down to Shreveport, so I wired the promoter that I was bringing Eddie Sprawl with me and said Rollo Rollova probably would enter town on foot, disguised as a tramp, because Eddie Sprawl was threatening to beat him up on sight just for pleasure.

About this time, I was becoming afraid that this friendship between the contestants might affect their grudge. Of course, it is always considered a good thing in the pugilistic calling for the members of a grudge contest to have mutual respect and understanding so that they will cooperate and not try to take unfair advantage during the exhibition. But I didn't think it was a very good idea for my boys to be as friendly as they were, because they were getting so they didn't want to paste each other. The night of our contest in Grand Rapids I caught Rollo apologizing to Eddie Sprawl for cutting his lip and I had to scold him severely for acting so polite in public.

"Remember," I stated, "that this is not a world's championship contest between refined lecturers but a primitive brawl between two raging brutemen of the squared circle."

But, on the way to Shreveport, I decided to create some ill feeling in order to put down the terrible menace of this friendship. Consequently, I took Rollo to one side and told him that Eddie Sprawl had been saying some very sarcastic things about him. And, later, I got Eddie aside and told him that Rollo said he was cheating in the rhummy game.

After that I did not say any more, as the two boys just sat in their seats looking out the window, not speaking to each other, and I figured that the ill feeling was beginning to take effect.

When we got to Shreveport they insisted on going to separate hotels and I was greatly cheered, figuring that they would get into the ring and try to knock each other's head off. In fact, I made an announcement to the press warning the sensitive members of the public to stay away, because they might faint watching the primitive struggle between two highly trained cave men to settle an old quarrel of their boyhood.

My Dear Sir, Can You Imagine—?

But imagine how they mortified me that night at the ball park when they walked right into a clinch at the start and Eddie leaned against Rollo and started to talk to him.

"Why, Rollo," Eddie Sprawl said, "you have hurt my feelings terribly by saying those terrible things about me cheating in the rhummy game. How can we go on fighting if you are going to gossip about me that way?"

"Why, Edward," stated Rollo, "I never said any such thing but you don't know how disappointed I am in you for telling our manager that I ate apples in bed in a noisy manner and kept you awake."

"Why, Rollo," replied Edward, "that is absolutely false as I never said anything of the kind."

All this time I was up on the top step in Sprawl's corner shouting, "Don't you believe him, either one of you, but go on and settle the grudge. Remember the rhummy game! Remember the apples in bed! Strike him smartly, boys, and quit gossiping."

Well sir, it only goes to show that you can never tell how things are going to turn out in this life. I thought a little ill feeling would make the boys fight like wild cats but they would just put their arms around each other and they were still gossiping and apologizing and explaining when the referee threw them out of the ring in the fourth round under the impression that they were faking the contest.

And, when we got on the train that night, both of my gladiators called me a vicious trouble maker with a poison tongue and with that they both took a paste at me for trying to break up their friendship just to make a few sordid dollars.

BRITON WINS 3D SUCCESSIVE LAP IN ROAD DERBY

Danby, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Arthur Newton, 44 year old British running marvel, picked his way over the desert highway today to win the seventh lap of the 3,400 mile transcontinental foot race in the low time of 4:57:00 for the 31.9 miles from Bagdad, this morning's starting point.

When the gaunt veteran campaigner of the veldts of South Africa shuffled over the finish line he had boosted by many minutes his lead in total elapsed time for the 239.4 miles run to date. His running time since leaving Los Angeles is 35 hours and 59 minutes. Today's lap was the third successive stretch won by the lanky Britisher in his quest for the $25,000 prize for the first to reach New York.

IOWA TO ELECT CAGE CAPTAIN ON WEDNESDAY

Iowa City, Ia., March 10.—[Special.]—Selection of Iowa university's 1929 basketball captain will be made next Wednesday night, when the Hawkeye cagers are guests at a dinner tendered by a local luncheon club.

The most probable selection, if Capt. Forrest Twogood is not reelected, is Francis "Rags" Wilcox of Eddyville, center and high scorer for the Iowans this year.

DAVE BARRY.

Champions and runners-up in the eight classes of THE TRIBUNE's golden gloves boxing tourney which came to such a successful close last Friday at the Ashland Boulevard Auditorium, will resume training tomorrow for the intercity tourney with New York at the Coliseum on March 24.

The New York titleholders and second place boxers will be determined next Saturday when the finals will be held at Madison Square Garden. The eastern tourney, which has attracted an entry of 3,000, is certain to produce fighters who should give THE TRIBUNE champions stiff competition. The easterners have been in training for several weeks, and the finals next Saturday are creating more interest in New York than any similar tourney held in years.

New Yorkers Due March 20.

The New York team will come to Chicago on March 20. They will be quartered at a local hotel and they will train at one of the local gymnasiums. They will be put through an intensive system of training by instructors and their physical well being will be cared for by a doctor who will accompany the squad.

Arrangements have been made with James C. Mullen for THE TRIBUNE winners to use his gymnasium. Dave Barry, boxing instructor at the Mullen gym, will give the boys instructions whenever they report. Every effort will be made to polish their offensive and defensive boxing and have them in the best of condition when they face the invaders. The boys are already taking a keen interest in the event and welcome the opportunity to meet the best the east can produce.

Tickets for this inter-city series of amateur fights will be placed on sale tomorrow and popular prices of $1, $2 and $3, plus tax, will prevail.

THE TRIBUNE's successful tourney was the principal topic of conversation yesterday in the gymnasiums and other places where the boxing fraternity congregate. The systematic manner in which each night's bouts were staged caused considerable favorable comment, while the fights were lauded as being even better than those seen at professional shows.

Success of the tourney, however, was due to the splendid coöperation of all concerned. The police detail was faultlessly handled by Lieut. Frank Malone. The ushers in charge, Andy Frain, Bill Childs, and Packey Leyden, handled the crowd in a pleasing manner.

Officials Were Excellent.

The active officials, men who never fail to support any TRIBUNE promotional event, performed their duties in the usual excellent manner. They gave their time and energy willingly and it was through their efforts that each night's bouts were staged with no delays.

The referees and judges, who gave their services gratis, also did their part to make the event a great success, as did all others who were connected with the tourney in any manner.

A similar event will be staged next year and, because of the interest displayed this year, the event will be held in a larger building, which will enable all lovers of amateur boxing to see the contests.

Sullivan Here Today for Bout with McCarthy

Promoter James Mullen has completed the card for the boxing show at the Coliseum Friday night. The program contains forty rounds of boxing with one ten rounder and six bouts of five rounds each supporting the main event.

JACK McCARTHY.

"My" Sullivan of St. Paul will face Jack McCarthy of Chicago in the feature ten rounder at 150 pounds. McCarthy recently won a decision over Sullivan at the Coliseum in a four round bout. McCarthy piled up a big lead in the first three rounds.

The St. Paul battler has been training at Hot Springs, Ark., since Feb. 27 and will arrive here today to finish preparation. McCarthy has been training here for the last ten days.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—New players within the ranks of the St. Louis Browns led an attack on three Cincinnati hurlers which resulted in a 3 to 0 victory here today. In spite of two errors against each club the teams played fast ball, turning in five double plays, three of which were credited to the Reds.

Cincinnati [N.] ....000 000 000—0 6 2
St. Louis [A.L.] ....000 011 10*—3 10 2
Batteries—Rixey, Ash, Edwards and Picinich, Sukeforth; Crowder, Coffman and Schang, Manion.

PHILS BEAT ATHLETICS.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Nationals today defeated their old rivals, the Athletics, in the second and last game in Florida between the clubs, 5 to 2. Each won a game. They will resume their spring battle in Philadelphia March 31. Score:

Athletics ....010 100 000—2 9 1
Phillies ....201 000 02*—5 14 0
Batteries—Ehmke, Jonnard and Perkins; Sweetland, R. Miller, Benge and Wilson and O'Donnell.

CARDS BUMP ORIOLES.

Auburndale, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—In an exhibition game marked by the ragged fielding of both clubs the St. Louis Cardinals bunched thirteen hits and defeated the Baltimore Orioles of the International league, 10 to 4, here today.

Six Card recruits, Pitchers Gudat, Irving, Ostermueller, and Heitzman, along with Catcher Nevins and Infielder Gilbert, were notified to report to the Rochester International league team, a Cardinal farm. Score:

St. Louis [N.] ....002 140 120—10 13 4
Baltimore [I.L.] ..000 010 201— 4 13 2

INDIANS, 13; PELICANS, 5.

New Orleans, La., March 10.—(AP)—Ineffectiveness of New Orleans Pelicans' pitchers gave the Cleveland Indians a 13 to 5 triumph in their first exhibition game of the spring here today. Score:

New Orleans........110 030 000— 5 11 4
Cleveland ....010 012 45*—13 13 1

BRAVES, 9; SENATORS, 5.

Tampa, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Superior in both hitting and pitching, the Boston Braves scored a 9 to 5 victory over Washington here today. Of a lineup of eighteen players, Goslin was the only member of the Harris outfit to find the hurling of Brandt and Wertz for more than one hit. His contribution was three safeties, one of them a home run. Score:

Washington ....004 010 000—5 11 1
Batteries—Brandt, Wertz and Taylor; Lisenbee, Zachary and McMullen, Tate.

GIANTS WIN SHORT GAME.

Augusta, Ga., March 10.—(AP)—Rain halted the New York Giants' first exhibition game, but gave the National leaguers time to pile up an 8 to 0 advantage over Newark in six innings. The Giants clouted three of the International league hurlers for nine hits, bunching bingles for chunks of three runs in the second inning and four in the fourth. Larry Benton and Faulkner kept the Newark hitters under control. Score:

New York [N. L.]..........030 41*—8 9 0
Batteries—Seubris, Fischer, Brennan and Skiff, Uzmann; Benton, Faulkner and Hogan, Spohrer.

DETROIT, 8; MINNEAPOLIS, 7.

San Antonio, Tex., March 10.—[U. P.]—The Detroit Tigers scored an 8 to 7 victory over the Minneapolis Millers in the first exhibition game of the season here today. McManus, playing third for the Tigers, led the Detroit attack with two doubles and three singles. The Tigers used four pitchers. Score:

SEMI-PRO NINES PLAN A LEAGUE OF EIGHT TEAMS

Representatives of the leading park clubs in the Chicago semi-pro circuit have entered into an agreement for an eight team league for the 1928 season. The league is to be made up of four traveling teams and four home teams.

The parks represented at the meeting were the Logan Squares, Mills, Duffy Florals, and the Lavendors of Hammond.

Managers of the leading traveling clubs in Chicago are requested to attend the next meeting, which will be held next Sunday afternoon, at which time definite plans will be outlined for permanent organization of the league.

Canadian Tennis Star Beaten in Indoor Meet

New York, March 10.—(AP)—One upset occurred in the first day's play in the men's national indoor tennis championship at the Seventh regiment armory today. Marcel Rainville of Montreal, eighth ranking Canadian player, lost his first round match in straight sets to Edward E. Jenkins Jr. of New York, a virtually unknown player.

Morrison, Pirate Hurler, Seeks Reinstatement

Paso Robles, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—John Morrison, curve ball pitcher, who was suspended for deserting the Pittsburgh National league club in midseason last year, has applied to Baseball Commissioner Landis for reinstatement, it was announced at the Pirates camp here today. Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss said Morrison would never again play with the Pirates.

Los Angeles A. C. Beats Stanford Runners, 69-62

Palo Alto, Cal., March 10.—[U.P.]—Los Angeles Athletic club defeated the University of Stanford track and field team here today, 69 to 62. Zambro, Stanford jumper, soared 24 feet 10¾ inches to break the Pacific coast broad jump record. Charles Paddock failed in a special attempt to break his own 300 meter record.

DIAMOND HEROES

Baseball Fans Tell Who They Are and Why

The best letters written in The Tribune contest are to be published in The Sunday Tribune each week. Diamond heroes for the second week of the contest follow:

SLUGS WAY TO HERO ROLE.

Chicago, Ill.,
Baseball Editor, Dear Sir:

Two years ago Charley Root and Pete Donahue hooked up in a desperate pitching duel at Cubs park. At the end of nine innings the score was Cubs, 1; Reds, 1. I decided then that the winner of this great hurling struggle would become my lifetime baseball hero. They were going along so smoothly it looked like darkness would end the game.

A few minutes later I forgot both these heroes when a chunky Cub stepped up to the plate as the first batter in the eleventh inning. He took a powerful swing at the first ball pitched. He connected and the ball went on a long trip. It was the smack of victory. Hack Wilson delivered it. He provides the color for any ball game. And now, honestly, isn't he good to read about? IRVING GASSNER.

OLD TEACHER REMEMBERS JIM.

Donnellson, Ill.,
Baseball Editor, Dear Sir:

"Smiling Jimmie" Bottomly gets my baseball hero vote.

Consistent, willing to break his neck to complete a play, who laughs at bad breaks and tries all the more—that's the Jim Bottomly we know in St. Louis and southern Illinois.

I could tell you some more things about Jim Bottomley that add to his hero qualifications. How do I know? Wasn't he a pupil of mine in old Nakomis? W. P. THACKER.

BABE WINS OFF BY HIMSELF.

Madison, Wis.
Baseball Editor, Dear Sir:

My baseball hero? Babe Ruth, of course!

What greater thrill than to watch the mighty Babe stride up to the plate, usually with men on bases, and give the ball a ride to the right field bleachers or over the fence?

What greater disappointment than to have him come to bat, with a single needed, take three husky swings at the ball and walk to the bench?—while I, who had been yelling myself hoarse a minute before, slouch in my seat and hear the derisive cheers of Sox fans on all sides.

This element of chance one takes in backing Babe Ruth makes him all the more colorful. BERNARD DUFFY.

THERE'S ONLY ONE ALEX.

Chicago, Ill.
Baseball Editor, Dear Sir:

One baseball memor ywill linger forever with all true fans. It was that scene in 1926 in the concluding game of the world's series with the title at stake. The Cardinals had been leading, but their pitchers were failing. There came the cry for Alexander.

And Old Alex saved the day. Until another Alexander steps into another scene like that there will be only one baseball hero. Old Alex, of course.
ELMER GUDERJAN.

LOOK WHO HARRY NOMINATES.

Champaign, Ill.
Baseball Editor, Dear Sir:

Please don't laugh when I nominate Bud Clancy of the White Sox for diamond hero honors. I knew him when he played with the Ottawa Cubs and was a student at St. Viators.

He was my hero then and I'm going to stick by him. He's just small enough to play the first sack a little more colorfully than any other major leaguer. He can hit any kind of pitching and does the job better when men are on base waiting to score. He's not afraid to put some brain work into every important play. Again, gentlemen, let me nominate Bud Clancy, formerly of the Ottawa Cubs.
HARRY FULLER.

WANTS ANOTHER LOOK AT COBB.

Muskegon, Mich.
Baseball Editor, Dear Sir:

Twenty-three years ago I watched Ty Cobb break into the American league. I've been watching him, reading about him and idolizing him ever since. When Cobb's involved there's a baseball thrill not far away. I'm going to see just one ball game this year. Cobb will be in it or it won't be a real ball game to me.

Mr. Goodell Throws a Swift Curve with His Harmonica

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Shreveport, La., March 10.—Each day the White Sox stay in their spring traing camp Mr. J. William Goodell of Tulsa, Okla., gets better on his harmonica.

As pointed out in news dispatches several days after the Sox pitched their camp, J. William is a whiz on a harmonica. It was not verified till today, however, that he is the only left handed pitcher in America who plays the harmonica from sheet music placed on a hand engraved silver music rack.

Last year down here we roomed next door to Ted Lyons and Tommy Thomas, who have a hearty portable gramophone. Then we thought we had reached the ultimate in borrowed music. But this year, when we found ourselves quartered next to J. William Goodell, we forthwith concluded our musical good fortune has no bounds.

S. G.
SHREVEPT.

Luque Boils With Jealousy.

There still are some details of Mr. Goodell's pitching to be checked up, but right now it seems that his harmonica will insure J. William having three meals a day off the Comiskey management for many days to come. Cracker Schalk says he is a promising southpaw and may stick on the strength of his knuckle ball. But we've noticed that it is Cracker who has been booking the concerts given by J. William all over the place.

For the most part Mr. Goodell's harmonica has brought good cheer. But there's been one unhappy note in the whole situation: The Castilian blood of Eulogio "Speed" Luque, the castanet king and right handed pitcher, is boiling with jealousy as only a Latin's blood can boil. He's sore because everybody is flocking to J. William and his harmonica and forgetting the lure of his magic castanets.

Turns Out New Melody.

At first it was hoped that an act could be organized, employing the talents of Goodell and Luque, augmented by Sergeant Connally's mastery of the old guitar and Alex Metzler's faltering toots on the saxophone. But Goodell and Luque won't have anything to do with each other, because of the afortmentioned jealousy and neither will team with Connally or Metzler, claiming they are curbstone musicians who have no sweetness in their souls.

The first piece we heard J. William play was "Turkey in the Straw," a number we always have preferred on the fiddle. We noticed right away that J. William was getting melody out of "Turkey in the Straw" that we never heard touched in the best days of the old fiddlers' belt of Indiana, our native habitat.

The next piece he played for us was "My Blue Heaven" with variations. We told him that we wished he hadn't played "My Blue Heaven" but that as long as he didn't do it again we'd continue to be for him. To which the young man replied he liked to keep up with the latest selections as well as all the classical masterpieces.

Holds Early Morning Practice.

Mr. Goodell's music rack is a beautiful thing, the gift of Tulsa music lovers. Sitting 'way up there in Chicago it must seem incongruous to visualize a lefthanded pitcher swaying in front of a silver music rack to the strains of his harmonica. But there are few people who know the possibilities of the harmonica when it is played by note.

Early in the morning J. William always practices the overture from William Tell, that piece with so many 32d notes in it. It is during this practice that J. William needs his rack most, for to get 32d notes on a harmonica you've got to sort of pant them, catching one on the exhale and one on the inhale and so on ad infinitum. To do this a musician can't be worrying about his sheet music blowing away. This applies to right handers as well as left handers, J. William says.

Draws Cartoons, Too.

Although he never has taken a lesson in his life, Mr. Goodell is said also to be a clever cartoonist.

Gosh! If it only turns out now that the young man can pitch well enough to stay with the Sox a tired author will have something to look forward to of evenings after a nerve taxing afternoon at the ball park.

OKLAHOMA A. & M. WINS MAT TITLE

Columbia, Mo., March 10.—(AP)—Oklahoma A. & M. clinched its fourth straight Missouri Valley conference wrestling championship here late today by winning five of the seven final matches, two by falls.

Two other Oklahoma Aggie grapplers were assured of additional points by winning their way into the consolation finals to determine second and third places.

Rosenberg Returns to Ring; Wins Decision Over Scott

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, former bantamweight king, returned to the ring tonight and won a six round decision against Harry Scott of Atlantic City. It was Rosenberg's first bout here in more than a year. He was restored to good standing recently after suffering a year's suspension. He weighed 133½, Scott 131.

LACK OF HITTING STRENGTH AGAIN BESETS ROBINS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 10.—Although his activities were not bally-hooed by a brass band, your Uncle Wilbert Robinson did a fairly good job of putting his Robins through the wringer during the current off season.

Last year the Robins were noted for their consistency in not scoring runs. Day after day they did a better job of remaining away from the plate than any big league team that ever preceded them. There was one stretch in which they tallied only one run in three consecutive games.

Robinson's Shakeup Thorough.

Robinson's shakeup of his team has been so thorough that he may be able to start the season with only three of the 1927 regulars, barring the battery men.

Uncle Wilbert's acquisition for the initial corner is Del Bissonette, who has been in the big league prior to this. The Robins purchased him from Buffalo, where he developed a habit for slapping the ball over or against the fence. If he fails to solve big league pitching, the front door job will go back to either Harvey Hendrick or Floyd Babe Herman.

Second base may be returned to James Partridge, a hangover from last season, but he is by no means a cinch for steady employment. He will have to hurry to avoid being stepped on by new talent. Shortstop, unless the veteran slows down completely, will be Dave Bancroft's place of employment.

Buys Riconda, Drafts Freigau.

In his anxiety to improve the general condition Robinson not only purchased one of the best infield recruits offered by the minors, but also drafted another. He purchased Harry Riconda, who did a man's sized job of hitting and playing third base for the Milwaukee American association team. Subsequently the Robins, along with about ten other big league clubs, put in a draft for and obtained Howard Freigau, who had been released in midseason by the Cubs to Kansas City. Freigau probably will not be able to hit or field at the pace Riconda can set, but there is nothing to prevent the ex-Cub from trying to shove Partridge off second base or Bancroft off short. The club also has Flowers, who did the shortstopping last season.

Max Carey and Arnold Statz are assured of regular work in the outfield, and the third man probably will be Al Tyson, the same who a few years ago was purchased by the Giants from Louisville for a fancy price.

In the Wake of the News

AT Sea, S. S. Cartago, between Havana and New Orleans.—Friend Don: Well, I'm at sea and those words refer to the water and not to my mental and physical condition because I have slept most of the day.

You see this boat was so crowded that Jack and his wife couldn't secure accommodations, but there was a share of a state room with a Mississippi cotton planter who isn't cheerful because he says you can't make money raising cotton below 20 cents a pound, and it's now 18 cents or something like that—I never can get straight on those cotton decimal quotations.

Well, since they had to take a train through Florida to meet me in New Orleans, I was alone last night and in my room writing you and some letters home when Frank Hogan, a friend of Doc Ellis and Jean de Flanayshon, and a chap now living in Cuba who has a married daughter in Evanston whom I'm to phone that I saw her father, when I get home, called up the room.

They suggested we go to Dos Hermanos—that's the place R. H. L. had that wine and saw beautiful lights over the harbor, etc. You remember his writing about it. We had some of R. H. L.'s brand of wine with our dinner and met one of the Dos Hermanos, and if R. H. L. met them both I don't wonder he saw beautiful lights. After that my friends wanted to know if I'd seen the Chinese quarter.

I don't know how I'd overlooked it because there are 30,000 Chinese in Havana and they have a daily newspaper, theater and lots of stores, etc. So we cabbed through the Chinese quarter and dropped into the theater, but didn't stay to the end because the play had been going on a month and it would take another month to finish it.

Well, by this time it was midnight and, of course, I wanted to go home but decided to stop at an open air café for a coca cola. You may be surprised at that, but I have a cousin who is vice president or some officer of the company, and the president of the company, also named Woodruff, was stopping at the Sevilla-Biltmore.

Well, one night some of my friends got his room number by mistake for mine, and phoned him to join them in the lobby, and he said he had retired and they replied "Help! Help! You big bum, put on your clothes and come on down." And he hung up the receiver and called the house detective. Well, I don't know him and didn't want to meet him to explain because I didn't want him to know one of his officers had a cousin with such friends, so I thought the best way to make amends would be to drink some of his product.

That was all right except at the café we met three young Cubans, two of whom spoke English, who hadn't been drinking coca cola. They resented our choice as a reflection on their country and insisted we change. I didn't want to but I remembered what Lindbergh had done to promote good relations and didn't want to spoil all that, so we switched to curacoa. Then they suggested a cabaret. I didn't want to go but again I thought of cordial international relations.

You might think from reading this that it was a rough party, but it wasn't. I felt the spirit of international good will and was perfectly all right because these Cubans knew a lot of people at the cabaret and I danced three or four times and you know, Don, when I dance three or four times when I don't have to, I'm perfectly all right.

Several of the entertainers sat at our table. One said she was from Tampa and knew Emory Thomason, but I'm not so sure about that because she told Frank Hogan she was from Brownsville, Tex. Another was from Cleveland, and another from Rochester, N. Y. This was Agnes. I liked Agnes because her name wasn't Juanita or Dolores or something like that and because she was sorry her mother was not with her in Cuba to protect her.

Agnes was very cultured and refined, as I will prove. You see they were in evening gowns between turns, bare arms and gowns cut a trifle low but no different from any evening party at home. Well, they went out to change costumes for their dance and coming back to the table to wait their turn, Agnes was not the same. Her legs were bare and her skirt was too short to be much protection against cold or rain. Well, when Agnes sat down at the table, which added to the skirt elevation, she modestly pulled the ends of the tablecloth across her nether limbs. Now, wasn't that sweet and maidenly, Don?

Well, about 5 o'clock I suggested going home. The others wanted to stay until the show was over but I insisted because I'd done enough for Pan-American good will and wanted to see the market opposite the hotel open. So we drove there and they were sorting out the fish—not the fish who had stayed up that late—but the fish that had been caught in the sea and were to be sold. Then we had international sandwiches—American ham, Swiss cheese, French mustard and Cuban bread—there was still time for a bath, to pack my trunk and go to the boat. And that's why I slept today. If there are any interesting people aboard and I have time, will write you about them tomorrow. Regards.

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

P. S. Several times today I've sort of worried about Agnes way down there in a Havana cabaret without her mother to protect her, and she so modest and all that.

steal third on Carlyle's last strike. Grampp who succeeded Welch at the start of the fourth managed to avoid complications for two innings but in the sixth the Stars bore down on him and came up with their first run. This had its inception in a free ticket to Carlyle, an ex-American leaguer. Then "Braggo" Roth, another of the ancient and honorable discards, pulled a single to right and Carlyle went to third. After Heath had popped out Wera, a member of the Yankees last fall, hoisted a long fly to Wilson in center and Carlyle sneaked home after the catch.

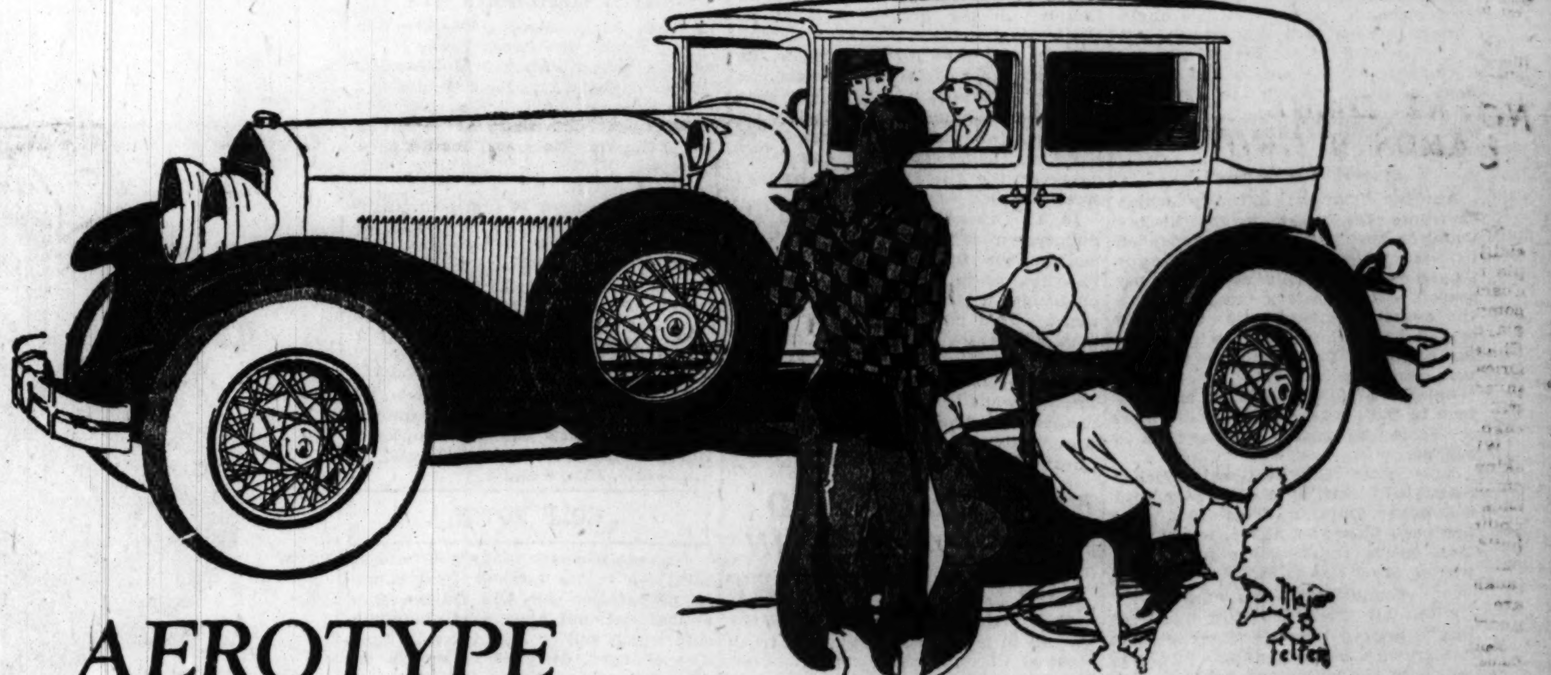
After Hulvey took charge of the Cub batters to open the fourth there wasn't as much action. In the three innings he yielded two hits, both of which were doubles by English and Wilson. English never got close to the plate and Wilson was cut down there when he tried to get him on Grimm's fly to left.

Malone and Fullerton became the Cub and Star pitchers respectively in the seventh and there was considerable useless base running for a short period. Malone walked Lee to open the seventh and a double play followed. Then both McMillan and English committed errors on ground balls but Roth obligingly rolled to Kelly who had taken Grimm's place. Fullerton didn't give the Cubs an opening in the seventh, one of his deeds being a strikeout of Cuyler but they began to get the range on him in the eighth and in the ninth almost knocked the ton out of his name.

Butler Starts Final Assault.

The first happening in the four run ninth inning serenade was a double to left center by Butler. He scored when Malone landed a two bagger against the right field barrier. English lifted a pop single behind first base and Malone tallied. Cuyler was robbed of a possible hit by a snappy bit of work on the part of Lee but there was no sustained objection to the robbery because Wilson and Stephenson produced singles that let both English and McMillan register at the plate.

Malone put forth a commendable eighth inning by wrapping three strikeouts around a single by Wera but he was somewhat of a bargain for the Hollywood hitters in the ninth. Lee opened with a double and Gooch walked, an infield hit by McNulty filled the bases. Carlyle popped out and Lee scored while McNulty was being forced on Roth's grounder. Then Malone ended it by fast balling Heath into a strikeout.



AEROTYPE
—with "WHITE FLASH HEAD"
By All Odds The Car of the Year!
By STANLEY MOON

BY all odds, Moon-Aerotype is the car of the year. No less sweeping assertion will do. Moon-Aerotype is an entirely new concept in automobiles, anticipating your finest desires for a fine car and fine car performance.

Moon-Aerotype takes its design from the highest development in aircraft practice. It has lifted bodily much of the engineering and many of the ideas that assisted Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd in their great trans-Atlantic flights. It has required twenty months of intensive effort to produce the Aerotype, and now that it is here, its performance is conceded to be nothing short of an engineering sensation, an automotive triumph.

To-day, wherever men gather you'll hear them discussing the High Compression Aerotype with its mysterious "White Flash Head," and the new Anti-Knock construction with patented Dual Carburetion and Bohnalite steel-strut aluminum pistons. They have stopped theorizing, stopped guessing. Moon-Aerotype brings the answer. And, I'll venture that when posterity is asked to name the six great episodes in The Development of the Motor Car—the Era of Aerotype will be one of them.

Again, not to be outdone, not to be content with anything short of complete perfection, Moon engineers journeyed to France and picked the reigning Paris designer to model The Body Beautiful. And here it is, the very newest French body with the latest flair in French radiators — mounted on the Aerotype chassis.

Now come and try them out on your favorite hill or highway —the Aerotype Eight does eighty miles an hour, the Six makes seventy-two — demonstrations every hour on the hour.

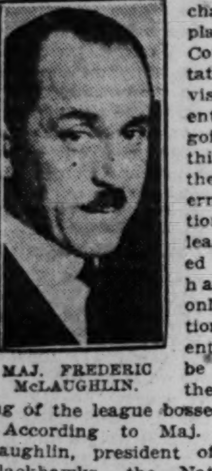
HOCKEY MOGULS FROWN ON MAJOR RULES CHANGES

Minor League Draft Price Fixed at $5,000.

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.



MAJ. FREDERIC McLAUGHLIN.

There is little likelihood that the professional game of hockey will undergo any major changes in the playing rules. Considerable agitation for a revision of the present code has been going the rounds this season, but the board of governors of the National Hockey league has adopted a policy of hands off, and only minor alterations in the present rule book will be undertaken at the spring meeting of the league bosses.

According to Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, president of the Chicago Blackhawks, the National Hockey league bosses are far more interested in the business of ferreting out new players than they are in combing over the rules. Good players have been scarce all season and the majority of the clubs in the league are adopting a scouting sytem in order that the minor clubs can be scoured in search of playing talent for the 1928-29 schedule.

Few Stars Developed.

There are only five real star players listed in the National league out of a crop of more than 200 youngsters which the ten clubs of the organization brought up for trial this year. Those five are Cyclone Wentworth, Chicago, a defense player; Marty Burke of Pittsburgh, Dutch Gainor of Boston, Laurie Aurie of Detroit and Jimmy Ward, of the Montreal Maroons.

Comparing these figures to other lines of sport it readily can be seen that the task of building a hockey team is a long drawn out job and one that is likely to be costly. Bringing up a player and getting his signature on a fat contract is an easy matter. But when the player fails to show National league class and is sent back to a minor league which has a considerably lower salary quota, the big league team then must pay up the difference between the major and minor league pay roll for the rest of the season.

Most of the clubs of the National Hockey league have found this angle difficult to cope with this season. All of the teams tried out several players at the start of the season and signed many of them. When the new men failed to come up to expectations they were sent back and the club's money started to roll out.

Player Salaries High.

Another financial difficulty which confronts the major league hockey teams is the high salaries demanded by star players. A hockey league player works in only 44 games per season, but his salary compares with the average amount paid a major league baseball player who competes in 154 games per season on the regular schedule.

Salaries of $4,000 to $6,000 are common in the hockey league, while there are some players who draw as high as $10,000.

This year the National Hockey league will work on a draft plan with the minor leagues. The draft price has been placed at $5,000, which Maj. McLaughlin thinks is too high. The waiver price also is $5,000.

Game Grows Too Fast.

"The big trouble with professional league hockey today is that the sport has grown too fast and ideas of player values in the major and minor leagues are greatly inflated," Maj. McLaughlin said. "The minors are asking almost prohibitive prices for their players. The average playing life of a man in the National Hockey league has been set at five seasons by experts who follow the game, and this is a short time in which a club can get back the money invested in a player.

"This is especially true because the seating capacity of the rinks is limited. The largest ring in the National league seats considerably less than a small baseball park. Prices of seats are higher, it is true, but even this does not offset the cost of the players and salaries, and a club's net income is small."

The Blackhawks will lose money this season. The attendance will pay for the players' salaries and operating expenses, but the club will finish its year behind about $60,000—money spent for players purchased during the season to replace the Chicago team's badly battered regulars.

Hawks Seek New Talent.

"We are not discouraged," President McLaughlin said, speaking for the directors of the Blackhawks. "We are going to carry the club along and make it pay. We are out after the best playing talent we can buy and will continue to build up the team. I personally don't want to give up, at least until our club has won a National Hockey league title."

Some of the talk of changes in the rules ran to increasing the scoring in the game. Several fans and promotors have been agitating the elimination of the offside rule. Others want a return to the penalty shot which was a feature of Western Canada league rules a few years ago. The penalty shot was awarded when a player was interfered with while attempting to score a goal. Other changes proposed had to do with the changing of the defense rules to make scoring easier for the forwards.

But all of these proposed changes are to be put in the lock box, at least until the various franchise owners have their playing staffs built up to near the perfection point.

Islin and Martin Rivals in Squash Racquets Final

TORONTO, Ont., March 10.—(AP)—J. Islin of Boston and A. Martin of Hamilton will be opponents in the final match of the Canadian squash rackets championship here tomorrow.

JOHNNY RISKO.

Record Crowd May See Risko Fight Sharkey

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—Jack Sharkey will get another chance to establish himself as a suitable opponent for Gene Tunney in a world's heavyweight championship bout planned for June 14 at the Yankee stadium Monday night. The big Boston sailor will meet Johnny Risko, tireless Cleveland baker boy, in a bout scheduled for fifteen rounds in Madison Square Garden.

One of the largest crowds of the season is expected to witness the skirmish, which is attractive not alone for the competition promise it holds, but because of its importance to this year's heavyweight title activities.

On the outcome of this contest may depend whether Tunney will get one or two fights this year. The titleholder wants two battles, but unless conditions experience an improvement, Tunney will have to be content with one struggle in defense of the title he won in 1926 from Jack Dempsey. Promoter Tex Rickard is withholding official announcement of his plans awaiting the outcome of the heavyweight elimination.

When Tom Heeney won from Jack Delaney in the first of this year's elimination revivals, after having previously held Sharkey to a draw, he upset a plan to have the spectacular Delaney advanced as Tunney's next opponent. When Heeney's tireless attack carried him to a draw with Sharkey, Rickard's outstanding candidate for the title bout was harmed from the box office standpoint.

In the absence of an official announcement it is suspected that Rickard intends to advance the Boston heavyweight as Tunney's outstanding challenger if he defeats Risko Monday night. This plan is reflected in the strategy which established Sharkey as first title challenger with the state athletic commission so that when Heeney went before the board with a challenge to Tunney he was informed that he would be placed second to Sharkey on the challengers' list.

NEW TRIER AND LA GRANGE WIN IN TRACK MEET

New Trier and La Grange were the victors in a quadrangular prep track meet at Patten gym, yesterday. New Trier took the senior event with 42½ points. Proviso was second with 32½, Morton was third with 29, while La Grange finished last with 16.

In the junior division, the La Grange team took first place with 34 points. Proviso ran a close second with 32½, while New Trier lagged with 20½ for third. Morton did not enter the junior meet.

Walton and Murray, both of Morton, were the outstanding men of the meet, the former taking both the low and high hurdles, and the latter the high jump and pole vault.

Wayland Cagers Defeat Lake Forest Frosh, 24 to 18

Indiana Closes Mat Season with Win Over Maroons

Bloomington, Ind., March 10.—[Special.]—Winning every match except the heavyweight class, Indiana university wrestlers closed their western conference season by defeating the University of Chicago grapplers, 25½ to 1½. The Hoosiers were awarded three falls, three decisions, and one tie. The 158 pound and heavyweight matches were overtime affairs. The result gave Indiana fifth place in the Big Ten standing.

Roseville, Ill., Preps Elect Wilson Track Captain

Roseville, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—Calvin Wilson was elected captain of the Roseville High school track squad at a meeting of the athletes. He starred last year in the hurdles. Coach Holmes has 30 men competing for places on the team.

Ithaca, N. Y., March 10.—(AP)—Cornell defeated Yale in a dual indoor track meet here tonight by a score of 53½ to 51½.

GLENNA DEFEATS VAN WIE, 3-2, IN FLORIDA FINALS

Miss Collett Outdrives Chicago Girl.

St. Augustine, Fla., March 10.—[Special.]—Miss Glenna Collett, America's leading woman golfer, today won the Florida east coast championship for the second time in four seasons by defeating the Chicago girl star, Miss Virginia Van Wie, in the final, 3 and 2. The triumph gave the former national title holder her second leg on the Mrs. W. R. Kenan Jr., trophy, her first victory being achieved in 1925. Miss Van Wie won this tournament in 1926.

The largest gallery that ever has witnessed a match on the famous St. Augustine links turned out for the contest.

Plays Consistent Golf.

In winning the east coast title again, Miss Collett turned in the most brilliant performance for consistency she has displayed since she reached championship heights. Following her remarkable 74 in the qualifying test, she won four matches with the loss of only eight holes. In the first round Glenna defeated Mrs. Florence Burrows of Roslyn, L. I., 4 and 3. Then she overcame Mrs. Stewart Hanley, Michigan champion, 6 and 4, and in the semifinal she defeated her conqueror in the national meet two years ago, Miss Virginia Wilson of Chicago, 7 and 5.

This afternoon Miss Collett outdrove her opponent on nearly every hole and on some of these the former Providence player, who now resides in New York, outdistanced Miss Van Wie by as much as fifty yards. Also, Glenna's second shots were well placed and her putting was the most accurate of the tournament.

Glenna 3 up at Turn.

Miss Collett reached the turn in 38, being three up at this point. She won the first hole when Virginia took three putts, and after halving the second and third, Glenna practically cinched the victory by winning the next three holes in succession. A long brassie shot gave Miss Collett the fourth and she took the next aided by Miss Van Wie's visit to a trap.

The Chicagoan's second shot went over the sixth green into a trap, while Miss Collett was on the carpet with her second. Glenna lost the eighth when her second shot trickled over the green. This was the only hole Miss Van Wie won on the outgoing journey. The cards:

Collett out	445	434	545—38
In	354	445	4
Van Wie out	545	555	535—42
In	344	645	4

SMITH, MEHLHORN WIN.

Miami, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—MacDonald Smith, the Great Neck, N. Y., veteran, paired with Bill Mehlhorn of Pittsburgh, went into the second round of the international four ball golf play here today, defeating Al Watrous, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., in a thrilling forty-one hole match.

Mehlhorn sank a 40 foot putt on the 36th to square the match. Smith produced the winning stroke on the 41st green when he holed a 12 foot putt for a birdie three. Turnesa putted for the same score but his ball wavered and turned at the edge of the cup.

DAWSON WINS TITLE.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Johnny Dawson of Chicago won the southeastern amateur golf championship here today when he defeated Harry Webber of Toledo, O., and St. Augustine, Fla., 4 and 3.

GOLF NOTES

Olympia Fields is making several alterations in its number four course in preparation for the thirty-second annual national open golf championship which will be held there in June. The changes, designed to add to the difficulty of the course without subtracting from its beauty, principally will effect two holes, although where practicable new alternative tees have been built which will add from 150 to 200 yards to the length of the course.

The holes the architects are planning to rebuild are the second and fourth. A new trap will be pitted about 250 yards from the tee and to the right of the latter, in order to force the play down the center of the fairway and so slightly lengthen the playing distance. Last year many of the experts played to carry the hill at the extreme right and so shorten the necessary carry.

The need of these changes was emphasized in a report of the grounds committee, of which Guy M. Peters is chairman. Figures show that the lowest score ever made in the meet was at Minikahda in 1916 when Chick Evans turned in a 296. In the western open at Olympia last summer, an event which was played principally over the number four course, the winning total was 291 and there were several scores under 296.

The annual field in the classic includes approximately 150 players, survivors of the qualifying tests and the thirty low men of the previous year. Tommy Armour, a professional of only two years, will be the defending champion this year, having won the title at Oakmont after tying Harry Cooper on the 72nd green and romping through to a triumph in the play off.

Several shifts in the professional ranks were reported during the week. Walter Kennett, of the five Kennett brothers, all golf instructors, signed with the North Shore Golf club. He succeeds Dan Morrison. Glenwoodie Country club has secured the services of Walter Apel, who was at Fort Wayne last season. Jack Yorgan will do duty at the new Cherry Hills Country club out south.

The 1928 women's amateur golf championship of Great Britain will be played at the Hunstanton Golf club, Hunstanton, Norfolk, England, beginning May 14.

The competition is open to women players resident in the British islands under certain handicap conditions, and also to foreign entrants without handicap limit. The event will consist of all match play rounds at 18 holes, with finals at 36 holes.

Golf Industry Goes on Dress Parade Here Tomorrow

The business of golf, which in the last two decades has risen from practically nowhere to a position of prominence among the nation's foremost industries, exhibits its wares here this week, when more than 200 exhibitors contribute to the third annual international golf and country club show at the Hotel Sherman. The exposition will open at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and continue daily until Saturday night.

Everything from carbonated beverages that are guaranteed to help you break a hundred to superbalanced putters that are assigned the more serious task of keeping the more expert in the low seventies will be on parade for the 50,000 golf fans who are expected to attend, according to the prospectus. In addition, a lavish program of links entertainment has been provided.

Hagen to Exhibit Skill Daily.

Walter Hagen, acknowledged king of professionals, will be present daily to lend a helping hand to the novice and will be assisted by a battery of ten other pros in instructing Mr., Mrs., Miss, and Master Golfer in the art and science of the popular pastime. Hagen also will make his industrial debut here by speaking before the Chicago Association of Commerce at the weekly luncheon of its ways and means committee on Wednesday.

In addition to demonstrations of driving and putting each afternoon and evening by Hagen and phenomenal doings by Jack Redmond, San Francisco's famous trick shot artist, the amusement features include archery, trapshooting, tournaments over a nine hole indoor course, music and match play exhibitions between famous pros and amateurs.

The Walker cup, one of the most treasured of golf trophys, will make personal appearances at every performance. This is the first time that the famous trophy, which is a silversmith's masterpiece standing four feet high, proportionately wide, and mounted on a beautiful ebony base, will be on view west of the Atlantic seaboard.

Greenskeepers Meet Here.

It is played for annually by teams of eight amateurs representing the United States and Great Britain. The cup is now in possession of the American team, which will defend it in play at the Chicago Golf club at Wheaton in late August.

Many hundred out of town officials and greenskeepers from golf and country clubs throughout the United States are in Chicago for the exposition, which is being heralded as the "world's greatest pageant of golf." It occupies the entire mezzanine floor, foyer, auditorium, and main ballroom of the Hotel Sherman.

Notre Dame Frosh Matmen Beat Culver in Dual Meet

Culver, Ind., March 10.—[Special.]—Freshman Hall of Notre Dame university took eight of eleven firsts from the Culver Military academy track team to win a dual meet this afternoon, 65¼ to 29¾. Bryan of Notre Dame was the individual point winner with first places in both hurdle races. The best performances were in the shot, won by Capt. Shankner, Culver, with 45 feet 8 inches. The high jump was won by Reiman, Notre Dame, 5 feet 9 inches, and the 1,000 yard relay was won by the Irish [Anderson, Bradley, Gresanty and Nichols] in the fast time of 1:53 3-5.

ENGLAND BEATS SCOTLAND.

GLASGOW, March 10.—(AP)—In an interleague soccer match today England defeated Scotland, six goals to two. In the annual interleague games between the two countries England has won 19, Scotland, 7, and seven have been drawn.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 10.—[Special.]—Launching an attack which swept everything in their path, the Pirates trounced the Chicago Blackhawks tonight, 5 to 2.

The visitors were outclassed, the one redeeming feature being the fine playing by Babe Dye. He was robbed of several goals by brilliant saves by Worters.

After the Pirates had amassed a substantial lead, the locals let up and the Blackhawks scored their two goals, Miller and Keats registering them. The victory put the Pirates within a game of Detroit, who are in third place. Lineup:

Committee Plans Hockey Tilts for World's Fair Sport Card

Hockey will figure as one of the principal parts of the winter program, according to plans of the Chicago World's fair sports committee, which will have charge of the round the year sports calendar, which starts in September, 1932, and ends with the close of the fair in October, 1933.

This committee, which is headed by Col. R. R. McCormick and has a membership of approximately 125 of the leading lights in the American sports world, aims to bring to Chicago during its twelve months Olympiad, the topnotch events in every sport.

As yet the committee has not started active functioning, but already a movement is afoot to stage a series of hockey contests on Soldiers' field. This would include both professional and amateur contests, winding up perhaps with a match between all-star pro and college sextets.

Hockey Grows in Importance.

Hockey has taken a greater hold among the major colleges now that regular professional clubs have been established in the large cities of the country. Several Big Ten schools have hockey teams and the squad of Marquette university at Milwaukee, Wis., rates on a par with the best amateur teams in the country.

Col. McCormick's chief lieutenant for the hockey sport is Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, president of the Black Hawks, Chicago's pro hockey team. Maj. McLaughlin is a member of Col. McCormick's committee and already is planning for the fair's Olympiad.

Some of the National Hockey league games would be staged in the stadium, according to Maj. McLaughlin, before crowds numbering close to 150,000. McLaughlin revealed yesterday that he may propose to have several league games played in the stadium. The seating capacity of the stadium would be increased from 117,000 at present to around 150,000.

"I believe it would be entirely feasible to stage a hockey spectacle at Soldiers' field," Maj. McLaughlin said. "The season of 1932-33 is, of course, a long way in the future, but I will work with the committee in giving hockey its place in the winter sports features of the World's Fair sport year.

Could Use Artificial Rink.

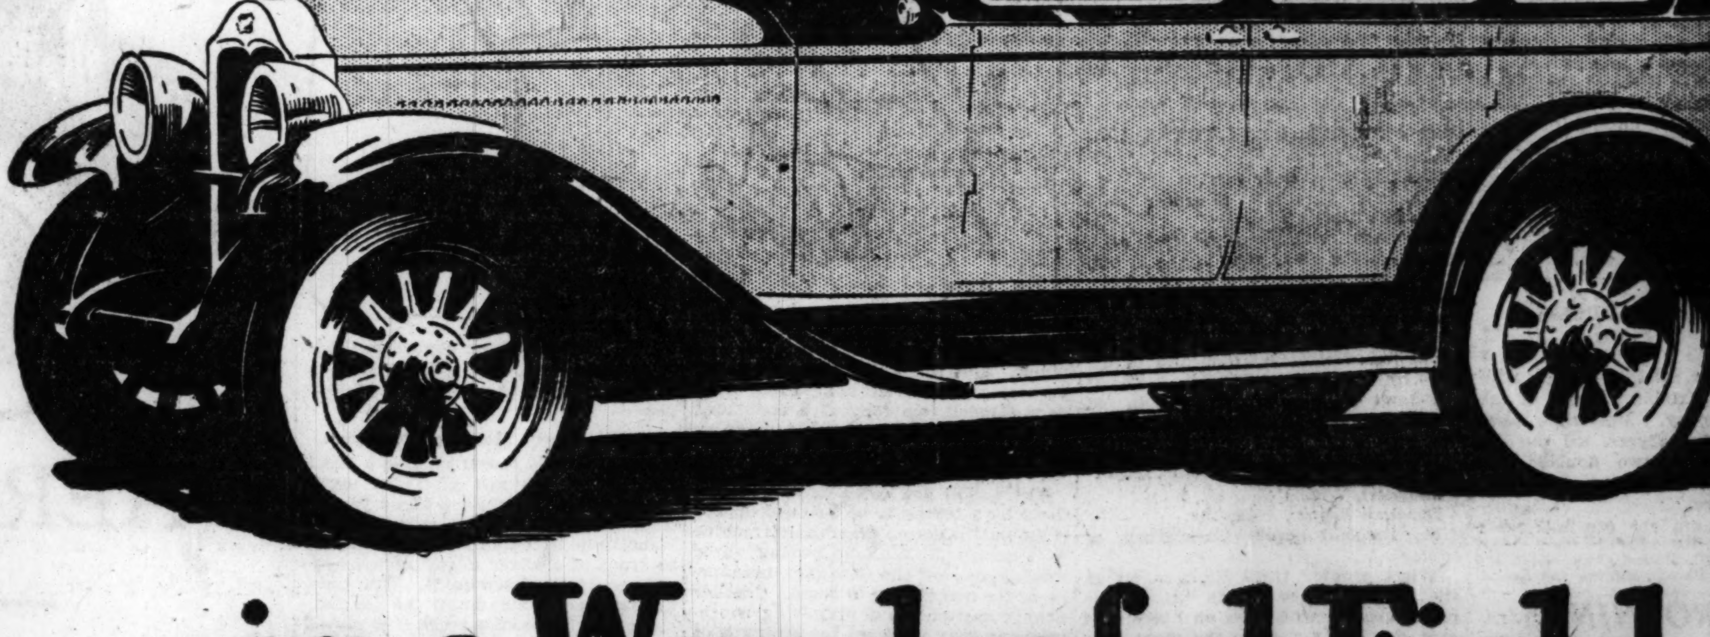
"Hockey at the stadium in Grant park could be played on an artificial rink. Refrigerating engineers have estimated that the installation of an ice making plant and a rink would be a small item, and for that reason advantage could be taken of mild weather spells which break up the winter in Chicago every year.

"In Canada, hundreds of thousands of persons view hockey games regularly throughout a rigorous winter, either at open air rinks or in unheated rinks, where the atmosphere is quite as cold as outside and the only advantage of a roofed-in structure is to protect the ice sheet from snowfalls or thaws.

"While I am sure my associates in the management of the Black Hawks would indorse the proposal of putting on several National Hockey league games in Soldiers' field during the World's Fair year, we would, of course, be guided by decisions of the sports committee of the fair, to whom we will present the proposal in due course."

BUICK

-far ahead-



..in a Wonderful Field of its Own

Today's Buick wins more buyers than any other fine car in the world—because in all elements of value it ranks far ahead in a wonderful field of its own.

Buick bodies by Fisher, swung smartly low without any loss of head-room or road-clearance, reveal the maximum degree of beauty and luxury.

Buick's famous Valve-in-Head six-cylinder engine develops more power than any other automobile engine of its size and provides the additional advantage of performance vibrationless beyond belief.

And for good measure, this most favored of automobiles offers Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, Buick cantilever springs, the exclusive Buick sealed chassis and many other features not combined in any other car.

Search "Automobile Row" from beginning to end—you'll find many cars of Buick's price but nowhere among them a car of Buick's quality. It ranks absolutely alone in performance, appearance and value.

148 THREE YEAR OLDS NAMED FOR AMERICAN DERBY

J. J. COUGHLIN. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The famous old American Derby, transferred this year from Washington Park to the new Arlington Park course, to be run on June 9, has attracted 148 nominations, the largest number on record, according to the entry list announced yesterday by Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, president of the American National Jockey club.

Eighty-four owners, represented by the leading three year olds in America, make up the Derby field. The eligibles include Reigh Count, Dr. Wilson, the Tia Juana Derby winner; Time Maker, Ariel, Victorian, Groucher, Mowlee, Nassak, Peter Wrack, Strolling Player, Wacker Drive, General Grant, and all the great two year olds of last season.

Important Changes Made.

The distance of the race has been cut from a mile and a half to a mile and a quarter and it is to carry $25,000 in added money. There will be an additional gift of $5,000 if the winner previously has won $25,000 or a purse of $50,000. This extra purse was added to attract the winners of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness to the Chicago race.

Leading in the list of nominations is Ald. John J. Coughlin of Chicago, who has made seven of his 3 year olds eligible. His main hope is Wacker Drive, winner of last fall's Breeders' Futurity in Kentucky.

Harry Payne Whitney has named four for the race, the Rancocas stable owned by Harry F. Sinclair has named five, the Sagamore stable has nominated four, the Wheatley stable four, the Broomfield stable three.

Mrs. Hertz Enters Two.

The Chicago owners are headed by Mrs. John D. Hertz, with Reigh Count and Sea Rip, C. B. Shaffer with Forever After, Keeping Time, and Round Trip, L. M. Newgass with Rurik, Fred Burton, and Dodgson, Otto Lehmann with Reigh Olga, Phil Reuter with Galahad, Dick Nash's Valley Lake stable with Billy Culbertson, Dr. Fred, and Lady Partridge, and Val Crane with Charmarten and Her Ladyship.

President McLaughlin was elated with the record breaking entry list.

"It is also a compliment of the highest kind to see such names as Admiral Grayson, E. B. McLean, Robert L. Gerry, Lawrence Waterbury, Edward M. Byers, Willis Sharpe Kilmer, and Harry Payne Whitney from the east among the patrons of a race at our new Chicago track," he said.

Brother of English Derby Winner Seeks U. S. Title

BY FRENCH LANE.

Even Bert Michell, who trains Reigh Count and who believes this 3 year old is destined to become greater than Man o' War, shows a look of concern when you mention a horse called Strolling Player.

For Strolling Player, which comes down from a notable English family of thoroughbreds, is a 3 year old and has suddenly been imported to the United States and entered in every rich fixture that is to be run on the American turf this season. Reigh Count and Strolling Player can't both become champion 3 year olds this year. One will have to beat the other. Perhaps that worries Trainer Mitchell.

For those turf fans who may ask "Who is this Strolling Player?" something of his history will be given here.

Strolling Player is an English colt, the son of Grand Parade-Comedienne, and his older brother, Call Boy, won the English Derby at Epsom Downs last year.

Strolling Player did better in England last year than most English 2 year olds. After he was beaten in a maiden race at five furlongs he won revivals of the British Dominion plate and the Exeter stakes at Newmarket. In the last named event he picked up the enormous weight package of 132 pounds and was winning about as he pleased at the end of six furlongs.

Admiral Cary T. Grayson and B. B. Jones, looking around in England last fall for a bargain, discovered that this brother to the Derby winner could be purchased for a mere $65,000. They stepped right out and bought him at that figure. Strolling Player was imported to the United States and spent the greater part of the winter on Audley farm in Virginia.

Not long ago he was shipped from the Virginia farm to Maryland and was thrown into training. Robert A. Smith is conditioning him and has discovered that he is sound in every way and is willing to do anything asked in his training grind.

"He is a big horse on short legs and I don't believe we've had a better looking individual in this country in 25 years," he said. "He looks like he can run all day. He proved last year that he can carry weight. Those that can remember back as far as 1904 and can recall Hermis will discover this English colt resembles Hermis in many ways.

While Mitchell and other shrewd judges of horses refuse to overlook Strolling Player in the coming race for the 3 year old championships, most turf followers will demand that the colt show his greatness before they will believe in him. These turfites recall the coming of The Satrap to America a year ago. He had been purchased in England for $125,000 by William Du Pont Jr. When he got well into his training here he proved to be so badly crippled that he never got to the post.

There is a reason for the short odds of 6 to 1 offered by future bookmakers against the Kentucky Derby favorite, Reigh Count.

CAWN 'E DO HIT?

STROLLING PLAYER.

Future bookmakers probably have studied the statistics of Kentucky Derby results of other years. If they went back to these figures they discovered that in the last twenty-two renewals of the famous old Kentucky race, ten favorites—almost 50 per cent—have been victorious.

These, of course, were post time favorites or the favorite according to the mutuel betting payoff on the day of the race. But Reigh Count is so big a standout among the 3 year olds this year there is little doubt but that he also will be the post time favorite—and one of the shortest priced in Derby history, if he faces the barrier.

Three out of four favorites have won the Derby since 1924. Four out of the last six Derby favorites have been first past the winning post. Zev was the lone rank outsider to win during that period, the price on him being 19 to 1. But in the future book speculation Zev had been the favorite.

BOOKIE SHOWS HOOFS TO FIELD AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, La., March 10.—[Special.]—Several Louisiana Derby candidates clashed here this afternoon in the Ascension handicap at six furlongs. Bookie, carrying the silks of Frank Short, was the winner when he came with a fine burst of speed in the stretch and beat Black Gold's brother, Beggar Boy, by a head.

Muddy Track Suits Bookie.

The race was decided over a muddy track, just to the liking of Bookie, and he was given stout support. When Beggar Boy rushed to the front at the rise of the barrier and continued to cut out a teriffic pace to within the shadow of the finish line he looked like the winner. Jockey Leonard rallied Bookie in the last sixteenth, applied the whip freely, and came on to win in the last strides. Bookie rewarded his followers at the rate of $10.40 in the two dollar mutuels. Besides beating several Derby candidates he showed his heels to a number of older sprinters.

The Oak Lawn purse at a mile was the secondary feature, and it also brought victory to a Derby eligible when Waffles, at home in the going and also ridden by Leonard, drew up on the leaders in the stretch and passed them in time to score a victory by a length over Dan Burnham, who carried the silks of Alderman Coughlin of Chicago.

Ball Gee Wins.

Ball Gee, a cheap old plater who has been running once or twice a week most of the winter, won his second race in two days this afternoon when he captured the six furlong third event. He was a long shot in the betting, paying $37.00 for each two dollars invested. When he won yesterday the mutuel price was $25.40. He beat out Muldoon and Roycrofter in a stretch drive today.

School Destroyed as Fire Chief Is Cheering Team

Excelsior, Minn., March 10.—(AP)—While the fire chief and most of the villagers were in Hopkins last night cheering the local high school basketball team to victory over Willmar in a district tournament game the Excelsior High school burned down. The loss was $110,000. When Fire Chief Henry Beinert and volunteer firemen returned from Hopkins the flames were beyond control.

BELMONT TO HOLD GRAND NATIONAL STEEPLECHASE

Seek Foreign Horses for Rich Stake.

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—The $35,000 Grand National steeplechase, which had its first running at Belmont Park last September, will be renewed at the Westchester Racing association meeting in the autumn, Joseph E. Widner, president of the association, has announced.

Something more than a year ago a group of sportsmen, of which Joseph E. Davis, F. Skiddy Von Stade, Bayard Tuckerman and A. Henry Higginson were the leaders, subscribed a fund of $60,000, $20,000 of which was to be added each year for three years, to the purse of a race over a distance of ground at the course that had done the most to further the interests of steeplechasing the previous season.

Belmont Park was chosen for the first running and the Westchester Racing association added $15,000 to the purse, making it the richest race through the field ever run in this country. The Greentree stable's Jolly Roger won, beating Joseph E. Widener's Fairmount after one of the most stirring contests of the season. Although a number of foreign bred horses were sent over, only one, the German Laufjunge, went to the post. Laufjunge fell in the running.

The decision to choose Belmont Park again for the race is indicative of the high standard of steeplechasing at that course. As entries for the race will not close until June 1, every effort will be made to bring over English and French horses, among them candidates for the Liverpool Grand National, which will be run at Aintree on March 30.

Conditions for the race are the same as last year, namely, by subscription of $50 each and further subscription if not declared by July 15; starters to pay $500 additional; with $20,000 added by a group of friends of steeplechasing, and $15,000 by the Westchester Racing association, of which $5,000 to the second horse, $2,500 to the third and $1,500 to the fourth; weight for age; about three miles.

Downtown on Saturday Night

DOWNTOWN where the streets are crowded, when it's Saturday night with a week's work over and men get together to talk and smoke, around the cigar stand, up in the club, wherever a crowd of men get together, in the past five years more men have smoked White Owls than any other cigar in the world.

You'll never be in a minority when you smoke a White Owl. And you'll never forget your first sweet, mild smoke. There's nothing like it at the price—nothing to touch its mild, sweet flavor, its mellow fragrance, its taste.

If you're in the habit of smoking ten cent cigars, investigate White Owl value today. And remember that on Saturday night, and Sunday, and Monday, and Tuesday and on every day in the week, in the past five years more men have smoked White Owls than any other cigar in the world.

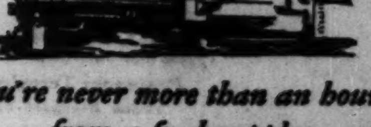
White Owl



You're never more than an hour from a fresh supply

Men have wanted to know how it is that White Owls are always fresh and mild, no matter where or when they buy them. It's because there's a fresh supply always on the way. They never last long enough to get stale. When you buy a White Owl, you're buying a fresh cigar.

ROW OVER LEWIS MATCH ASSUMES AIR OF BALLYHOO

Commissioners Disagree; Fans Puzzled.

The row between members of the Illinois state athletic commission in which Samuel P. Luzzo, the Chicago member, charged Chairman Paul Prehn with issuing a permit for a wrestling match tomorrow night between Strangler Lewis and Alex Garkawienko without authority, went merrily along yesterday.

But last night it began to shape up as a good smoke up for what has been called a bad match.

Permit O. K. Says Prehn.

Chairman Prehn said the permit was issued according to the rules and regulations of the committee and the bout could be staged as far as he was concerned.

The disgruntled Mr. Luzzo admitted he didn't know how he was going to stop it.

And many wrestling fans after reading so much about the questionable grapple and the fight between the commissioners had about decided to attend and see just how bad the match might be.

"My future moves will depend on an investigation I am conducting," Luzzo said. "I am trying to get evidence that Lewis and Garkawienko are members of the same stable. If I can produce this evidence I'll stop the show. If I can't, I don't know what I'll do.

"But I'll keep trying to stop it until time for them to go in the ring."

Promoters' War, Sandow Claims.

Lewis and his manager, Billy Sandow, arrived in Chicago yesterday. Sandow said he didn't believe the Strangler should be put in the middle in this fight which he said could be traced to a petty row between rival promoters.

St. John's Cadets Upset Bowen Cagers by 27 to 16

Delafield, Wis., March 10.—[Special.]—Playing their last game before entering in the national tournament at Madison, Wis., the St. John's Military academy five tonight defeated Bowen High school of Chicago here, 27 to 16. Williams of St. John's led the scoring with a total of nine, Pouney starring for Bowen.

Sears-Roebuck Wins Y Wrestling Championship

Sears-Roebuck Y. M. C. A. wrestlers yesterday won the city-wide championship of the Y. M. C. A. They scored 31 points. Hyde Park, their nearest competitor, had 28 points.

Forester Cage Play in Second Round Today

Perez Wins

PEREZ'S defeat of McHale, south section pace setters, and La Rabida's surprise victory over Auburn Park at the Eighth Regiment armory last night scrambled the championship race in the south section of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league and left the finalists still undetermined. Perez took the long end of a 28 to 18 score over McHale and Auburn lost to La Rabida, 16 to 20, in a seesaw battle.

The six teams in competition for the championship of the Catholic Order of Foresters Basketball league enter the second round of play this afternoon at St. Rita gym, 63d street and Oakley avenue. The first game starts at 2:15.

Although the north division quintet, Hofbauer, Western Reserve and St. Monica, made a clean sweep of the three games in last Sunday's opening round, the south division fives showed they are of championship caliber and to be reckoned with for title honors.

Hofbauer, league champion, tackles St. Gabriel in the first contest. St. Gabriel flashed a splendid brand of basketball against St. Monica last week but was nosed out during the last few minutes of play. The other games bring together Western Reserve and Englewood, and St. Monica and St. Elizabeth.

K. OF C. FIVES BATTLE

North, Central, and West division teams will be in action today in the Knights of Columbus Basketball league, with practically every game having an important bearing on the qualifiers for the championship round which opens March 25.

"Chick" Quinlan Day will be observed in the Central division at the 131st Regiment armory, Michigan avenue and 16th street, in honor of the former head of Fort Dearborn council, who was one of the leading figures in the organization of the division.

Minnesota Prep Tankers Smash U. S. Relay Mark

Minneapolis, Minn., March 10.—(AP)—A new national indoor interscholastic record for the 300 yard medley relay race was established here today when the Hibbing, Minn., High school, competing in the annual northwestern interscholastic swimming meet, swam the distance in 3:28 3-5.

Gallistal and Lawson Win Playground Wrestling Titles

Wrestlers representing the Gallistal and Lawson playgrounds yesterday won the championships of the board of education playground wrestling tournament at the Delano school. Gallistal scored 17 points to top the open division. Lawson piled up 26 points to win the grammar school division trophy.

The finals were run off on four mats and 120 boys competed. The final tournament came after a series of elimination trials conducted throughout the city in which, it is estimated, more than 4,700 boys took part. Eight champions were crowned in the open division and seven in the grammar school section.

In one of the best bouts on the card, W. Phillips of Budlong playground defeated H. Vannatta of Lloyd playground after a hard struggle. The boys wrestled an extra session before Phillips finally won the decision.

The tournament was run off under the direction of the board of education playground department, which is headed by Herman J. Fischer and his three assistants, Walter P. Sonnenleiter, Nicholas Malloy and Fred Schwind. Summaries:

Illinois Beats Michigan; Wins Big 10 Mat Title

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 10.—[Special.]—Illinois wrestling team, recently crowned champion of the western division of the Big Ten, defeated Michigan's eastern division team for the conference title by a 12 to 9 score here tonight for its fifth consecutive championship.

The final heavyweight bout, in which Webster of Illinois won a decision over Prescott, gave the Illini the title. The score stood at 9 to 9 when Donahoe defeated Crane in the 175 pound class in overtime.

The biggest surprise came in the 115 pound bout, where Sapora of Illinois defeated Hewitt. Hesmer, captain of the visitors, won a hard match from Thomas in the 125 pound class, after which Morrison, his teammate, gained the verdict over Watson.

NORTHWESTERN WRESTLERS LOSE TO IOWA, 9 TO 14

University of Iowa wrestlers defeated Northwestern, 14 to 9, at Evanston yesterday for ninth place in the final Western conference standing. The meet was closely contested throughout and was decided by the final heavyweight match, in which Gilchrist of Iowa, with a fifty pound weight advantage, earned a 1:20 time decision over Capt. Rudy Schuler. The result threw the Purple into last place, in which place it rested last year. Northwestern has not won a conference wrestling meet in two years.

115 pound—Peegan, Iowa, defeated Goldberg, Northwestern.

145 pound—Boddie, Northwestern, defeated Kraftmeyer, Iowa.

175 pound—Gerrard, Iowa, defeated Anderson, Northwestern.

Heavyweight — Gilchrist, Iowa, defeated Schuler, Northwestern.

PENN STATE BOXERS WIN.

State College, Pa., March 10.—(AP)—Penn State defeated Temple university boxers here today, 4 to 3. Steve Hamas' technical knockout of Hanson of Temple clinched the meet for State.

A VELIE Car is an Intimate Car

You Revel in Its Distinction and Luxury of Control

YOUR neighbor can never confuse a Velie with a mass production car. It is different.

To construct a car at a modest price which would incorporate the virtues of a custom-built job—to build into it long-life, endurance, speed, comfort and distinction—such was the Velie ideal of 20 years ago.

And, so, in the new Twentieth anniversary series of Sixes and Straight Eights we find the final expression of the Velie wealth of progressive efficiency—

A car of beauty—a performer of rare merit—a product of stamina.

Ability to sweep silently ahead at an eighty mile clip and keep on going and going—to defy the rougher roads and laugh at the disappearing hills. A Velie symposium of travel.

Easing through traffic or gliding along the boulevards—springing forward like a greyhound unleashed as the green light flashes—your Velie reflects your moods. Intimate.

That is why so many of those discriminating folks who accept a Velie demonstration become Velie owners. They find performance finer than portrayed—better than they dared expect from a car in Velie price-class.

20 years of fine car construction—20 years of public confidence invite your investigation.

The Best of Everything in the Best of the West

TWO PURDUE CAGE STARS PLACED ON ALL-CONFERENCE

Oosterbaan Is Captain of Big Ten Five.

Big Ten. All of the others except the 6 foot 6 inch Marion boy had one or more bad games. Murphy can do everything with a basketball and do it well.

Walter, the giant Purple center, is a great scoring machine. McCracken of Indiana started brilliantly, but was held in check in several games, and was outplayed by Murphy in both Purdue games.

Wilcox of Iowa is a driving, powerful pivot man, brilliant at times, but handicapped by membership on a team in which he had to carry too much defensive load. Van Heyde of Ohio came along nicely at the close of the season, while Chapman of Michigan is a much better center than he is generally rated.

Many Capable Guards.

Hazarding a guess on the two best guards is the biggest problem that confronts the picker this year, but Kemmer of Purdue and Hotchkiss of Wisconsin have the call in the opinion of most Big Ten critics. Kemmer wound up a three year career in whirlwind style. His footwork is perfect and he leaves little to be desired either offensively or defensively.

Hotchkiss was a tower of strength to Wisconsin and but for his absence from several games due to an injured foot, the Badgers might have shared the conference title with Indiana and Purdue.

Charlie Hoerger, Chicago's captain, would be a valuable man on any team. He is powerful, can manacle effectively any forward, and was a great inspiration to his team mates. The writer regrets that places cannot be found for all three of these boys. Mills, Illinois' cool, calculating floor guard, is named as the other guard on the second five. He is a capable shot and was the main reason the Illini gave all opposition a battle in the closing weeks of the campaign.

Marshall Proves Erratic.

Doyle of Wisconsin is a great defensive guard, a typical Meanwell product, while Marshall of Northwestern flashed brilliantly at times only to slump back into mediocracy again.

Capt. Correll of Indiana wound up his career in fine style and played great ball at times. Nydahl and Otterness of Minnesota, Solyom of Illinois, Scheld of Indiana, Hinchman of Ohio State, McCoy of Michigan, Schnaiter of Purdue, and McDonough of Chicago are other guards deserving of honorable mention.

The 1928 basketball season produced another of those blanket finish races for which the Big Ten conference has become famous in recent years. Until the final week four teams were conceded a chance for at least a share of the title. The season produced a fine crop of individual stars, including the best group of centers ever developed in the conference. The Tribune's first all-conference team is composed of Bennie Oosterbaan of Michigan and Dale Wells of Indiana at forwards; Charles Murphy of Purdue at center, and George Hotchkiss of Wisconsin and Harry Kemmer of Purdue at guards.

MAROONS WIN BIG TEN GYM, FENCING TITLES

The University of Chicago Gym team outpointed a field of six conference teams at Bartlett gymnasium last night to win the conference title with a point score of 1249.20. It was the third gym championship in a row for the Maroon team.

Wisconsin was second in the team point score, more than a hundred points behind the Maroons with 1129.95. Illinois was third with 1015.35 and Purdue fourth with 1011.25.

The Maroons took a first in every event but the tumbling where Fulton of Illinois wrested the conference title from Davidson of Chicago, last year's title holder.

Chicago fencers won the conference championship with a total of 12½ points. Illinois ranked second with 8. Ohio State, last year's title holders, shared third place with Northwestern with five points each.

McCreight to Lead Track Team at State Normal U.

Normal, Ill., March 10.—[Special.]—Track athletes of Illinois State Normal university elected Claire McCreight captain. The new leader was champion hurdler of the conference last season. Track prospects at the teachers' college are bright.

Thistlethwaite to Start Elimination Process April 11

Madison, Wis., March 10.—[Special.]—Glenn F. Thistlethwaite, head coach at the University of Wisconsin, plans to do his football weeding early this year. The elimination process by which Thistlethwaite hopes to align his candidates for A and B squads next fall will start April 11, he said today.

Plenty of real football will be given aspirants for four weeks, with little attention being paid to individual coaching. "Showing of the candidates next month will tell the whole story. The material will be invoiced and lined up for either the A or B squad," the Badger coach declared.

By this method, Thistlethwaite and his aids hope to get a list of men upon whom they can concentrate the first two weeks of fall practice.

Seventy freshmen and sophomores have been working out a few times in the university stock pavilion since the opening of the semester. Instruction in fundamentals, which gives the athletes credit in physical education, will occupy the men until Thistlethwaite signals for the battling to begin.

KANSAS STADIUM TO BE COMPLETE FOR RELAY MEET

Lawrence, Kas., March 10.—The memorial stadium at the University of Kansas will be complete when the hundreds of university, college, and high school track athletes come here to compete in the sixth annual Kansas relays, April 21.

The completing units give the Kansas stadium a capacity of 36,000 seats in concrete and provide completely equipped locker and dressing rooms and showers in the under structure to accommodate the visiting track men.

The Kansas 220 yard straightaway and quarter mile running track has proved to be exceptionally fast, the games having brought out exceptionally fast quarter mile and half mile marks. Notre Dame equaled the world record of 41.6 seconds for the short dash relay last year, and Nebraska made a new half mile relay world record of 1 minute 26.6 seconds at the Kansas games in 1926.

Concordia College Five Beats Morton by 47 to 31

Mount Carmel Grade Five Defeats St. Gertrude, 16-13

Mount Carmel defeated St. Gertrude, 16 to 13, in the feature game of the parochial grammar school elimination basketball tournament at St. George High, Evanston, last night. The score was tied, 13 all, when the regulation time ended.

LA GRANGE NOSES OUT MORTON FIVE IN PREP TOURNEY

La Grange High school captured the championship of the La Grange district tournament of the state high school basketball meet by nosing out Morton, 33 to 30, at La Grange last night. The winners led from the start and it was only in the closing minutes that the Cicero quintet threatened seriously.

Vaughn, Hodge, and Gorsky paved the way for the victory, the trio scoring 28 points. In the consolation contest, Riverside downed Franklin Park, 28 to 23. Semi-final results in the afternoon were: La Grange, 23; Franklin Park, 19. Morton, 32; Riverside, 28. Championship lineup:

East Chicago Qualifies for Indiana Cage Finals

Gary, Ind., March 10.—[Special.]—Washington of East Chicago was crowned regional champion in the Indiana High school basketball tourney here tonight by defeat Laporte, 32 to 14. Washington will represent northern Indiana in the state finals next week in Indianapolis.

The game was a romp for the undefeated Washington team, which has won twenty-six games. During a greater part of the last half Washington used a second string lineup.

Washington qualified for tonight's final game in a stirring last half victory over Valparaiso, 29 to 20. La Porte defeated Goodland, 30 to 21.

Duray Files Entry for Indianapolis Classic

Indianapolis, Ind., March 10.—Leon Duray, the grizzled veteran of automobile racing, is the second pilot to announce his entry for the international 500 mile race to be held here May 30. His entry came from California, accompanied by the customary $100 entry fee. Duray will pilot a front wheel drive Miller Special, a type of car that has excited no little curiosity in the last three years of racing, but which was rather a disappointment last year.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Grant Lance, 33 West Grand avenue, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you think the New York Yankees will make a runaway race of the American league again this year?

Where Asked.

Washington street at Clark.

The Answers.

George Barton, 4510 Lake Park avenue, office clerk—I wouldn't be a bit surprised to see the Yanks pass under the wire first. Babe Ruth would be an inspiration to any team and should enable the New York club to cop again. I think they'll win the world's series again, too.

Herbert Spielman, 1503 S. Spaulding avenue, salesman—No sir! I think this is the White Sox year. The hose lineup right now looks pretty good and they ought to get away with the flag. It should be the strongest Sox team since the scandal broke in 1920.

Alan Flamm, 3412 West Jackson boulevard, manager—I hardly think so. Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletes and the Washington Senators are the teams who will fight it out this year. On paper the Yanks do not appear any stronger than last year, while most of the other teams have added hopes in the form of new material. The White Sox look pretty good this season.

Nathaniel Wharton, 6325 Kenwood avenue, officer—It looks like the Yanks again, but it will not be the runaway it was last year. I consider Philadelphia much stronger this year. They now have Cobb, Speaker and Simmons, and are bound to make a much better showing. Other teams seem to be improving also. The White Sox are much stronger than they were.

Maurice Dictor, 1244 South Troy street, salesman—No, Philadelphia and Washington will give them a hard battle. With Cobb, Speaker and Simmons as Philadelphia outfielders, the Mack men are bound to put up a real honest to goodness battle for the pennant. Washington must also be figured in the running.

NAVY SWIMMERS WIN.

Annapolis, Md., March 10.—[U. P.]—The Navy swimming team defeated Dartmouth in a dual meet here today, 33 to 29.

The World's First Quality Eight at the Price of a Six

THE NEW MARMON

Straight-Eight $1395

f. o. b. factory

Prompt Action Will Insure Early Spring Delivery

EVEN with its present great production, Marmon cannot possibly hope to meet the demand for this new eight-cylinder automobile at the price of the average six.

We can now insure prompt delivery on a wide variety of models and colors. This condition may not exist thirty days from now, and we are now in far better position than we will be later to handle the car you have to trade in. We therefore urge prompt action.

Remember—it's a straight-eight—the one type of motive power which cannot go out of date.

Marmon quality through and through—not a small car scaled down to meet a price—but a full-sized, five-passenger automobile—tested for a whole year prior to introduction to the public—and now produced in enormous volume in one of the industry's most efficient plants.

If you are going to spend anywhere from $1000 to $1700, this is certainly your next logical move.

It has the lines, the colors and fitments of 1928 and will give your family that feeling of superiority which comes from association with good things. Gorgeously equipped. New Jewel Colors.

Smooth, zippy power—70 miles an hour—four-wheel brakes—wonderfully easy riding, with the most modern type rubber-insulated chassis—a car that goes places, does things and stays put.

You might just as well be inside one of these cars as to see them disappearing down the road in front of you. Come in today and ask to see the New "68." It's a spectacular value and a great automobile.

KREMS TRIUMPHS OVER DEVITO IN BOWLING MATCH

Retains Lead in All-Star Individual Events.

Eddie Krems clung to first place in the Chicago All Star Individual league play at the Randolph alleys last night when he defeated Dominick Devito in six of eleven games.

It was one of the greatest series of the season and was a see-saw battle from the first game until Krems mowed down 257 pins in the eleventh and clinched the match. Krems scored 2,573 pins, for an average of 233. Devito's total was 2,428 and his average was 220.

Krems had 81 strikes, 35 spares, one railroad and two errors. Devito had to be content with 67 strikes, 43 spares, 5 railroads, two of which he cut down, and one error. The score:

Entries for the Central Manufacturing industrial classified bowling tournament will close Tuesday at midnight with John A. McCue, 2055 West 35th street. Competition will be held in classes A, B and C. More than 600 five-man teams are expected to enter. The tournament will start April 7 at Peterson's 35th street alleys.

Askelof is having little trouble holding first place in the race for individual honors in the Morton Salt league. His average for the season is 180, with Brown far back in second place with a mark of 168. Forsberg, Ralston and Hower are also high up in the standing.

Loyola Swimmers Defeat Mt. Carmel in Dual Meet

Loyola academy, Catholic league swimming champion, doused Mount Carmel yesterday in a dual meet at the West Side Knights of Columbus clubhouse pool, 29 to 12. Sexton, Groves and Gottschalk starred for the winners.

WHAT YOU OUGHT TO KNOW ABOUT BRIDGE

BY R. M. ROGERS.

Today we are going to take up the subject of two-suiters, a hand containing five cards in one suit and five cards in another suit, leaving but three cards of the other two suits which must be distributed three in one suit and none in the other or one in one suit and two in the other, or, to put it differently, a singleton in one suit or void of the suit.

R. M. ROGERS.

There are five different conditions under which it is advantageous to know how to bid such a hand so that partner can decide which suit probably will produce the best results for the combined hand.

In the first place, such a combination is usually a winner if bid correctly and there are many good average players who never have given sufficient thought to these conditions to know either how far to go with the bidding or what is expected of them as partner of a two suit hand.

The subject is too extensive to be covered completely in one article and therefore we will take up first the duty of a player holding a "two-suiter" when his partner has opened the bidding with one no trump and the opponent intervening has passed. Let us lay the cards out as below:

S—Q, 9, 8, 6, 5
H—7
D—Q, J, 10, 6, 5
C—J, 8

S—10, 2
H—A,J,10,4,3,2
D—8, 4
C—Q, 9, 7

N.
W. E.
S.

S—A, 7, 4
H—9, 6, 5
D—K, 3
C—6, 5, 4, 3, 2

S—K, J, 3
H—K, Q, 8
D—A, 9, 7, 2
C—A, K, 10

The Bidding.

S.	W.	N.	E.
1 No trump	Pass	2 S	Pass
2 No trump	Pass	3 D	Pass
Pass	Pass

In the first place please remember that under the rules, regardless of whether his hand is strong or weak, with one long suit or with a two-suiter, the partner of a no trump bidder, if second hand has passed, must make a suit bid if his hand contains a worthless singleton or is void of a suit.

With a two-suiter he should bid two of the higher suit, even if it is not as strong as the other. If his partner rebids the no trump he should then bid the other suit, the one of lower value, and then, having told the whole story of his hand, let the no trump bidder decide what shall be played, the first suit bid, second suit bid or the no trump.

In the hands above shown, game can be made better in diamonds than in spades and the no trump in all probability will fail to make game.

The writer witnessed the play of a hand last week where the partner of the no trump bidder performed only a part of his duty and bid two of a suit and allowed the original no trump bidder to play the hand at no trump instead of showing his second suit. They made two no trump but they could have gone game if the second suit had been bid, as that bid would have been allowed to stand rather than the no trump.

Next week we will take up the bidding of two-suiters where the conditions are different, but where the advantages of showing them will be made evident.

Washington U. Wins Valley Swim Title

Des Moines, Ia., March 10.—(AP)—Swimmers of Washington university splashed their way to their sixth straight Missouri valley championship today, collecting seven firsts in nine events for a total of 62 points. Iowa State college was second with 24, Kansas third with 13, Drake fourth with 12, and Grinnell last with but 4 points.

Existing records in every event for a short pool were broken. This was partly because the valley meet was held last year for the first time in a short pool, and all times made then were declared to be records.

Skinner High Scorer.

Skinner of Washington was high point scorer, with two firsts and one second for a total of 13 points. Jocelyn of Kansas, the only outstanding splasher of the meet who did not wear Washington colors, was second with two firsts for 10 points.

McArdle of Washington broke his 200 yard breast stroke record of 2:51.5 by splashing the distance in the fast time of 2:46.9. In the 40 yard dash Jocelyn broke last year's 40 yard dash record of :21.4, established by Meyer of Washington, with a time of :20.2.

Kansas was the only team outside of Washington to score a first place.

Relay Marks Fall.

Members of the Washington 160 yard relay team, which set a new record of 1:23, were Sample, Heideman, Moffett and Lawdon. The Washington 300 yard medley relay team, which set a new record of 3:27.8, were Heideman, back stroke; McArdle, breast stroke, and Cohn, free style.

Skinner of Washington broke the old 220 yard free style record of 2:39.6 in today's meet with a time of 2:38.8, but since he navigated the distance in 2:38.5 in the qualifying rounds yesterday, the latter mark stands as the new record. Summary:

220 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Skinner, Washington; Butler, Iowa State, second; Marshall, Washington, third; Barrum, Drake, fourth. Time, 2:38.8. (New valley record; previous mark 2:39.9 held by Bair, Washington.).

300 YARD MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Washington; Ames, second; Grinnell, third. Time, 3:27.8. (New valley record; former mark 3:32.7 held by Washington, 1927.)

100 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Jocelyn, Kansas; Skinner, Washington, second; Sample, Washington, third; Goodrich, Drake, fourth. Time, 60.5. (New conference record; old record of 61.7 by Ledbetter, Washington, in 1927.).

150 YARD BACK STROKE—Won by Heideman, Washington; Williams, Iowa State, second; Marshall, Washington, third; Wicks, Iowa State, fourth. Time, 1:49.8. (New conference record; old record of 1:51.6 made by Heideman in 1927.).

FANCY DIVING—Won by Navert, Washington, 75½ points; Rawdon, Washington, second, 71.2 points; Pohl, Iowa State, third, 70 points; May, Kansas, fourth, 64.8 points.

440 YARD FREE STYLE—Won by Skinner, Washington; Butler, Iowa State, second; Barrum, Drake, third; M. J. Smith, Iowa State, fourth. Time, 5:44.6. [New conference record; old record of 6:6.9 made by Baer of Washington in 1927.]

200 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by McArdle, Washington university; Curtis, Washington, second; Squires, Drake, third; Wicks, Iowa State, fourth. Time, 2:46.9. [New conference record. Former record, 2:51.5.]

40 YARD DASH—Won by Jocelyn, Kansas; Sample, Rawdon and Moffett, all of Washington, second, third and fourth, respectively. Time, 20.2. [New Missouri Valley record; old record, 21.4.]

IOWA CAPTURES BIG TEN RIFLE CHAMPIONSHIP

Iowa City, Ia., March 10.—(AP)—Iowa won the undisputed Big Ten rifle championship this week by defeating Ohio State, 3598 to 3519. The Hawks will get the Russell Wiles trophy now held by Minnesota.

In the other matches this week Ohio defeated Northwestern, 3519 to 3397; Illinois forfeited to Wisconsin and Minnesota reported 3537 to Indiana's 3532. The score in the Indiana-Minnesota match will not be considered official until the targets have been checked again by official scorers.

CHICAGOANS LEAD IN A. B. C. TOURNEY AT KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, Mo., March 10.—[Special.]—Scoring games of 933, 969, and 966, Mansfield Star Motor Sales of Chicago took the lead in the five man event of the American Bowling congress tourney here tonight with a total of 2,868. Charles Wass was the heavy man for the Windy City five, chalking up counts of 200, 235 and 175. Harry Lorenz assisted with 607.

A poor start kept the Kraft Recreation five of Chicago from landing a 2,900 total. The Windy City five opened with a poor 867 start, "Sunny" Colbeck contributing 139. With B. Flint counting 266 in the second game, the Chicago outfit came on to hang up 987, and when Flint smashed the pins for 232 in the final session the team chalked up 986 to score 2840, good for temporary third position in the main event of the major pin classic.

The South Shore Recreation five, also of Chicago, also experienced a slow start. Harry Klatt, formerly of Milwaukee, and rated as one of the south side's best, opened with a miserable 130 count and his team checked in with a mark of 866. With Sam Levinson chalking up 247 the team counted 994 in the second set and finished with 964 to total 2,824 for temporary fourth berth in the standings.

The Chicago pin knights will monopolize most of the twenty-eight new alleys on tomorrow's doubles and singles program.

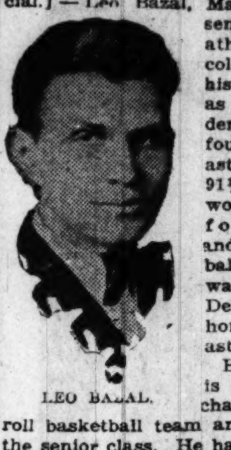
Carroll Star Wins New Honors in Classroom

Waukesha, Wis., March 10.—[Special.]—Leo Bazal, Manitowoc, Wis., senior student and athlete of Carroll college, will close his career in June as an honor student, having a four year scholastic average of 91¼, and having won eight letters, four in football and four in basketball. This week he was voted into Delta Sigma Nu, honorary scholastic fraternity.



LEO BAZAL.

Bazal this year is captain of the championship Carroll basketball team and president of the senior class. He has played under Coach Norris Armstrong on six state college championship teams, Carroll having won titles in football in 1925, 1926, and 1927 and in basketball in 1925, 1926, and 1928.

Maguergui and Vicente Win in Jai Alai Match

In the feature jai alai game at the Rainbow fronton last night Señors Vicente and Maguergui nosed out the favorites, Ramos and Barrutia, 15 to 14. Both teams set a terrific pace, tying each other all through the game, when Vicente put over the winning point. Vicente also played a sensational game in the final contest, winning easily over Joaquin, 8 to 5. Maguergui finished third with four points.

Brickies and South Bend Clash Today

The Bricklayers, who will play in the western final of the national soccer championship next Sunday, and Sparta, the Midwest league champions, will be on exhibition again today, but in different sections of the city.

The Brickies are scheduled to meet the South Bend Hungarians in the first round of the Peel cup competition at De Paul field and Sparta will play Vienna in an exhibition tilt at 22d street and Kostner avenue.

Other Peel cup games carded include the Canadian club against the Norwegian-Americans, International league champs, at 4500 West Fullerton avenue; Dalzell, Ill., vs. the North Shores at Foster field, Evanston, and the Buda A. A. vs. Sparta seconds. The latter game will be played as a curtain raiser to the Sparta-Vienna tilt, starting at 1 p. m.

The South Bend players, who meet the Brickies, have lost only one game this season.

ST. PAUL SEXTET WINS.

St. Paul, Minn., March 10.—(AP)—St. Paul saw its chances to get into the playoff in the American Hockey association finals fade away tonight, when Winnipeg and the Saints played a scoreless overtime tie.

The Smoothness and Snap
That All America is Demanding

There's no longer any doubt about it. America is demanding more and more from its automobiles. More power . . . more style . . . more speed. And above all else . . . more smoothness and snap.

Smoothness that brings to driving new pleasures and new delights. Snap that responds to the traffic signal as a sprinter responds to the gun. Smoothness and snap that you know are the very essence of motoring satisfaction. Smoothness and snap that you find revealed in the All-American Six.

You find them there because of Oakland's big, impressive brute of an engine which starts so easily 'way below zero. Because of its famous GMR cylinder head . . . force feed fuel pump . . . 79-lb. crankshaft . . . generously oversize connecting rods and other vital parts.

Because of its ruggedly constructed chassis . . . its bigger clutch and smoothly shifting gears . . . and the super-precision construction demanded in the All-American principle of design.

Once you've experienced its smoothness . . . once you've witnessed its snap . . . you'll know why the All-American Six is winning such tremendous success!

Special Sport Equipment

Available on all body types. Six wire wheels with tires . . . special front fenders with tire wells . . . two special tire locks and locking rings . . . collapsible trunk rack . . . $100 extra on open cars . . . $110 on closed cars . . . Six disc wheels with same equipment, $75 on open cars . . . $85 on closed models.

City Paid 27 Millions Fees; Got Nothing.

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.

An official progress map of the state highway system has just been issued by the administration, presumably as a campaign document, which tells the story of discrimination against the Chicago area in the state highway allotments more vividly, it is believed, than has ever yet been conveyed by written or spoken means.

The map shows that the state has never spent a dollar for roads nor built a foot of state highway within the city of Chicago.

It shows that the state has not built a foot of highway in twenty-nine villages and cities adjacent to Chicago in the metropolitan area.

It also shows, as has been shown before, that only about 7 per cent of the road mileage of the state system has been allotted to the area immediately adjacent to Chicago and Cook county, and not all that is even under construction.

In connection with the governor's campaign statements of the current period to the effect that the Chicago area is in a pitiful situation as regards proper highway facilities, after seven years of the present administration of highway affairs, the road map emphasizes what THE TRIBUNE has been reiterating for several years.

Chicago Paid $27,000,000.

During the completed period of the two Small administrations the city of Chicago has paid in to the state highway building funds though license fees the sum of approximately $27,000,000. In return for this there has not been expended a dollar for state paving within the city.

In addition to this the city contributed about $2,000,000 in money paid as gas tax during the last seven months. This illegal and involuntary payment is now tied up with state road funds and cannot be returned to the payer-consumer, according to competent legal authority. If the state decides to cast its moral principles aside the sum may be appropriated for road work in Kankakee or other counties, as the assembly may see fit.

The disclosure contained in the document pictures more clearly than any known previous statement of highway affairs by the administration, just how badly Chicago and neighboring territory had been hoodwinked by the hard road "gospel" of Illinois.

Other Localities Marooned.

Besides Chicago, here are some of the other cities and villages which have been sidetracked from the road program by the state experts: West Hammond, Dolton, Burnham, South Holland, Calumet Park, Markham, Flossmoor, Hazelcrest, Richton Park, Elmwood Park, Glen Ellyn, Lombard, Fox Lake, Ingleside, Tinley Park, Alsip, Waukegan, North Chicago, Fort Sheridan, Highwood, Highland Park, Winnetka, Kenilworth, Wilmette, Niles Center, Tessville, Lansing and a number more.

The absence of a state road along the north shore suburbs may be accounted for by the usual results at the state elections.

This, however, does not account for the discrimination against the towns and villages in southeast Cook county which have been left high and dry by the state and have only been taken care of as well as possible by the county.

While it may be contended that when the $100,000,000 road building program was lined up and determined as a part of the bond issue law, the then existing state code prohibited the expenditure of state highway funds within cities of more than 15,000 population, it is also a fact that the administration could as easily have altered that provision before the bond issue program was made up, as it did after the bond issue was passed.

No Restrictive Law Now.

No such law now exists. It was changed at the suggestion of Cook county officials two sessions ago. The general assembly did not hesitate to do that much justice to the city when asked.

Had the framers of the hundred million bond issue law been inclined to fairness toward northeastern Illinois, there seems no reason why legal barriers to the equal distribution of roads could not have been broken down then.

It is now recalled that when the gas tax was jammed through the legislature and the administration explained its purpose by stating that the funds were needed to fill out gaps in the bond issue system no word nor promise was given that the city of Chicago would be a beneficiary in any part of it, though it was admitted that the city would pay practically two-fifths of it.

Contemplates No Relief.

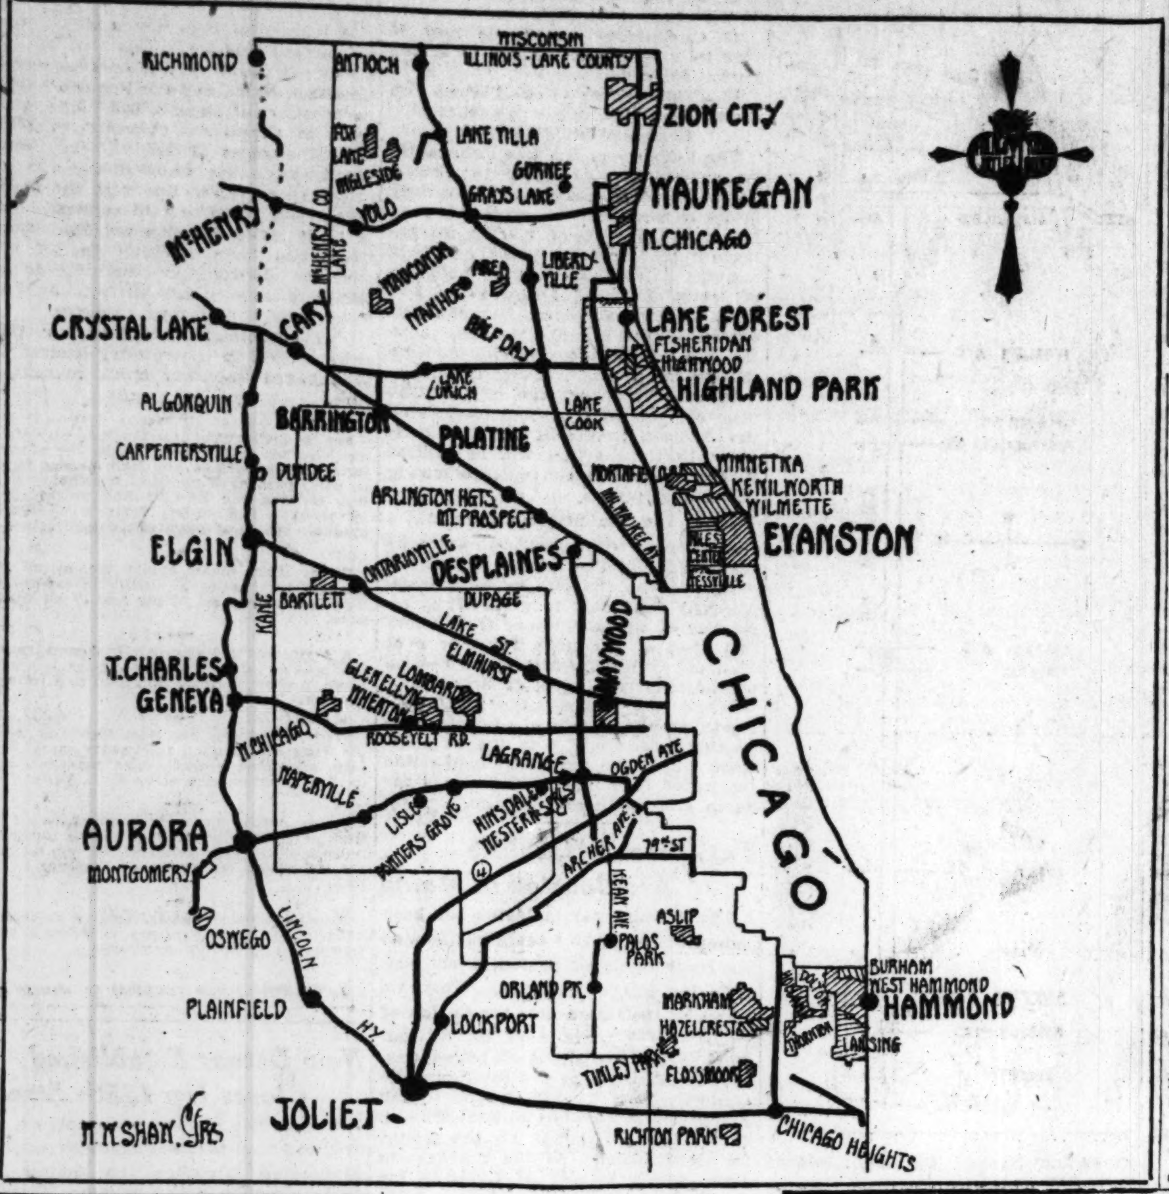
Evidently not only has no part of the state highway fund been expended in Chicago or in connecting up some twenty-nine small towns near by, but the state has never contemplated, and probably never will, the expenditure of any of Chicago's motor fee dollars in this region, which the governor himself frequently states is in a serious traffic situation. The money, once extracted from Chicago motorists, stays, seemingly, in the hands of the state until expended for various remote projects throughout downstate.

While in the past there may have been some excuse for the public to doubt claims that the Chicago area had been woefully mishandled in regard to state highway activities, the map prepared by the administration for circulation during the present campaign for governor stands as an official record of what has gone on in the past and an indication of what will probably continue in the future.

Chicago Pays a Fourth.

In the period of seven years it is now shown the city of Chicago alone has paid a sum amounting to more than a fourth of the $100,000,000 bond issue and has not received any form of state road in return.

WHERE STATE HIGHWAYS ARE NOT FOUND



An official map just issued by the state shows that not a dollar's worth of state highway has been built into the city of Chicago, although this municipality has contributed $27,000,000 to the state highway funds since Gov. Small took office seven years ago. The map also shows that numerous villages and towns in and about Chicago also have been completely ignored by the state highway administration, and that Cook county has been compelled to build highways to serve these communities from specially gathered funds.

START REMOVAL OF CICERO AVE. WORK OBSTACLES

Officials, Citizens Confer on Essential Steps.

A special committee of citizens interested in the early completion of the Cicero avenue repavement and widening enterprise, was named at a meeting last Tuesday, to confer with the sanitary district officials and city authorities relative to needed provisions for the continuance of work.

It was shown at the massmeeting Tuesday that the county is now actually at work laying a 20 foot concrete slab from 63d street to 26th street and will soon start operations on the north end, above Montrose avenue, for similar pavement. A portion of the pavement from 22d street to 26th is also ready for construction as soon as the town of Cicero orders new surfacing on the west half of the street.

Those who attended the meeting, which was sponsored by the Chicago Motor club, were: Don Uertz, Lawndale Improvement club; G. E. Moody, board of public works; C. A. Peterson, county commissioner; J. F. Delaney, representing A. J. Cermak; O. P. Corcoran, Portland Cement company; H. J. Ruggles, west town associations; E. J. McIlraith, Santa Fé railway; H. R. Stevens, industrial district; P. M. Kelly, J. J. McNeil, and Alfred Kealer, Cicero organizations; J. W. and A. J. Harmon, P. W. Bergquist, Western Electric company; C. W. Holmes, northwestern civic clubs; R. R. Leffler, sanitary district; J. J. Cullinaur, B. A. Seymour, and Raymond Herman, citizens of the locality; Thomas Wolf Jr., J. G. Digman, Wiley W. Mills.

The principal problem existing as an obstacle to the most favored development of the street is that of the clearance of the subway under the Santa Fé railway.

According to the sanitary district and railway officials the transfer of property to the railway by the district which is required to provide clearance construction sufficient for heavy trucks and street cars can be readily made in time for the subway improvement to reach completion simultaneously with the pavement.

The Western Electric officials expressed their belief that no opposition to widening would be offered by that company. It was learned that the city has moved back the east curb of Cicero avenue to within three feet of the lot line of the company and is ready to pave to the curb. This will necessitate cutting off the lot frontage of company party for a distance which will permit sidewalk construction along the electric company's frontage.

The county expects to complete its portion of the paving by midsummer and some of the city work has been promised for this season. When all paving is down Cicero avenue will offer a continuous paved surface from the northern portion of the county to Lincoln highway at the south, traversing the far western precincts of the city.

ANTIPODES HAS ANOTHER NAME FOR GASOLINE

Although motor cars of similar characteristics are used in all parts of the world, nomenclature among English speaking users differs to a marked extent.

In Australia and New Zealand gasoline, used in passenger automobiles, is called "motor spirit."

In this country there is only one grade of fuel for all classes of ground vehicles. But in the antipodes gasoline is used only in trucks and tractors, while the high powered, high compression automobiles use what is known as "motor spirit," which is really the same quality as the gasoline sold here.

Gopher State Forges Ahead in Road Race

Minnesota now has 31,255 miles of surfaced highways, state and local, according to figures recently compiled by the Minnesota highway department. Until recently Minnesota has been ranked fifth among the states in the total number of miles of improved roads in reports made by the United States bureau of public roads, but unless Wisconsin and New York have graveled as many miles as Minnesota has during the last year there are now only two states, Indiana and Ohio, which have a definite lead over Minnesota.

Commissioner C. M. Babcock emphasizes, however, that the above figures include all roads, state and local, and that when trunk highways alone are considered there are a great many states that are ahead of Minnesota, at

Seek Standard Height for Automobile Bumpers

Standardization of the height of automobile bumpers is being urged on all automobile manufacturers by the U. S. department of commerce. The purpose is to prevent the interlocking of bumpers on crowded streets, an experience common to all motorists at various times. The department recommends that front bumpers be 18 inches and rear bumpers 19 inches from the ground.

ITALY SELLS TIRES.

Italy exported approximately 365,675 casings during the first half of this year. The United Kingdom was the largest buyer of Italian tires, followed by British India and Ceylon, Argentina, and Belgium.

LARGE PAVING PROGRAM BEGUN AT TESSVILLE

Village to Spend Million Modernizing Arteries.

Tessville, one of Chicago's recently developed and least known suburbs, has made a bid for motorists' attention as a center for the biggest single highway widening and concrete paving campaigns on the Cook county program for 1928.

ROBERT W. WAALLACE.

With an area of but 1,500 acres adjoining the Chicago city limits at the Devon avenue line, the newly planned model community holds within its limits four major trunk line roads vital to success of the coöperative traffic improvement plans adopted by state, county and municipalities of the Chicago area. They include Devon avenue, Lincoln avenue, Touhy avenue, and Cicero avenue in addition to connecting streets and radial arteries whose improvement is expected to strike directly at the traffic congestion which has seriously affected the through routes northwest of Chicago for more than five years.

Let $450,000 of Contracts.

Robert W. Wallace, Tessville village engineer and member of the engineering firm, composed of Frank T. Sheets, chief engineer of the Illinois highway department; B. D. Barker, chief engineer of the Cook county highway department, and E. J. Flavin, engineer of the forest preserve district, announced yesterday that contracts have been awarded in the village for standard street pavings amounting to $450,000 and that plans are complete for the repaving and widening of the arterial highways through the district.

According to the spring and summer construction orders, Lincoln avenue pavement from the Chicago limits at Devon to Niles Center will be torn up and replaced with county and state pavement 40 feet wide.

Provides Six Traffic Lanes.

This new standard slab will be increased by twenty feet through special assessment funds being collected now by the village, making a uniform 60 foot pavement for six moving lanes of traffic on the Lincoln avenue road.

The present pavement, badly rutted and broken by heavy traffic, has been one of the bad spots on Chicago's highway map for several years.

Condemnation proceedings are reported in progress on the few remaining stretches of narrow right of way along Devon avenue from McCormick road to the west limits of Tessville at Lamon avenue. Plans are complete for the opening and paving with 40 foot concrete of this new through artery to the west.

The county plans to continue the Devon avenue paving west from Tessville to Milwaukee avenue, thus creating a new and important motor route from the lake to the northwest highway system, the first through route in the territory north of Lawrence avenue formerly closed to traffic.

Widen to 40 Feet.

Devon avenue is the main connection south of McCormick, and has afforded only an eastern outlet to that heavy traffic until now. Touhy avenue, another important cross traffic artery, which has been pounded to pieces by heavy traffic, will also be repaved and widened to 40 feet from McCormick west through Tessville to Lamon avenue. Cicero avenue, already an important new through route, forms the fourth neighborhood improvement.

Street paving contracts call for the highest type of concrete construction developed from the famous Bates experimental road tests, according to engineers.

Laid out according to careful zoning plan worked out by Victor H. Michelson and Mayor Walter G. Herbster of Tessville, with the coöperation of the Chicago Regional Planning association and the completion of 32 contracts for sewer and water mains and laterals, the contracts call for 30 foot pavements with thickened edges and longitudinal joints to be laid immediately through all of the properties now owned and being developed by the Chicago firm of Goodson and Wilson.

All of the new streets have been planned as direct connections with the through highway system serving Cook county to the north and northwest. The total cost of highway work in Tessville is expected to reach $1,000,000.

OLD LICENSE PLATE MAY CAUSE TROUBLE IF NOT DESTROYED

Destroy your old license plates or place them under lock and key, is the warning issued by J. H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club.

Every year at this time, police records disclose that some serious crimes and numerous automobile thefts are committed by criminals using cars disguised with last year's license plates.

A criminal may easily elude identification by the use of old license plates which have been cast into the alley on the rubbish pile. In the interests of the community, motorists should take every precaution to prevent thieves from getting 1927 license plates.

YOSEMITE TOURISTS INCREASE.

Surpassing all yearly attendance records, Yosemite closed the 1926-'27 travel season with a total of 490,430 visitors, an increase of 79 per cent over the year previous, when only 274,209 visitors registered at the various park entrances.

HALSTED STREET OPEN TO TRAFFIC AFTER ONE YEAR

A temporary bridge over the Little Calumet river at the city limits on Halsted street has been opened for traffic after a year of complete blockade on that thoroughfare.

The old bridge was disabled last fall just a few days before the time set for completion and opening of the south approach to the bridge, which was a new viaduct over several lines of railway tracks.

The viaduct and paving work had been under construction since last spring, and all traffic from the south and southeast had been following detours to Western avenue in order to reach the city. The condition of Torrence avenue within the city diverted traffic from that route.

When the old bridge fell in a dispute arose between the city, the state, the sanitary district, and other governmental units as to whose fault it was and who should install a new structure. Citizens of the south part of the county were gathered at a meeting by the Chicago Motor club, when a demand was formulated for action. The city then agreed to get the temporary structure in place.

The state and city contemplate building a large permanent structure there shortly, as Halsted street is to be widened to 40 feet by the county to the south, and the city has proceedings under way to widen and pave the street north to 79th street. The city project is expected to be under way next year.

English Use Railway Tank Cars for Milk

Large railway tanks, lined with glass over asbestos to keep the milk at even temperature, are to be tried in England for the conveyance of milk in bulk, states a report from the American consul general at London.

Each tank will hold 3,000 gallons, and milk trains, which run every day of the week, will carry a total of 300,000 gallons of milk on the railroads

Jordan Prices Reduced

REDUCTIONS of from two to three hundred dollars have been made in the prices of the Custom Six and the new Air Line Eight—the best two cars Jordan has ever produced—and by far the most distinctive.

There has been no change in quality.

The Air Line Eight will out-perform any stock car we know of.

It is the first motor car to incorporate aero principles of carburetion—with a startling increase of 30% in power, without an added pound of weight.

The Custom Six is the first small car in America to offer the performance, comfort and style formerly found only in larger, more expensive automobiles. It is a gentleman's car—of fine quality, and a forerunner of what is coming.

All models are equipped with Houdaille shock absorbers, hydraulic four wheel brakes, air cleaner, gas filter, oil filter, motometer, gas gauge on the dash, tilt-ray headlights, stop light—everything you need—with new, modern coachwork by Murray.

Here are the new lower prices:

Air Line Eight Series	Old Price	New Price	Custom Six Series	Old Price	New Price
Sedan	$2195.	$1995.	Sport Salon	$1595.	$1295.

High Bidder Has Message from Officials.

Publication of rumors that the state highway department contemplated awarding a contract for three sections of highway construction on route 121 in Douglas and Edgar counties at a figure approximately $300,000 higher than the lowest bid received evidently has had a confusing effect upon the department.

Inquiry at the state division of highways at Springfield yesterday as to the status of the project was met with pleas of ignorance from office employés. So far as the records of the office show, they said, the contract has not yet been awarded.

It was stated that C. R. Miller, director of public works, and Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer, who have the matter in their hands, were still en tour with Gov. Small, helping the candidate "preach the gospel of hard roads" at downstate points.

Telegram Made Public.

A copy of what purported to be a telegram from Mr. Sheets to Alan J. Parish of Paris, Ill., was made public in Paris during the week. The message contained the following information:

"Contract for route 121, sections 147, 148, and 149, being awarded to you on brick basis, subject to certain right of way conditions. Letter follows. FRANK T. SHEETS."

An effort to obtain from Mr. Parish an inspection of the letter referred to in the supposed telegram was unsuccessful.

"All I know of the situation is contained in the telegram," Mr. Parish informed the correspondent at Paris

Low Bidder Ordered Off.

The facts connected with the bidding on Feb. 1 which aroused the non-Small element of the population of Edgar and Douglas counties were substantially as follows:

Seven contractors submitted proposals for the construction of the three concrete sections of route 121, covering a distance of 15.5 miles. The low bidder was the Wabash Construction company of Vincennes, Ind., whose price was $353,367 for concrete pavement.

The Alan J. Parish company of Paris was the only bidder to make figures on brick pavement. This concern offered to do it with brick for $638,728. That was $285,361 higher than the Wabash company's figure for concrete.

A bid from the Paris company on doing the same work with concrete was also received. It amounted to $387,602. That was $34,235 more than the Wabash company bid.

Expected Bids to Rule.

After the opening of bids the contractors, except Mr. Parish, met at the highway division offices to inspect the tabulations and all accepted the verdict of the figures as final. They congratulated the Wabash company on its contract.

Officials of the Wabash company, expecting the usual rule of bidding to be followed, took measures to move equipment along the line of the construction project. Some of it was in place when the company received word from the state highway department that the contract was to be awarded to the sole bidder on brick construction, whose proposal was almost double that of the low bidder.

Officials of the Wabash company communicated with the state highway department, they declare, and were told to keep off the ground with equipment. They were informed that the Parish company was to be given the contract.

Mr. Parish Is Interviewed.

Mr. Parish, at Paris, apparently is satisfied with the turn of events. He told a correspondent that he would begin work on the road just as soon as the weather would permit, and that he would move on equipment just as soon as grading is possible. He added that he was not worrying about the status of the contract.

Mr. Parish is the president of the Illinois Highway and Municipal Contractors' association.

PIKE'S PEAK ROAD WILL BECOME U. S. PROPERTY IN 1935

"A piece of news of interest to motorists is that Pike's Peak highway is to belong to the United States in 1935," Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, said yesterday. "Secretary of Agriculture William Jardine made this possible by accepting the offer of the Pike's Peak Auto Highway company to convey to the United States its present highway to the summit of the famous mountain, together with 500 acres of privately owned land and all structures appurtenant to the operation of the road.

"The company reserved the right of use, without competition and at prevailing toll rates, until the close of the season of 1935. This offer was accepted in preference to a proposal to construct a second toll road to the summit of the peak, on the opposite side of the mountain, with the understanding that at the end of six years the new road would become public property without cost."

Secretary Jardine expressed the belief that a single road to the peak would be sufficient to accommodate the public.

Precautions of Simple Nature Prevent Thefts

There are a few simple precautions which, if automobile owners will observe them, will reduce greatly the number of automobile thefts, according to a bulletin of the Chicago Motor Club.

Obviously, the first essential is to lock the car securely whenever it is not in use. Not only should the ignition or gear lock be secured, but the doors on closed automobiles should be carefully fastened.

Another precaution mentioned is that cars should not be parked in poorly lighted places, especially alleys or streets where there is not much traffic.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

AN IDEA ON ECONOMY.

Chicago, March 4.—We hear a great deal these days about traffic congestion and usually the relief is only brought about by enormous expenditure of money. If McCormick road were extended one mile south to Bryn Mawr avenue, which could be done at a nominal expense, all of the people of the north and northwest sides would be privileged to use McCormick road. By this extension the efficacy of this road would be increased almost 100 per cent. It would prove a distinct benefit to the entire population of the city, rather than to a few residents of the Edgewater and Rogers Park districts. Surely the authorities must come to realize the necessity for this undertaking. W. A. BECKER.

BAFFLES HIS UNDERSTANDING.

Chicago, March 5.—It has often occurred to me that the ending of the McCormick road pavement at Devon avenue was only of a temporary nature. Every year I have expected to witness the opening of the street south to Foster avenue. As it exists at present, it is practically useless for the majority of the citizens of Chicago. By extending it a mile and a half south it would become one of the most important thoroughfares in the city.

The sanitary district owns the entire right of way, and no enormous cost would be attached to acquiring it as in other major improvements. The paving could be accomplished at a nominal cost, and it is beyond my understanding why the work was not undertaken years ago.

Surely this matter should have the attention of the sanitary district immediately. MORTON S. JOHNSON.

SLAUGHTER ISLES.

Chicago, March 9.—The so-called safety isles should be named "slaughter isles." When a machine runs up on one of them the pedestrian has no chance. A few days ago I witnessed a car containing six sober persons run up on one of these concrete mounds. The car was wrecked and two girls injured. Two days later another car ran astraddle of the isle, bounded in the air, and came down right on the safety platform. Two weeks before a man driving with his family ran squarely on one of these mounds. Each time a crash occurs the city repairs (at the cost of the motorists) and replaces these islands. They should be done away with or flood lights installed to illuminate the obstruction for motorists. The island I have in mind is Western avenue between Belmont and Devon avenues. L. V. B.

WORK, BUT NO STREET.

Chicago, March 5.—Last summer considerable grading was done on an extension of McCormick road south of Devon avenue. Later cinders were used to indicate a roadway, and I assumed that the people of Chicago were soon to enjoy the privileges of the use of McCormick road. If the public could be permitted the use of the present cindered roadway as far south as Bryn Mawr avenue, it would prove of some benefit.

Thousands of automobiles would make use of this connection with the paved part of McCormick daily. The people of the north and northwest sides could also enjoy the use of this thoroughfare, which is practically useless as it now exists.

I would say that even though the street could not be paved, the public should be permitted to use the cinder roadway now existing.

UNABLE TO SEE WHY.

Chicago, March 9.—It has seemed to me that street improvements on the south side have rather run to north and south streets, which, of course, are sadly needed, but occasionally we like to go east and west from these north and south arteries.

As you state, 55th street is a continuous street from the lake to the Joliet road—some 17 miles. There is no doubt it should be paved all the way through as soon as possible.

From my neighborhood we have a very fine double paved street south in Stony Island avenue. It stops at 95th street, and as 95th street is in bad condition, Stony Island is seldom used in getting to Palos Park forest preserves.

Ninety-fifth street runs for twenty-seven miles continuously from the lake to the Joliet troad. It is at the end of such streets as Stony Island, Cottage Grove and Ashland, all of which are main arteries, and well paved.

For the life of me, I do not see why the city administration does not pave 95th street. D. W. WESTERWELT.

THE STEAM AUTOMOBILE.

Chicago, March 2.—I have often wondered why the steam driven automobile has not had more success in the American car market. Although I possess a gas car myself, I believe the steamer has every advantage over the gas car except quick getaway from a cold start, and even there a steamer gets under way in less than two minutes from a cold condition.

Once in motion, the steamer has it all over the gas car; more speed, more acceleration, no gears, quieter machine, no stink, more rugged engine, and burns any kind of liquid fuel.

Evidently the gas car manufacturers have reached their ultimate in engine improvement and are now tinkering with body designs in the effort to be progressive. Now is the time for the steam car manufacturer to start something; borrow the excellent body design of the gas car and turn out a steamer of as good appearance and better engine than the present boulevard fumigator. J. S. POLLACK.

ADDISON STREET REQUIRES LITTLE TO MAKE ARTERY

A few blocks of new paving and a few blocks of wider pavement would put Addison street into leadership of a distinctly preferred class of east and west arteries on the north side.

As it stands, protected with stop signs from side traffic, it offers a practical east and west connection to those familiar with it, but the thoroughfare could be placed on a first class basis with just a little more fixing.

Probably the most objectionable portion of the street today is that portion between Cicero avenue and the North Western railway viaduct. There the pavement is such that damage to vehicles is probable at any speed faster than a crawl.

Aside from this the artery extends almost straight west from Lake Michigan to Cumberland avenue, a distance of nine and a half miles.

Log of Surface Conditions.

A log of the surface conditions was completed yesterday by the highway improvement department of the Chicago Motor club. The conditions are indicated by number on the accompanying map. The explanations are:

1. Thirty-six feet of good pavement from Sheridan road to Clark street.
2. At Broadway angle changes to due east and west.
3. A six foot jog to the north at Halsted street.
4. Pavement widens to 41 feet at Clark street.
5. Pavement narrows to 33 feet at Robey.
6. Pavement again 40 feet at Elston.
7. Two blocks of ragged and wavy surface.
8. Pavement narrows to 30 feet at Narragansett.

Crosses Railway at Grade.

9. Milwaukee railroad grade crossing on switch tracks. Pavement widens to 40 feet.
10. Asphalt ends at Harlem avenue and 20 foot concrete is laid to Forest Preserve road.
11. At this road pavement widens to 40 feet to Cumberland avenue.
12. Cumberland avenue is new 40 foot pavement from Grand to Irving Park boulevard.
13. Bridge over Des Plaines on Irving Park now under construction.

Complete Bridge July 1.

The bridge over the Des Plaines will be completed and open for traffic about July 1, according to the county bridge department. When this is completed Addison street will be an important highway, because the county has just let contracts for the widening of Irving Park boulevard to 40 feet from a point at about Narragansett avenue to the Mannheim road. During the building operations Addison will provide the most direct detour.

In the event that the city of Chicago will put the finishing touches on the Addison pavement there is little doubt that the artery will be utilized as a great public convenience during the coming season.

Has No Street Cars.

Addison is without street car tracks and is susceptible to even further development by the city as an arterial highway from east to west. It is accessible at the east either from Sheridan road at the park front or over Sheffield avenue from the west section of Sheridan road, west of Broadway.

When and if the state builds the North avenue section of route 54, connecting with route 4 to the left, Addison will be an important connection for traffic from the west destined for north and northeast Chicago.

Taxes Upon Gasoline Are Boosted in Maine

The gasoline tax in Maine has been increased from 3 to 4 cents a gallon, as the result of an act passed at last winter's legislative sessions. Forty-six states in the Union now have a tax of from 2 to 5 cents a gallon on gasoline sold within the state boundaries. It is estimated that the total gasoline tax collections for 1927 in the United States will be between $250,000,000 and $275,000,000. This tax on the motorist is in addition to the registration fees, which totaled $271,171,724 for the first months in 1927.

News and Views of the Auto Trade

A merger of importance which was announced this week was that of the Brockway Motor Truck corporation of Cortland, N. Y., and the Indiana Truck corporation, of Marion, Ind. The total sales of these two concerns in 1927 were in excess of $15,000,000. Combined assets are $9,000,000.

The merger is in line with the present strong trend toward consolidation in all branches of business. Each company has been working in its respective district in manufacturing complete lines of trucks from one to seven and a half tons capacity.

The consolidated concern is the third largest in the country exclusively engaged in motor truck manufacture.

For a distinguished individual advertisement deemed most effective in its use of pictorial illustrations in any form during 1927 an advertisement of the Cadillac company has just received the Edward Bok award conferred by a jury chosen from the Harvard graduate school of business administration.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

40 FOOT ROAD PRE-EMPTS OLD TROLLEY ROUTE

Electric Right of Way to Serve Motors Soon.

The motor car has crowded another electric trolley line out of the transportation field. This time it is the Chicago and Southern Traction company, which was compelled to suspend because of loss of revenue. The loss is chargeable to the increased use of the motor car in connection with the gradually reduced service of the utility that resulted from car ownership by its patrons.

The Will county board of supervisors has just concluded negotiations for the purchase of the right of way formerly used by the electric line, from the Kankakee county line north to Monee, a distance of six and one-half miles.

The strip of land just acquired has a width of 50 feet and represents 43 acres.

Right of Way for Road.

The price paid to the traction company was at the rate of $200 per acre. Paralleling this strip must come 40 feet additional, which is now being purchased from land owners at the same rate. This will supply the requisite 90 feet necessary for the construction of the new superhighway which is to be built by the state between Kankakee and Chicago.

The contracts for the remainder will be let as soon as the right of way is deeded to the state. Practically all of that portion of the road in Kankakee county has been secured.

The purchase by Will county of the traction line right of way, gives a notable impetus to the construction, leaving but a few miles from Monee north to Chicago Heights to be secured later.

Terminus at Harvey.

The terminus of the new road will be at Harvey, passing about two miles west of Chicago Heights.

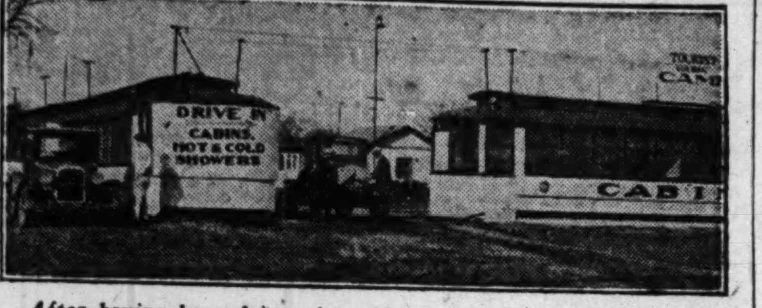
It is just two years since the Chicago and Southern Traction line gave up the ghost. It was among the first electric interurban lines to be constructed in northern Illinois and proved profitable during its earlier history.

As the automobile and motor truck incerased in numbers, the revenue of the electric line dropped proportionately and, when the showing of operating loss became great enough to justify its suspension, the Illinois Commerce commission, issued the necessary order.

The money derived from the sale of the right of way will be distributed among the stockholders. It will come as a belated dividend. This is believed to be the first instance where right of way for a state concrete pavement in Illinois was the former line of a railroad.

Route 49, with its four lanes, will carry much of the vehicular traffic which now congests route 1, known as the Dixie highway, which skirts the eastern edge of Illinois. It will also furnish a direct outlet for traffic to the north from route 25 from Mattoon and Urbana to Kankakee, which now detours to the east to reach route 1.

Final Humiliation for Old Street Cars



After having been driven from the streets by automobile invasion, these discarded cars at Lawrence, Kas., have been turned into a tourist camp. It may be some satisfaction to the old trolleys to know that the camp is counted one of the best in the country.

FIND THAT TIRED FEELING IS DUE TO NERVE STRAIN

Neurologists who have made a close study of the cause of fatigue after a long day's drive in an automobile, attribute a large share of that tired feeling to nervous strain rather than muscular effort. The constant jarring and vibration transmitted to the driver through the steering column and wheel irritate and strain the nerves until fatigue is apparent, experts declare.

There is likewise a nervous strain resulting from mechanical rumbles and body rattles which are present in some cars, it is pointed out. Passengers suffer, too, from the anxiety for their safety and fear of being tossed against the car ceiling when going over rough roads or bumps at high speed, he stated.

BREAK RECORDS FOR PRODUCTION OF AUTO UNITS

Five Makers, Exclusive of Ford, Show Gains.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

Detroit, Mich., March 10.—The first week of March witnessed an unmistakable stepping up in the automobile industry, especially in the output of passenger cars. February showed remarkable gains, the production of no less than seven companies increasing 40 per cent over the corresponding period of last year. Five manufacturers set new high records.

Encouraged by this unexpected increase, all seven of the concerns are planning further increases for March and April.

The output of 116,943 cars and trucks in February established a new record for the Chevrolet plant. This surpassed the previous high record of 115,623 units, established in May of last year. The schedule for March is set for 135,000 units.

Increases for March.

Hudson-Essex output was 30,300—a new record. Production will rise still further in March in anticipation of a heavy demand for early spring delivery. The Oakland plant set its second monthly record this year with an output of 26,264 Oaklands and Pontiacs, which compares with 9,634 units in February last year. March production is scheduled for 27,773 units. A new assembly plant is being rushed to completion and will be in operation April 1.

A gain in production of 26 per cent is officially stated by Dodge with an output in February of 20,727 units, and a steadily rising schedule is announced.

Packard, in the high price field, established a new monthly record with an output of 4,404 cars. The previous high mark, made in a long month last year, was 4,373. February's shipment in 1927 was 2,186.

In High Production.

Graham-Paige Motors is now in high production, and still climbing higher. The output of 4,019 cars in February was 100 per cent gain over the corresponding month last year, and the March schedule calls for 700 units.

Hupp broke all previous monthly records with shipments of 5,214 units, compared with the previous record of 5,075 established last November, and carried over into March approximately 3,000 unfilled orders. Seven thousand cars, of which 2,000 are of the "eight" models, is the schedule set for March.

Nash is stepping up production in its Racine, Milwaukee, and Kenosha, Wis., plants, and will soon be on a 500 per day production.

Official reports from Ford is that greatly increased production is now being made, with a daily output of approximately 1,200 units. Additional assembly plants are now being reopened throughout the country, which means that public demand for the new line will be satisfied to a greater extent from now on than during the last three months.

Before leaving for Florida late in February, Henry Ford settled every mechanical detail of the car. The only change admitted by officials of the company, however, from the car exhibited in the Ford shows during the winter is the addition of the parking brake.

Ford plants were recently opened in Chicago, San Francisco, Kansas City, Louisville, Kearny, N. J., and Norfolk. Plants in St. Louis, Seattle, and Chester, Pa., will soon be in operation, according to official statements.

Summed up, the weekly production of passenger cars is in excess of what it was at this time last year, an excellent sign from a standpoint of industry progress for the current year. Several companies that have been seemingly slow in getting into even normal mass production are increasing daily and contributing materially to the heavy weekly output.

One year ago Ford was producing approximately 20,000 units per week more than he is doing at the present time.

Manufacturers as a whole see nothing in the near future to indicate that the present rate of production will experience a decline, but on the contrary a steady increase is confidently looked for.

Present business is not confined to any one class of car, although the low and medium priced cars are being purchased in fairly large quantities. Two or three companies have fallen behind somewhat in the number of sales made, due, it is thought, by rumored changes that are contemplated. Whether or not changes are being considered is simply a matter of speculation on the part of the buying public.

Employment in the automobile plants and accessories shops of Detroit continues to show a weekly increase, with a present total of 222,310. This is an increase for the week of 1,935, and an increase over the corresponding week of 1927 of 9,901.

IOWA CITY, SHOWS NO MERCY TO 1927 LICENSE TAG CARS

Word comes from Iowa City, Ia., that Illinois and other out of state motorists whose cars are still decorated with 1927 license tags, are being arrested, held and fined by the local police. Motor clubs are warning tourists of the situation.

MOTOR COACHES' OPERATION BESET BY COMPLEXITIES

Forty-eight separate and distinct jurisdictions in this country have 48 separate and distinct sets of regulations affecting motor coach operation, Robert H. Newcomb, formerly of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, asserted recently before the Society of Automotive Engineers meeting.

If there are no statutes in a certain jurisdiction, the courts can always be called upon to interpret the law covering conditions in a state that has no regulatory statute. It is only when the highway vehicle crosses a state line that the confusion of jurisdiction and the absence of congressional legislation steps in to emphasize the necessity for coördinated law.

The varying phases of the problem of carrying passengers are sufficiently vague to provide ample material for discussion, according to Mr. Newcomb. When one stops to investigate the carriage of freight on the highway, complications pile up at such a rapid rate that he is brave indeed who attempts to unravel the snarl.

This much is certain, whether any given operation makes the operator a common carrier is a matter of fact and not of law, and no operator can be declared a common carrier on the highway, whether of passengers or freight, and have that declaration valid, he said.

IMPORTANT AIRMAN FEATURES

Air-cooling—the one efficient, trouble-free, economical cooling principle

Acceleration—the swift-darting, quick maneuvering of the pursuit plane

Synchronized, 4-wheel, hydraulic brakes—just a touch and you get action

Speed of a new kind—the world's fastest car in a day's run

Riding comfort—the most comfortable mile-a-minute car ever built

Larger motor—a wealth of power for any temperature, altitude or road condition

Engine smoothness—like the balanced purr of a turbine

7-passenger models—(128-inch wheelbase)—the up-to-date family cars—commodious and light weight

Advanced designs—having their counterpart in aeronautical engineering

FRANKLIN Owners constitute the most loyal group in automobile history. No other car enjoys such a high percentage of repeat sales. It has become an established fact that the Franklin Owner sees no other car on the road with envious eyes.

An air-cooled motor has 100 fewer parts. There is no water pump; no connections to leak or rust. Repair bills are reduced to the minimum. Weather conditions never impair this motor's efficiency. Any day in the year it is entirely free from cooling troubles. Its sustained high power contributes to that higher average speed which makes the new Airman "the world's fastest car in a day's run."

Franklin offers a degree of roadability, riding comfort and easy control found in no other car. Such exclusive features as the simplicity and light weight of the air-cooled motor, the shock-absorbing chassis and soft-acting, full-elliptic springs, give Franklin this undisputed supremacy.

One demonstration—and you will understand the complete satisfaction, the pride and pleasure of Franklin Ownership. Arrange for that demonstration this week. The wide variety of Airman models includes luxurious 7-passenger cars, ideal for family use. Payments out of income may be arranged.

Today's Chandler is One of America's Greatest Automobiles

AFTER carefully examining this year's automobiles of various makes—we are doubly convinced that the new Chandler offers more style and luxury—more real comfort—much livelier performance—than buyers can find in any other car within hundreds of dollars of the price.

Buyers See the Value
Sales Shoot Ahead

This same conclusion is evidently shared by hundreds and thousands of buyers. For Chandler sales everywhere are beating last year all hollow!

Today's new Chandler is proving itself one of America's greatest automobiles. Chandler's Big Six outsteps and outclimbs any six it meets—and Chandler's Royal Eight will likewise outperform any eight or six. What's more, they offer you, besides, the most important automobile improvement in many years . . .

Easier, Safer Control
Any Speed You Drive

Westinghouse Vacuum Brakes! As the first American car equipped with this brake development of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, Chandler is absolutely effortless to control at any speed.

Just the softest, gentlest touch of your toe on the brake pedal applies the brakes on all four wheels with velvety firmness—and the car comes to a much quicker and safer stop with a "cushioned" smoothness you have never before known.

High-Powered Action
Everybody Praises

And, say—if you have never driven a Chandler, drive one now. Step on the gas trigger—feel that irresistible, instantaneous surge of Pikes Peak high-velocity power. Speed up, then touch the brake pedal—ah, that's control! A car that not only gets away in a hurry, but one you can stop in a hurry!

And to lubricate the chassis from end to end, you merely press a plunger with your foot—and Chandler's "One Shot" centralized lubricating system does the whole job automatically. Saving money. Keeping the car in condition. Prolonging its life.

Thirty Smart Models
$995 to $2195 [illegible]

And what a variety of models to pick from—thirty of them—magnificent outside and inside. Come see—come drive—compare!

Some of our real estate news today is given tone through the entry into these pages of Frederick Stock, who, as is known to most of us, has attached renown instead of notoriety to Dad Dearborn's name by his leadership of one of the world's best orchestras—the Chicago Symphony. Mr. Stock is a purchaser of an apartment in the "100 per cent co-op" which is to be erected at the southeast corner of Astor and Bank streets—in the heart of the goldest part of the Gold Coast.

The new structure is to be fourteen stories high and it will occupy the site of the Clark residence, which stood at the corner, and the Rhinehart home adjacent to the former on Banks street. These houses have been razed and work is under way on the foundations.

Rebori, Wentworth, Dewey & McCormick, Inc., A. N. Rebori, architect, prepared the plans for the building, which, exclusive of the land, it is stated, will represent an investment of $750,000. There are to be twelve apartments, one to a floor, with the exception of the top one, which will take the form of a two story residence. And this residence will have eighteen rooms.

Eighteen Room Town House.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Perry will occupy the eighteen rooms as their town house. Mr. Perry is a wealthy stock broker.

All the other apartments will be divided into rooms to suit the whims of their owners, among whom are Mr. and Mrs. John Wentworth, Lawrence K. Callahan and his mother, Dr. and Mrs. Otho F. Ball, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe, the latter the daughter of Mr. Stock.

Each apartment is to have at least two wood burning fireplaces, one in the library and one in the living room. And here is a bit of cheer for those of us who feed regularly on sour grapes. These fireplaces besides their regular duties sometimes act as phones from the flats below, which might be all right were Mr. Stock improvising, but which might not be so good should the daughter of the family decide to warble "O, Ain't I Unlucky, My Sweetie Likes Onions."

But this isn't a serious matter, and there will be little chance of any other noises in this particular building, for attention will be given to sound deadening. Then heavy acoustical sound deadening material will be employed in the elevator machinery penthouse so the tenant owners won't be annoyed from that source.

Hidden Radiators.

A novelty will be the heating arrangements for the apartments. There will be no radiators in view, these necessities being hidden in the walls. Of course there will be water purifiers for each apartment, for we could hardly expect our Gold Coasters to drink ordinary chlorine flavored lake water.

Discussing the exterior for a moment, the front elevations will be generally of pressed brick and limestone. The first two floors will be entirely of stone, as will be the two upper stories constituting Mr. Perry's residence. Colorful brick panels between the third and fourth floors will be found.

The main entrance will be on Astor street. There will be a circular reception room with marble walls and other trimmings to assure visitors that they're not entering a common vegetable variety of flat building.

Mr. Wentworth and Dr. Ball, previously mentioned, purchased the site at a figure said to equal the per foot price of any other property in the neighborhood. It is just across the street from the home of E. A. Cudahy Sr. The Dahl-Stedman company has the general contract. Financing is through a building loan with the New York Life Insurance company at a 5½ per cent interest rate. Hogan & Farwell, Inc., have charge of the sale.

MRS. J. O. ARMOUR LEASES FLAT AT 3400 SHERIDAN

Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, who now lives at 3330 Sheridan road, has just closed a lease on a sixteen room apartment at 3400 Sheridan road. Hogan and Farwell, Inc., have been appointed exclusive renting agents for the structure, which contains sixteen 11 room apartments, eight 16 room flats and a roof bungalow.

Furniture Concern Leases Building on South Halsted

The Grand Rapids Furniture company, whose main office is at 229 South Wabash, has leased from Samuel Phillips the three story building at 6614-16 South Halsted street for a term of ten years where it will open community store No. 2 for the sale of rugs, furniture and radios. The firm is adding a floor and is doing considerable remodeling. Leo W. Hoffman of Hoffman & Golder was attorney for the lessee, and Moses, Kennedy, Stein & Bachrach acted for the lessor.

New Garage for 11th and State Corner

CHARLES VOPICKA.

Work is expected to start shortly on a new garage building at the southeast corner of State and 11th streets, just north of the Central police station now under construction. For the time being there will be only five stories, but foundations will be laid to carry five more and perhaps nine more.

At present the plan is to have a ten story garage eventually, but should it be more advantageous one of the garage floors may be remodeled for offices and nine more office floors added, making a fourteen story building with four floors devoted to automobiles and ten to general office occupancy.

Fox & Fox drew the plans for the structure, which is to be unusually attractive for a building of this type. It is to occupy an irregular site 80x140 feet, with frontage on both State and 11th. A small parcel, 40x25 feet, at the corner, improved with an old three story building, could not be purchased so the owners of the rest of the ground will build around it.

The building will be of reinforced concrete construction, with the front elevations of pressed brick and stone.

There will be accommodations for 400 automobiles. Work is scheduled to start in about three weeks, with completion Aug. 1. It is stated the five story building and the land will represent an investment of about $600,000.

The owner is the Chicago State company, of which Charles J. Vopicka, former American minister to the Balkan states and now a school board trustee, is president.

C. D. PERRY SELLS HIS BUILDING AT 25 SCOTT ST.

Charles Day Perry of Perry, Inc., couturiers, has sold his four story six apartment building at 26 Scott street, on the Gold Coast, to an undisclosed purchaser for whom the Chicago Title & Trust Co. took title. The price was not disclosed, but the sale was made subject to an incumbrance of $59,000. Among the tenants in the building, which has attracted considerable attention due to its interior arrangement, are Mrs. Howard Logan, Theodore Stempfel, and I. J. Dahle. Daniel Connell & Co. were brokers for the seller and Sudler & Co. acted for the buyer. Ivor Jeffreys and Elmer E. Jackson were attorneys.

COOK BROTHERS PAY $9,000 FOR 25X25 PARCEL

Chester A. and Raymond C. Cook have purchased from Joseph F. Sturdy a parcel 25x25 feet at the rear of 150-56 East Superior street for a reported $9,000. This holding has no street frontage, but faces an alley to the east and north and rounds out a holding of 95x125 feet at the same address which the Cook brothers recently bought from Louis G. Caldwell. As previously stated the Cooks intend remodeling the five story building on the property into studios. J. J. Hutchinson of McMenemy & Martin, Inc., was broker in the Sturdy deal.

PLAN $500,000 4 STORY HOTEL FOR OAK PARK

Oak Park is to have a new hotel. Jerome Goldstine yesterday bought the northwest corner of Wisconsin avenue and Pleasant street, 107x170, from Barbara Schwalbe of Denver, Colo., and will erect a 110 room four story fireproof building, to cost a reported $500,000. Conner & O'Connor are the architects. Work will start the first of next month, with completion scheduled for Oct. 1. In addition to the hotel, there'll be nine stores. Cary E. De Butts represented the seller and W. H. Wright & Co. the buyer.

JAMES S. WEEMS BUYS RESIDENCE OF MARTIN ROCHE

The estate of the late Martin Roche, one of the founders of the firm of Holabird & Roche, has sold the former home of the architect at 420 Roslyn place to James S. Weems for an undisclosed consideration. Mr. Roche purchased the residence in 1920 and had it attractively remodeled. Mr. Weems will make his residence in the house. Ruth McDonald of H. O. Stone & Co. was only broker in the transaction. Wheelock, Newey & McKenzie were attorneys for the estate.

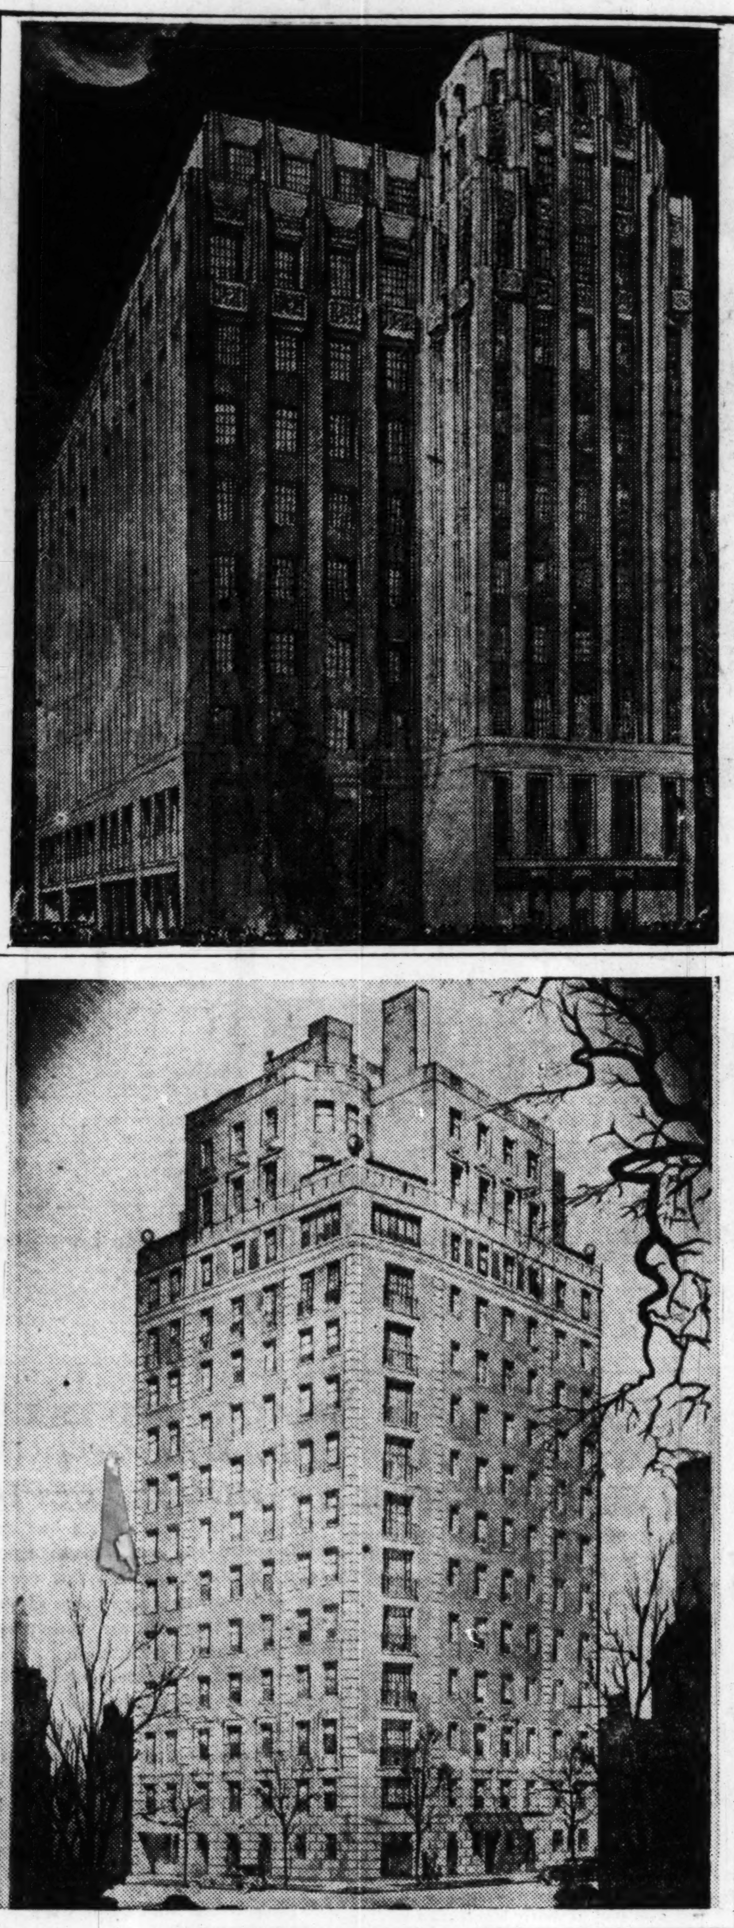
Walgreen Will Open 200th Shop at Madison-Austin

The Walgreen company will open the 200th store in its chain at the southeast corner of Madison and Austin where it has just closed a ten year lease on a shop measuring 49x46 feet. The lessors are Efstrateos and Gust Koclanes. Pete Koclanes was broker for the lessors and Gus Manos for the lessees. Isadore Goodman was attorney.

Albert O. Anderson to Talk Before "Y" Class in Realty

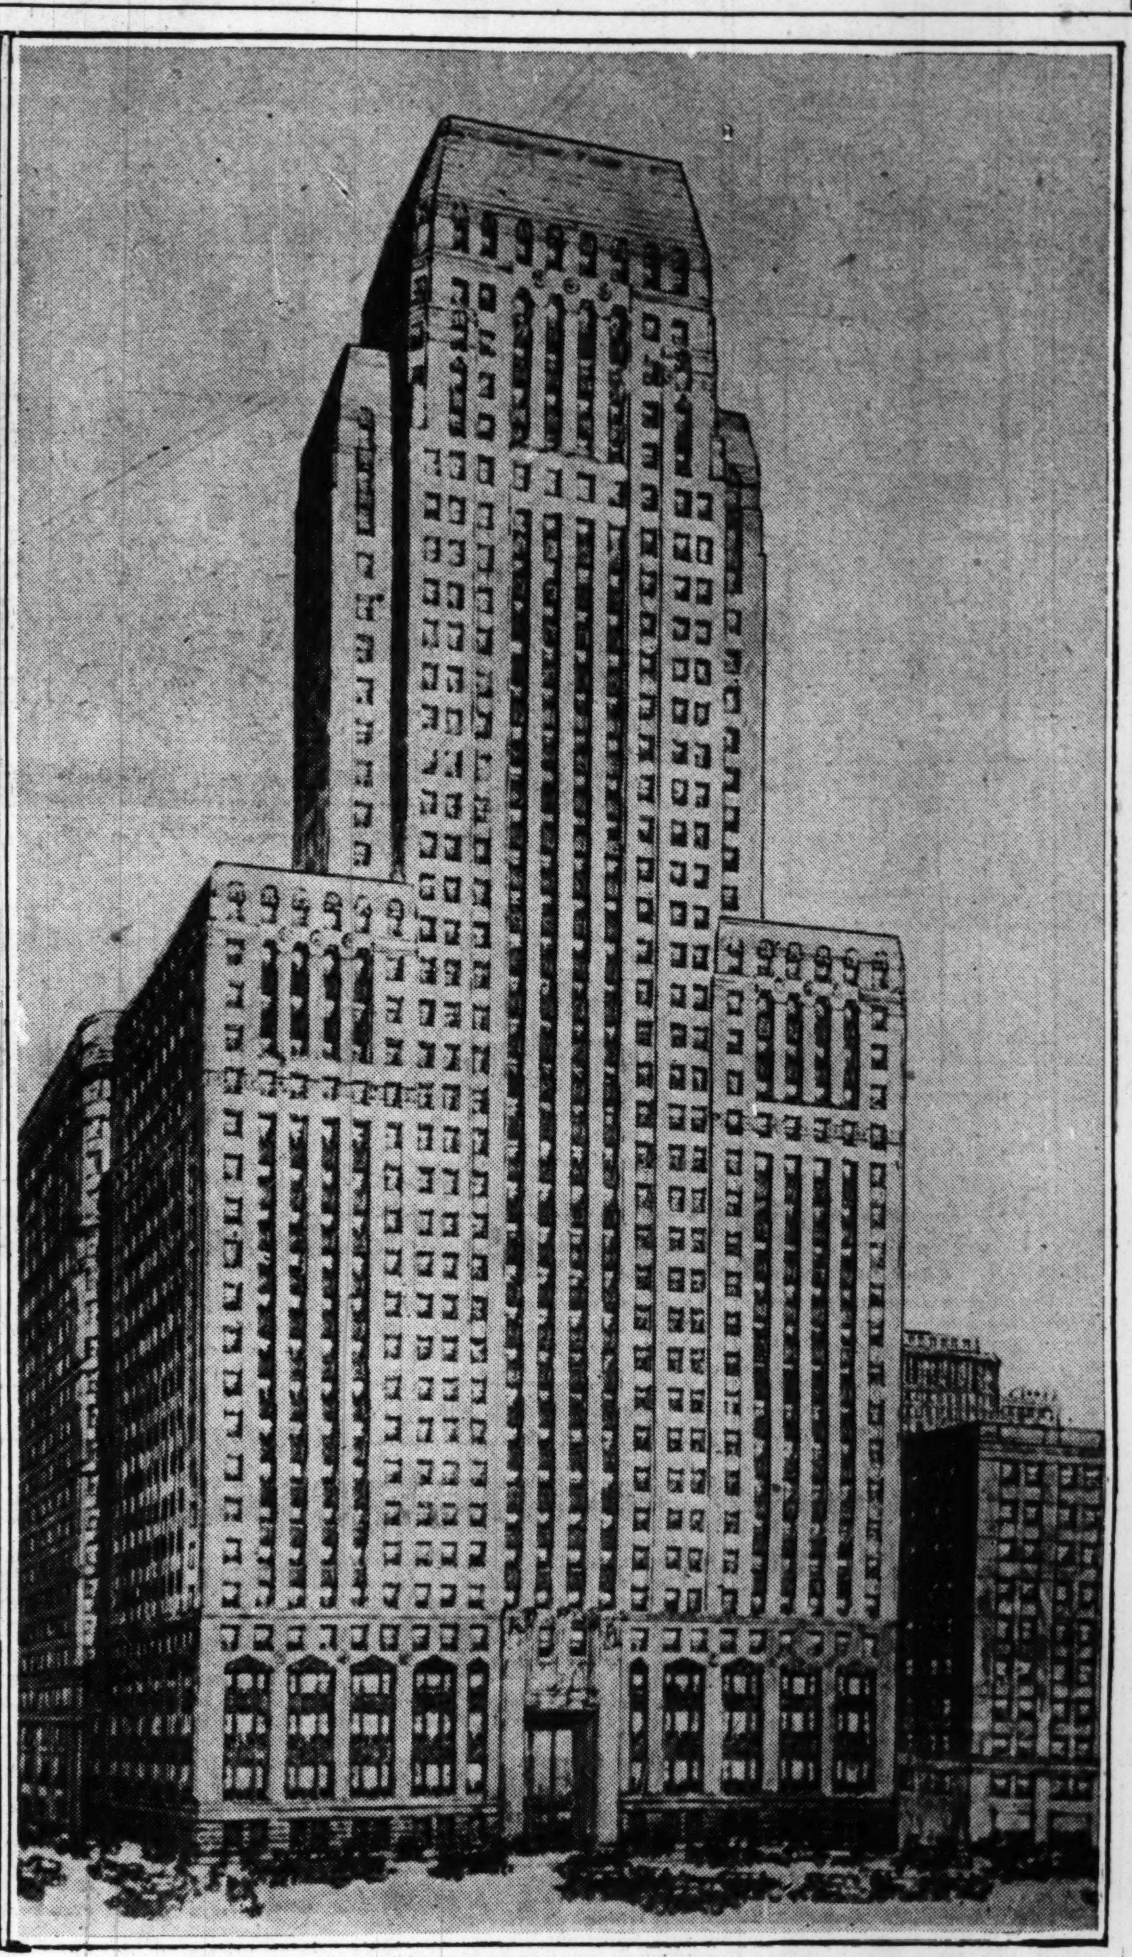
Former Ald. Albert O. Anderson will talk on "The Chicago Zoning Ordinance, Building Restrictions and City Planning" before the Chicago Real Estate Board's class in real estate education at Central Y. M. C. A. next Tuesday evening.

A TRIO OF BIG BUILDING PROJECTS



Fox & Fox, architects, drew the plans for the upper of these two buildings, which will be erected on an L-shaped piece of ground at State and 11th. For the present five floors, to be devoted to garage purposes, will be erected. Later either five or nine floors will be added. Charles Morgan drew this picture.

The lower building is a fourteen story co-op for the southeast corner of Astor and Banks streets. Among those who will have flats in it are Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and I. Newton Perry, who will have the 18 room residence at the top. Rebori, Wentworth, Dewey & McCormick, Inc., A. N. Rebori, architect, drew the plans. Mr. Rebori also made this perspective.



Graham, Anderson, Probst & White designed the huge structure shown above—to be the city's tallest bank building—to replace the ancient Chamber of Commerce building at the southeast corner of La Salle and Washington. It will be the home of the Foreman banks—the Foreman National and the Foreman Trust and Savings bank, now across the street in the Stock Exchange building. The site fronts 181 feet on La Salle and 123 feet on Washington street.

The Conway building, shown at your left, will be linked with the new bank building by a four story structure. Four floors of space in the west part of the Conway building have been leased by the bank, thus giving the bank entrances on three streets, La Salle, Washington, and Clark. Wreckers will start tearing down the Chamber of Commerce building on May 1. Completion of the Foreman building is promised for one year later—May 1, 1929. Details are given in the next column.

Ashland Sale Is Closed at 'Record Price'

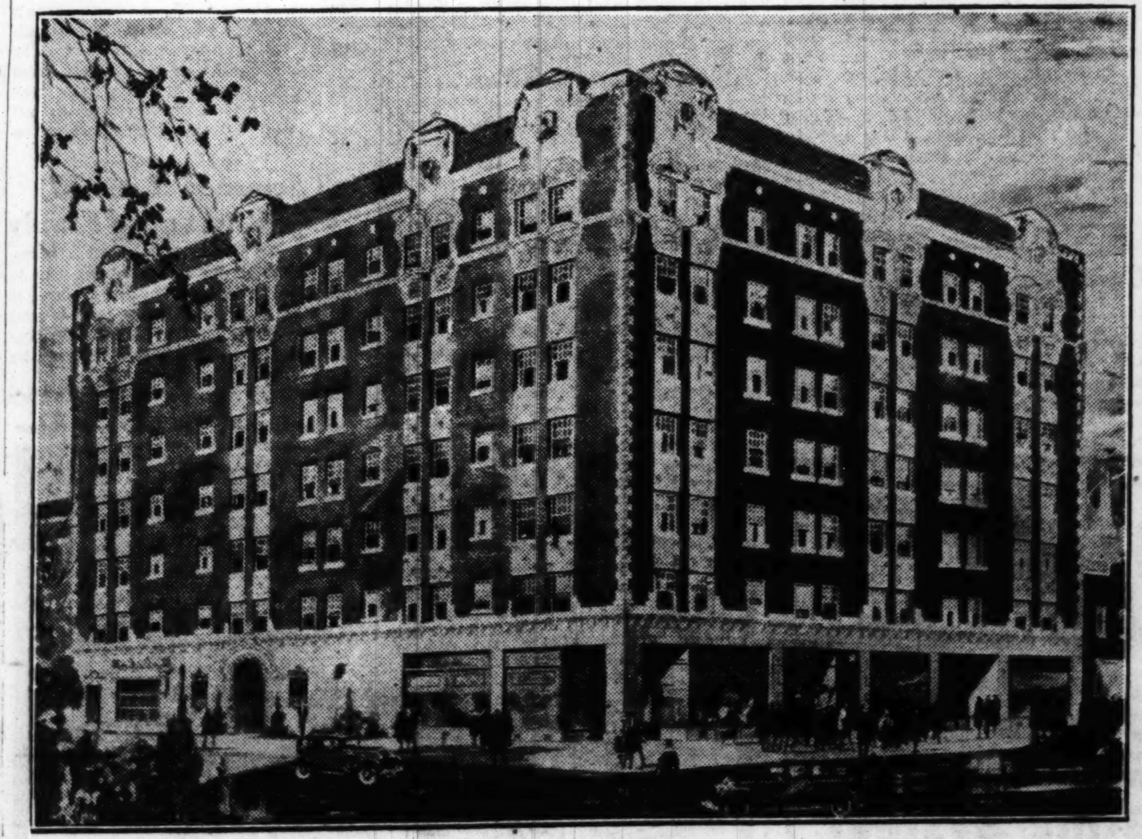
Negotiations for the purchase of the Ashland block, at the northeast corner of Clark and Randolph, announced in this department on Dec. 13, 1927, were concluded yesterday, according to Fred J. Tucker of Willoughby & Co., brokers for the buyers. "Interests closely identified with H. M. Byllesby & Co.," is the only comment the brokers will make regarding the identity of the purchasers.

They also decline to tell what was paid, although they declare it was "the largest sale of property in fee ever recorded in the history of Chicago." The property was purchased, so they say, for investment. The Ashland block will be rejuvenated, with the thought in mind that 'in ten years the property may be ready for and susceptible to improvement for its highest and best uses. Plans as to the type of ultimate improvements, however, are as yet indefinite."

The properties involved in this transaction have an interesting historical background. They've been owned by only two families since 1833, at which time Maj. Julius J. B. Kingsbury, then stationed at Fort Dearborn, bought one of the lots from Henry A. Kinzie for $58 and the other from Mark Beaubien for $60. The Ashland block was erected in 1892. The property bought yesterday is 160x182. The sellers were Alexander J. A. Alexander, Kenneth D. Alexander, and Lucy Alexander Simms. The undisclosed purchasers also bought the leasehold and buildings through purchase of the stock of the Ashland Block association.

J. Alexander Waller and the Northern Trust company represented the sellers. Chapman & Cutler, Whitman, Miller & Coon, and Cutting, Moore & Sidley were attorneys. Willoughby & Co. will manage the property for the new owners.

FOR 67 APARTMENT DWELLERS



Maurice L. Bein designed the above building, which is under construction at the southwest corner of Greenview and Morse, Rogers Park, for Schoenlank & Kirschner. When completed it will contain 67 small apartments and five stores. Charles H. Kellner made this rendering.

Buys 70 Acres on Western Avenue for Subdivision

Joseph Seranella bought seventy acres on Western avenue, about 700 feet south of the Olympic Highlands subdivision on Western and Lincoln highway, for a reported $1,650 an acre, and will subdivide. The Hensel-Coffman company and Thomas K. Valos & Co. were brokers.

New 7 Story Apartment for Rogers Park

Rogers Park is to have another imposing building in the "Mayflower apartments," which are being erected at the southwest corner of Morse and Greenview avenues. The Mayflower is to be seven stories high and will have five stores and sixty-seven flats of one, two and three rooms.

If there is any novelty in connection with this structure it will be the fact that the flats, although comparatively small, will not be furnished. However, the rental of the future tenants will include "carpeted floors, electric refrigeration, mechanical ventilation and folding breakfast sets."

Maurice L. Bein designed the Mayflower, which will be of concrete construction. The street facades will be of face brick ornamented with terra cotta. Then the greater part of the south and west returns will be of face brick. Green Spanish tile mansard roofs between terra cotta pylons will provide a bit of color.

Each store is to have considerable space in the basement for reserve stocks.

Schoenlank & Kirschner are the builders. It is stated the investment will be $575,000, in which connection the National Bond and Mortgage company is underwriting a $325,000 bond issue. The size of the lot is 75x93 feet. Completion is scheduled for Sept. 1.

Plans $160,000 Apartment Building on North Kedvale

Joseph H. Klafter has drawn plans for a $160,000 twenty-two flat building to be erected at 3914-16 North Kedvale avenue by Louis Antek.

BUILDING TIP WILL BE 479 FT. ABOVE LA SALLE

Employes to Have a Gymnasium.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

HAROLD E. FOREMAN.

Details regarding the proposed sky-scraping tower to house the Foreman banks, made public yesterday by Harold E. Foreman, president of both institutions, disclose that the structure will be the tallest bank building in Chicago. Its heavenmost tip will be exactly 479 feet and three inches [there's financial meticulousness for you] above La Salle street, or forty stories in all.

Mr. Foreman also announced that wreckers on May 1 would begin pulling down the historic old Chamber of Commerce building, at the southeast corner of Washington and La Salle, on which site the towering Foreman banks' permanent home is to be erected. The new building will be ready for tenants on May 1, 1929, according to Graham, Anderson, Probst and White, the architects.

Of course, to the owners the most important facts relate to the size of the banking floor and the things like that, but to us the most novel thing is the fact that the Foremans are going to have a completely equipped gymnasium and recreation room for bank employés. Here a teller who has been wrestling all morning with big wads of money, may slip upstairs to the gym and come back to the cage feeling like a million dollars just out of Washington. It has been suggested that a regulation swimming pool would make banking even more of a pleasure for Foreman employés, but this has not yet been decided on.

Main Entrance on La Salle.

Now to tell about the banking quarters. As already announced in these columns the Foreman banks have leased space on the first four floors of the Conway building, across the alley to the east, in the part west of the Conway rotunda. This space will be linked with the new Foreman building by a four story building to be erected in the lot between the Conway and the present Chamber of Commerce building.

This will give the bank an entrance from Clark street through the Conway rotunda. The bank's lobby will be thirty-five feet wide.

The main entrance will be on La Salle street in the center of the new building and will consist of a doorway 20x40 with bronze decorations. Within the immediate entrance there'll be an ornamental staircase to the second floor where the banking room of the Foreman National bank will be located.

Outstanding Banking Room.

This room will be 167 feet long, fifty-four feet wide and thirty-six feet high, free of all columns and posts. This means it will be one of the outstanding banking rooms of the nation.

The entire first floor will be occupied by the Foreman Trust and Savings bank. There'll be two basements in which the safety deposit vaults will be located. Their initial capacity will be 25,000 boxes, with room for expansion.

The directors' and officers' meeting rooms will be on the thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth floors. The main office building above the bank quarters will consist of eighteen floors, having a rentable area of 12,000 square feet per floor and thirteen floors in the tower, each floor with 3,800 square feet of space. There'll be ten elevators.

Says Bank Enters New Era.

Here's the comment of one of the bank officials regarding the proposed move: "One of Chicago's oldest banks enters a new era of development with the beginning of the new Foreman National Bank building. Without the aid of consolidation the Foreman banks have grown to be one of the largest in Chicago, having over $100,000,000 in resources.

"The Foreman banks were founded in 1862 and have kept pace with Chicago's progress. In 1897 it was incorporated as a state bank and in 1923 incorporated as a national bank, although it still retained its charter as a state bank for the Foreman Trust and Savings bank. With the beginning of its new building the bank indicates its desire to keep abreast of the growth and expansion of Chicago."

The southeast corner of La Salle and Washington was first the site of the First Baptist church in 1844. This was destroyed by fire and in 1853 a new church was erected. In 1864 the newly formed Chamber of Commerce bought the property.

Wiped Out by Fire in '71.

The new building was completed in 1865 but the big fire of '71 wiped it out. A second chamber of commerce building was completed by the following October. In 1889-90 the building was remodeled.

The officers of the Foreman banks are: Oscar G. Foreman, chairman of the board; Harold E. Foreman, president; Gerhard Foreman, George N. Neise, Alfred K. Foreman, Edwin G. Foreman Jr., and Morris E. Feiwell are vice presidents of the Foreman Trust and Savings bank.

The State Bank of Chicago, tenants of the Chamber of Commerce building for many years, will move shortly to their new home at La Salle and Monroe streets.

6-Room Home for Family of Moderate Means.

LOUISE BARGELT.
[Chambers Photo.]

From the class of the rent payer a man emerges over night as it were into the class of the homeowner. The monthly visit of the landlord—figuratively speaking in most cases as landlords no longer "visit"—concerns him no more. What the rent will be next year is no longer even of passing interest. He has achieved the independence of his own place and every dollar he spends on it is something for his present comfort and for his future security.

If the house purchased or built were on the order of the one pictured today the homeowner's salary should average at least from $6,000 to $8,000, according to the size of his family. It is furthermore the style of house which would appeal to a family with a much larger income. This first estimate is made on the basis that a man can spend two and a half times his yearly income on his home purchase. This house would cost about $12,000 to build, and the lot, perhaps another $2,000 or $3,000.

Though it is a house which has been so planned that it can be placed on a 40 foot lot it is not an inexpensive house to build. Decorative it is most certainly. But it should also be just as substantial.

Handsome Is as Handsome Does.

Indeed the owner would be able to answer very definitely in the affirmative the old question:

"Is your house just as good as it is good looking?"

A house, this, breathing something of the romance and the poetry of Mediterranean shores and skies; a house of light buff shaded brick with variegated green and purple rough edged slate laid irregularly.

In order to get as much texture as possible in the roof and much of the effect of beautiful heavy slates, second hand slates can be used, laid irregularly and with the edges carefully broken. In this way a handsome roof can be obtained; especially so if the colors are skillfully distributed.

Here the shutters are painted a gay sage green and the steel sash painted white, with an iron balcony painted black. The picturesque is a quality much sought after today, and grills and balconies of wrought iron, which bring to us a southern Europe touch, are always ornamental and vital.

A Circular Stairway.

The front vestibule is squarish in shape, with a coat closet adjoining. Black and white marbleized linoleum inlaid with the floor and cemented over builders' deadening felt would be an effective entering note in a home of this general type.

Circular stairs lead to the second floor. Observation of the floor plan shows that the distance from kitchen to front door is agreeably short.

In the singling out of a distinctly different type from many of our American dwellings of six rooms none of the rooms are sacrificed to odd dimensions or peculiar angles, as is often done when the architect capitalizes novelty.

The garage is attached to the house, opening beyond the rear entry. A slight saving in wall space is effected this way. Also on heating, as the garage may be heated from the same heating plant as the house.

The living room has a beamed ceiling and mahogany floors and full length windows with exposures to the north and south and west.

Kitchen Is Small.

With the west frontage the dining room and covered porch face east, and none of the bedrooms on the second floor depend on their north windows for needed light or air.

The kitchen is small but the refrigeration placed in the back entry relieves the situation and gives a little more room for work and equipment. When one considers the thirty-five foot sweep of living room and dining room, one realizes that economy of floor space must be practiced somewhere.

The bathroom, now one of the most conspicuous show spots in most modern homes, can have all the elegance of its own even though the house may not be a costly home. Every new year witnesses new contributions to its comfort and beauty. At present, of course, the leading thought is color. Here the walls are painted and the wainscot is of color. The tub is of the square based type, with hand bars available, recessed soap dishes and holders for dental accessories.

The basement is carefully finished throughout, with concrete floors, whitewashed walls, metal lath over the entire ceiling under the first floor.

A small castle of one's own, a house like this. No man could own such a house with its lawns and gardens green and flowering, and with vines clinging softly to the side walls and be a dissatisfied member of society. If ever he had been inclined to pessimism, he would surely become under the benign influence of this home an enthusiastic citizen, a proud citizen with something substantial behind him that he and his family can always depend upon.

3 Noisy Boys Help Parents to Get Home

The Tribune will print experiences of home owners—letters telling how the home was financed, how the initial payment was gathered, how the mortgages were paid off, how the upkeep was managed. For each letter printed The Tribune will pay $10. Letters should not exceed 300 words. Address them to Home Builders' Department, Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

ELMHURST, Ill.—I want to relate my experience in buying and financing our home. For the first eight years of our married life we paid rent to the amount of $3,168 for which we got practically nothing more than a mere existence.

MRS. E. G. PETERSON.

At the end of the eight years we had three noisy boys who simply refused to stay put. We often wished for a home, but of course with paying rent, doctors' bills, etc., we were unable to save anything for a down payment. Finally things got so bad—and it was during the time when flats were at a premium so we were almost afraid to make a sound on account of the landlord—that I was just about a nervous wreck.

My husband had always wanted to move to the suburbs so that we could have a yard. We borrowed $500 from my father and went out house hunting. We looked all over and finally decided on a small four room residence with a glazed in porch. The home was hot water heated and it could be purchased for $4,000. We agreed to pay $40 a month, including interest.

Of course the house wasn't much—it had no dining room and no pantry—and some of my "classy friends sniffed at it, but I loved it. My husband is handy with tools and did quite a bit of fixing around. In the six years we have lived here he has put in a good lawn, fruit trees and shrubs and also a chicken house.

Last spring we added on a large living room and closet which gave us a great deal more room and we used the old living room for a dining room. Of course during this time we have had a garden in which we grew all our own vegetables which besides being wonderful for the children are quite a saving for the family of six we now are.

During this period I have not had very swell clothes, not nearly so nice as my friends back home have, but I am happy and we owe only $2,000 on our home. We can sell it at any time for $6,500 so we really are quite proud of ourselves. It has been a hard struggle, but not an unpleasant one, and there is always the assurance that if anything happens we have our own home. Our boys have a large yard in which to play, as our lot is 69x162 feet, and they can have a dog and cat without having to worry about the landlord.

MRS. E. G. PETERSON,
52 Crescent avenue,
Elmhurst, Ill.

ANSWERS TO QUIZ

1. Plans of the house, the name of the contractor who will do the building and certainty as to the clear title on the lot.
2. Five to fifteen years.
3. Interest is paid semi-annually.
4. Payment on principal usually starts after the third year, enabling payment of the second mortgage when it falls due.
5. About 60 per cent of the value of the home.
6. Six to six and one-half per cent.
7. Twenty-five per cent of the value of the home.
8. Seven per cent to eight per cent and usually second mortgage runs from 1 to 3 years.
9. To eliminate expense of renewal.
10. About 90 per cent.
11. Forty-five per cent of the families own their own homes.
12. Zoning restrictions affect future property values and for this reason are very important.

Gain New Rooms in Attic by Use of Wallboard

Have you considered converting your attic into a very livable room or group of rooms by the simple use of wallboards? This will add another room to your house, perhaps two, or even three rooms, for next year.

Answers to Questions on Home Owning Advises Asbestos Paper.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: My husband is going to lay a hardwood floor over our old floor in the dining room as soon as it is warm enough to disconnect the radiator and move it out. This floor is partly over our garage. To guard against fire danger, what sort of paper can he lay over the old floor? A. C.

Ans.: Asbestos paper would be good for your husband to use. Lay it down in widths as needed and cover it with the new flooring.

For a Fireplace.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: In our house, which we hope to be able to build before long, I do want something besides built-in bookcases on either side of the fireplace. What can you suggest?—S. E.

Ans.—You might have built-in cupboards with bright backgrounds, or you can have a fireside rest on one side and a built-in wood bin with wrought iron fittings on the other side of the fireplace.

An $8,000 House.

My Dear Mrs. Bargelt: My husband earns $3,200 a year. We have one child. How expensive a home can we hope to build, and how large a down payment should we have? Also, how large should our mortgages run?—B. H.

Answer—You should be able to afford a home costing around $8,000. Figuring your down payment around 15 per cent of the cost of the house, it would amount to $1,200. If you can make that payment, your first mortgage, at 60 per cent of the value of the home, would be $4,800, and your second mortgage, at 25 per cent of the value of the home, would be $2,000.

Two Family House.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: What do you think of the practical value of the two family house? I would like such a house, a duplex, five rooms each, one apartment for my mother and father and one for my husband and myself. However, I have been told that the duplex is not a good investment and has practically no resale value. Is this so?—D. S.

Answer—Personally, I don't think "what you have been told" has much truth at its foundation. Two family houses are usually considered a good investment, provided that they are well built and attractive, and, all things being equal, generally have a ready resale value.

NEW DEVICE MAKES POSSIBLE A WARM HOUSE IN MORNING

Hate to get up in the morning in a cold house? Then shivering, descend to the basement to start up the furnace?

Let this new and improved model of a furnace regulator help you out. This regulator has been on the market for years, but now it has a clock added and the furnace draft is opened at any time in the morning one needs it.

This clock has a thermometer attached so that the room temperature may be known accurately.

This device is fastened to the wall anywhere in the home that the owner thinks most convenient. A conduit and wire run down through the wall and connect it with the furnace. This wire is also connected with an alarm key on the back of the clock. This clock, set like an alarm clock, releases the drafts automatically at a given time in the morning when the alarm key is released.

There is no motor nor complicated machinery to get out of order. Steam, vapor, warm air or hot water furnaces can all be equipped with this regulator.

Well Screened House of Benefit to Entire Family

No member of the family but is benefited by a well screened home. It is not too early to begin thinking about it now—that is if your home is new and screens have not yet been provided for or if your screens are old and must be replaced.

MACHINES TAKE LABOR OUT OF HOUSEKEEPING

This present age, which has rightly been called the mechanistic age, certainly makes it possible for the average home owner to be more gloriously luxurious than in any previous era the world has ever known.

Domestic mechanical equipment has practically eliminated the old fashioned back breaking tasks which made home keeping without a servant such an arduous undertaking, and keeping a servant sometimes even harder.

In considering the modern machinery devised for the convenience of the home mistress, is it surprising that women are able to include so much of pleasure as well as of work in their day's program?

So many features there are which reduce the actual time spent in household labors; the sink, with its mechanical dishwashing appliance, the automatic range, the electrical refrigerator, the washing machine and ironer and cleaner, the gas or oil fueled furnace.

Dower Acts to Be Subject of Talk by Judge Oshe

"Amendments to and Recent Decisions Regarding the Dower Act" is to be the subject of a lecture by Judge M. M. Oshe before the real property institute of the Cook County Real Estate Board at 7 p. m. Tuesday, March 6. Herbert Becker, trust officer of the Chicago Title and Trust company, will follow with a talk on "Land Trust Certificates."

Be Sure of Your Plans Before Building Residence

Be sure of your "plans" before you go ahead and build your house. For in those plans lie not only the power to make you happy or miserable as they are good plans or bad plans, but in them you are investing a certain amount of capital—hard earned capital, perhaps—that represents considerable effort of saving.

INCINERATOR IS BIG CONVENIENCE IN A RESIDENCE

Saves Time and Reduces Peril from Fire.

BY HOMER GRANT.

Planning on a new home this spring? Or remodeling the house you have been living in for some years? Or expecting to add sundry practical features to an already very practical home?

Under any of these considerations a household waste disposal plant—if you haven't one already—is one of the recent developments in home equipment which contributes to health and cleanliness and to a saving of labor in the domestic routine.

Among its advantages might also be added the lessening of fire hazard through the installation of incineration which disposes of rubbish as well as garbage; rubbish which too often is allowed to accumulate in the base- the entire house.

If a man already has built his house he will consider some one of the "portable" kinds of incineration, so called because they can be installed after a house has been built.

Various Methods of Fueling.

These are gas fueled, coal fueled, or kerosene fired. Some are "free standing," connected to a chimney flue which takes the smoke. They can be either in the kitchen or the basement. In either case they take up little room, though on account of the heat they throw off many women prefer them in the basement.

Then for the man who is remodeling his house or building a new home there is the built in incineration of the chimney fed type. It disposes not only of garbage but all rubbish and household waste such as cans, magazines, broken glass, bottles and the like.

Installed in the basement at the base of the regular chimney it consists of a brick combustion chamber, lined with fire brick. A by-pass flue for proper drafts control and a special arrangement of grates insures an odorless and complete combustion.

Non-Fueled Type.

The hopper door into which the waste disposal is dropped is usually placed in the kitchen or pantry. This type of incineration is of the so called non-fueled type, requiring no fuel to operate. A match dropped into the incinerator at intervals sets fire to the waste. With tin cans, bottles, etc., they are all flame sterilized and ready for removal with the ashes.

These built in, chimney fed incinerators are usually installed in homes at the time the mason work is under way. Provision for a flue of correct size should be included in the plans.

With the non-fueled type, of course, the first cost is the only cost and it is a moderate cost at that. However, none of the modern incinerators cost much to operate.

AND NOW COMES A HEATING PLANT IN BRIGHT COLOR

Since color seems to be the vogue in all features pertaining to the home, we now have the opportunity of seeing it in heating plants!

Even basements should cheer up and assume a lively mood when equipped with a boiler finished in bright blue enamel.

These boilers, used for steam, hot water and vapor systems are square in shapes and the so-called enamel finish is really a porcelain finish fused on the iron at high heat.

It is also claimed that despite hard usuage it will not chip or break and can be kept clean by wiping with a damp cloth.

NO NEED TO HAVE IMPURE WATER WITH NEW FILTER

There is no need to suffer any longer from impure water. Filtered water has become a recognized need in many communities and even in localities where water is pronounced safe a water filter is always an asset in the home.

Now we have on the market a new model of water filter. This filter, a scientifically tested porous stone, purifies the water at the outlet faucet where the limited quantity of water used for drinking and cooking makes filtration possible, and the filtration is thorough and germproof.

In this new model filter there is no possibility of stagnation, either before or after filtration. A flushing and recharging process occurs frequently during every day without any effort on the part of the user.

Each of the many times that the ordinary hydrant water is used for purposes not requiring filtration, it passes in a swift current on the outside of the filtering stone; in this manner any floating sediment which would otherwise remain in the filter is washed out and a fresh supply of hydrant water made ready for filtration.

CITY'S SUBURBS SHOW 8 PER CENT GAIN IN BUILDING

Oak Park, Joliet, and Hammond the Leaders.

The following towns failed to send in reports as to their building operations: Batavia, Downers Grove, Calumet City, Elmhurst, Melrose Park, River Forest, St. Charles, and Villa Park. So if the hearts of the citizens are broken by not seeing the name of their fair town listed here let them complain to the mayor or town clerk.

Again Chicago's suburbs show a pleasant gain in their building activities, registering an advance of 8 per cent for the first two months of this year over a like period a year ago, according to a survey made by S. W. Straus & Co. The building volume for twenty-seven of the leading surburbs, according to official permits issued, totaled $12,794,545 for January and February, 1928, against $11,834,613 for the first two months of 1927.

Although the suburbs are sustaining a high volume of proposed building as a whole, numerous losses are apparent for February, according to the survey. In February the twenty-seven suburbs with comparable records had a construction volume of $5,585,515, as against $6,584,584 for February last year, or a loss of 15 per cent. As against January, 1928, the February record this year showed a loss of 23 per cent.

32 Suburbs Report.

Thirty-two suburbs are now reporting official permits, according to S. W. Straus & Co., who make a monthly study of suburban building in connection with that company's national monthly building survey covering 515 principal cities and towns of the United States. Complaints have been made that some towns have not been included in the list, but town officials failed to answer requests for information. Four towns previously not reporting are on the job this month. They are: Geneva, Lombard, Naperville, and North Chicago.

Oak Park, Joliet and Hammond of the larger suburbs made record gains last month as against a year ago. Oak Park made a February gain of 313 per cent and 124 per cent gain over January this year. Its traditional rival, Evanston, took losses in both the February and January comparisons. Hammond made gains while its neighboring rival, Gary, showed a negative position.

Other suburbs making gains last month as against a year ago were: Aurora, 7 per cent; Chicago Heights, 106 per cent; Cicero, 13 per cent; Elgin, 10 per cent; Glencoe, 18 per cent; Glen Ellyn, 56 per cent; Harvey, 122 per cent; Joliet, 126 per cent; La Grange, 11 per cent; Lake Forest 17 per cent; Park Ridge, 82 per cent; Waukegan, 4 per cent; Wilmette, 5 per cent, and Hammond, 96 per cent.

Some Show Losses.

The suburbs making losses in February compared with February last year were: Berwyn, 31 per cent; Desplaines, 66 per cent; Evanston, 51 per cent; Highland Park, 42 per cent; Lombard, 71 per cent; Maywood, 35 per cent; Niles Center, 42 per cent; Wheaton, 63 per cent; Winnetka, 45 per cent; East Chicago, 38 per cent; Whiting, 73 per cent, and Gary, 76 per cent.

Gains in February compared with January this year were as follows: Aurora, 103 per cent; Blue Island, 85 per cent; Cicero, 644 per cent; Elgin, 53 per cent; Forest Park, 3,237 per cent; Glencoe, 106 per cent; Harvey, 300 per cent; Joliet, 373 per cent; La Grange, 29 per cent; Maywod, 83 per cent; Niles Center, 85 per cent; North Chicago, 12,082 per cent; Oak Park, 124 per cent; Park Ridge, 186 per cent; Wilmette, 179 per cent; East Chicago, 233 per cent, and Gary, 20 per cent.

Suburbs suffering losses in February compared with January this year were: Berwyn, 10 per cent; Desplaines, 38 per cent; Evanston, 54 per cent; Geneva, 45 per cent; Glen Ellyn, 47 per cent; Highland Park, 39 per cent; Lake Forest, 71 per cent; Lombard, 47 per cent; Waukegan, 65 per cent; Wheaton, 5 per cent; Winnetka, 68 per cent; Hammond, 80 per cent, and Whiting, 99 per cent.

Here Are the Figures.

Comparative figures for February 1928 and February 1927, were:

	February, '28.	February, '27.
Aurora	$ 150,429	$ 139,465

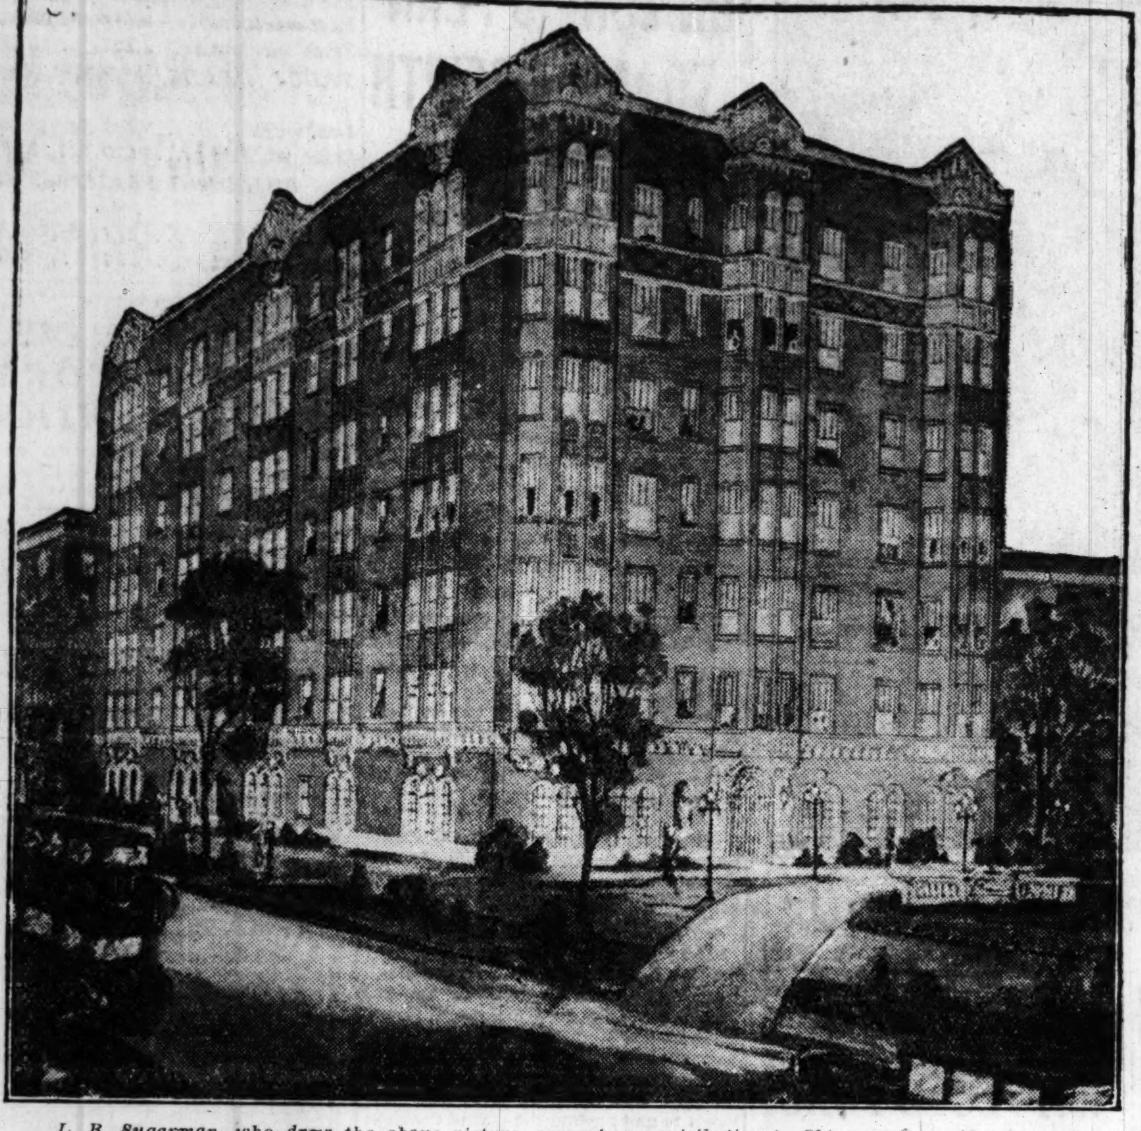
Especially large gains in February, it will be noted, were: Chicago Heights, 106 per cent; Harvey, 122 per cent; Joliet, 126 per cent.

Muskegon Couple Buy 40 Acres in North Waukegan

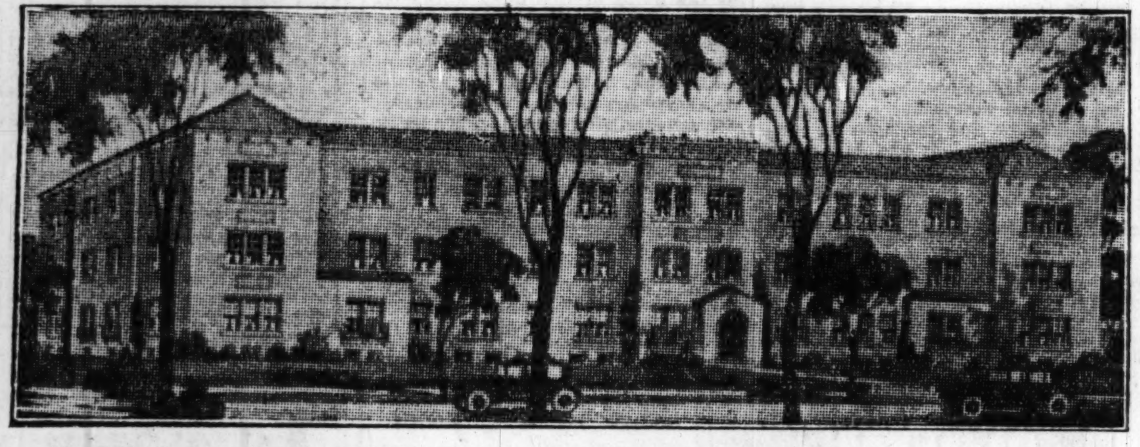
George W. and Helen Gertrude Olson of Muskegon have taken title from the Peoples Trust and Savings bank as trustee to forty acres at McAree and Holders roads, North Waukegan, across from the Woman's Country club. This club, it is stated, is to begin on its development program shortly. The tract is also adjacent to the Bonny Brook club. The price was not disclosed. M. A. Barancik was attorney for the buyers.

NIGHT LIFERS' VIEW OF HOME



L. B. Sugarman, who drew the above picture, presents a contribution to Chicago after midnight, or possibly just before that hour, with this conception of how this new apartment hotel at Deming and Geneva would appear after dark. This picture shows the new inn, now under construction, floodlighted. Koenigsberg & Weisfeld are architects.

SUBURBAN APARTMENT BUILDING



The Bella Casa apartments, a thirty-one flat building, announced for the northeast corner of North avenue and Stanley street, Waukegan. Designed by Hugo V. Miller of Milwaukee, it is stated this is the first fireproof apartment building for Waukegan. The exterior design is Spanish, while the Moorish motif will prevail in the interior. It is stated the project will represent an investment of $190,000, in which connection Lackner, Butz & Co. are underwriting a $110,000 bond issue. E. L. Bloomster prepared this rendering.

NORTH AND SOUTH SIDES GET 2 NEW BANK BUILDINGS

One to Rise on Broadway; Other on Ashland.

HENRY C. KEEL.

Two new bank buildings have been announced for the city. One will be erected by the Edgewater Trust and Savings bank to occupy a part of its present site at 5545 Broadway and land immediately adjoining on the north. The other will be the home of the new Brainerd State bank and will be located on South Ashland avenue, just north of 87th street.

A few words about the first named, which is located in the heart of the rapidly developing Edgewater district, being practically at the corner of Broadway, Bryn Mawr, and Ridge. Designed by Frederick Stanton, the structure will be of conventional bank architecture. The front will be of Bedford stone.

To Cost $250,000.

The interior will be of marble and bronze, and it is said the interior design will be novel. In the basement will be found the safety deposit vault with provision for 5,000 box renters. A feature of the building will be a community room which will be available without cost to business men, clubs, and societies in the community.

It is stated the investment in land and building will be about $250,000. Henry C. Keel is president of the bank, Walter J. Raymer is chairman of the executive committee, R. A. Byerrum is vice president, and W. E. Christensen is cashier.

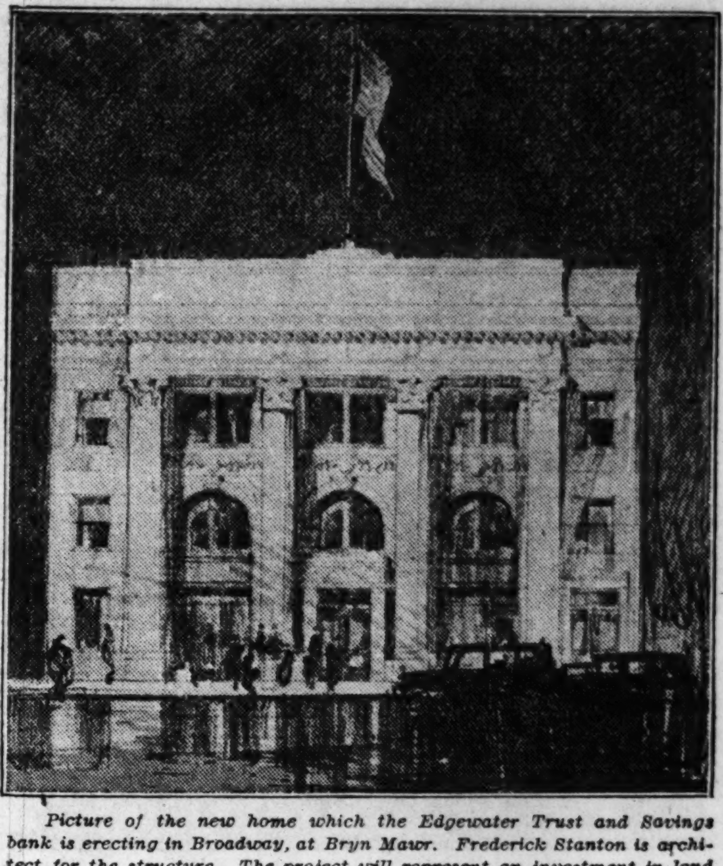
Smith Designs Other.

Z. Erol Smith is architect for the south side bank, which, like the one on the north side, will be of conventional bank design. The structure will be three stories high and the entire building will be devoted to the bank's uses. It is to represent an investment in land and building of $300,000, it is stated.

This bank will be the tenth of a chain of south side institutions headed by John Bain. E. F. Weigel, president of the West Highland State bank and also of the Ashland and 63d State bank, is handling the organization of the new bank.

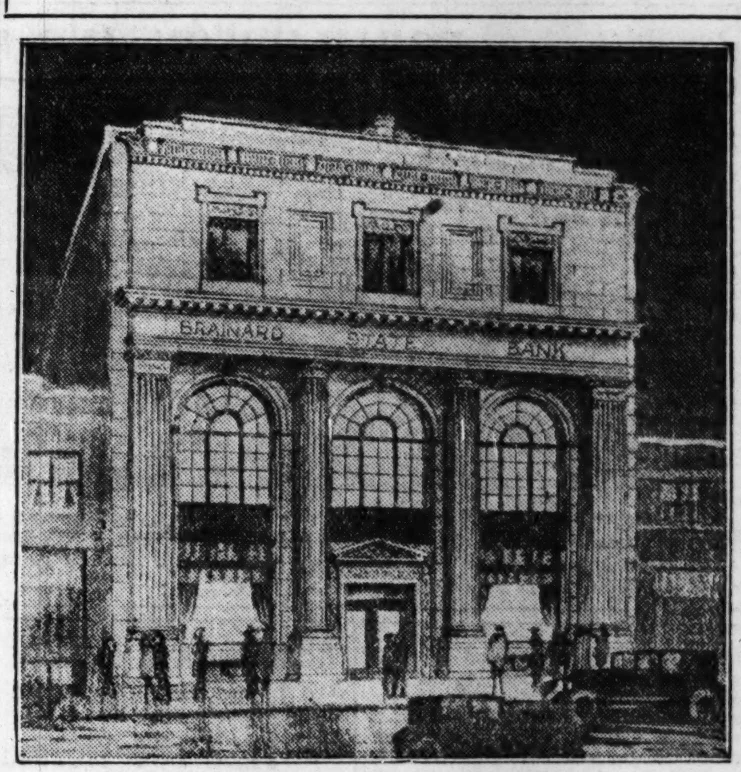
The general contract has been let to the West Englewood Construction and Supply company.

FOR NORTH SIDE SAVERS



Picture of the new home which the Edgewater Trust and Savings bank is erecting in Broadway, at Bryn Mawr. Frederick Stanton is architect for the structure. The project will represent an investment in land and building of about $250,000, it is stated.

BRAINERD STATE BANK



Z. Erol Smith designed the new home which the Brainerd State bank is erecting on Ashland avenue, just north of 87th street. The structure is to represent an investment of $300,000, it is stated. E. L. Bloomster drew this picture.

WILL GIVE PRIZES TO BEST ENTRIES AT HOME EXHIBIT

New York's Winner Will Be in Competition.

A picturesque lumber house of colonial design which captured the grand prize and gold medal as being the most attractive exhibit at the recent Own Your Home exposition in New York City is to be brought to Chicago, where it will compete with exhibits in a similar exposition here. Chicago's Own Your Home exposition will open at the Coliseum March 31 and last for a week.

"But what may be the best of some 200 elaborate exhibits in Gotham may not wrinkle the brow of the jury of awards in Chicago," says Robert H. Sexton, managing director of both shows, who yesterday sprung the prize winner on the scores of manufacturers in the building and allied trades, who are on the last lap of planning their exhibits.

"Competing with hundreds of impressive, spectacular, highly educational and possibly more decorative displays which cost thousands of dollars to achieve, a simple colonial lumber house received the gold medal for the best display in the building materials classification and the silver cup for the best exhibit on the floor of the Grand Central palace in New York City," said Mr. Sexton.

Elevations of plaster, concrete, stucco, and redwood houses are listed among the building material exhibits that will compete with the New York prize winner here. The Chicago prizes are on exhibit in the rooms of the Chicago Real Estate Board, under whose auspices the exposition is to be held.

DEMING-GENEVA CORNER GETS NEW APARTMENT INN

Seven Stories High; Cost $500,000.

The southwest corner of Deming place and Geneva terrace is the site of another of the apartment hotels which now have become a prominent part of Chicago's landscape. The one we have before us at this moment is to be seven stories high, with fifty-six apartments of two and three rooms—all furnished.

Being erected by the Deming-Geneva Building corporation, the newcomer is to represent an investment in land and building of $500,000 it is stated. The lot is 66x152 feet.

The architecture is Romanesque, or at any rate a Chicago adaptation of that style. Koenigsberg & Weisfeld are the architects.

A feature of the project is a sunken garden, in the Italian style, which will be located in the front of the building. And as a fountain is as necessary to an Italian garden as are strawberries to shortcake there will a fountain.

A few more words: S. Clifford & Co., have the general contract; Cochran & McCluer are underwriting a $285,000 bond issue and completion is scheduled for Oct. 1.

Percy Wilson Tract Is Annexed by Bensenville

Percy Wilson & Co.'s Irving Park Manor property, which lies immediately northwest of Bensenville, was unanimously annexed to that suburb by a resolution passed by the town council. The property consists of 206 acres fronting on Irving Park.

Brokers' Notes

BUYS 24 FLATS ON NORTH HOYNE FOR $155,000

Joseph A. and Anthony J. Saccone bought the twenty-four flat building, with eighteen garages in the rear, at 4812-30 North Hoyne avenue, from Carl Lofgren, Albert Hvassman, and A. O. Larson, for a reported $155,000. In part payment the stone residence at 859 Castlewood terrace, with 100 feet of frontage, was given at $65,000. Gordon Berg, and Burke, Jackson & Burke were attorneys. Robert J. Langhenry was broker.

DOUGLAS SHOE LEASES SHOP ON SOUTH HALSTED

What is called a record lease for the vicinity was recently consummated when the W. L. Douglas Shoe company, rented from Samuel Seder for ten years and two months the store at 6240 South Halsted street. It is stated the shoe company will pay $12,000 annually for five years and two months and $13,000 annually for five years. The shop measures 21x125 feet and it is stated $50,000 will be spent on remodeling and equipping it. C. L. Schrager, of Michael Flicht & Co., was broker. Max W. Petacque and Harry Ballman were attorneys.

A. T. OLMSTEAD TO LECTURE BEFORE CHICAGOCHAPTER

"Assyrian Archæology" is to be the subject of an illustrated talk which Prof. A. T. Olmstead of the University of Illinois will give at the March meeting of the Chicago chapter, American Institute of Architects. The meeting will open at 6:30 p. m. at the Architects' club, Prairie avenue and 18th street, with a dinner. Prior to the talk members will discuss proposed revisions to the chapter constitution.

JAP PROFESSOR LAUDS PLANNING OF OUR SUBURBS

TAKEO MATSUDA.

A bright prospect for Chicago's suburban area is seen by Prof. Takeo Matsuda of the Hokaido Imperial university of Japan and fellow of the international education board of New York City following a 150 mile tour of the north shore which included an inspection of the Krenn & Dato properties. Prof. Matsuda was one of fifteen in a party led by Prof. Richard T. Ely of the chair of economics, Northwestern university, and Paul D. Angell of the Krenn & Dato firm.

"City expansion in the past has been rather haphazard," the Japanese professor said. "The width of streets, provision for water, sewage and public service in general have been uncertain. But in the developments we saw on our trip everything seemed determined in advance. Nothing is left to chance. It is worthy pioneering in city development and has made a fine science of subdividing. It presages greater greatness for Chicago."

Irwin Baker Buys Sixteen Flats on North Lincoln

The sixteen flat building at 4814-16 North Lincoln street has been sold by Axel G. Johnson to Irwin M. Baker for an undisclosed consideration, but subject to $85,500. The lot is 60x152 feet. Baker & Turner were attorneys.

CHAIN STORE LEASES STONY ISLAND BUILDING

The F. & W. Grand 5-10-25 Cent Stores, Inc., have leased for thirty-five years the property at 6823-25 Stony Island avenue, improved with a one story building, from Emil and Anna Mayer. The total rental is $320,000, or an average of $9,143 annually. Mark Levy & Brother, only brokers in the deal, say the lessees will remodel at a cost of approximately $40,000.

BUYS THREE FLAT BUILDINGS.

Nathan Cohn has sold to Nathan Orloff the nineteen flats at the northeast corner of Harding and Argyle, the thirteen flats at 4538 North Kenneth, and the sixteen apartment building at the southeast corner of 83d and Peoria. The prices were not disclosed. Philip P. Sachs and Erwin E. Cowen were attorneys.

News of the Architects

Herbert Hugh Riddle has moved his architectural offices to the new Mather tower, 75 East Wacker drive. His new phone is Franklin 1641. Mr. Riddle is architect of the building he has moved into.

General Electric Leases Space in Central District

The incandescent lamp department of the General Electric company, has leased 62,000 square feet of space in the six story building at 39th and Winchester, in the central manufacturing district. Four floors will be occupied for storage. The warehouse will be used as a distributing center to all points south and west except the Pacific coast. It is estimated approximately 44,000,000 lamps will handled annually.

PROTANE
for
The Millions of People who live out beyond the GAS MAINS
People in small cities—suburban and farm people can now enjoy the same comforts and conveniences by using Bottled Gas as city people do with pipe line gas. It is just as economical, safe and easy to use as city gas and being BOTTLED in 10 gallon steel drums, it can be used anywhere. It was developed especially for people living where city gas is not obtainable.
Completely does away with all the drudgery, dirt and bother of other fuels. You can do your cooking, baking, washing, etc., Easier, Better, Quicker and Cleaner with Bottled Gas.
Gas for Every Household Use
No Matter Where You Live
It is just like city gas—just as efficient—quick—clean, safe, economical—in fact, it has the same advantages over any other kind of fuel that city gas has. Will not asphyxiate.
It lights and heats instantly like city gas and burns with an even, hot, blue flame that has no odor—no smoke—does not soot utensils. It is under absolute control at all times and can be turned up or down as desired. Always ready—gives you quick heat for all household uses as simply as turning a faucet to get water. Approved as STANDARD by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

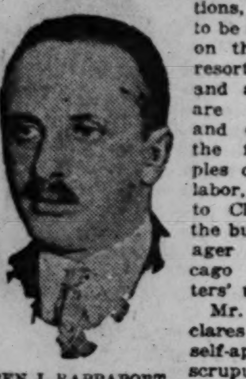
RAU DENOUNCES CROOKS POSING AS LABORITES

Rappaport Raps Pacifist Groups at Capital.

BY THOMAS WREN.



BEN J. RAPPAPORT.

Judging the actions of some of the present day so-called labor organizations, there seems to be a disposition on their part to resort to methods and actions that are disreputable and contrary to the first principles of organized labor, according to Charles Rau, the business manager of the Chicago Steam Fitters' union.

Mr. Rau declares that some self-appointed unscrupulous leaders, who, realizing the esteem in which fair minded men hold trade unionism, are preying upon the public under the guise of so-called labor organizations.

Ben J. Rappaport, head of the Chicago Technical Engineers and Draftsmen's union, writes the following letter to President Green of the American Federation of Labor:

"I wish, as a member of organized labor, to call your attention to the recent visit to the President of the United States by Bishop William F. McDowell, and other church dignitaries on a committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ. Newspaper dispatches report that these prelates demanded that President Coolidge veto the house naval bill.

Quotes Church Leaders.

"They are quoted as saying:

"'The church constituents are, we believe, wholly averse to the purely negative procedure of seeking national security through increasing naval and military armament.'

"In view of the replacement nature of the naval bill and the well known fact that these committees of the Federal council do not and never have consulted their alleged constituencies by referendum it seems to me that such addresses to the President of the United States constitute a direct attempt at ecclesiastical usurpation of functions of government.

"As I understand the policies of the American Federation of Labor, and if I misunderstand them I desire to be corrected, we are as much opposed to the churchly usurpation of government power, just as much as we are opposed to judicial usurpation of legislative authority. Both are direct menaces to democratic theory and practice."

Mr. Rappaport in his letter to President Green then asks whether the American Federation of Labor can afford to give the appearance of cooperating with these ecclesiastical lobbists.

Studies in Press.

"I need not refer you to the several studies in the public press of the devious course and connections of these bodies with organizations and movements—here and abroad—which undertake to undermine the national basis of our wage scales and living conditions," he continued.

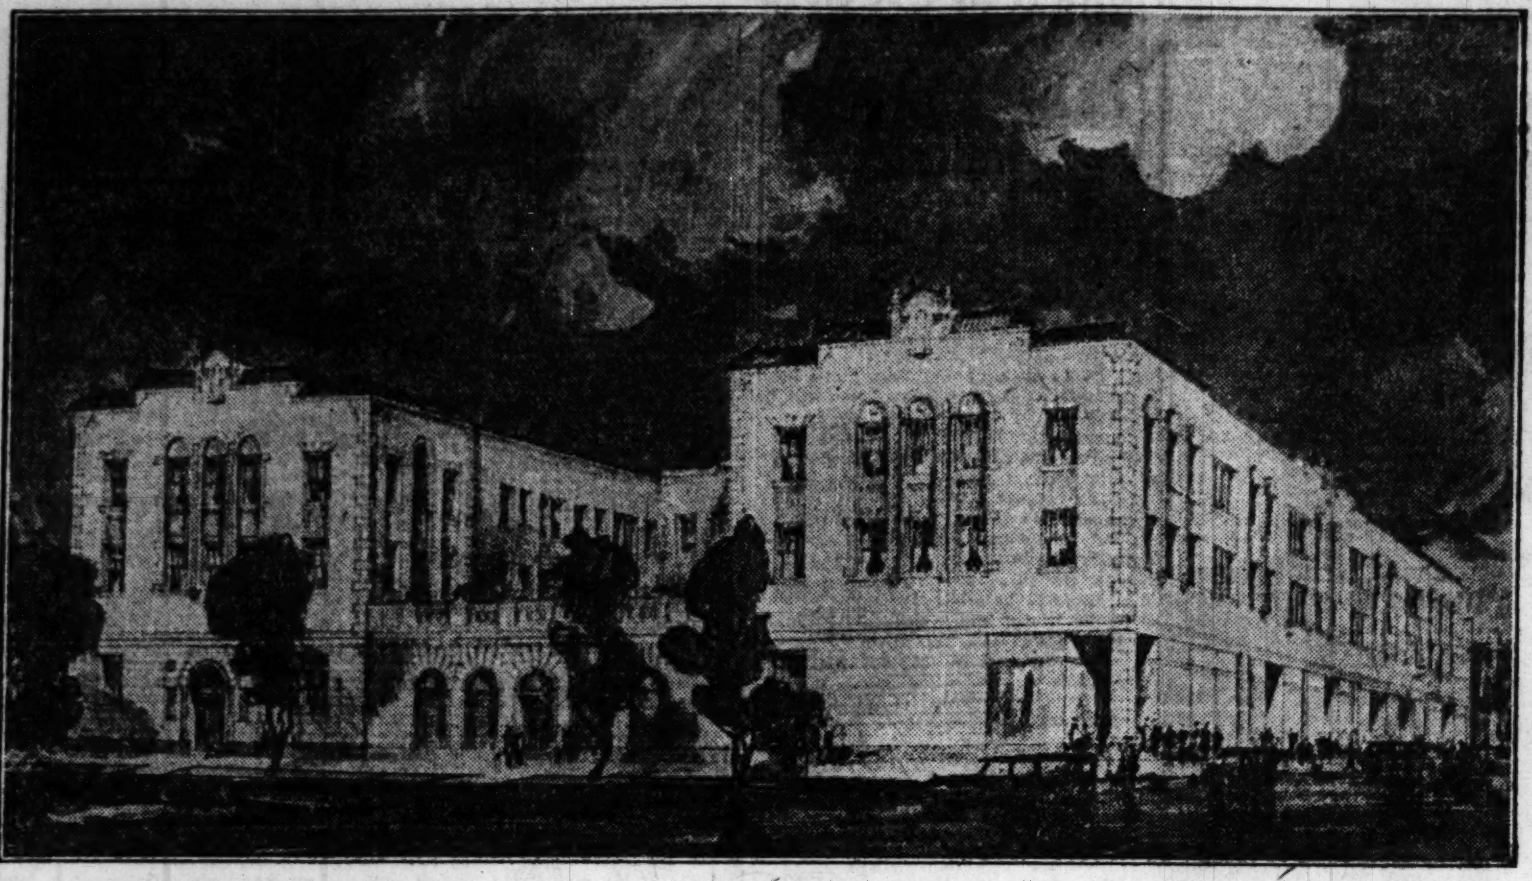
"In correspondence with other members of the organized labor movement in Illinois, who have been disturbed by actions and attitudes of internationalist and pacifist organizations, you have asked for the definite instance of the things we have charged. I call your attention to the visit of the church dignitaries as an instance of the general tendency against which we protest.

Would Investigate Agents.

"I desire to ask whether in your opinion it would not be advisable for the A. F. of L. to advocate legislation that would require registration and an investigation of all persons who act as agents of legislation or propaganda at Washington. It has been charged that many sinister corporate and financial cliques maintain such agents in Washington. The fact that congressmen associate us in their mental processes with such evidently misrepresentative lobbies is an obvious detriment to the cause of organized labor."

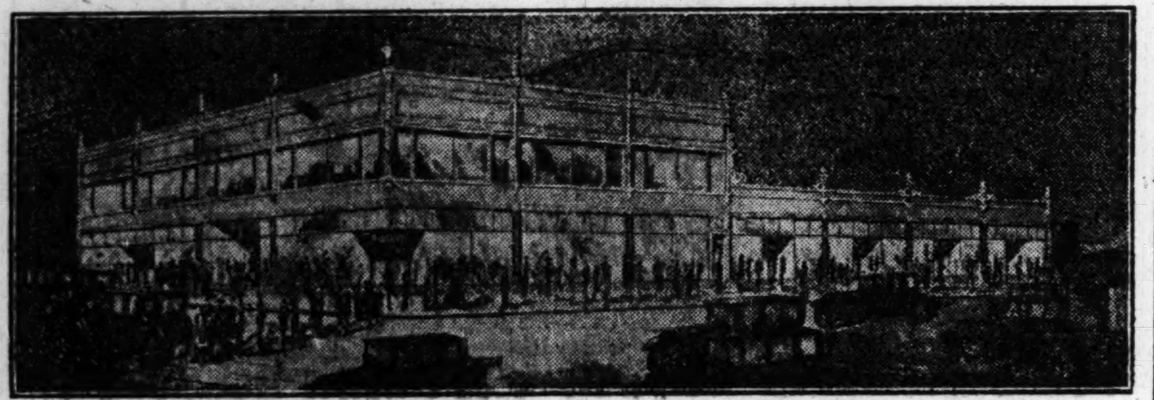
Mr. Rappaport was one of the supporters of the anti-pacifist resolutions that were adopted by the convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor at East St. Louis last September.

FOR CORNER OF LAWRENCE AND HARDING



Above is a store and apartment building being erected for Wallach Bros., builders, at the northeast corner of Lawrence and Harding avenues. The structure, designed by Halperin & Braun, is of Spanish architecture. It will contain five stores and thirty-seven apartments of two, three, and four rooms. It is stated it will represent an investment of $475,000. The lot is 125x125. Financing has been arranged by the Garard Trust company. Charles Morgan drew this picture.

FOR MADISON AND WELLS



H. Teller Archibald, who in candy life is Fannie May, is putting up the above structure at the northwest corner of Madison and Wells streets. Intended as a taxpayer, it will contain a number of stores. Eventually this dwarf will be replaced by a skyscraper. Harry M. & Louis Englestein are agents. L. M. Sanders & Co. are architects. L. B. Sugarman drew this picture.

W. F. Krahl Buys Playhouse in Evanston; Will Remodel

The new Evanston theater building, on Sherman street, Evanston, south of Davis, has been bought by William F. Krahl of the Krahl Construction company for an undisclosed price. When the present stock company lease expires at the end of 1928 the new owner will remodel the building into stores. O. F. Christensen of Willoughby & Co. was broker.

Plan 18 Apartments at Corner of 77th and Colfax

An eighteen apartment building is proposed for the vacant property at the southwest corner of 77th and Colfax, lot 87x125 feet, which Gilbert Edwards, John Keane and John B. O'Malley recently bought from the South Shore Methodist Episcopal church for a reported $26,000. J. Ronsley was broker.

REAL ESTATE BOARD OFFERS ITS AID TO FREE LOT VICTIMS

In view of the reappearance of the "free lot racket" a statement by L. A. Eastman of the Chicago Real Estate board is apropos.

"The subdividers' division of the Chicago Real Estate board wishes to convey to the public its oft repeated warning to purchasers to investigate carefully the merits of every unusual real estate offer before buying.

"The board is ready to advise the public concerning the various propositions and to undertake to investigate claims of those who have already been victimized. The code of ethics, to which all subdividers belonging to the Chicago board subscribe, specifically prohibits unethical practices."

This department at various times has advised its readers to be wary of the smooth tongued talker who announces he has generously selected so and so to be the recipient of a free lot. Most often these free lot givers operate just within the law, but in the majority of cases the recipient may be sure that he will pay well for whatever he gets—most always he pays far in excess of the value of what he is given.

THREE DIVISIONS APPROVE PLAN OF WITTBOLD TRACT

What is called a record for simultaneous approval of a subdivision by county, city and regional planning association authorities was set when plans for the 165 acre home and development tract of the Wittbold Realty company, extending along Touhy avenue for about a mile, were approved by John D. Riley, superintendent of maps and ex-officio examiner of subdivisions. The plans were submitted by F. A. Cushing Smith, city planner.

The Wittbold tract, made up of eleven parcels bought over two years ago, was also approved by the county commissioners and the regional planning commission. It has been made to conform to developments in the area as proposed by the Chicago plan commission.

HAMMOND BUSY ON ZONING PLAN TO AID GROWTH

Expects 200,000 People by Year 1960.

Hammond, Ind., one of the most important of Chicago's industrial suburbs, is proceeding with the development of a city plan which will insure its ordered growth. The city now numbers 60,000 persons and its officials in making their plan are preparaing for a population of 200,000 by 1960, with an ultimate one of 500,000. Its area is 27 square miles.

Dr. H. C. Groman is chairman of the planning commission, which has engaged Jacob L. Crane Jr. as consultant.

In developing their plan the commission is considering the industrial region along the southwestern tip of Lake Michigan as a whole in the relationship of Hammond with the nearby municipalities of Calumet City, Burnham, Whiting, East Chicago, Gary, Munster, and Highland. And of course Chicago plays an important part in the scheme.

Hook Up with Chicago.

Thus the plan takes cognizance of projected highways to pass through the area, among them being the 200 foot Milwaukee to Michigan City super-highway and other links with Chicago and vicinity.

The greater part of Hammond's industrial area extends from the lake down to and beyond the Grand Calumet river, while the residential development is pushing on south to the Little Calumet river, with an expected eventual expansion to Ridge road and beyond.

50 Miles of Business.

An industrial district four times as great as the present one is being mapped out in the plan and to care for the needs of this huge workshop, with the necessary residential sections, fifty miles of business frontage are being laid out. In the present zoning operations the residential district is zoned for apartment houses as far south as 15th avenue with single family dwellings south of 15th avenue. Eight major business districts are being planned.

The subject of parks, playgrounds, etc., is to be taken up later.

CHICAGO SOLDER BUILDS 2 STORY PLANT ADDITION

Work is nearing completion on a two story building, the second unit in the industrial plant of the Chicago Solder company's development at 4201 Wrightwood avenue. Schmidt, Garden and Erikson are the architects. The structure will contain 19,000 square feet of floor space and will cost approximately $125,000. The first unit has 16,000 square feet of floor area. The company has only used approximately half of its site with the first two units.

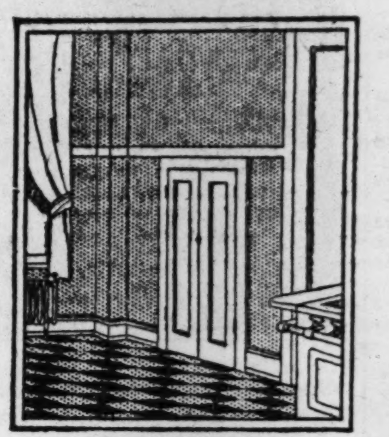
ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE



Plenty of rooms . . .

Getting ready . . .

Preparing the muffins . . .

Breakfast set for four!

Is your kitchen this convenient?

WHERE do you eat breakfast and other hurried meals—in the cold distant dining room . . . or at the crowded kitchen table, sitting on uncomfortable stools or chairs dragged from the dining room?

Don't be inconvenienced either way any longer! Put in a Fain Fold-Away Dining Set.

Then you have not only a dining table and seats for four right in your kitchen, but also a spacious kitchen table with a porcelain top!

And when not in use for dining or working, the table and seats all fold out of the way, leaving the floor space free and uncluttered!

Here is the happiest solution of the problem of eating in the kitchen ever devised! It is more convenient than a dining alcove and costs far, far less. It is cleaner, because you don't have to sweep around table and chair legs. It is more economical, because you save the cost of building some 480 cubic feet of space.

The Fain Fold-Away provides a handy place for the children's meals, for bedtime lunches and all hurried meals. Yet at all times it gives you a convenient work table, with two handy seats, so that you can sit as you work.

Decorated in gay colors, the Fain Fold-Away Dining Set becomes a delightful addition to the tastefully appointed kitchen. Its cost is amazingly low . . . and it adds sales and rental value many times its cost to any house or apartment.

Visit our beautiful furnished apartment and see this set—with many others—in actual use. Or telephone Central 0899 for further information.

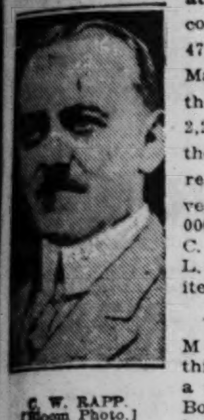
LOOKING BACKWARD

To March 11, 1918; 10 Years Ago Today

Work has started on the construction of the People's theater building at the northeast corner of West 47th street and Marshfield. The theater will have 2,200 seats and the project will represent an investment of $450,000, it is stated. C. W. and George L. Rapp are architects.



C. W. RAPP. [Bloom Photo.]

William H. Morehead, for thirty-five years a member of the Board of Trade, has purchased the former De Jonghe residence at the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Foster avenue. He acquired the property from Douglas Smith, who in turn took title a few weeks ago for a price reported to have been about $65,000 cash. The home, on a site fronting 225 on Sheridan and 150 feet on Foster, is one of the finest on the boulevard.

To March 11, 1898; 30 Years Ago Today

An appraisal has been made of the ground at 66-72 West Adams street by which a valuation of $3,000 a front foot is set. The ground is 80x 75½ feet and is owned by the estate of H. O. Stone. It is under a long term lease to the National Union Building company and the contract provides for a reappraisal every eight years. The appraisers were James B. Hobbs of the National Union company and Eugene S. Pike for the Stone interests. A valuation of $240,000 was placed on the property.

H. O. STONE.

Arthur Foster will build for himself a three story apartment building at 6141-43 Ellis avenue at a cost of $16,000. The interior will be divided into six flats of seven rooms each.

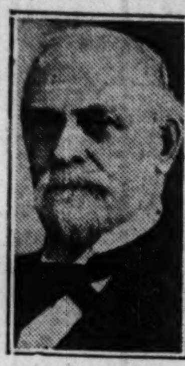
Some Leases

The F. W. Woolworth company has leased for a term of twenty years and three months the store at 5836 West Madison street from Alex Eisenstein for a reported total rental of $103,050. Frank C. Hangsterfer of the office of John T. McEnery was broker.

The Continental Music company has leased the entire fifth floor of the building at 630 South Wabash avenue for five years at a reported term rental of $35,000, through Alfred L. Miltenberg & Co.

To March 11, 1908; 20 Years Ago Today

The Potter Palmer estate leased to Heywood Brothers & Wakefield company, a new four story building to be erected by the estate just south of the Furniture Exhibition building in Michigan avenue, south of 14th street. The structure will cost between $65,000 and $75,000.



POTTER PALMER.

In exercise of an option to purchase granted eight years ago, the Skokie Country club bought from Mrs. Elizabeth S. Potter and her husband, Henry C. Potter, Charles H. Morse, Mrs. Mary W. Jacobs, and others the tract of 103 acres southwest of Glencoe which the club now occupies. The consideration was $36,000, which is far below the present value of the land.

COMPLETE FIRST UNIT OF CLEARING TIRE FACTORY

It is announced that the Clearing Industrial district has just completed the first unit of a factory for the Karg Tire & Rubber company at 6555 West 65th street. The structure contains 21,000 square feet of manufacturing space and is situated on a site providing about 35,000 square feet of vacant ground for expansion later. The Karg company is reported to have developed a process whereby flexible steel strips are incorporated into automobile tires, thereby rendering innocuous nails and broken glass seeking to annoy motorists. The new plant is to have a capacity of 1,000 automobile tires a day. Hart & Whetston were brokers. Frank Karg represented the tire company and H. P. Phelps acted for the district.

"Eddystone Homes" Name Chosen for Swayne Co-op

"Eddystone Homes" is to be the name of the huge thirty-seven story coöperative apartment building being erected by Albert Swayne on Sheridan road at Belmont. Mrs. Miles L. Colean of 3163 Hudson court with this name was the winner of a competition for $100 to find a suitable designation for the structure. More than 7,000 names were submitted. The winning name gets its derivation from the famous Eddystone lighthouse on the Cornish coast of England.

$140,000 Stores and Flats for Norwood Park Site

John D. Copin and Carl G. Stendahl will erect a building at 6219-21 Northwest highway, Norwood Park, to cost a reported $140,000 and to contain three stores, two shops, four offices and twenty-one apartments. Godfrey E. Larson is architect. Financing is by the Jefferson Park National bank.

NO PRODUCT survives in these days of highly competitive merchandising unless it possesses the innate goodness that makes a friend of every purchaser.

In the field of home equipment a singular supremacy is held by Wayne. The reason is, Wayne products bring the buyer more than he paid for. A good deal of pride attaches to the ownership of any better-than-the-cost item. So it is that Wayne has come to symbolize the best in Home Equipment.

In thirty-seven short years Wayne Company has built a reputation second to none. We look back and see the beginnings—a small 25 x 100 lot with a two-story factory. Today we survey twenty-three acres; the Wayne organization has indeed grown. Now we are numbered among the world's great factories. Assets have increased to many millions. Such is the stability of Wayne Company that now offers you the ultimate in two essential products for the home.

Products with a Pedigree

When you buy Wayne Electric Refrigerator or Wayne Oil Burner you know you are getting a thoroughbred—a product with a pedigree. For Wayne tests of each unit are so thorough, Wayne standards are so high, that definite assurance of Wayne's built-in goodness is had before buying. For instance, inspection and tests represent approximately 60% of the total assembly costs.

After recording every test in a "log book," the perfect Wayne is placed with a Wayne Branch or authorized Wayne Dealer who, in turn, makes installation in accordance with your individual needs. Often the manufacturer's interest ends at this point. But with Wayne a great difference exists. . . . Not content with having sold another unit, Wayne insists that the product stay on the job and deliver exactly the service for which it was designed.

Wayne Means "Dependable"!

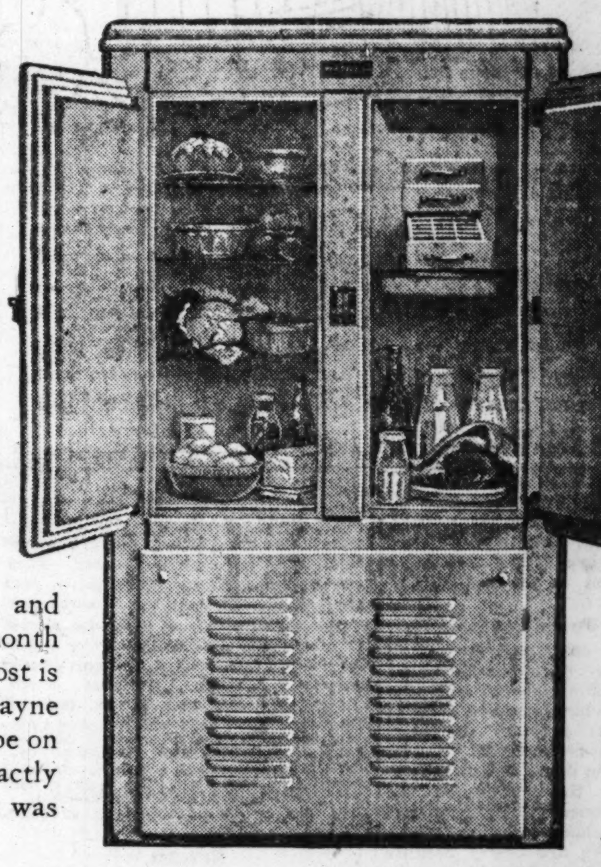
If it became necessary to describe the virtues of Wayne Home Equipment in a single word, the most appropriate word would be dependability. Both Wayne Oil Burner and Wayne Refrigerator are good looking; both are efficient beyond belief; both are made right, priced right and sold with a guarantee. But, above all, they are dependable! Day in and day out—month after month—long after the initial cost is but a dim memory your Wayne Home Equipment will be on the job, delivering exactly the service for which it was designed.

Health in the form of absolutely automatic home heating, with all the temperature control that "automatic" implies, and health in the form of scientific food preservation—these are two of the outstanding reasons why you will be interested in Wayne Oil Heat and Wayne Refrigeration. Of greatest immediate interest, perhaps, the fact that will interest you most is that both units are 100% automatic in operation and control. Both are safe, clean, quiet. Both afford a laborless freedom from duties that, while familiar, are nevertheless arduous and unproductive. Together, they mean emancipation of householders—the last word in modern automatic home equipment.

In Chicago, Wayne Home Equipment is sold and vouched for by your neighborhood store.... installed and serviced by our direct Factory Branch. Elsewhere, authorized Wayne Dealers, with a factory trained staff, are pledged to maintain our own high standards.

Whether you patronize a Wayne Factory Branch or an authorized Wayne Dealer, you have the option of buying out of income rather than out of capital. A definite finance plan has been created to enable everyone to immediately enjoy the manifold benefits of Wayne Oil Heat for every heating requirement and Wayne Electric Refrigeration for scientific food preservation. Wayne Factory Branches and authorized Wayne Dealers are everywhere. Each has a permanent Wayne Display. See it now.

WMGriffin
President Wayne Co.



The Wayne Electric Refrigerator

Available complete with cabinet, as shown, or as a unit to fit your present ice-box, Wayne is the logical successor to ice.

Clean, safe, quiet—you will be amazed at the automatic control that maintains the proper refrigerating temperature at all times.

FIGURES TELL STORY OF BEEF SUPPLY OF U. S.

Show Where Consumer's Dollar Goes.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

ACTUAL records kept on two million cattle in Packingtown last year reveal some interesting figures on how the consumer's dollar is divided up among the various agencies that produce, process, and market the nation's beef supply. This great herd, when alive, weighed nearly two billion pounds, and when killed and the carcasses were hung on the hook there was enough beef to feed six cities the size of Chicago with its more than three million people.

For the two million cattle the farmer was paid $157,860,000. After he had paid $10,000,000 for transportation and marketing costs, including freight, yardage, feed and commission charges, the producer had left $147,860,000 with which to pay his production costs.

The packer sold the beef carcasses to butchers for $156,200,000 and the by-products brought the packer $29,560,000. His expenses amounted to $26,000,000, leaving the packer a profit of $1,900,000.

Profits Shown.

Butchers cut up the carcasses and collected from the consumers $204,620,000. When the retail butchers had paid for their beef and $41,400,000 for expenses they had left a profit of $7,020,000. It is assumed that the butcher sold the entire carcass, everything from soup bones to Porterhouse steaks for an average price of about 19.6 cents a pound. This average price is based on facts concerning retail expenses and profits revealed in studies made in recent years by federal government men who visited many retail meat markets of various kinds in cities throughout the United States.

This average price of 19.6 cents may seem low to many consumers who buy at high grade butcher shops. The government's studies used as a basis for deciding upon this price were made in a great variety of meat markets, including "carry stores," "limited delivery stores," and "unlimited delivery stores."

Charges En Route.

If a farmer from an average shipping point in Iowa had followed one of the steers through to the market, across Packingtown, and then watched the butcher cut it up and hand it to the consumers he would find the following costs tacked on along the way: The railroad company collected $3.40 for freight. The commission man took 90 cents, and the stockyard company received 35 cents for the use of the pen where the steer waited to be sold and another 35 cents for feed. That is a total of $5 to get the steer from the farmer's loading station to the packing house door.

The packer paid $78.93 for the steer which averaged 966 pounds, yielding 520 pounds of dressed beef. It cost the packer $13 to handle the steer and sell the beef carcass to the retail butcher and pass the by-products on in to their various channels. For the beef the packer got $78.10 and for the by-products $14.78. After paying the farmer for the steer and his expenses in handling the animal the packer had left 95 cents.

All Along the Line.

The retail butcher took the beef carcass, cut it up, and sold it to the consumer for $102.31. The butcher's expenses amounted to $20.70, leaving him a net profit of $3.51 after he had paid the packer $78.10.

By back tracking the steer from the city man's table to the farm it is found that out of the consumer's dollar the butcher got about 23¾ cents, the packer 13½ cents, and the farmer 62¾ cents, but each one had expenses to pay out of his share. From the money he got for the dollar's worth of meat the butcher paid out 20¼ cents and had left a net profit of 3½ cents. The packer likewise had to pay out 12¾ cents, and had left slightly less than 1 cent as his net share of the consumer's dollar. And the farmer, too, had costs to bear, so that when he had paid out 4 cents of his share of the city man's dollar for marketing costs on the beef content of the live animal he had left 58¾ cents for his feed, labor, and other costs of production.

According to the federal government's report, fourteen million cattle were slaughtered in this country in 1927, yielding a total of nearly seven billion pounds of beef.

Experts of the United States department of agriculture say that their careful study of available data "indicates that scarcely more than 26 per cent of all steer beef on the markets ranks above the medium grade. About one-half of one per cent falls in the prime grade, four per cent in the choice grade, twenty-two per cent in the good grade, fifty-three per cent in the medium grade, seventeen per cent in the common grade, and three and one-half per cent in the cutter and canner grades."

Bought Up by Hotels.

There is a comparatively small amount of the exceptionally high grade heavy beef produced. Only the occasional retail butcher shop handles it. Much of it goes to the high class clubs and restaurants. Seventeen and eighteen dollar steers usually are bought by the best clubs and hotels where tender, juicy steaks and roasts are in demand. Fancy steaks from such steers are costly because there are only a few pounds of them in a carcass.

For example, a steer was sold during the high cattle prices before Christmas at $17.75 a hundred. He weighed 1,400 pounds and yielded 896 pounds of beef. The farmer got $248.50 for the steer. The packer got $232.95 for the beef carcass (this does not include the by-products).

Jack Hill, manager of the Saddle and Sirloin club at the Union Stockyards, bought what Packingtown terms the "sets," which consists of the loins and rib roasts. The "sets" weighed 224 pounds and sold to Mr. Hill at wholesale price for 50 cents a pound, or $112. In the club's kitchen Mr. Hill had the high grade steaks cut out and found that he had 26 pounds of sirloin steak and 12 pounds of tenderloin steak. According to his calculations the 38 pounds of sirloin and tenderloin steaks together cost him at the rate of $1.46½ cents a pound.

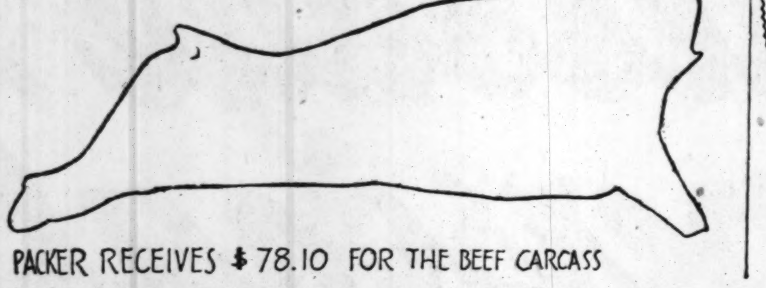
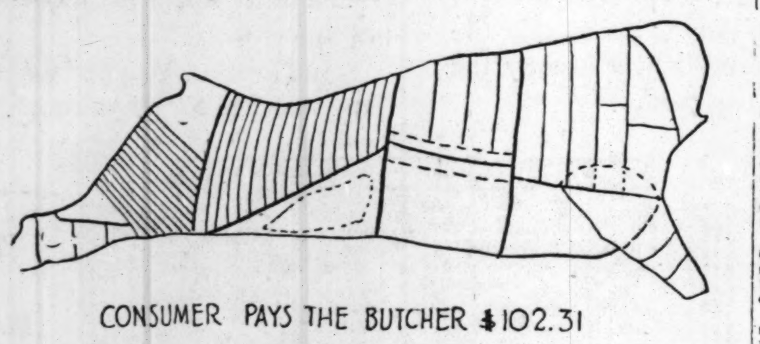
WHAT THE PACKER PAID THE FARMER—Records on 2,000,000 cattle sold by cattlemen last year show that the farmer got an average of $78.93 for the animals averaging 966 pounds alive—$64.15 for the beef content and $14.78 for the by-product content. It cost the farmer $5 a head for freight, yardage, feed, and commission. He got a check for $73.93, and from this he paid for feed, labor, and other production costs.



PACKER RECEIVES $78.10 FOR THE BEEF CARCASS

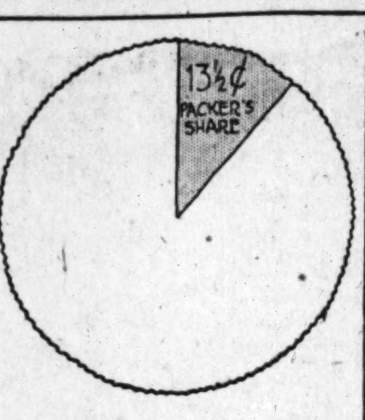
WHAT THE BUTCHER PAID THE PACKER—For the average carcass of beef alone, weighing 520 pounds, the packer got $78.10. In addition he received $14.78 for the byproducts. He paid the farmer $78.93, and his expenses were $13 a head, leaving him a net profit of 95 cents on each steer.



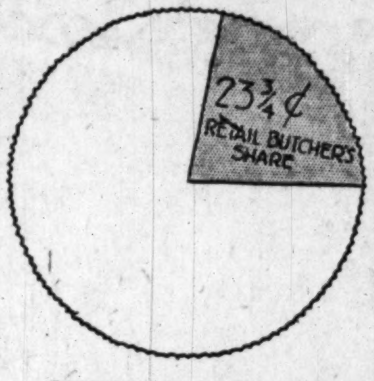
CONSUMER PAYS THE BUTCHER $102.31

WHAT THE CONSUMER PAID THE BUTCHER—When the retail butcher cut up the carcass into steaks, roasts, and soup bones, he was paid by the consumer $102.31. Out of this he paid $78.10 for the beef and had an expense of $20.70. The butcher made a profit of $3.51. The retail figures, computed from government estimates, are based on the assumption that the consumer paid an average of 19.6 cents a pound for the entire carcass, including all cuts.

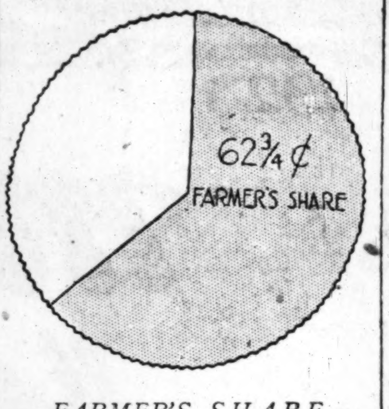
CONSUMER'S BEEF DOLLAR



PACKER'S SHARE—The packer got 13½ cents out of the consumer's dollar. Expenses of the packer amounted to 12¾ cents, leaving him slightly less than one cent net profit.



BUTCHER'S SHARE—Out of the city man's dollar paid for beef (all cuts from soup bones to Porterhouse steaks) the butcher got 23¾ cents last year. His expenses amounted to 20¼ cents, leaving a net profit of 3½ cents.



FARMER'S SHARE—About 62¾ cents were passed back to the farmer. It cost the producer 4 cents to get the beef content to the packer, leaving him approximately 58¾ cents of the consumer's beef dollar.

BANK OF GERMANY.

BERLIN, March 10.—(AP)—The reichsbank report as of March 7 shows the following changes in reichsmarks: Gold and bullion decreased 97,000, reserve in foreign currencies increase 15,391,000, bills of exchange and cheques decreased 75,333,000 silver and other coins decreased 4,607,000, notes on other banks increased 9,473,000, advances decreased 66,482,000, other assets decreased 41,836,000, notes in circulation decreased 200,564,000, other maturing obligations increased 35,488,000, other liabilities increased 1,585,000. Total gold holdings, 1,888,253,000. Rate of discount, 7 per cent.

METALS.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—COPPER—Demand, both domestic and foreign, improved toward midweek; sales satisfactory. Firmness of prices at London was a factor. Cut price copper either absorbed or withdrawn; producers held steady at 14⅝c for electrolytic delivered at Connecticut valley points. TIN—Easier here and at London; demand moderate, consumers principal buyers. LEAD—Firm; consuming demand improved materially. ZINC—Also firm; influenced by the higher prices for ore, prospects of decreased output and strength abroad. ANTIMONY—Was slightly firmer and it was reported that practically all of the resale lots recent offering at moderate declines had been absorbed.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—LEAD—Firm at $5.95. ZINC—Slab, steady at $5.60.

FIRMER TONE IN COTTON

Cotton markets, although receiving little attention, developed a stronger undertone, with Chicago futures 9 to 14 points higher, and other marflets up to 3 to 14 points. Spot cotton was 15 points higher in New York and New Orleans, the latter being 18.50c, and New York being 18.90c. Houston and Galveston were 18.55c. Liverpool closed 5 to 10 points net lower.

There was moderate changing between the different futures. Rains were reported in the south central belt and in south Texas, while the northern half of the belt was generally clear.

Reports from Washington were that the senate investigating committee was contemplating a reclassification of the entire New York stock.

For the last 3 weeks mills of the world have taken less cotton than during the last 3 seasons up to this period, the total so far being about 400,000 bales less than in 1926. Prices follow:

A drop in supplies at all leading hog markets in the west, indicating a probable decrease in receipts here after Monday of next week, brought buyers on the week-end trade earlier than usual.

Advances of 5@10c were general, boosting the average 10c at $8.15, highest since Thursday of last week, against $8.05 the previous Saturday. Fancy 185@210 lb averages reached $8.45, the day's top.

Trading practically was over before 10 o'clock in the forenoon, with only 2,000 pen holders and inferior classes left at the close. Outsiders obtained 2,500.

Arrivals Steadily Small.

Hog receipts have been running smallest since early in January, but larger than any corresponding period since 1924. Arrivals last week at 220,900 compare with 137,690 a year ago and 155,709 two years ago. The estimate average weight at 237 lbs was heaviest since last October, due to the smaller number of pigs included in recent receipts. Prices averaged $8.05, equaling the lowest of the season, against $11.55 a year ago and $12.25 two years ago. Prices three years ago averaged $13.75.

A sharp downward swing of the market for better grades of steers failed to affect the week's general average to any extent, due to the meager supply of topnotchers on sale. General average price was forced down only 5c at $13.10, being above any corresponding weekly average in over five years.

A narowing of the "spread" between light and heavy steers was a feature of the trade. Prime 1,508 lb averages topped the list at $16.50, with 931 lb yearlings at $15.00 and 775 lb heifers at $13.25.

Sheep Receipts Small.

Sheep receipts last week at 46,600 were smallest since last June and forced prices to the highest point in nine months. Choice fed westerns reached $16.75, the highest since June, 1927, when the new crop lambs sold at $19.20.

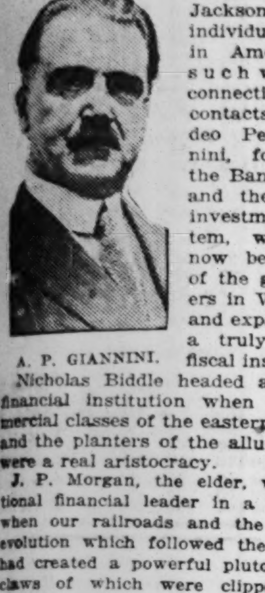
LEECH PRESENTS GIANNINI AS NEW BANKING POWER

BY HARPER LEECH.

Not since Nicholas Biddle headed the Second Bank of the United States and locked horns with Andrew Jackson has any individual banker in America had such widespread connections and contacts as Amadeo Peter Giannini, founder of the Bank of Italy and the banking investment system, which has now become one of the great powers in Wall street and expanded into a truly national fiscal institution.



A. P. GIANNINI.

Nicholas Biddle headed a national financial institution when the commercial classes of the eastern seaboard and the planters of the alluvial south were a real aristocracy.

J. P. Morgan, the elder, was a national financial leader in a latter era, when our railroads and the industrial evolution which followed the civil war had created a powerful plutocracy, the claws of which were clipped in the Roosevelt epoch.

Helps Birth of New Age.

P. Morgan, however, was a banker for a limited class of rich men and great corporations. Strangely enough the elder Morgan, himself the climax of the age of financial and stock market giants, by his organization of the steel corporation and other great industrial units, helped to pave the way for men like Giannini, who are the fiscal captains in this age of popularized department store banking, democratized ownership of corporate wealth, and a new middle class to whom the balance of investing power definitely has swung.

What sort of a man is this Giannini? I only can offer some observations growing out of a thirty minute talk. But a powerful personality can project some pretty definite impressions in half an hour.

I also had this advance slant on Giannini: Americans are accustomed to associate Italian names with our later immigration, and to think of the rise of such men to wealth as the conventional story of the poor immigrant lad battling his way to the top.

Like Pioneer Stock.

Giannini evidently is of a naturally aggressive and masterful strain. The early Italian migration to California was in many respects similar to the German migration after 1848—including independent, liberal thinking and substantial yeomanry and burgeoisie leaving the old country precisely as the best constructive and pioneering stock of the colonial migrations. The type was no stranger to me.

Among the oldest and most capable families of Memphis, Tenn., are Italian "forty-eighters." Men like Frank L. Monteverde and George Chigazola achieved political leadership in state and city down there thirty years and more ago.

As to financial acumen—a glance and a few words with Giannini switch the mind right back to Florence, Genoa, and Venice, cradles of modern finance. Such a man, born of such a stock, in a new American commonwealth, as permeable to ability and ambition as any renaissance republic, was bound to rise.

Seller of Farm Produce.

There are many interesting side lights on this man. At the age of 19 he was a partner in a commission house, dealing in products of the soil. Born in a small California agricultural town in 1870, he met the small urban retailer, who fed the people of America's most adventurous city, San Francisco. He remains as close to the soil in his thinking as any midwestern bankers, and I cannot help thinking that the injection of such thinking into Wall street is a most desirable counterpoise to the excessive urbanism of the conventional outlook there.

However, California by climate and geography, is a state of varied crops, of gardens and orchards. That diversity also is a diversity of credit risks, and had much to do with the tremendous success of chain banking in the state. It is not the typical American rural set up.

Knows Merchandising Problems.

People familiar with the Giannini career believe that his early association with P. C. Hale, great department store merchant, stil active in the Giannini institutions, was of great value to him, because Hale not only had the department store idea which has become such an important feature of modern banking, but also knew the financial potency of many small sums of money. Hale as a retailer knew the power of a flock of dimes as well as Woolworth, it is said.

Some students of the process by which banking in America has been doffing the high hat, point out that if Giannini and Hale knew bananas and dimes, another great pioneer of the movement was Festus J. Wade. He knew the nickel. He learned it driving a horse and collecting fares on a primitive street car, which navigated the cobble stoned streets of old St. Louis.

Here in outline is the Giannini system to date. Its center is the Bancitaly Corporation of New York with resources of $300,000,000. It holds 12 per cent of the stock of the Bank of Italy of California, fourth largest bank of the United States in point of deposits, and the most widely extended as to branches. The resources of this great bank, which grew out of the soil of California and the confidence of the people of San Francisco, are equivalent to 10 per cent of the entire wealth of America, when Nicholas Biddle headed our last official central bank.

International Paper Sets New Record in Production

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—Production of paper and pulp by the International Paper company in 1927 was 833,633 tons, a new high record, against 740,172 in 1926, an increase of about 12.6 per cent. Production of all grades totaled 702,105 tons, an increase of about 15.5 per cent over the 607,630 tons turned out in 1926. Pulp manufactured for outside sale was 131,528 tons, against 132,-542 tons.

Chicago Bank Stocks Show Upward Trend

Price movements in the local bank stock market were toward higher levels during the last week, with National Bank of the Republic and State Bank of Chicago the strong spots. Republic changed hands at 480, up 25 points, but it eased off a trifle at the close to 470 bid, offered at 475. State Bank of Chicago rose from 603 to 625, and additional stock was wanted at the latter figure, with best offerings at 632.

Central Trust Company of Illinois continued in demand, and bids of 410 failed to attract sellers. Continental National Bank and Trust was also strong at 524 bid, offered at 526. First National added another 5 points to its recent gain, being quoted at 827 bid, 831 asked. Foreman National was likewise higher at 675 bid. Illinois Merchants was unchanged at 894@898, as was Bank of America at 334@338. Union Trust improved 3 points in the late trading to 677 bid, offered at 681. Union Bank of Chicago was 5 points higher at 380@385.

Industrial Issues Irregular.

The trend was mixed in the miscellaneous group. Beatrice Creamery common was again in demand at 60@61 and the prefered at 102½@105. Beach Hotel units improved 5 points, and bids of 130 failed to attract sellers. Brunswick-Balke-Collender preferred was in demand at 107½, up 1. The Channon issues were unchanged, the common being quoted at 16½@17½; first preferred, 94½@96; second preferred, 103 bid. Chicago Daily News common was steady at 40@40½, while the preferred was strong at 102@103.

Container Corporation units improved 5 points to 45¼ bid, offered at 45½. Creamery Package, after selling at 32, rose 1½ points to closing sales at 33½. Dolese & Shepard was 5 points higher at 140 bid. Elgin National Watch was again neglected and easier at 54@56. Federal Electric preferred declined 2 points to 81 bid, offered at 83, while the common was offered at 24. Bids of 23½ for Godchaux Sugar first preferred failed to attract sellers.

Other Issues Are Strong.

Interstate Iron and Steel preferred was again wanted at 99½, with offerings at 100¼. The common was traded in at 81. Goodman Manufacturing was quiet at 50¼@50¾. Kellogg company displayed strength, improving 8 points to 183 bid, 186 asked. McCord Manufacturing common was in supply, being offered at 7, with best bids at 6½. The debenture issue was quoted at 16@17 and the class A at 64@67. Northwestern Yeast changed hands at 235, off 5. National Tea 6½ per cent preferred was strong, sales ranging between 104¾ and 105½.

Activity was noted in O'Cedar Corporation class A, stock being wanted at 4¾. Peabody Coal preferred rose a point to 104. St. Louis National Stock Yards improved 1¾ points to 95½ bid, offered at 96½. The recent rise in Southern Surety was not maintained. It sold down 2 points to 31½. At the close stock was wanted at 32, with offerings at 33. A. E. Staley Manufacturing also forfeited a portion of its recent rise, being quoted at 230@240. The bid price of Stover Manufacturing preferred was 2 points higher at 71.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—A final valuation of $487,870,700 for the Chicago and North Western railroad, as of June, 1917, was fixed today by the interstate commerce commission. The company, which operates an extensive system in the northwest, contended for a valuation of $508,321,494, but the commission's action confirmed its earlier tentative findings.

The North Western's capitalization on the valuation date was $370,132,258, while its book investment was $388,671,654. Included in the final vote was a figure of $87,129,680, which the commission determined as proper for the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha, the principal subsidiary of the North Western.

The report stated that the investment of the Chicago and Northwestern in road and equipment, including land, was shown on the company's books as $388,671,654, and that with readjustments made in conformity with the commission's accounting classification would be increased to $436,460,609.

German Ocean Line Shows Large Increase in Profits

BERLIN, March 10.—(AP)—The annual report of the North German Lloyd states that business during the year 1927 was satisfactory. The development of passenger traffic reached expectations, but freight traffic suffered from various influences. State subsidies granted in foreign countries particularly prejudiced trade competition, the report said.

The company's total tonnage was placed at 861,418 gross tons and the business turnover for the year was 39,-440,000 marks, representing a net profit of 11,000,000 marks [about $2,750,000] as compared with 7,400,000 marks for the previous year. A dividend of 8 per cent was proposed.

N. Y. Clearing House Banks Report Deficit in Reserves

New York, March 10.—The weekly report of the New York clearing house banks and trust companies showed a deficit in reserve of $5,021,830, a decrease of $6,025,960 from the week before. The statement of actual condition this day of clearing house members revealed decreases in all the principal items except cash in own vaults, which gained $2,772,000. Loans, discounts, and investments were off $45,093,000; reserve in federal reserve bank of member banks, $18,194,000; reserve in own vaults, $421,000; net demand deposits, $86,269,000, and deposits, $16,900,000.

Department Stores Report More Sales Than Year Ago

Total sales of 491 department stores which report to the federal reserve system were 2.2 per cent larger in February of this year than in February of 1927. This increase, however, was due largely to the fact that February of this year contained one more business day than February a year ago.

In eight federal reserve districts sales were larger than a year ago, the largest increase occurring in the Chicago district, 6.3 per cent, and the San Francisco district, 6.4 per cent. The comparison is better than in January, when department store sales showed a slight falling off as compared with 1927.

KEYSTONE STEEL SOARS ON RUMOR OF STOCK SPLIT

Profit taking in several issues brought an irregular tone to the biggest Saturday trading in years on the Chicago stock exchange yesterday. Total sales were 49,000 shares, as compared with 15,000 to 25,000 in the usual two hour week-end sessions.

Keystone Steel led the active list with a jump of 15 points to 194 before settling down to 190 at the close, a net gain of 10 points on the day. Rumors were again circulated that a split up of the stock is impending.

All-American Radio became a feature with a gain of 2 points to 9½ in sympathy with Radio Corporation of America which soared 12 points higher in New York.

Borg & Beck was active and advanced fractionally while good buying stopped profit taking in Galesburg-Coulter Disc, Pines Winterfront, Club Aluminum, and Meadows Manufacturing, all of which closed unchanged. The weak side was led by Auburn Automobile and Cutler-Hammer, both of which sold down 2 points. Sears-Roebuck eased a point and Stewart-Warner and Consumers were off fractionally.

Great Lakes Gains.

On small sales Great Lakes Dredge sold up 6 points to 315 on the belief that the throwing out of all bids for the Chicago river straightening project and the submission of new bids will give the company a chance to come closer to the minimum, disclosed in the opening of the first bids on which the Great Lakes concern was considerably higher. Fitzsimons & Connell Dredge was up a point.

Commonwealth Edison gained 3½. Montgomery Ward declined 1¼, and losses of a point each were felt by Midland Steel, Central and Southwest Utilities, and Public Service par. Public Service no par was down 2 points.

For the week just closed the list was decidedly strong, a large majority showing net advances which ranged up to 24 points. Keystone Steel registered the 24 point gain, while Great Lakes Dredge was second with a 15 point advance. Fitzsimons & Connell climbed 8½. Shaffer Oil preferred was pushed up 13 points. Commonwealth Edison sold up 8½ and American Shipbuilding was 9 points higher.

Week's Gains Are Many.

Gains up to 4 points or so were registered by McQuay-Norris, Montgomery Ward, Meadows Manufacturing common and preferred, Electric Household Utilities, Central and Southwest Utilities, Zenith Radio, Campbell, Wyant & Cannon Foundry, Consumers common, preferred and warrants, Balaban & Katz, Foote Gear, Wrigley, Chicago City & Connecting Railway preferred, Borg & Beck, Armour of Illinois preferred, United Biscuit, Kraft Cheese, Pines Winterfront, and Hart, Schaffner & Marx.

The few soft spots were led by a 3 point decline in Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee preferred. Kellogg Switchboard & Supply sold down 2½ on rumors that earnings will show a decline and that consideration of a cut in the dividend is in contemplation.

Traction Bonds Higher.

In the bonds, the week's record shows a 2 point gain in Chicago Railways B 5s, while the company's first 5s were up 1¾. Chicago City and Connecting railway 5s closed a point higher. Houston Gulf 6½s gained 5¾.

The Middle West Utilities company increased its scope with the acquisition of control of the National Electric Power company, through the ownership by the Insull group of all the class B common stock and a good block of the A stock. Gross earnings of National Public Service in the year ended Dec. 31 last were $29,833,866. Addition of this figure to the Middle West and National Electric figures gives a total of more than $141,000,000. This compares with $96,659,078 for the Middle West Utilities system alone in 1927.

British Fear U. S. Will Make Paris Main Finance Center

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, March 10.—British financiers are worried about what is described as the American tendency to support the growth of Paris as the European financial center. Several times recently, THE TRIBUNE is informed, the chiefs of the city of London have been surprised to find Wall street dealing direct with Paris instead of passing through a London clearing house, as has been the custom, and even without taking London's advice on matters concerned with European finance.

The city also is disturbed by the knowledge that American financiers are backing plans for a Franco-German economic rapprochement, which, if successful, is sure to damage British trade. The information in London is that close contact has been established between Seymour Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations payments, and Premier Poincare of France, and Mr. Gilbert is also said to serve as a connecting link in the Franco-German conversations for a revision of the Dawes plan.

Bank Clearings Increase; Business Failures Decline

New York, March 10.—Bank clearings again are very heavy, the total for the first week of March for all leading cities in the United States of $11,001,096,000 being 23.5 per cent above that for a year ago, according to Dun's Review. There is a slight improvement in the insolvency record this week, failures in the United States numbering 510. This is a relatively high total, but is 6 below the 516 defaults reported last week. Comparison with the returns of a year ago still shows a considerable increase, the number during that period being 463.

Grain Traders—

Successful grain trading is nothing more or less than clever grain merchandising. "INVESTMENT BUYING" is a new 50 page book just off the press, which covers the whole field of trading in grain futures. Shows methods employed by successful professionals and also hundreds of mistakes that are made by beginners. "INVESTMENT BUYING" is not theory, but is the result of fifteen years of successful trading in grain futures. This book, containing dozens of valuable tables and charts will be sent free for the asking. No obligation.

TOPICS OF FINANCE AND TRADE

Plans are being made for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company's expansion in the Chicago district, says a Youngstown, O., dispatch. Rail and sheet mills probably will be built. The company has no sheet mills in the Chicago district at present. A harbor frontage on Lake Michigan will also be developed. The company has placed its No. 1 blast furnace at Hubbard in operation. This makes nine out of seventeen stacks producing in all districts.

Buying of electrical equipment by the utility companies was more active the last week, especially in the eastern district, with sub-station apparatus moving in a larger way, Electrical World reports. The volume of orders from industrials continues fairly active, with sales of small increasing.

Republic Iron and Steel company expects to complete the installation for manufacturing railroad spikes in the next sixty days and to begin production at that time. Makers of sheets, strips, and highly finished automobile stocks are receiving liberal specifications from the automobile industry.

New York Air Brake, at its annual meeting on April 11, will submit to stockholders proposals for an increase in its authorized capital stock from 300,000 to 500,000 shares and to expand the company's powers, now very limited, to permit it to engage in practically any line of manufacture desired. There is no intention to issue forthwith the 200,000 shares of additional stock.

Island Creek Coal company produced 378,612 tons of coal during the month of February, a decrease due to the shorter month from the output of 401,169 tons in January. Pond Creek Pocahontas company gained almost a third in production with a February total of 60,179 tons, compared with 45,452 tons produced in January.

Announcement was made that the National Tube company plant at Benwood will be placed in partial operation by the United States Steel corporation during the spring months. It also was said that the new strip mill at Steubenville, O., will be operated this year.

Toledo employment this week reached a new high record of 34,568, an increase of 77 over the last previous week and comparing with 31,460 in the corresponding 1927 week.

International Telephone and Telegraph company has completed plans for establishing communications soon between Buenos Aires and Montevideo with later extensions to Chile and Brazil, and eventually to the United States and Europe.

Business in the cotton goods markets is devoid of profit and is proving burdensome to some mills, Textile World says. Buyers still lag in many lines despite apparent stabilization of raw material. There is interest in gray goods for near delivery at low figures.

Stocks of slab zinc at the close of February were 41,317 short tons, against 42,163 tons the month before, the American Zinc institute reports. February production was 50,042 tons, and shipments 50,888 tons.

Sales of Best & Co. for January increased 21 per cent over 1927 and February sales increased 13 per cent over last year, according to a New York wire. The outlook for spring business is regarded as bright and plans are progressing for adding three new floors to the present building.

W. E. Moore, comptroller of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours company, will become vice president of the Du Pont Rayon company on April 1. B. L. Ward, treasurer of Du Pont National Ammonia company, will become comptroller.

Sound Bonds Best from All Angles.

The investor is always looking for as high a return on his money as is consistent with safety.

A great many even are so tempted by high yield that they shut their eyes to the safety element and jeopardize $100 of principal in order to obtain $1 or $2 a year more in income.

It should be realized that the days of 7 and 8 per cent interest on high grade bonds are past and that 5½ per cent is a rather exceptionally high rate on sound bonds today.

Furthermore, the trend of interest rates is still downwards and it is our opinion that this trend will continue for some time to come.

Those who are not willing to sacrifice safety to yield, but who are holding out for higher rates—expecting them to return in the near future—may find that they will have to take even lower rates than those at present obtainable.

It does not pay to keep money idle.

Money invested even at 4½ per cent pays.

Idle money does not pay.

It is better to have your funds working for you, even at a low rate of return, than to keep them out of work.

It pays to have sound bonds, even though their rate may be small.

There is, also, another advantage in the possession of really high grade bonds.

Few investors realize that it is possible frequently to actually receive a high rate of return on a sound bond of low interest rate.

To illustrate, let us cite a few examples:

In February, 1927, an issue of Chicago and North Western railroad 4½s of 2037 was offered at 95. At this writing their market price is 102½. If the investor who purchased at the offering price should sell at the present market he would have a yield of about 12.3 per cent—the result of the $7.50 appreciation plus the $4.50 interest.

Commonwealth Edison company 4½s of 1957, offered in March of last year at 96 and now selling at about 101, if sold at that price would yield about 9.90 per cent.

Milwaukee Gas Light company 4½s of 1967, offered at 93¾ in February, 1927, and now selling at about 100½, similarly would yield about 12 per cent.

Pennsylvania, Ohio and Detroit railroad 4½s of 1977 and Duquesne Light company 4½s of 1967, both offered at 95 a year ago this month and selling at about 101, would yield over 11 per cent.

These are only a few examples out of many that we could cite where an exceptionally high return may be realized through the purchase of high grade bonds, if one watches his securities and wishes to turn over his capital when an opportunity to do so to advantage presents itself.

As interest rates decrease, the price of high grade bonds trends upwards.

It should be realized, therefore, that, from every point of view, really high grade bonds are the most desirable.

U. S. Steel Unfilled Orders Up 122,242 Tons in Month

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation at the close of February amounted to 4,398,189 tons, an increase of 122,242 tons compared with the end of the preceding month.

The increase is considerably larger than had been expected in Wall street, although some estimates had run as high as 1,000,000 tons. In the early days of February predictions had been rather general that the unfilled orders would show little change from Jan. 31, and a decrease of 75,000 tons or more was considered not impossible.

A material gain in orders in the last week of the month followed a general slowing up of bookings in the earlier periods and accounted for the gain.

Find Building Contracts Set Record for February

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Building and engineering contracts awarded in February in the thirty-seven states east of the Rocky mountains amounted to $465,331,300, the highest total ever recorded for February, F. W. Dodge corporation reports. This was 9 per cent ahead of the January figures and 18 per cent more than February last year. Four districts made new high totals for the month—New York state and northern New Jersey, middle Atlantic states, the central west, and Texas.

Malaya Rubber Men Oppose Ending Export Restriction

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlement, March 10.—(AP)—The Rubber Planters' association of Malaya has passed a resolution strongly opposing the removal of the restriction on rubber exports established by the Stevenson plan.

The Kuala Lumpur chamber of commerce passed a resolution saying the solution of the rubber problem lies in the complete and effective coöperation of the Dutch East Indies and any control not embracing all exports from the eastern producing countries will be of little practical value to the Malay states. If such a course is impracticable, the resolution declared, the present restriction should be continued in a modified form.

The Johore Planters' association signified that it supported the resolution of the Malaya Planters' association.

Chicago Packers Report Meat Prices Are Easier

Armour & Co., in its review of general packing house trade conditions, says:

"The fresh pork market was somewhat irregular, with a tendency to easier prices. Smoked meats showed a fairly satisfactory movement at steady to easier prices. Dressed beef prices showed little change, the demand continuing at the lowest point in years. Dressed lambs sold slowly on a weak to lower market. Veal also was slow moving with prices considerably weaker. Foreign trade again was moderately good."

An Unusual Business Opportunity

We have an interesting proposition to offer enterprising men, between 22 and 40 years of age, to establish themselves in a semi-professional business, in any city other than Chicago. Must be men of good appearance and business experience. We teach you how to conduct the business in two weeks. Investment necessary $2,500 to $4,000. You own your own business and handle your own money, paying us only a small royalty for a limited time. Should average for yourself $5,000 to $15,000 net profit annually, according to size of city selected and your own activity. Success limited only by your own efforts. Investigate thoroughly without obligation. Call or write room 405, 20 West Jackson Boulevard, and ask for Mr. Maas.

LUXURY STOCKS LONDON FEATURE IN BIG MARKET

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, March 10.—The speculative world appears to have gone mad, and nothing apparently seems able to stop the adding of fuel to the flame. The fevered speculation shows no sign of ending, and old timers are shaking their heads and giving warnings.

This week's trading is stated to be one of the largest in many years. Speculators who never before bought a stock or a share now are coming in by the hundreds, on glowing reports of recent fortunes easily amassed on the stock markets.

Women Trading Heavily.

There was much heavy gambling by women, a majority of them uninformed on finance or market procedure, but simply were drawn in by the get-rich-quick lure. A wild gamble in talking machine shares and arts silks partly was responsible for this new women's craze, a remarkable point being that they have mostly all done exceedingly well, but the real investors are now leaving these two sections severely alone.

Public attention now is veering around to commercial motors and electricity supply shares. Undoubtedly the prospects of commercial vehicle manufacturers are increasingly bright, aided by the belief that the concerns will receive substantial contracts if the bill giving power to the railroad companies to run motor road services goes through parliament.

Merger Rumors Are Factors.

Greatly increased activity is anticipated in this group and the prospects are leading to some interesting rumors of amalgamations. Shares, such as Dennis, Guy Motors, Laylands, Tillings and Tillings and Stevens are among the foremost possessing the best prospects.

Chief interest in the electricity group was due to many reports that American money in large amounts is being used in purchases of English electric lighting concerns, particularly those operating in the home counties and southern England.

The industrial excitement has not detracted from the cheerfulness in the more solid investment sections, where there is a decidedly stronger tendency. The gilt edged market derived considerable comfort from the better gold inflow to the banks, the hardening tone of the American exchange, and the optimistic views of the coming budget. War loans have again risen fractionally, but India stocks were exceptional, with a downward move.

Rubber Prices Decline.

The week saw another rubber slump, the commodity at one time touching a shilling per pound, showing a fall of five pence and three-quarters since the government's decision to inquire into the working of the rubber restriction scheme. A fresh selling of shares resulted in a general marking down, although at the close of the week prices were above the worst.

The home rail group was healthier, with some investment buying of leaders, which now look relatively cheap after dividend deductions.

The South American mining section shows several good features in Cape and Paris activity, with diamonds noticeably coming into favor again. Debeers picking up on rumors of a payment of a full dividend in June.

Tobaccos were active, breweries inquired for, iron, coal and steel depressed, and textiles weaker.

Paris Bourse Quieter.

PARIS, March 9.—Bourse operators remained defensive the first two days of the week, stocks moving slowly. Rentes and banking stocks were very firm, however.

Mexican Eagle oil provided a good feature, rising daily over a sharp margin until Thursday, when the stock came in for a reaction.

The outside element continued to adopt a reserved policy despite the stronger Wall street market. Rubbers eased at first, slumped badly on Wednesday, but were stronger and firmer again Thursday.

African funds felt England's contemption in the Egyptian situation, but returned to firm levels as a rule. All local funds were very good throughout the week, with the general tone irregular.

Singer Mfg. Co. Pays Extra; Iron Products Lifts Rate

New York, March 10.—(AP)—The Singer Manufacturing company declared an extra dividend of $5.50 a share in addition to the regular quarterly of $2.50, both payable March 31 to holders of record March 10. The Iron Products company declared a quarterly dividend of $1.37½ a share, payable March 31 to stock of record March 15. Three months ago a dividend of $1 a share was paid.

Eastern Utility in 25 Million Funding Plans

BY GEORGE HAMMOND.

A refunding operation for a large eastern public utility corporation together with a foreign municipal loan will be features of this week's new bond offerings.

The Metropolitan Edison company, a subsidiary of the General Gas and Electric corporation, will retire securities totaling more than $20,000,000 and divided into fifteen issues through the sale to a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., of $25,000,000 of first and refunding mortgage 4½ per cent bonds. The financial structure will thereby be simplified from seventeen to three issues.

Upon completion of the financing the funded debt will consist of $7,650,000 of 5 per cent bonds, secured by the same mortgage as the new 4½ per cent issue and one noncallable divisional issue of $1,500,000 York Haven Water and Power company 5 per cent bonds.

$10,000,000 Polish Issue.

The city of Warsaw, Poland, has sold to a banking group headed by Stone & Webster, $10,000,000 of 7 per cent thirty year sinking fund external gold bonds which will be offered tomorrow at 89 and interest to yield 7.95 per cent. Proceeds will be used for the construction, equipment, and extension of the municipal market, stockyards, tramways and busses, and gas and water works.

Domestic municipal financing scheduled for this week totals $23,694,608, as compared with $38,282,048 last week. Issues totaling $1,000,000 or more to be offered are $13,000,000 State of Arkansas 4½ per cent notes, $1,057,000 of Monmouth County, New Jersey, 4¼ per cent bonds, and $3,000,000 of East Bay municipal utility district of California bonds.

A local issue in the horizon is $10,-000,000 of Sanitary District of Chicago 4¼ per cent bonds. Another municipal issue which is expected soon will be $7,500,000 of Philadelphia 4 per cent bonds, which have been awarded to a syndicate on a bid of 101.919. American shares of Debenhams Securities, Ltd., will be offered tomorrow at $51.50 a share. The company has applied for listing of 85,000 shares on the New York exchange.

Last Week's Offerings Show Drop.

New bond offerings last week showed a decline of $125,795,000 to $127,768,000 from the previous week. This also compares with a total of $135,338,000 in the corresponding week of 1927.

The offerings by groups of last and the previous weeks follow:

Bond.	This week.	Last week.
Foreign	$ 45,000,000	$ 48,851,000
Public utility	33,279,000	18,950,000
State and municipal	25,489,000	60,262,000
Railroad	12,000,000	100,000,000
Industrial	12,000,000	24,500,000
Investment corporations	....	1,000,000
Total	$127,768,000	$253,563,000

Two foreign loans were sold here in the week, an issue of $30,000,000 of 5s of the Kingdom of Norway and $15,000,000 of bonds of the Gelsenkirchen Mining corporation. It was the first time that the latter organization had appeared in the American market for capital. The largest issue in the public utility group consisted of $12,554,000 of 4½s of the Interstate Public Service company, sold on a yield basis of 4.85 per cent, while the Scranton-Springbrook Water Service corporation sold a $5,000,000 issue of 4½s on a yield basis of 4.50 to 5.05 per cent. Seven other public utility issues of varying amounts were brought out.

The feature of the state and municipal group was a $22,500,000 issue of New York state 3½s, 3¾s, and 4s, awarded to a syndicate and offered to the public at yields of from 3.50 to 3.65 per cent. One railroad issue was brought out in the week, consisting of $12,000,000 of 5s of the Denver and Rio Grande Western. Industrial financing included the sales of $10,000,000 of 6 per cent notes of the Shaffer Oil and Refining company and $2,000,000 of 5½s of the Sheffield Steel corporation.

Motor to Use Light Oil Designed by F. B. Stearns

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—A motor that uses a light fuel oil instead of gasoline has been perfected by Frank B. Stearns, former head of the F. B. Stearns Motor company. The new motor is shown by tests to develop more than twice the power of any other motor of like cylinder capacity, according to the inventor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 10.—[Special.]—Radio corporation provided a fresh sensation today on the stock exchange as General Motors lagged under heavy profit taking. The market wound up its greatest week of trading in history and today was the heaviest Saturday on record. Sales totaled 2,198,100 shares, a gain of 395,390 shares over the previous Saturday record of 1,802,-710, made on Feb. 18. The ticker was 14 minutes behind at the close.

General Motors yielded its leadership to Radio after a short struggle at the opening, but it ran second in volume of trading. Radio had a turnover of 458,300 shares, while General Motors transactions totaled 358,500. This accounted for more than one-third of the aggregate business on the exchange.

Radio Soars to New Peak.

Radio closed at 120½ and registered a net gain of 12½. It opened at 114, up 6¼ points from the previous close. The stock sold down to 111 in early dealings and then shot up. At the high of 121¾ it ran into profit taking and was stopped in its tracks. The 1,155,400 shares of common stock outstanding had a net appreciation in open market value today of $14,731,350. The entire common stock issue was worth $139,225,700 on the basis of today's closing price.

Brokerage interests expressed the opinion that a great deal of radio had been taken out of the market within the last few weeks. Radio common is held in large blocks by a number of large companies. General Electric company is reported to be the holder of about 275,000 shares, while Westinghouse Electric company is said to own about 250,000 shares.

Short Sellers Are Squeezed.

These and other large holdings leaves the floating supply quite small. The position of the short sellers was precarious. There was some urgent covering, but the short interest is still large. The possibility of a technical corner developing, however, was believed to be remote. Officials of the corporation said they knew of no reason for the sudden advance.

Although supplanted temporarily by Radio, General Motors continued to monopolize a large share of trading interest. Orders had piled up over night in such volume that it was ten minutes after today's opening before confusion could be cleared and trading started. The stock had closed the night before at 159¾, with a net gain of 9¼ points. The first transaction was at 160, involving 20,000 shares. The second order was 5,000 shares at 160¼.

Profit Taking in General Motors.

After the early rush had been met buying enthusiasm diminished somewhat and then when General Motors hit its high of 161 the inevitable profit taking appeared. This caused it to close at 157¾, with a net loss of 2 points.

Westinghouse Electric, in which trading was unusually heavy, had a sensational advance of 8½ points, closing at its high of 104½. The Fisher brothers are reported to be heavy holders of this stock. Westinghouse's large holdings in Radio was also an important factor in the rise.

United States Steel was quite active, but closed with a net loss of half a point.

WHEAT ERRATIC, GAINS, LOSES AT MARKET'S CLOSE

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Liquidation developed in the grain markets after a moderate showing of strength early, and wheat broke 1¼@1⅜c, corn 2½@2⅝c, and oats 1@1½c from the early high, with numerous stop loss orders uncovered on the way down, and sellers of bids on corn and oats were forced to protect themselves on the break. A bearish opinion on the domestic corn situation expressed by James A. Patten, former corn king, had considerable to do with the selling of all grains, and a weakened technical position was disclosed.

The finish was on a strong rally, with wheat closing ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, with March showing the most decline, finishing at $1.36, with May $1.36@1.36⅛ and July $1.33⅞@1.34. Corn lost ⅞@1½c, with the nearby deliveries the weakest. March finished at 93½c, May 96¼@96⅜c, and July 99⅜@99¼c. Oats lost ½@1¼c and rye was ⅛@⅜c higher, the latter developing independent strength due to a good export demand.

Grains Lower for Week.

While the grain markets were higher early in the week, the finish was well toward the inside figures, with wheat ⅛c higher to ⅞c lower, corn ⅝@1c lower, and oats 1½@2c lower for the week, while rye was ⅛c higher.

Lard gained 2½@5c for the week, with ribs unchanged to 7½c higher and bellies 10c higher to 2½c lower.

Liverpool wheat failed to respond to the weakness in North America on Friday and lost only ½@⅝d, and led to fair buying, but the weakness in corn later brought in fairly general selling and a decline, with the March dropping to a fractional discount under May. There was a good export demand at the seaboard, but quantities were not given. Buenos Aires and Rosario closed ⅛c higher.

Large Trade in Corn.

Unsettled weather over the corn belt, with forecast for more rain or snow and temperatures above normal for the week led to buying of corn early, but the Patten interview started general selling, and liquidation set in later, and there was heavy selling by local professionals who were long. Support was not aggressive, although there were numerous reports of export business via the gulf. Buenos Aires and Rosario closed ½c higher.

Oats were weak with suport on the way down coming largely from shorts. Break in corn was the main influence. Houses with seaboard connections were good buyers of rye, which more than offset the effect of the weakness in other grains.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

There was a fairly good export demand for all grains at the seaboard, with sales of wheat, rye and corn known to have been made, but quantities were not given.

Chicago handlers sold 22,000 bu wheat, 129,000 bu corn, and 79,000 bu oats to the domestic trade, with 15,000 bu rye to exporters. There was 100,000 bu corn sold to go to store. Deliveries on March contracts were 1,000 bu wheat, 25,000 bu corn, and 35,000 bu oats.

PROVISION TRADE LIGHT

Trading in provisions was limited, with eastern interests the best buyers of lard. Weakness and declines in grains, with prediction of 210,000 hogs at Chicago on Monday, were depressing factors. Trading was confined to May and July deliveries, which closed 2½c lower. Liverpool was unchanged to 3d lower. Exports of lard were 1,405,750 lbs. and bacon 750,000 lbs. Bellies were offered sparingly and advanced 2½c. The strength in hog prices at the highest of the week was without effect. Prices follow:

BUTTER AND EGG FUTURES

Butter and egg futures advanced in a broad and active market. March butter reached 47c, up ⅝c for the day and more than 3c higher than the week's low. April was ⅛c lower on light trade. Butter sales were 108 cars, and arrivals 9,415 tubs.

With the exception of June storage packed the entire egg list was again in new high ground. March fresh were up ¼c to 27⅝c. Storage packed for March, April and May gained ¼ to ⅝c to finish at 29¼c, 29⅝c, and 29⅝c, respectively. November refrigerators advanced ¼c to 32½c. Sales were 330 cars and arrivals 12,750 cases.

Do You Know Your Income?

YOU will find making out your income tax report much easier if you have a practical and simple Record Book, showing at a glance, the income from your investments and amount of tax.

Such a record may also save you money by reminding you when coupons are due. Failure to clip and reinvest coupons on time means loss of income.

As part of our service to investors we have prepared such a booklet in convenient pocket form, for listing securities to show maturities, rates, denominations and normal tax paid. A copy of this Bond Record Book will be sent on request free of charge. The supply is limited and the demand for this book is active.

N. Y. CURB MART SWINGS WIDELY; BONDS SEESAW

New York, March 10.—(AP)—Profit-taking sales hammered down the gains and caused some wide losses in the curb market today, but while prices were irregular right to the close a score of shares reached new high ground and the list ended the week substantially higher. Industrial specialties again were the leaders of the advance.

It was practically a new group of industrials that established new high records today, including Spanish and General, Q. R. S., Saft-T-Stat, and Grand Stores. Campbell and Wyant reached new high ground on a heavy turnover reflecting the strength of General Motors, the company's best customer. Grand Stores, National Food Products B, and Sheffield Steel continued their gains of yesterday. Singer Manufacturing soared 10 points; Lehigh Coal Sales, 4½, and Dominion Stores, General Fireproofing, General Ice Cream, Canadian Marconi, and Bancitaly closed higher.

Several Issues Are Weak.

Tubize Art Silk reached new high ground at 564, but sold off, closing at a net loss of 6 points, while Checker Cab closed off fractionally after touching a new high at 26¼. Other weak spots included Safeway Stores, which dropped 15 points; Great Lakes Dock and Dredge, down 7; Firestone Tire and Ford of Canada, down 4 each, and Pierce Governor, American Rolling Mills, Rowley-Millner, Nichols and Shepard, and Melville Shoe.

Commonwealth Edison's 3 point advance and a new high of 145 for American Gas and Electric were spots of strength among the sagging utilities. Electric Bond and Share, Middle West Utilities, United Gas Improvement, and American Light and Traction closed 2 or more points lower.

Northern Pipe Line moved up 5½ points to a new high at 116 and Galena Signal Oil old preferred 3 points to a new high at 48. Houston Gulf Gas also reached new high ground. Creole Syndicate broke fractionally and Prairie Pipe Lines dropped nearly two points.

Bond Market Irregular.

Quiet ruled over the bond market, with week-end profit taking offsetting the firmness underlying the list. A few high grade issues continued to move upward gradually in further reflection of satisfaction over the government's March financing program. Treasury issues, after declining in the early dealings, became firm again and closed above yesterday's final prices.

A few semi-speculative and usually inactive bonds had sharp advances. Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron 5s gained 3⅛ and Kings County Lighting 6½s and North American Cement 6½s each sold up a point to new high ground. Rather heavy offerings of the new St. Paul issues were well absorbed. Seaboard liens also eased off fractionally on profit taking.

Transactions were limited in the foreign group, and prices showed little change. Some further selling of Polish obligations was in evidence, and Latin American issues continued to follow their firm trend.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE

Money in Chicago held at 4½@4¾ per cent on collateral; commercial paper, 4@4½ per cent, 4¾@5 per cent over the counter. Bankers' acceptances, 3⅛@3¾ per cent. Chicago clearings yesterday were $99,600,000, compared with $110,400,000 a week ago, and $109,600,000 a year ago. New York clearings yesterday totaled $1,124,000,000.

NEW YORK MONEY.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Prime commercial paper, 4 per cent; bar silver, domestic, 57⅛c. Mexican dollars, 43¾c. Call money, steady; all loans, 4¼ per cent; closing bid, 4¼; time loans, firm; mixed collateral, 60 to 90 days, 4½@4⅝ per cent; 4 to 6 months, 4½@4⅝.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Closing foreign exchange in amounts of $25,000 and over between banks as quoted by the Illinois Merchants Trust company.

Our 47th Anniversary Gift

Once again we celebrate the closing of a year of safety and satisfaction for our thousands of investors in every state in the Union.

Millions of dollars worth of Cochran & McCluer first mortgage real estate gold bonds have been purchased without the service of a single salesman (we employ none).

We appreciate this recognition of the Cochran & McCluer direct plan of serving investors—a plan which gives the purchaser the highest interest rate consistent with safety, now 6½%, and the personal attention of our officers. As a mark of our appreciation to our regular customers on our 47th Anniversary—and as a token of welcome to new investors—we have chosen this beautiful lamp as a gift to each purchaser of our certified first mortgage bonds, either for cash or on payment plan, while this offer is in effect. Bonds are in denominations of $100, $500 and $1000. As little as $10 starts you on the Retire in 15 Years Plan and entitles you to our attractive gift offer.

The lamp, with its rich colors and tasteful Spanish Galleon design, will be a charming addition to any home. By a touch of the finger, it may be regulated to six varied degrees of light—from gentle glow to vivid brightness. It will make an appropriate and decidedly attractive gift. We can make this offer for a limited time only.

Retire in 15 years on your present living budget

Follow the definite plan in this new book and your financial independence is won. The plan works just as surely, whether you are now earning $1000 or $100,000 a year. Phone, call or send coupon for free copy.

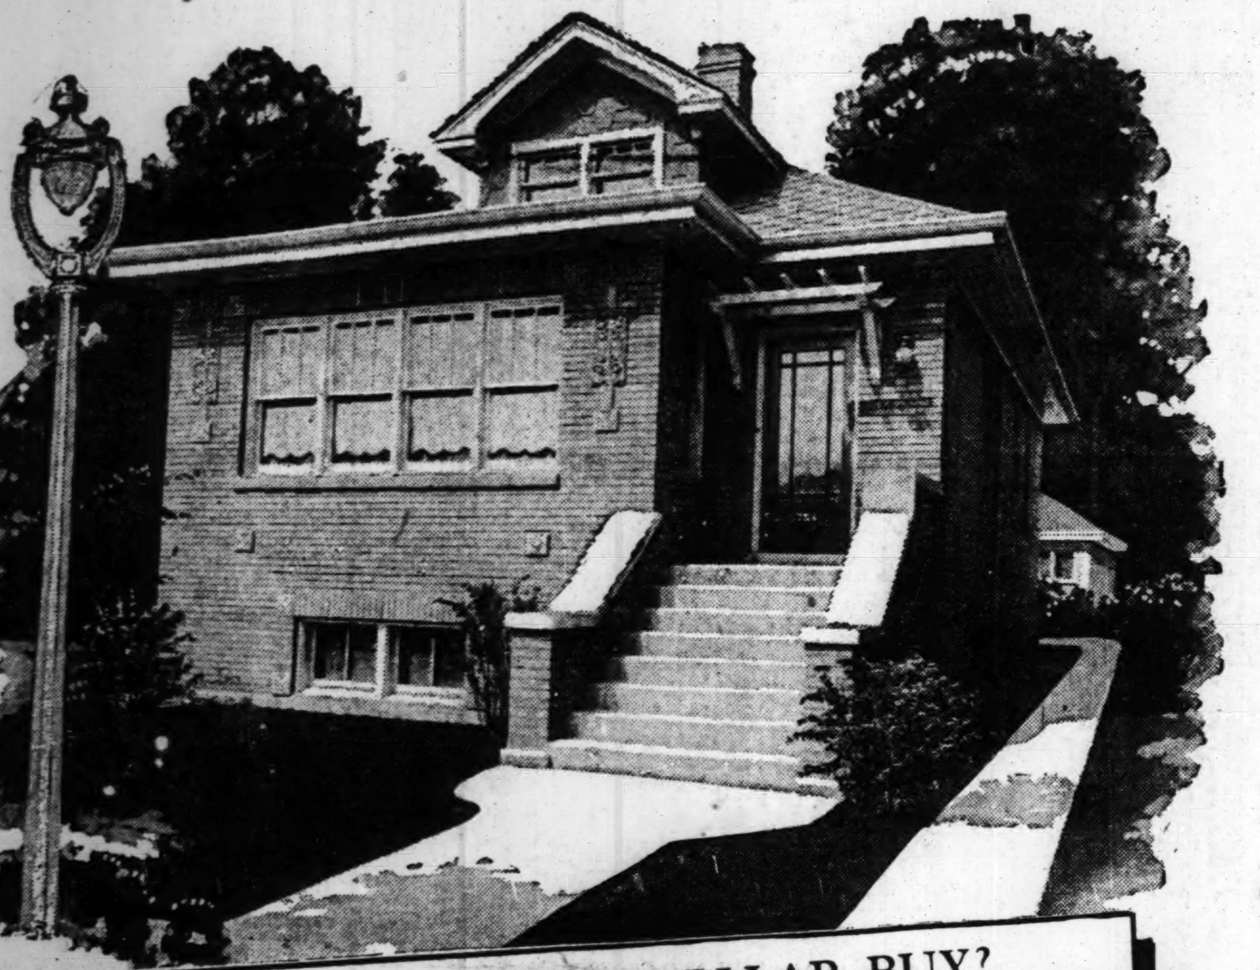
DON'T SIGN ANOTHER LEASE!



You're face to face with a great decision. What are you going to do?

Will you sign another lease . . . bind yourself to another year of struggle and strife to make profit for a landlord . . . collect no more for your money than a day-to-day shelter and a bundle of rent receipts?

Or will you pay less money to yourself each month . . . have a nicer place to live . . . end up the year with something tangible to show for your money? Just compare what your dollar buys! Many thinking families, who have weighed the question with utmost care, are deciding to take the course of wisdom and . . .

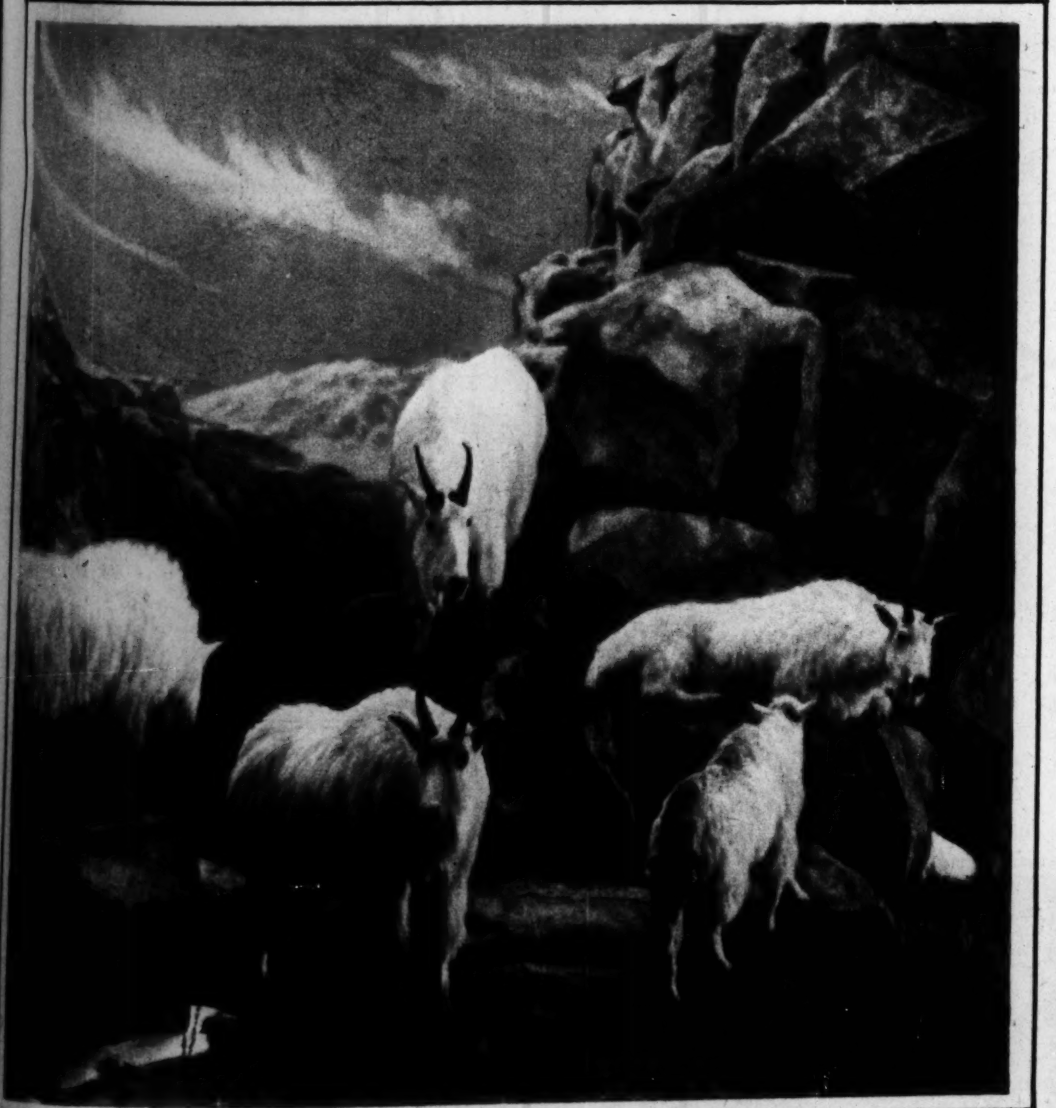
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

March 11, 1928

THE GRAND CANYON AND ITS WILD LIFE ARE BROUGHT TO CHICAGO by the Field Museum in this habitat group of mule deer from the Kaibab forest of northern Arizona. The animals were bagged and mounted by C. J. Albrecht of the museum taxidermy staff in an expedition sponsored by Marshall Field. The reproduction of the environment is by Charles A. Corwin, museum artist.



WHERE ANGELS WOULD FEAR TO TREAD the Rocky mountain goat rushes in, and with no foolhardiness. This Field museum group was collected by the Marshall Field expedition to British Columbia in the rocky heights of the Kootenay district. The taxidermy is by Julius Friesser and Arthur G. Rueckert, background by Mr. Corwin.

THE GOLDEN EAGLE, a destroying scourge of fowl, and squirrels, and even lambs, appears in this reproduction of a Little Missouri river scene in southwestern South Dakota. The group is a gift to the museum from its president, Stanley Field. Taxidermy is by Mr. Friesser, background by Mr. Corwin.

Robust winter sports—the bird-like swoop of the expert skier—keen enjoyment of the clean, cold days—how utterly dependent they are on health. And health itself so often depends on seemingly unimportant details—a careful diet, regular physical examinations, an effective dentifrice. . . .

Youth and Health are priceless gifts

Protect them now by guarding The Danger Line

The charm of youth, the buoyancy of health, there are no substitutes for them!

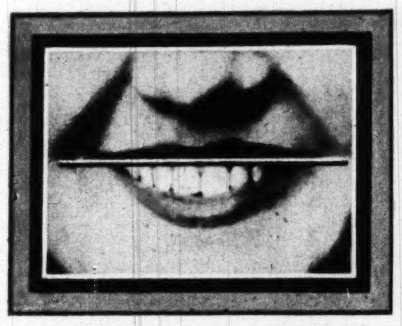
To the modern woman, they are priceless gifts. On them depend the vitality, the energy that can lift her out of the dull routine of life and fill her days to overflowing with gracious, joyous activity.

Are you one of these women who have made living a success—who have understood that it is health which must be guarded if youth and beauty are to be preserved?

Guard against the enemies of health

Take mouth hygiene, for instance. Doctors and dentists both tell us that premature old age, lack of vitality, tiredness and dangerous diseases also, are developing as the result of decayed teeth and infected gums. But what do we do to guard against this danger? Give our teeth a brushing or two, daily, perhaps with some ineffective tooth-paste, and dismiss the matter.

Brushing is not enough! And here is the reason: Every time you eat, food particles lodge in the pits on your teeth and in the tiny V-shaped crevice around each tooth formed by the meeting of tooth and gum—The Danger Line. These particles ferment. Acids are formed. It is these acids which cause tooth decay and also irritate the gums, causing dangerous infections.



Where the crown of each tooth projects into the mouth, the extremities of the gums meet it in a thin, knife-like edge. That is The Danger Line—where the most dangerous tooth decay and gum irritations often start.

Neutralize the acids to protect your teeth and gums

You cannot brush these acids out of the crevices at The Danger Line. So you must use a dentifrice that can neutralize them and thus bring protection. That is why countless men and women are turning to Squibb's Dental Cream as a safeguard. Squibb's Dental Cream is made with more than 50 per cent of Squibb's Milk of Magnesia—a safe, effective antacid. Particles of the Milk of Magnesia remain in the crevices along The Danger Line for a considerable period and neutralize dangerous acids as they form.

In addition, Squibb's Dental Cream is everything that a good dentifrice should be. It is mild, non-abrasive, non-irritating. It soothes the delicate gum tissues and polishes the enamel, leaving it clean and lustrous. It is harmless if swallowed. Guard your teeth and gums. See your dentist regularly. Begin the use of Squibb's Dental Cream today. Your health, the youth and beauty you treasure may depend upon it. 40 cents for a large tube, at all druggists.

Squibb's Milk of Magnesia
Squibb's Dental Cream

The mischievous glint in those eyes . . . the cheerful smile . . . the impression of sturdiness and vitality he gives. . . . What a happy future they foretell! On one condition, of course. The brimming vigor of health must last. Remember, among the greatest enemies to health and energy are tooth decay and gum irritations. Guard The Danger Line.

The woman who shows the sparkling eyes, the pure complexion, the dazzling smile of health need never consider the passing of the years. For this is an age that pays tribute to health, to companionship, to the ability to enjoy life. . . . That is why the modern woman pays meticulous attention to the details of diet, of exercise . . . and particularly of mouth hygiene.

Squibb's Dental Cream contains no grit, no astringent. It cannot harm the most delicate gum tissues. It soothes sore gums and sensitive teeth. You will like its flavor.

Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, from which Squibb's Dental Cream is made, is a pure, effective product that is free from the usual earthy taste of other products. Its unsurpassed antacid qualities and mild laxative action make it truly valuable in helping to promote proper alimentation.

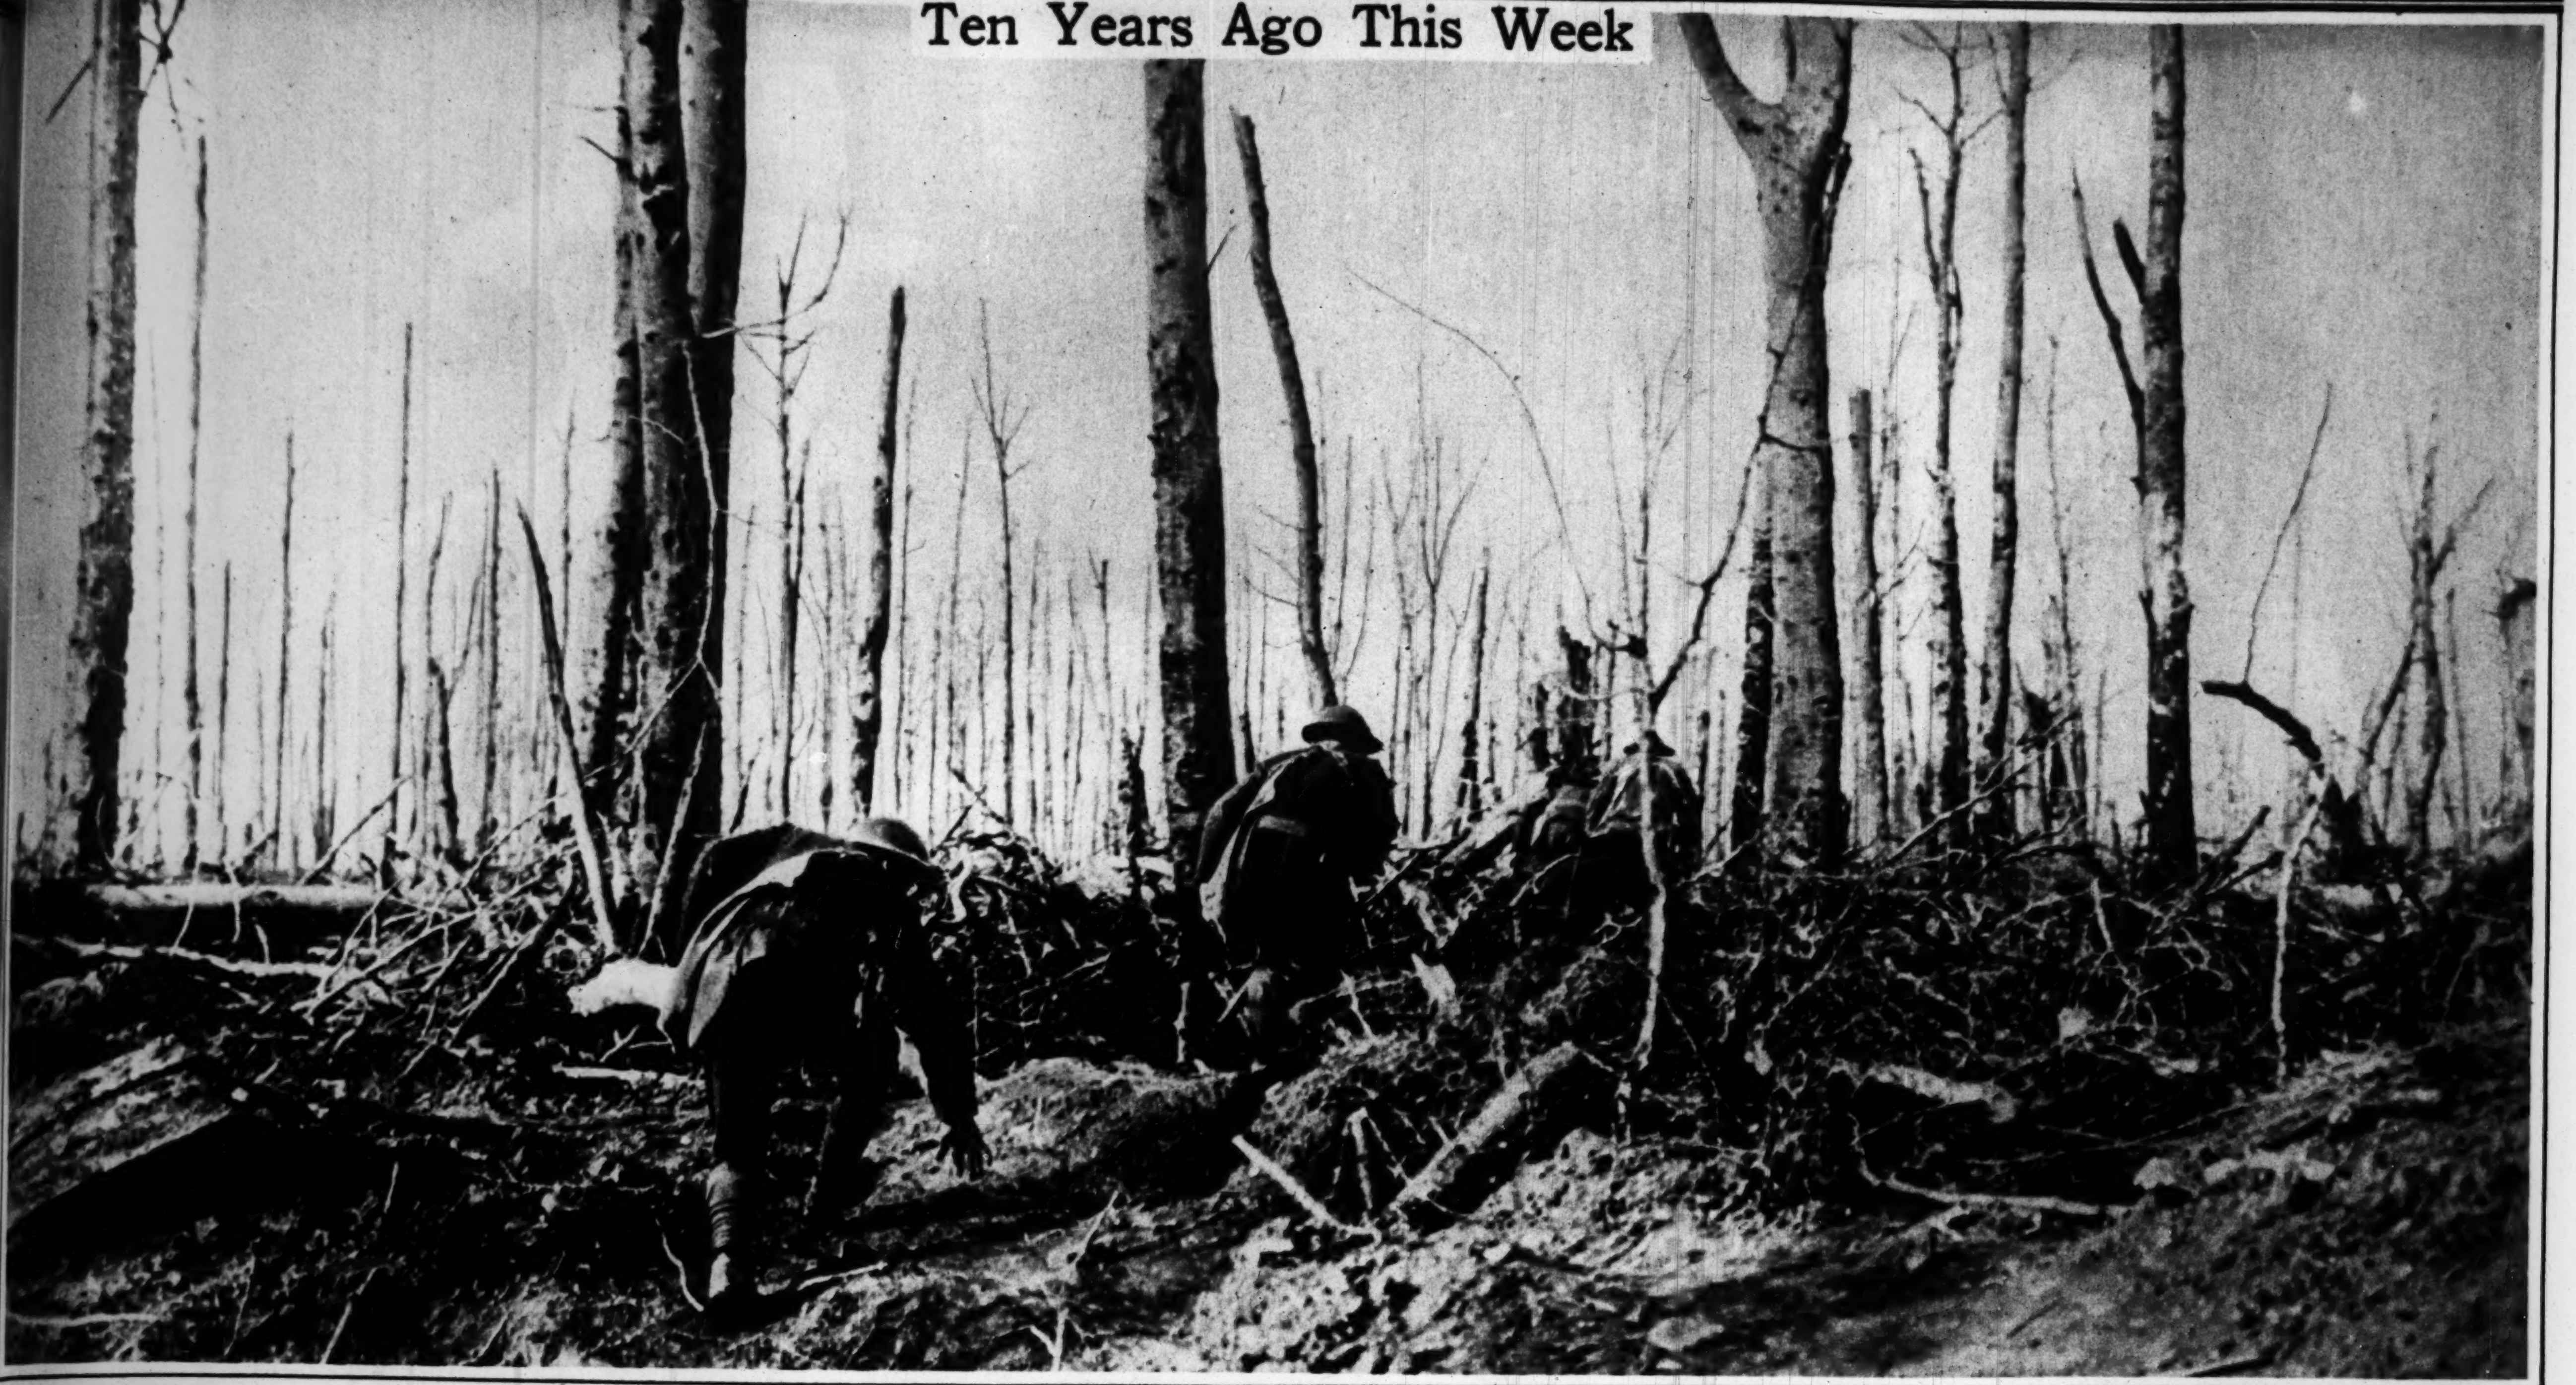
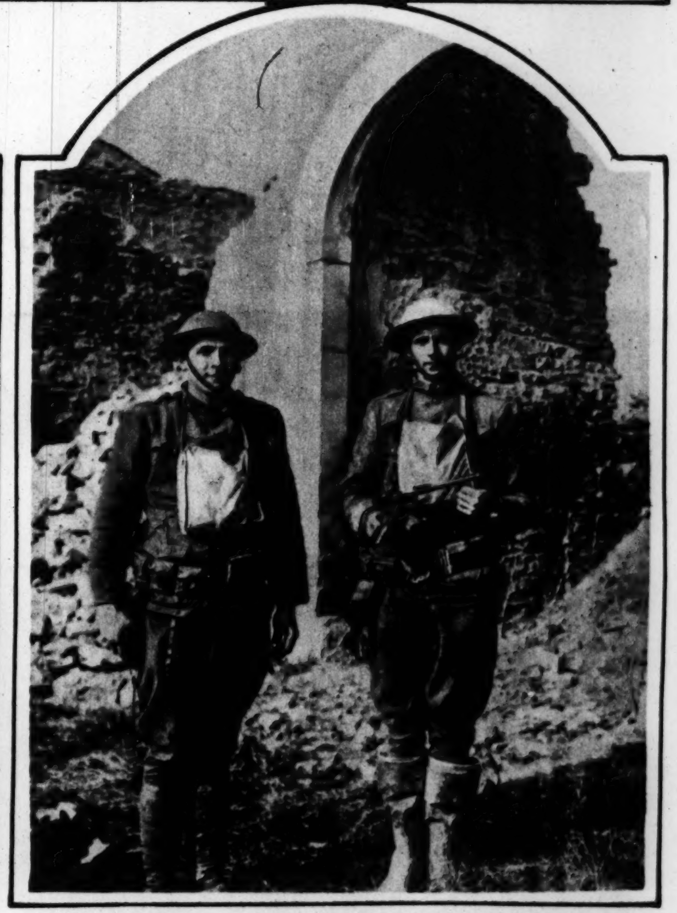
Ten Years Ago This Week



ACROSS NO MAN'S LAND IN LORRAINE—On March 17, 1918, this raiding party from the 168th infantry, 42nd (Rainbow) division, advanced to attack through a nightmare of desolation near Badonviller. The position was near Luneville, in the Luneville sector, where the Rainbow got its baptism of fire.

A GERMAN SNIPER'S POST in a trench system stormed and taken by the 168th infantry, pictured here on March 16, 1918. The enemy was 100 yards away, in the third line defenses to which he had been driven. Lieut. Wright of the 168th, who took out the first patrol, is emerging from the captured trenches.

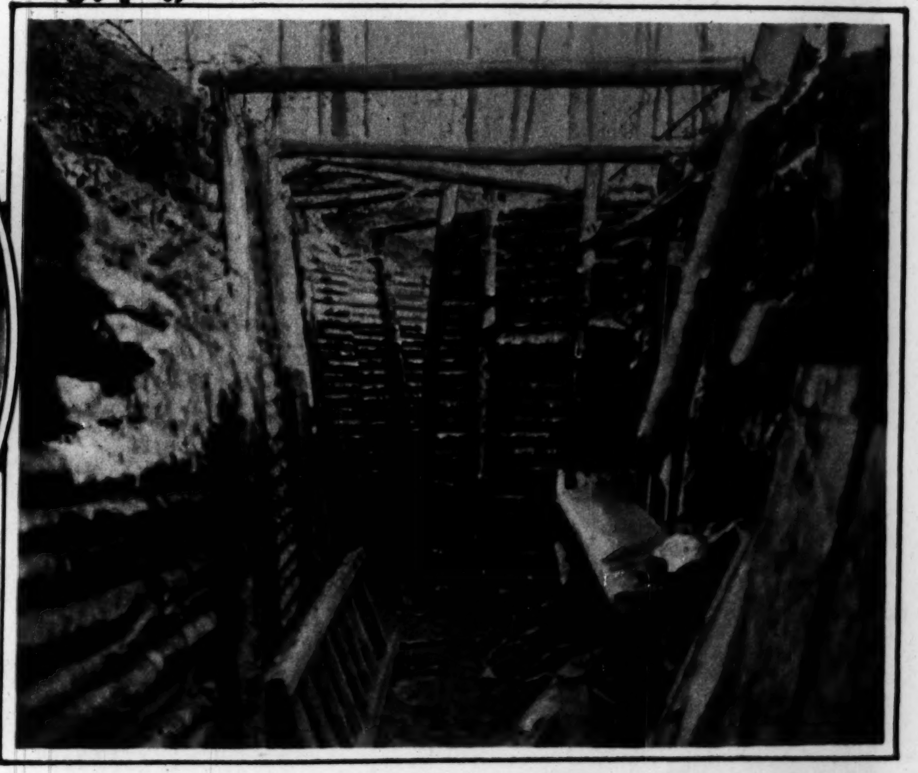
A YANK CALLING CARD roars toward Germany from a gun in the camouflaged position of Battery A, 150th Field artillery (of the Rainbow) at Reherrey. Time, March 14, 1918.



SOUVENIR OF A DEATH DUEL IN NO MAN'S LAND—Corp. Howard Thompson of Company F, 167th infantry (42nd division), holds the pistol of a German whom Sergt. James H. White killed with the butt of his own pistol as he and four others of a patrol fought an enemy party of ten. Thompson, pictured at Ancerviller just a decade ago today, invaded No Man's Land by daylight and brought back the souvenir.

OVER THE TOP! From a shell hole in No Man's Land a daredevil photographer snapped this pictorial record as a poilu and a Yank of the Third battalion, 168th infantry, went into action near Badonviller on March 17, 1918.

ELEPHANT IRON, that favorite building material of the underground armies, formed a neat though wet dugout for Maj. Carter of the 150th Field artillery near Valhey on March 15, 1918.



ALL BUT THE COMFORTS OF HOME had been introduced as Fritz settled down to his long stay in this trench near Badonviller. And then the unsympathetic 168th infantry upset the apple cart, in a victorious raid on March 9, 1918.

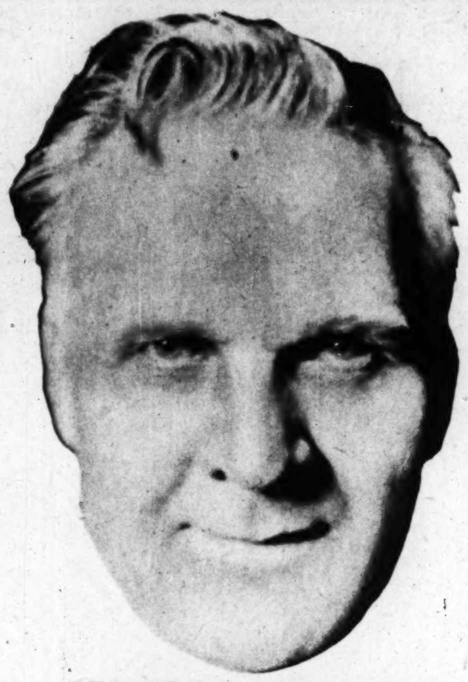
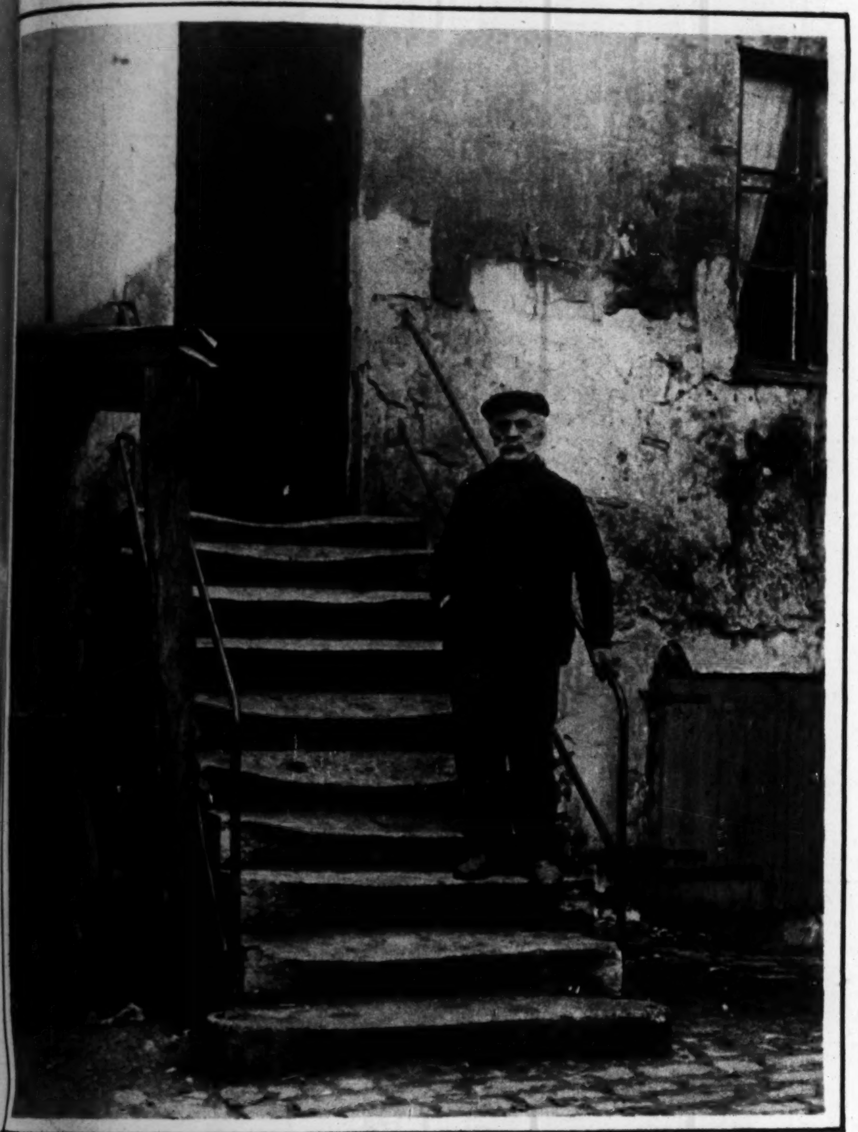
MAURICE RAVEL, most notable of the living composers of France, has been in the midst of making new glory for himself in his first American tour.



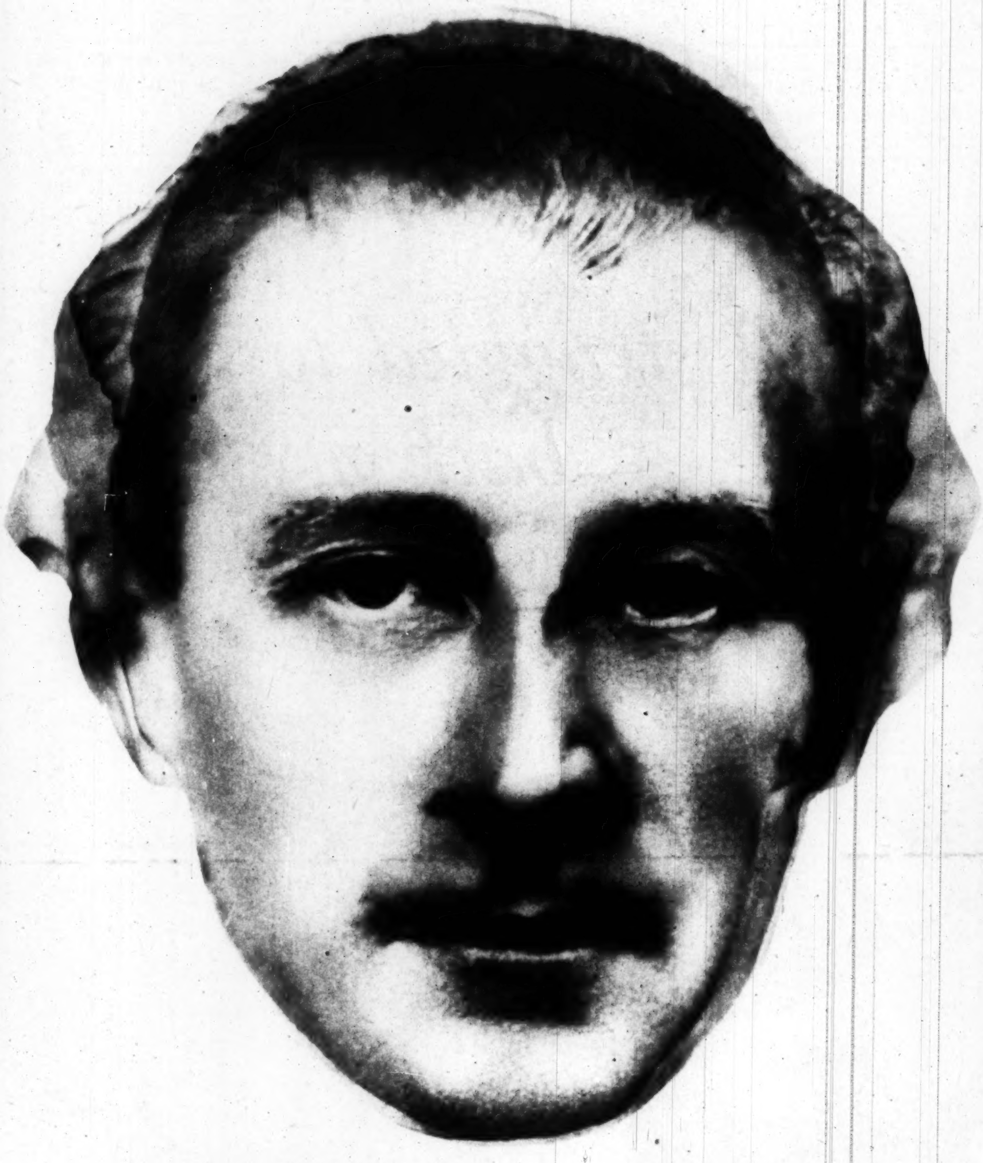
FEODOR CHALIAPIN, most famous basso in the world, is a Russian with a gigantic personality on the operatic stage.

JASCHA HEIFETZ, violinist, and another Russian, was a child prodigy and grew up to be almost as much a prodigy of matured talent.

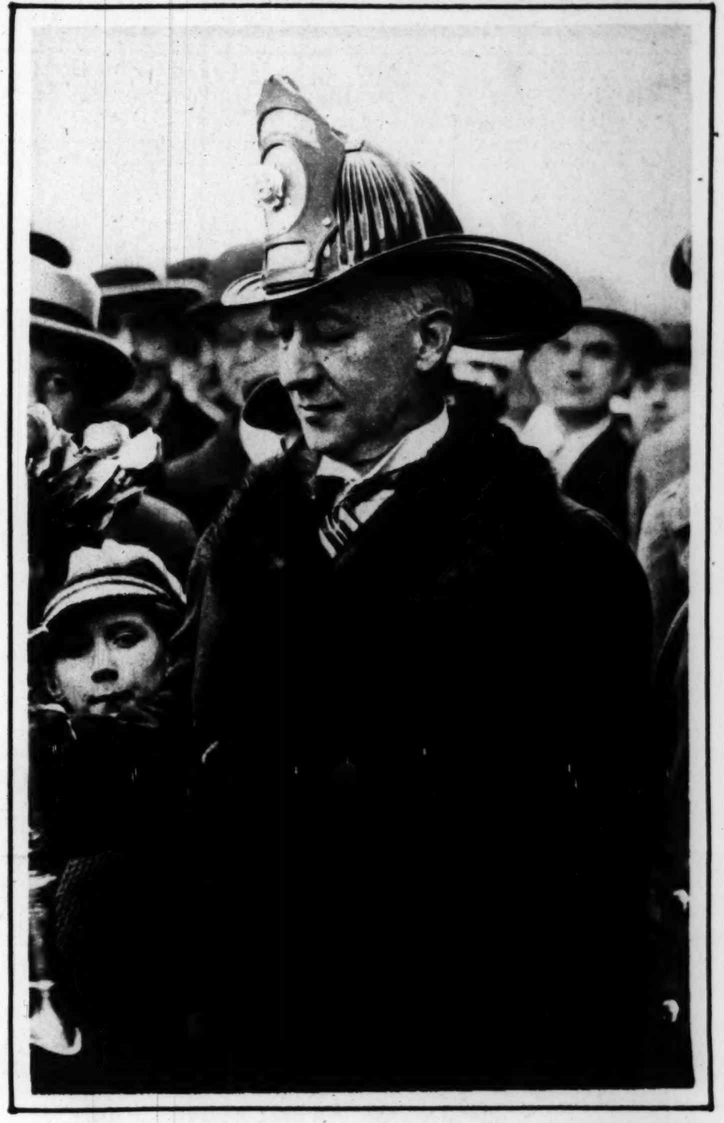
IGNACE PADEREWSKI is the most famous pianist in the world. He is Polish, an artist, a statesman, a billiard player, and was the first premier of the new Poland. (Wide World photo.)



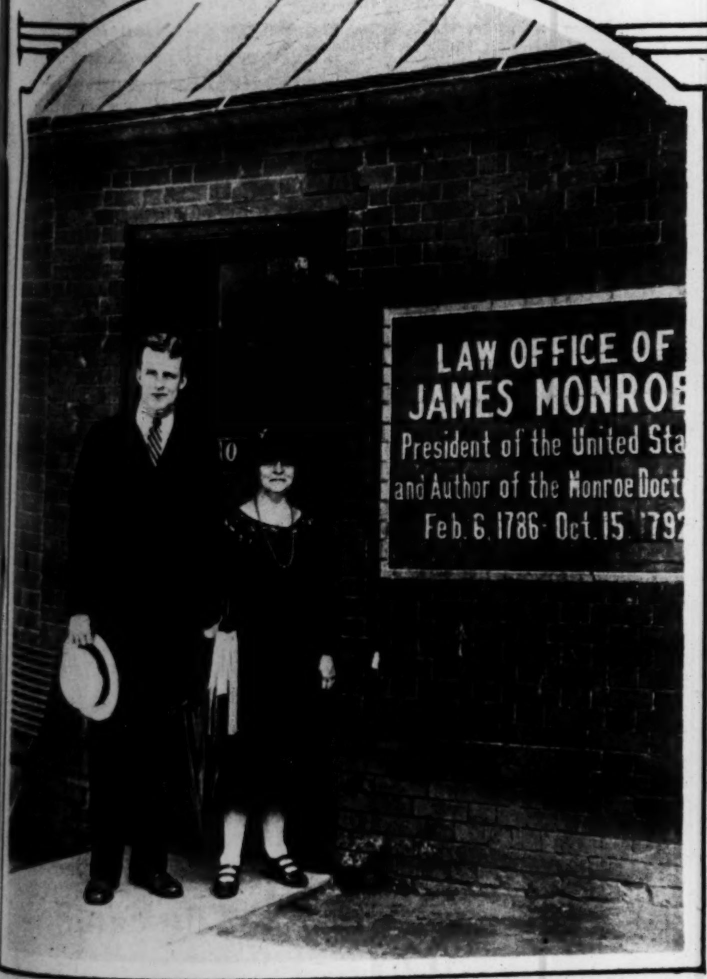
FROM RAGS TO RICHES—The soviet government has invited Perre de Geyter, composer of the communist hymn, "L'Internationale," to spend the rest of his days in one of the former imperial palaces in Moscow. He will accept. He is now living in this miserable place near Paris. (Photograph from Wide World.)



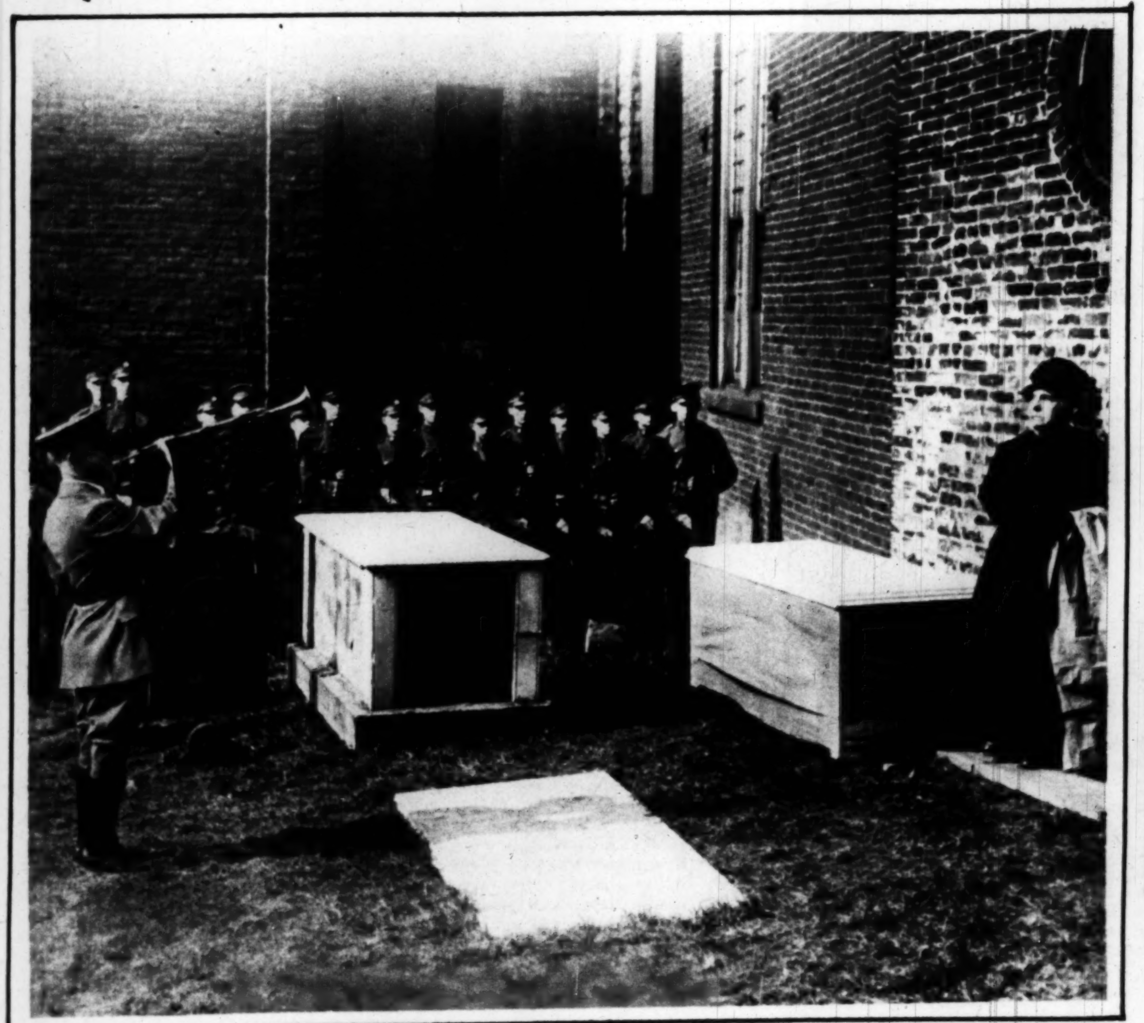
THE TYPICAL MASTER OF MUSIC should look something like this composite photograph of the Rachmaninoff-Ravel-Chaliapin-Heifetz-Paderewski face. This is the musical face of the world. Is it the face of a composer or an executant? It may be interesting to compare this set with the individual soldiers and reformers whose pictures and composites have appeared previously in this series.



FIREMAN AL SMITH—The governor of New York and Democratic presidential possibility donned a helmet and joined in a parade of Brooklyn volunteer firemen recently. Need it be added that he presented a striking picture? (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)



A MONROE SHRINE at Fredericksburg, Va., the low brick building in which the author of the Monroe Doctrine began his career as a country lawyer. The shrine has been presented to the state of Virginia by the couple standing at the door, Laurence Gouverneur Hoes, a great-grandson of President Monroe, and his mother, Mrs. Rose Gouverneur Hoes of Washington. It will be dedicated on April 28, the 170th anniversary of President Monroe's birth. (Photograph from Wide World.)



THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER OF THE REVOLUTION lay unhonored for a century and a half, here in the old Alexandria churchyard, near Washington, D. C. Now the grave has been restored. A suitable marker was unveiled at the dedication by Mrs. Mary G. Powell, at the right, widow of a Civil war general, as an army bugler sounded taps. (Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)

EIGHTY FEET HIGH, with thumbs six feet in circumference, is the world's largest Buddha image, built at Beppu, Japan, at a cost of $50,000. The donor was Eizaburo Okamoto, wealthy business man, who dedicated the giant statue to the souls of more than 1,000,000 Japanese who have passed on without the prescribed rites. (Photograph from International.)

JOSEPHINE CROWELL appears thus as Queen Anne in Victor Hugo's "The Man Who Laughs," starring Conrad Veidt and Mary Philbin. How many yards do you reckon it took to make that little dress?

"FOR 6 YEARS I struggled to get back my health"

Buffalo, N. Y.

"Continuously strenuous work, even in an office where the atmosphere is one of beauty and calm, can be very wearing.

"Finally I had a breakdown. My weight dropped to 101 pounds. For six years I struggled along, trying everything I knew to build myself up again—but without success.

"When at last Fleischmann's Yeast was recommended to me I grasped at the hope as a drowning person clutches at a straw. But there the comparison ends, for in less than a year the Yeast had restored me to my normal weight and brought back my health. I am now vigorous and well. And happy in my work."

Mae Hennessy

VIGOR, stamina, a cheery outlook depend largely on regular and complete elimination of food waste.

Fleischmann's Yeast is a food, as fresh as any green vegetable. It helps to keep the intestines free of poisons. Strengthens the sluggish intestinal muscles. Banishes constipation.

Your new intestinal health soon reflects itself throughout your body. Your blood clears. Your digestion improves. Your skin is freed of embarrassing eruption

You can get Fleischmann's Yeast from any grocer. Buy two or three days' supply at a time and keep in any cool, dry place. And write for a free copy of latest booklet on Yeast in the diet. Health Research Dept. N-809, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington St., New York City.

RIGHT

MR. DEVANEY at his linotype machine in the composing room of a Cincinnati newspaper. It looks like a big typewriter, but it's a man's size job to operate one. The work is both exacting and confining.

"I began to suffer from severe indigestion caused by constipation," Mr. Devaney writes. "Being advised to try Fleischmann's Yeast, I began to eat three cakes a day. In two or three months' time I entirely overcame my constipation and stomach trouble."

Edward J. Devaney, Cincinnati, Ohio

ABOVE

Mr. C. B. Webber, manufacturer of ball bearings, in the office of his plant at Boston. He writes:

"SOME YEARS AGO I was sick in bed for about a week. After I got up I still didn't feel my old self, so I called for the doctor. He said I hadn't got rid of all the poisons from my illness, and ordered me to eat three cakes every day of Fleischmann's Yeast. I followed the doctor's suggestion and can truthfully say that Yeast did all he said it would do. I am now entirely well."

C. B. Webber, Boston, Mass.

ABOVE

"WHEN I GRADUATE from school I hope to become an athletic instructor. (I now hold high points in running and jumping and the highest athletic average in my class.) When I take up my instruction duties one thing you may be sure of is that I shall recommend Fleischmann's Yeast. Here is why:

"Some time ago I was bothered with severe skin eruptions, all the way up my left arm. Tonics and salves had no effect whatever. At last, seeing in a newspaper what Fleischmann's Yeast had done for many others, I began to eat it myself. In a few weeks there wasn't a blemish of any kind on my arm. This was about three years ago, but I still eat Yeast every day about mealtime, and am in the best of health."

Bessie Blackie, Cleveland, Ohio

Do this—to be energetic, well:

Eat three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast regularly every day, one cake before each meal or between meals. Eat it plain, or dissolved in water—hot or cold—or any other way you like. For stubborn constipation drink it in a glass of hot water (not scalding) before meals and before going to bed.

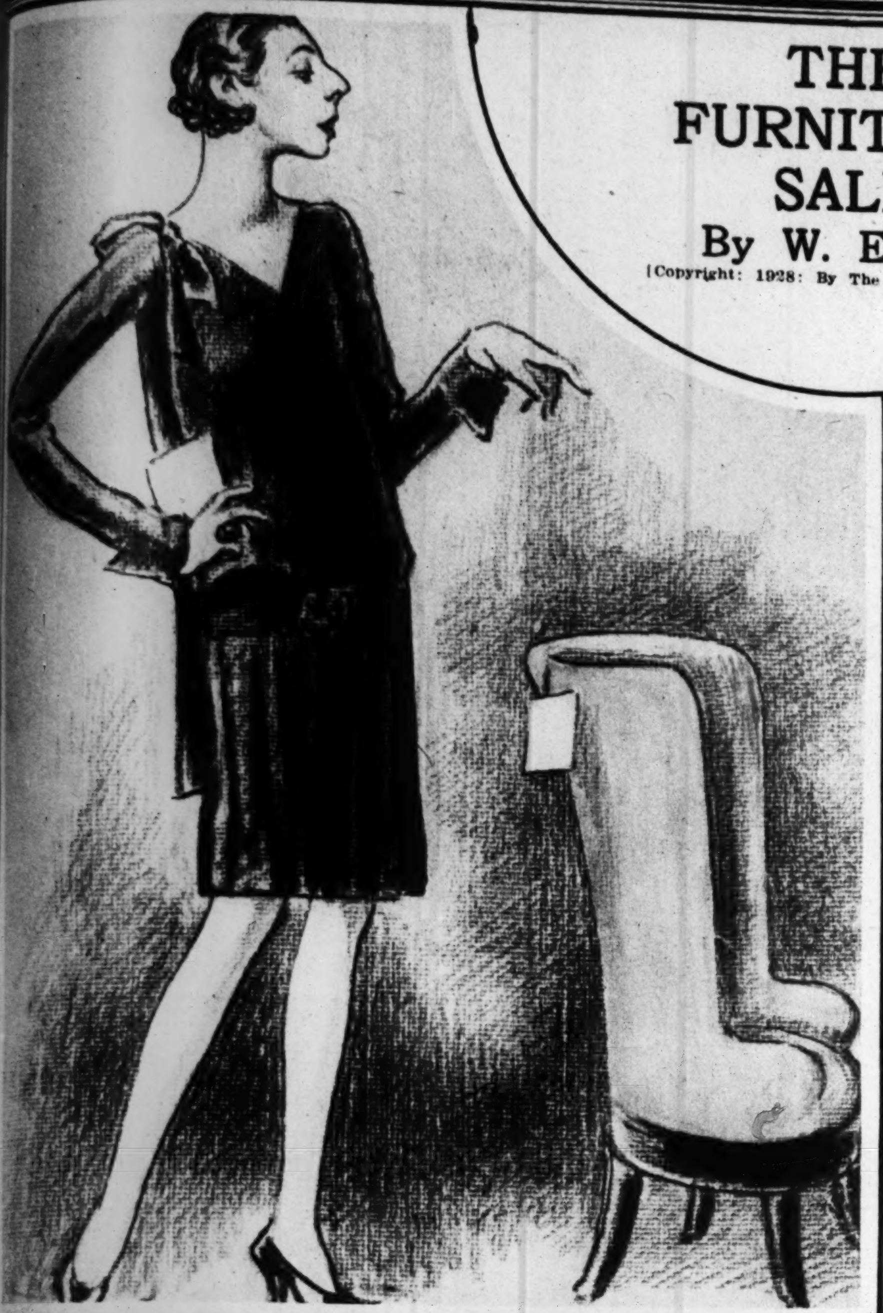
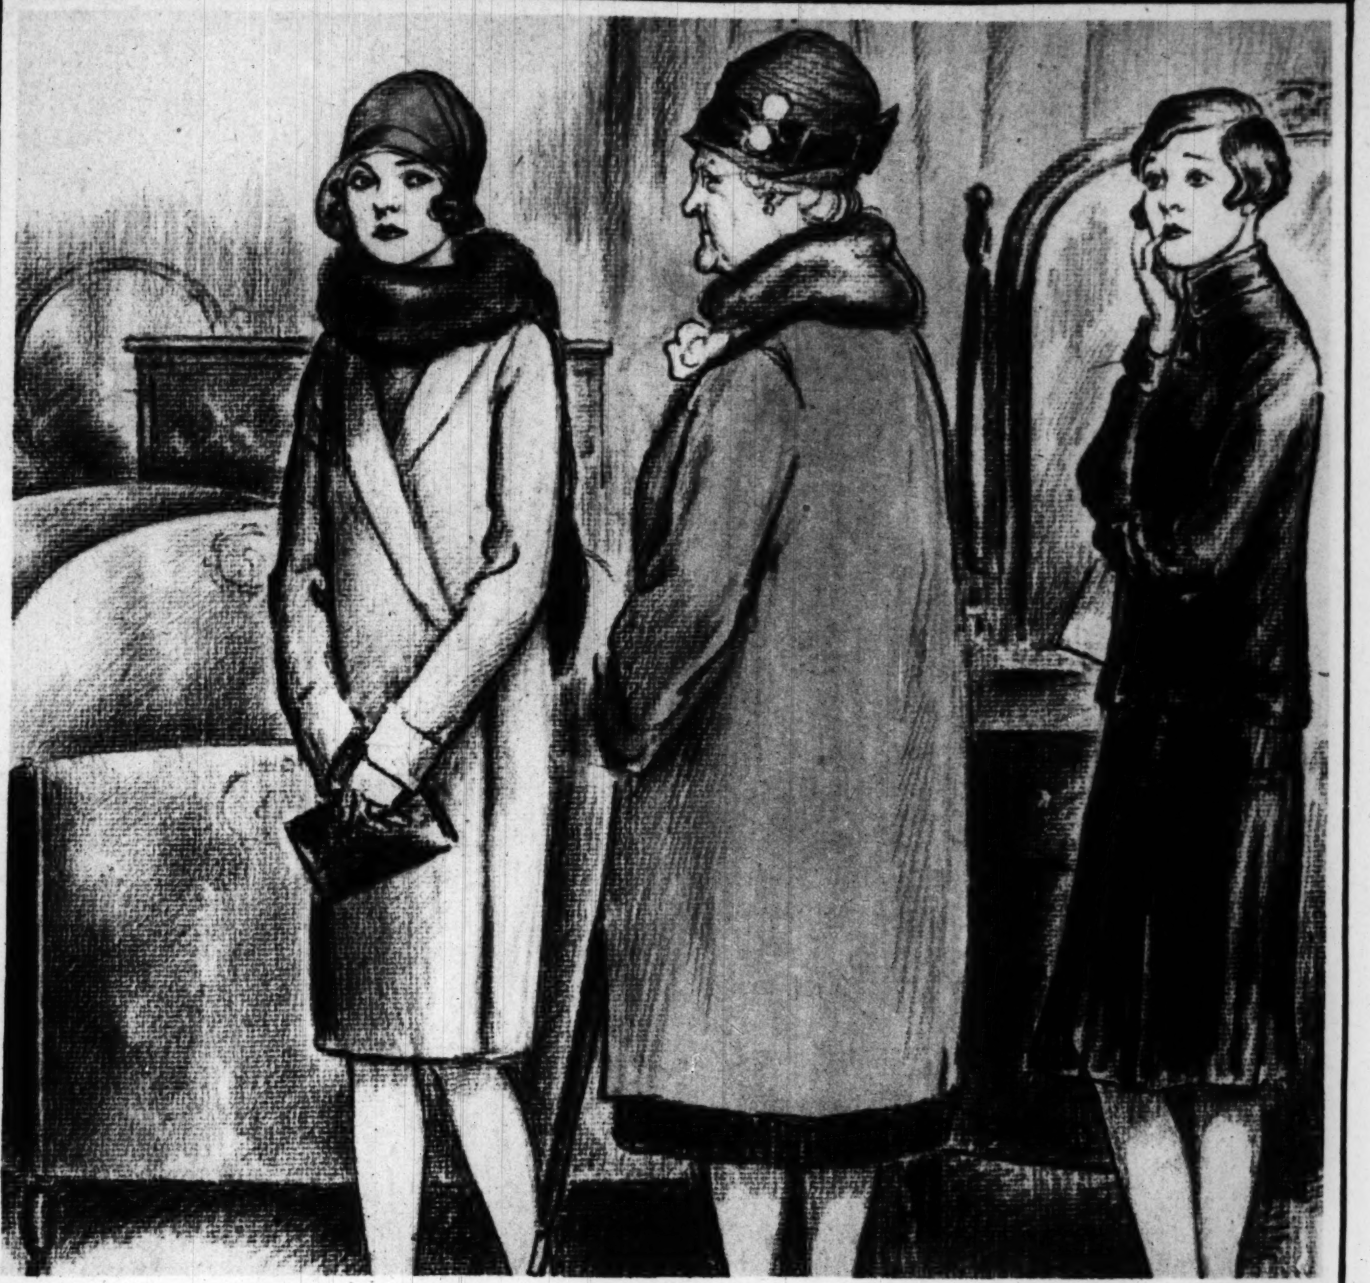
THE FURNITURE SALE

By W. E. Hill

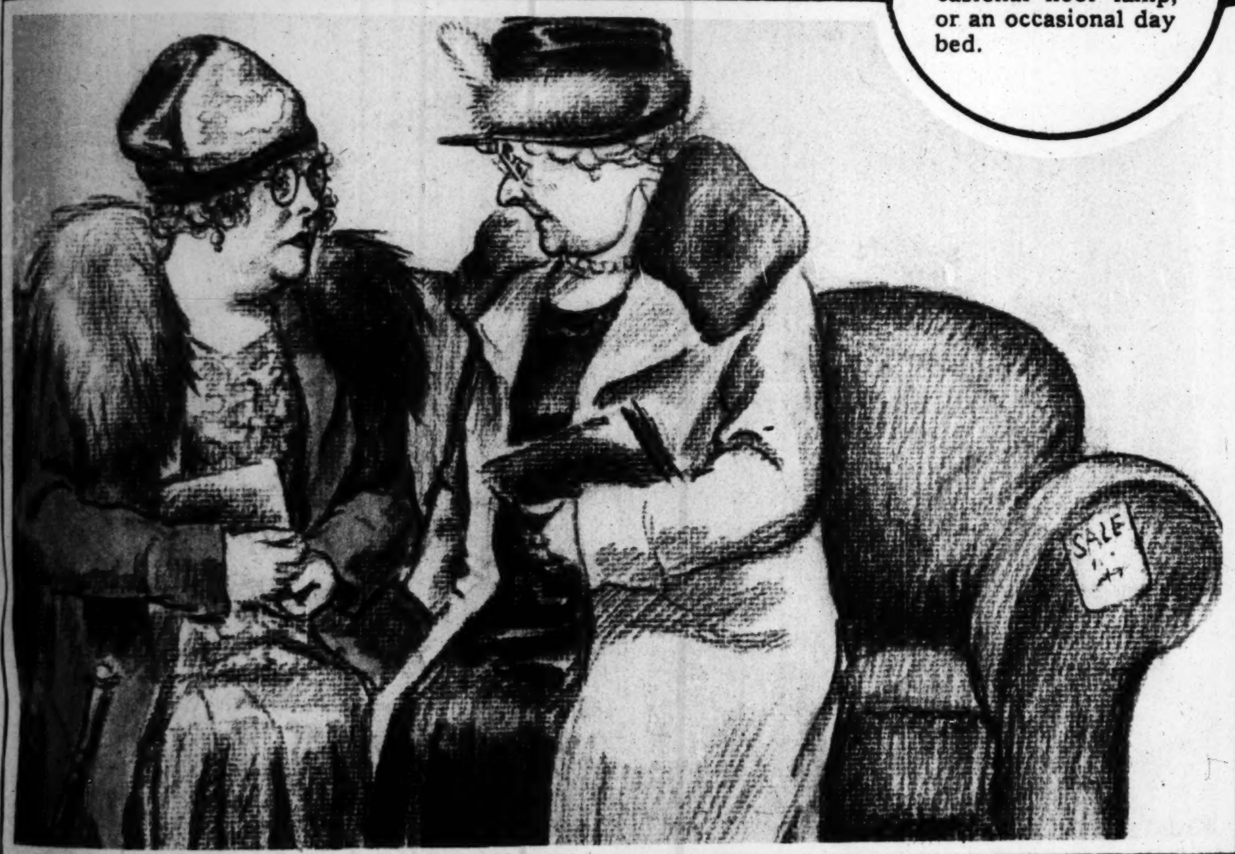
[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]



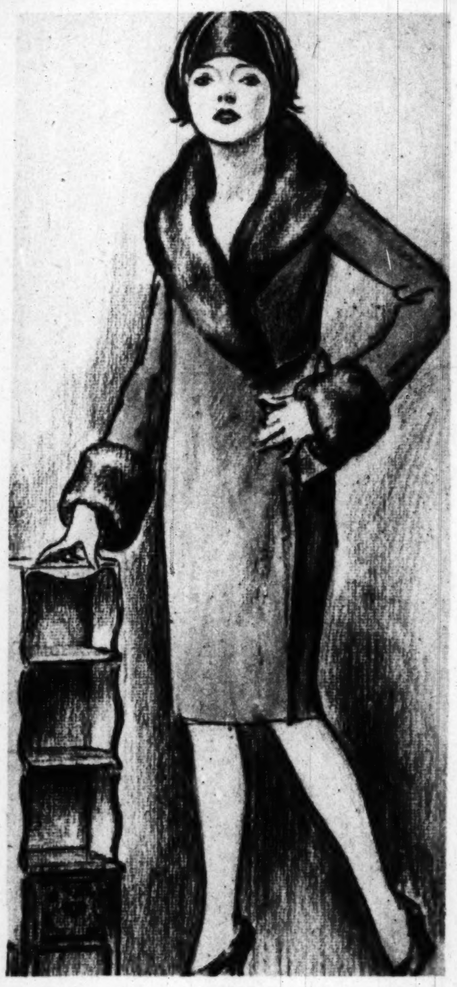
The sales force. Miss Clare Wheedle has borrowed the word "occasional" from the decorating department. She will be delighted to show you an occasional chair, an occasional floor lamp, or an occasional day bed.



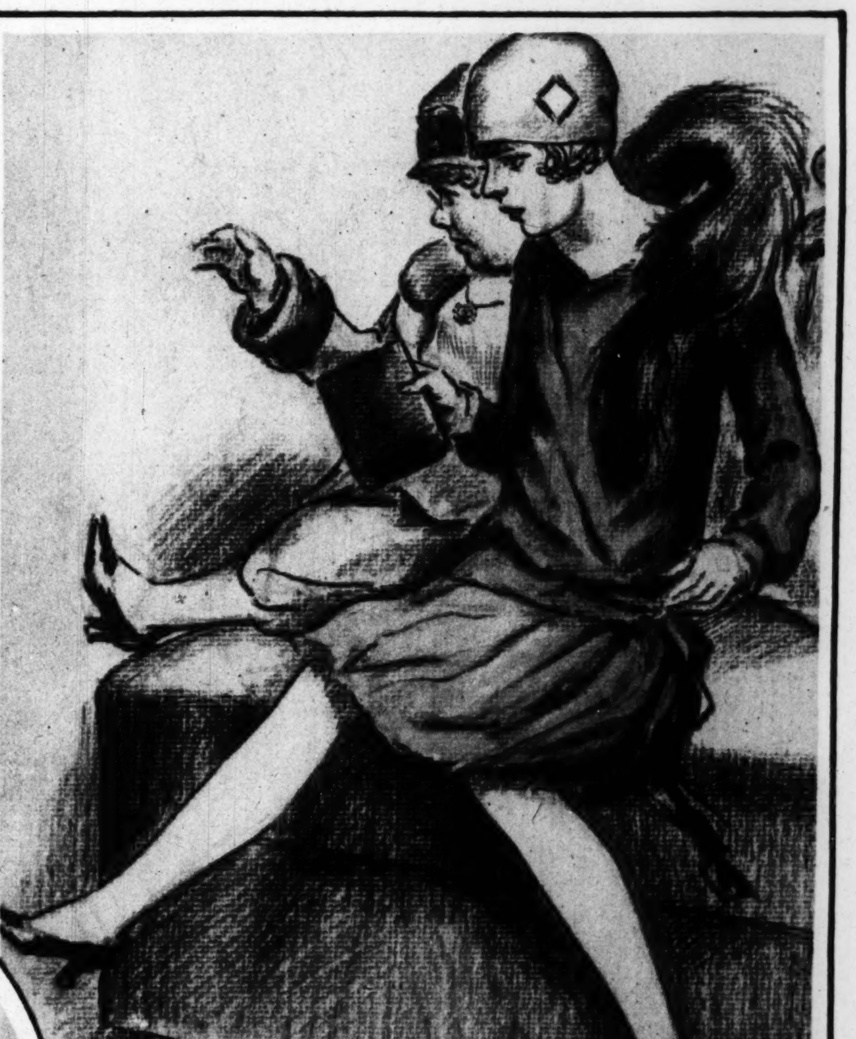
Just looking. Alma, the bride-to-be, and her mother are wandering up and down, up and down the aisles after a bargain in bedroom suites. Every room in Alma's apartment is to be a period room. The dining alcove is to be Italian renaissance, the bedrooms will be department store colonial, and the living room overstuffed late American. The sunroom will probably be sixteenth century wicker with big carnivorous birds on black chintz and will be awfully quaint and old fashioned.



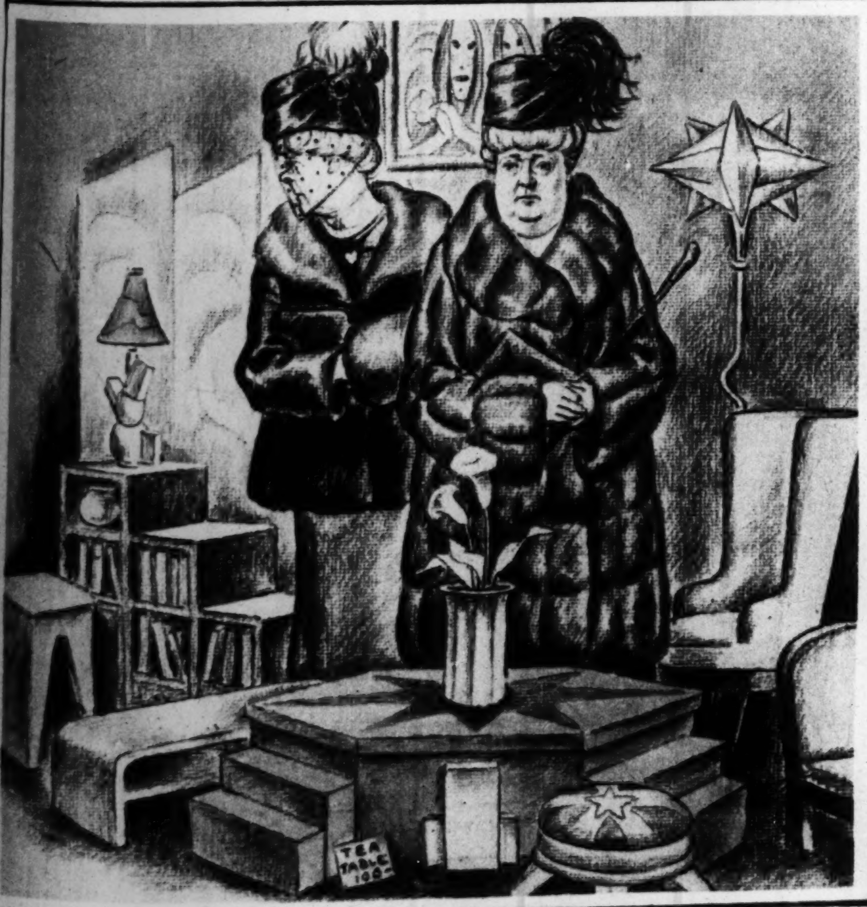
Two overstuffed lady shoppers, on an overstuffed lounge, giving the tired arches a rest. The lady at the right is looking for a bedside table. The lady on the left is after some huck toweling, but has the wrong department. Lady No. 1 is telling lady No. 2 all about how lonely it is for Edith in that big house and how Edith stands in her own light, but you can't tell her anything, etc., etc.



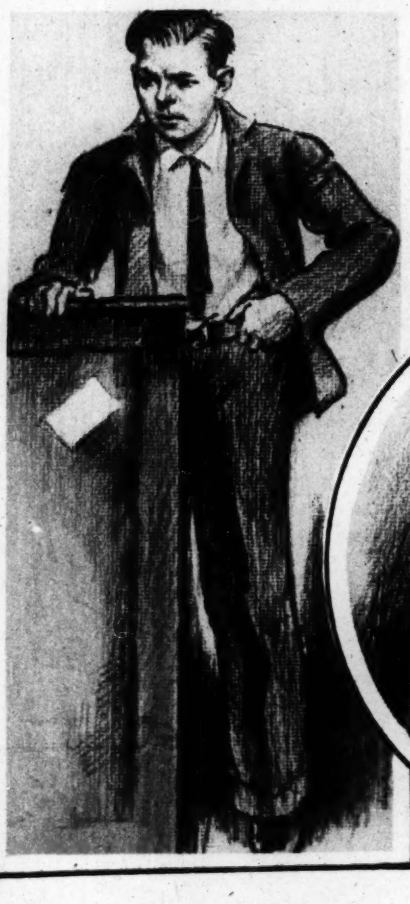
"And this," exclaims the little wife gleefully, after sighting the hand painted wall bookcase, "is just the thing for Arthur's library! He can put all of his books in this."



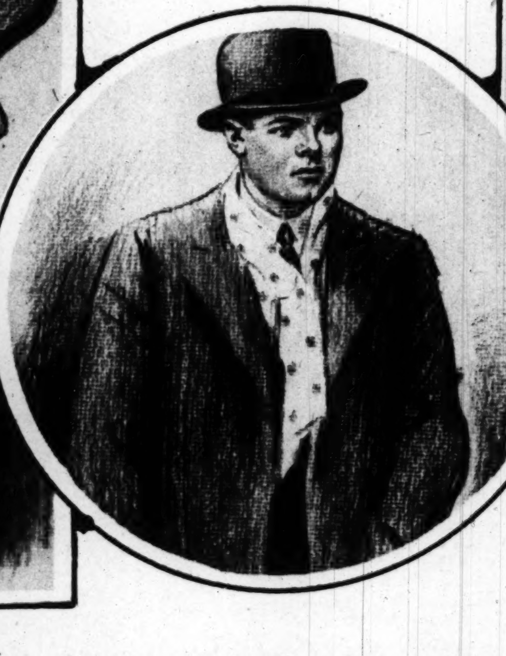
Now is the time of the year when whole families are to be seen at furniture sales, jouncing and bouncing up and down on box couches, trying out the springs before the first payment.



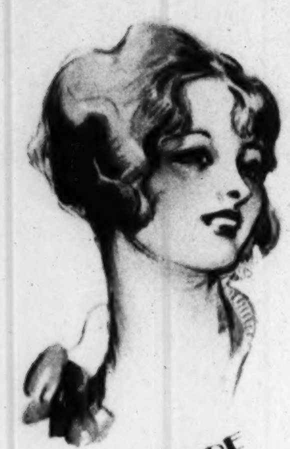
Mrs. Lizzie Crouch and her sister, Mrs. Bettina Kidney, are of the Victorian era in thought, word and deed. Their last innovation was mission furniture in 1903. Imagine their feelings when confronted by a lot of modern French art furniture in the furniture department of their favorite emporium.



Albert, the porter, is forever wheeling something somewhere and being asked who told him to put it there, anyway. That's life, that is. Some one always asking some one a fresh question!

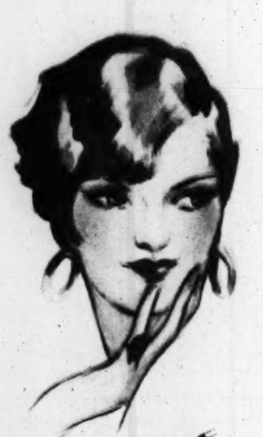


Gay young bachelor (one room and bath apartment), bargain hunting for something that will look like a period couch in the day time and will turn into a bed at night.



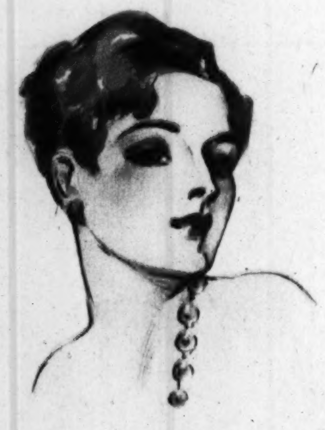
THE WATTEAU BLONDE

Hers a healthy pallor. Hair, pale gold or light brown. Changeable as her moods, her eyes vary from gray to blue. (For her, Naturelle Pompeian Powder with Light Bloom.)



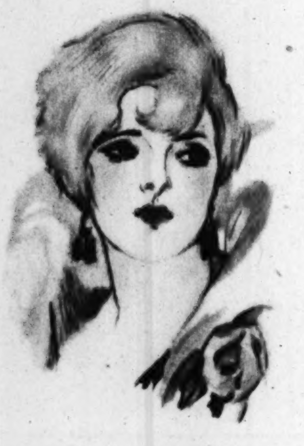
THE CIRCEAN BRUNETTE

Amazing eyes—like clear green grapes . . . her skin flawless, pale. (She should use a bright lipstick, and the Nude shade of Pompeian Powder with Oriental tone of Bloom.)



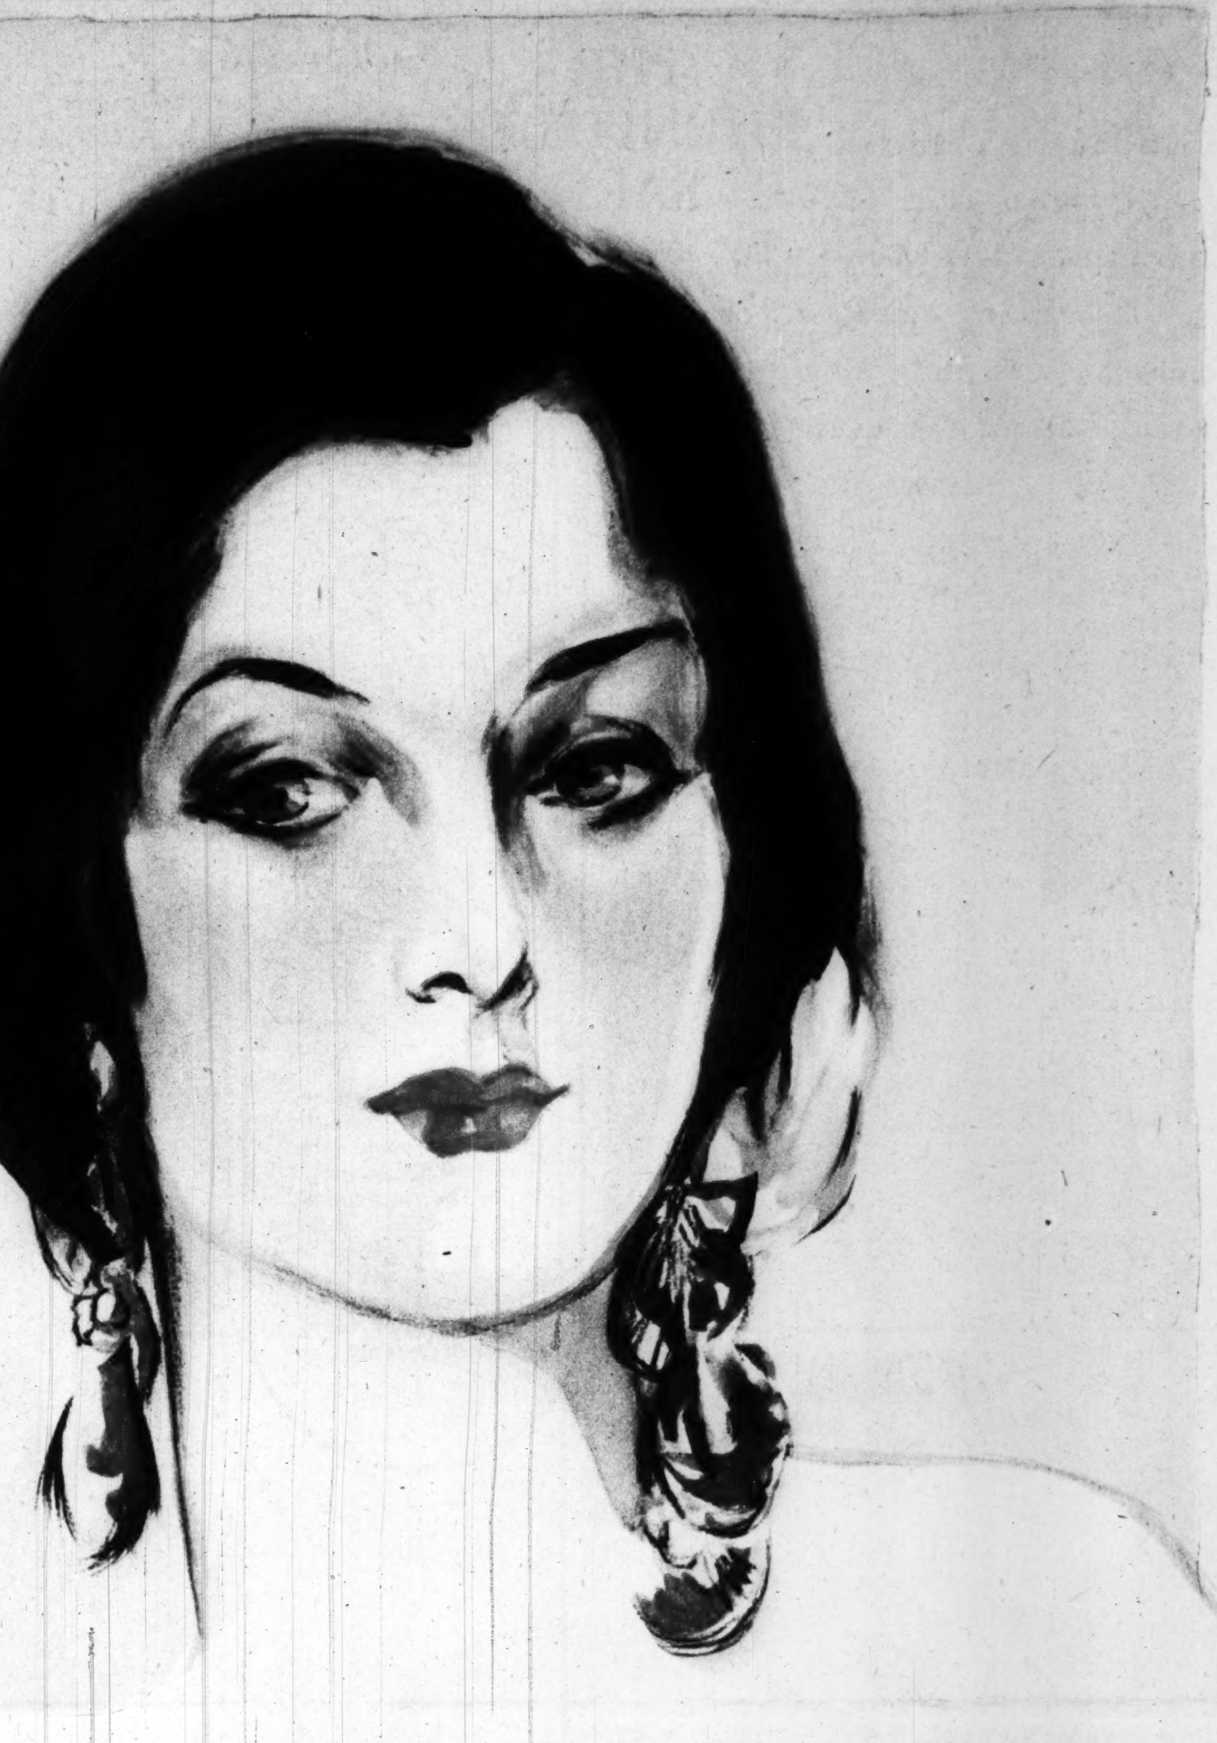
FRANKLY . . RED-HAIRED

Skin, fine and delicately colored. Eyes, blue or green, and often requiring slightly darkened brows and lashes. (Her coloring calls for Naturelle Powder and Oriental Bloom.)



THE WATER-LILY BLONDE

Her hair like fine spun gold, her eyes a soft gray blue, her skin white with a hint of water-lily pink. (She should mix ⅔ White with ⅓ Flesh-Pink Powder and use Light Bloom.)



THE CLEOPATRA BRUNETTE

Dark of brows and hair—yes, even of skin! Hers is indeed a striking sort of beauty! (She wisely chooses Rachel Pompeian Beauty Powder and the Dark tone of Pompeian Bloom.)

You . . . like Cleopatra . . . are a Type

Study your beauty . . . make the most of it . . .

By

Mme. Jeannette de Cordet

Which of all the lovely types are you?

Before you've dared to protest, "I'm not really a type, I'm just an 'in between'" (as if everyone weren't one type or another!) . . . or before you've had a chance to be emphatic about it and say, "I'm a blonde" or "I'm a brunette" . . . let me ask you this:

Do you know how you can be sure?

Eyes? Hair? They'll never decide it for you, for only in your skin-tone can the real answer be found.

And you! Are you looking carefully into yours? Then tell me . . . Is your skin-tone faintly amber? Rose mist, shot with gold? Ivory? Cream? Olive? Petal-pink? Whichever it is, I have a secret for you—

Emphasize your type—delicately accentuate your own natural coloring—and you'll see . . . you've grown lovelier . . . more striking . . . more romantically different in the quality of your beauty!

To gain this flattering effect is not difficult at all! For though American types of beauty are as varied as the lands from which our forebears came, Pompeian has found true accent for every one! Among the five shades of Pompeian Beauty Powder you will find your skin-tone—matched like thread to silk! Smooth it on, after a dash of Pompeian Bloom—a rouge that has your natural flush in one of its five true tones.

Now you've found your type's true accent! Once more, peer into your mirror, to see what you will see! Who is this new beauty? Who but you — grown lovelier — more striking in your beauty!

For further help send 10c for my new booklet, "Your Type of Beauty," and sampler containing the five shades of Pompeian Beauty Powder.

Address: Mme. Jeannette de Cordet, The Pompeian Co., Dept. 952, 595 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

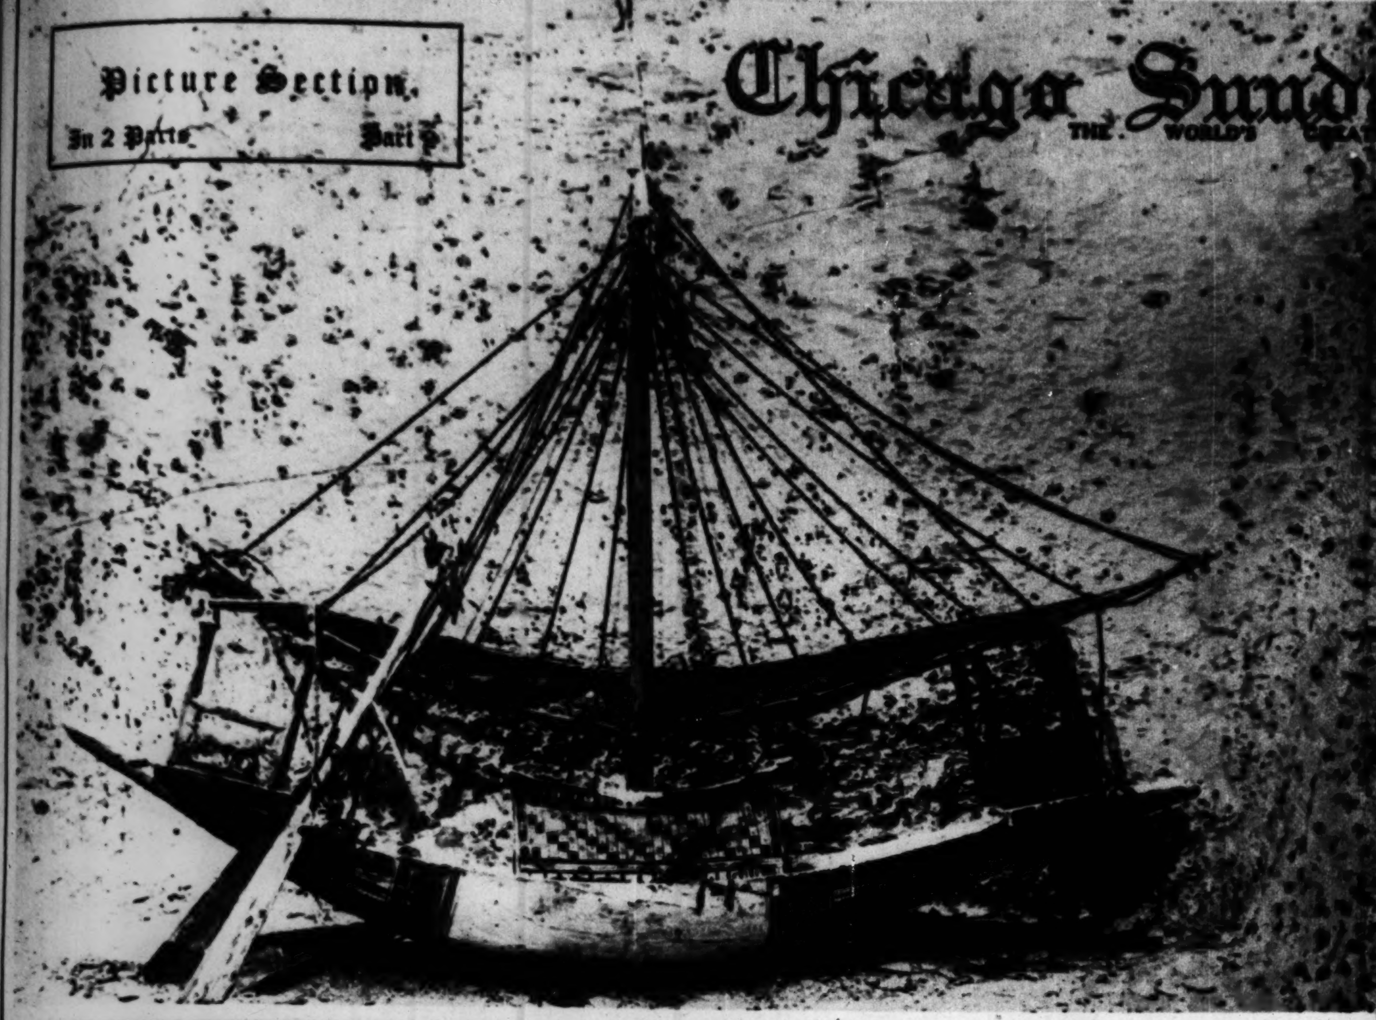
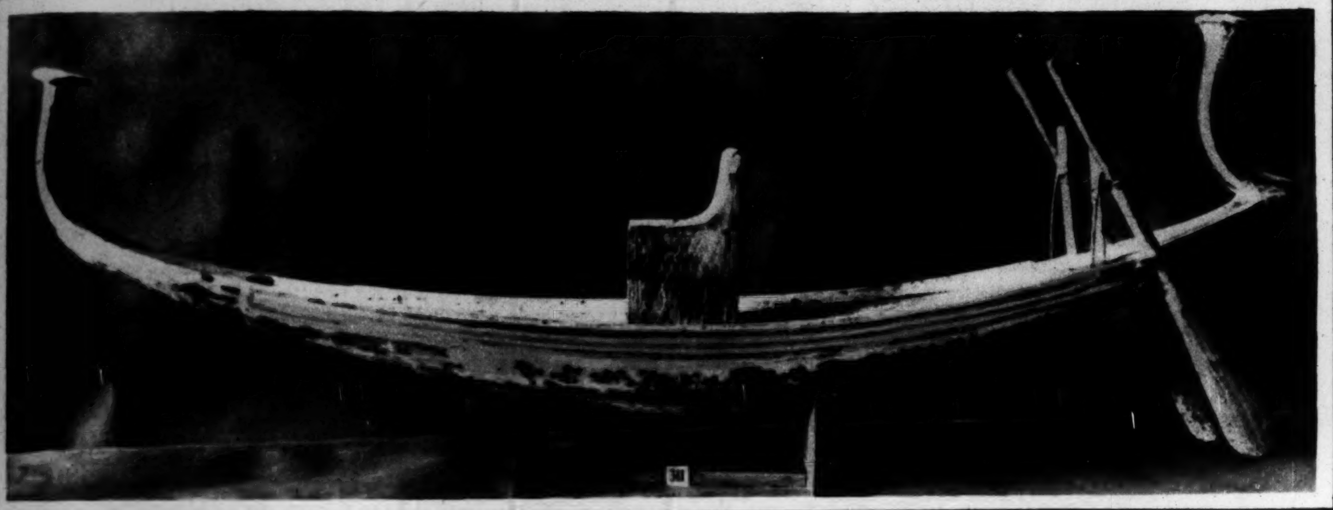
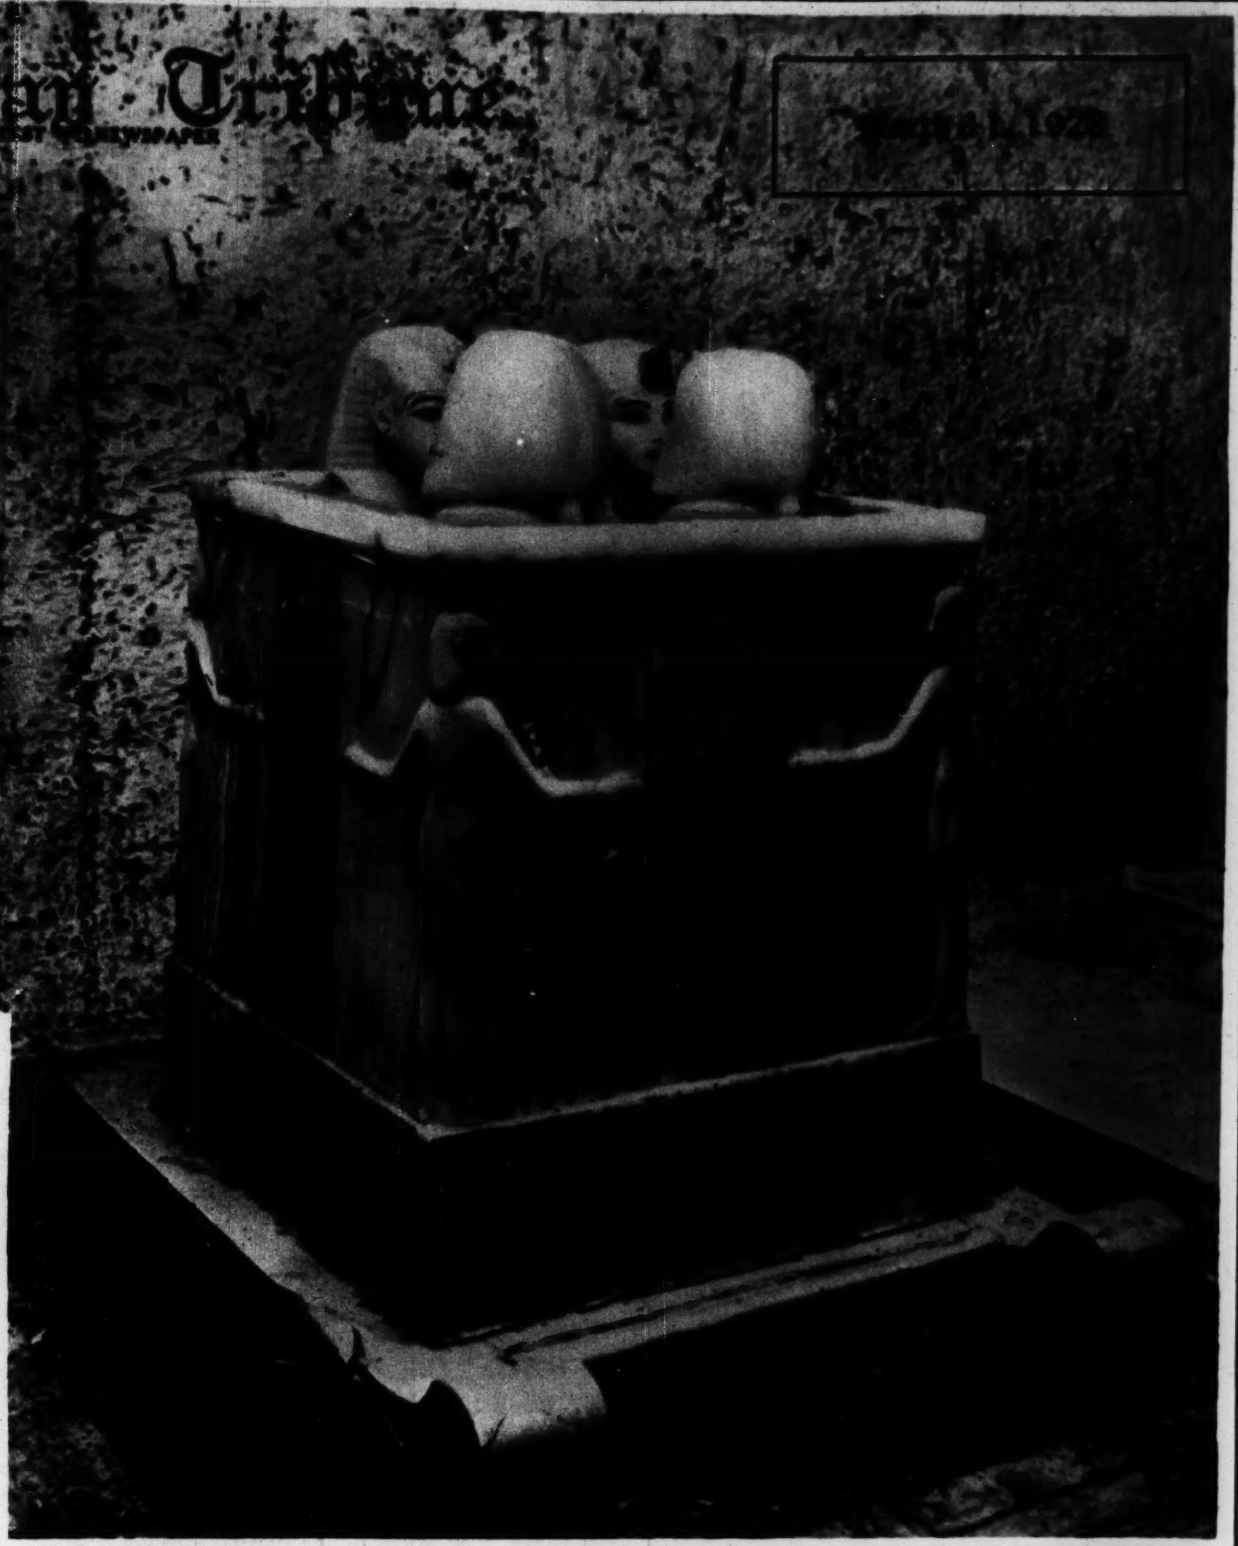
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER



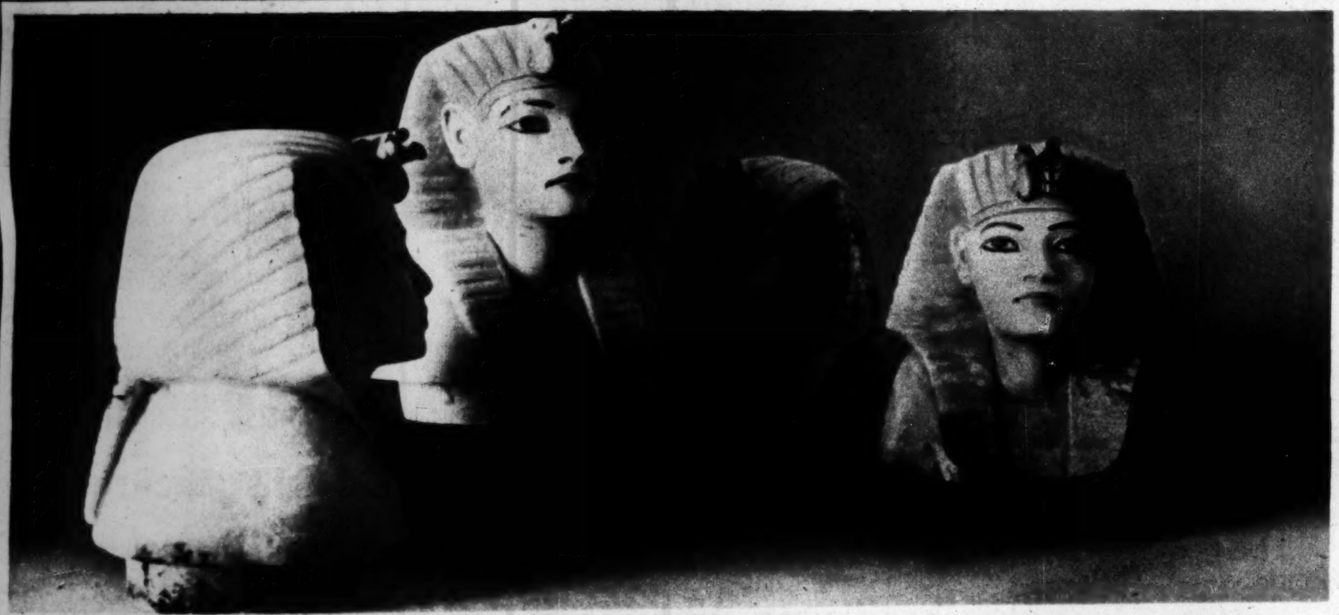
A SHIP FOR TUT-ANKH-AMEN'S GHOST AMONG FINAL TREASURES OF HIS TOMB—A "leader" vessel, designed for spirit journeys of the Egyptian Pharaoh, one of a flotilla of eighteen miniature boats found in the innermost recesses of the tomb at Luxor and just described in the last report of Howard Carter, the discoverer. It bears a gilded pavilion as a shelter for the royal wanderer.



TO ACCOMPANY A CROSS WORD PUZZLE DIVINITY, the sun god Ra, on his heavenly journeys, this gondola with gilded throne was provided. There were other vessels for crossing the river of death without the aid of the grumpy celestial ferryman, and still others for the pastimes of the god Horus.

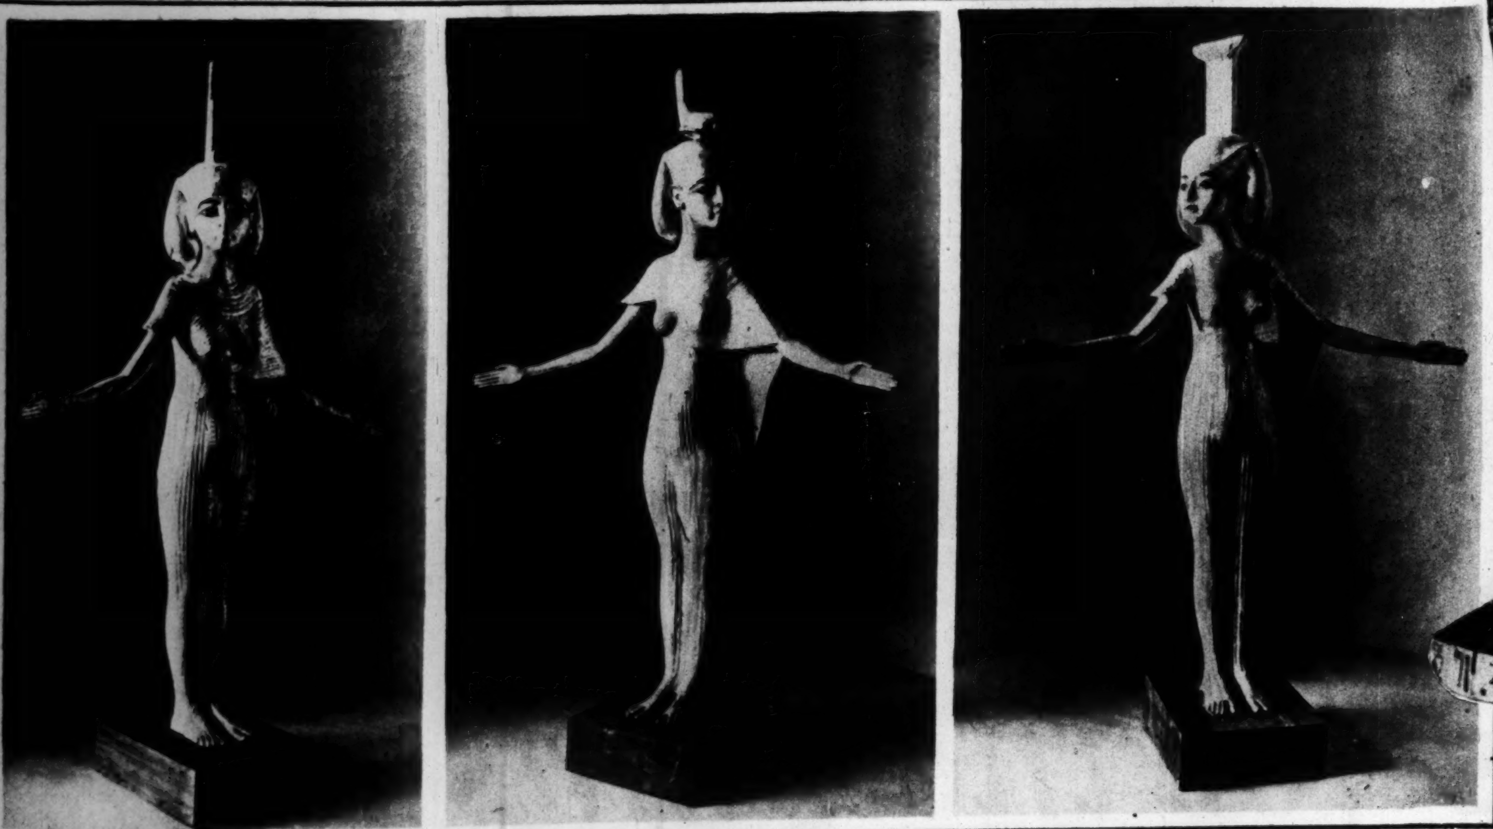


A CANOPIC CHEST of alabaster, which held four jars containing the viscera of the king, was the richest treasure of the innermost recess. The four heads, sculptured in alabaster in the likeness of Tut-Ankh-Amen, cover the mouths of the receptacles in which the viscera were placed.

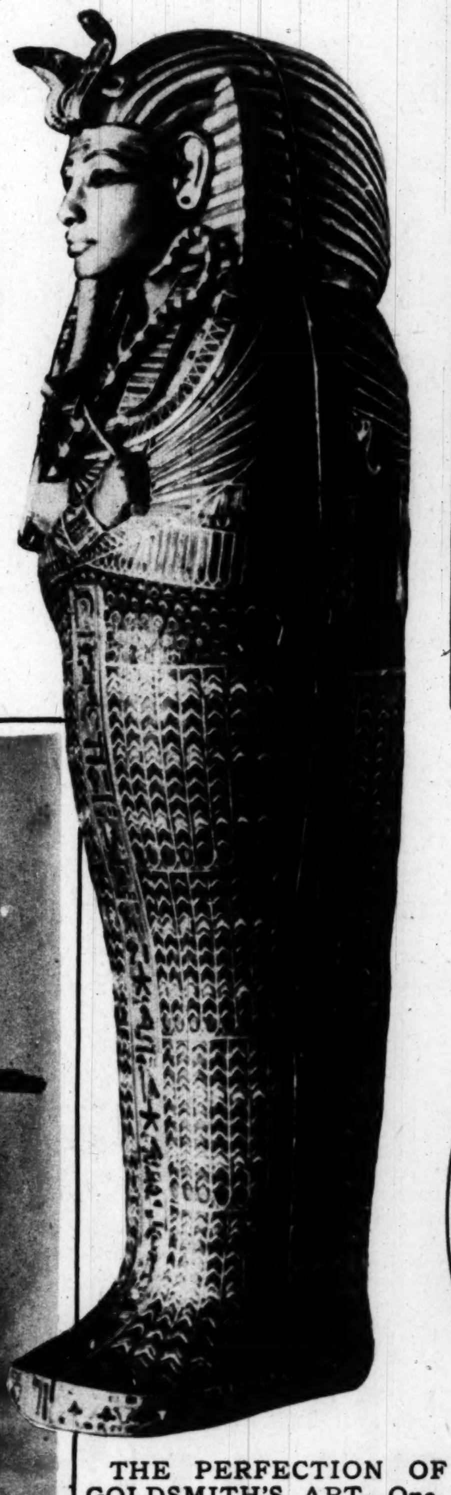


AS THE SCULPTOR SAW THE BOY KING—A close view of the alabaster heads that surmounted the canopic jars.

FOUR TUTELARY GODDESSES IN SOLID GOLD outstretched protective arms about the magnificent canopy that covered the visceral jars. Their function was to prevent the viscera from causing the king any unpleasantness.



THREE OF THE GOLDEN GODDESSES, Isis, Selket, and Nephthys. Mr. Carter complains that the undertakers blundered in stationing the statuettes. Selket was placed at the south, where Nephthys should have stood—and so forth. Doubtless Tut-Ankh-Amen would have worried.



THE PERFECTION OF THE GOLDSMITH'S ART—One of the four miniature gold coffins which held the viscera, a perfect replica of the great gold coffin which held the king's body, but even more elaborate in design.

BENEATH A SILVER PALL—The great visceral monument, with a dado of gold, resting on a silver-handled sledge before Mr. Carter began investigation of its contents.

Teeth are only
as healthy as the gums

WHEN the regular brushing of teeth keeps them as flashing as a pearl, all seems so safe.

Yet . . . there is an insidious foe which ignores the teeth and attacks the gums. Unaware of this fact, 4 persons out of 5 after forty and thousands younger sacrifice precious health. And needlessly too, because this sworn enemy of mankind—Pyorrhea, avoids firm, healthy gums.

So take this precaution: Use a dentifrice that keeps teeth white and also helps to firm gums and keep them healthy.

Daily, every morning and every night, brush teeth and gums with Forhan's for the Gums.

Without the use of harsh abrasives it cleans teeth quickly and helps to restore them to their natural whiteness. It protects them from acids which tend to cause decay.

It is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., for many years a Pyorrhea specialist. And it is compounded with Forhan's Pyorrhea Astringent used by dentists in the treatment of Pyorrhetic conditions.

Now take measures that will help to safeguard precious health, beauty and youth against the ruthless attack of Pyorrhea. See your dentist at least twice each year. Have him examine teeth and gums thoroughly. And start using Forhan's for the Gums, morning and night, every day. Teach your children this good habit. They'll thank you in later years. Get Forhan's from your druggist. In tubes, 35c and 60c. Forhan Company, New York.

If gums bleed easily, if they are tender, apply Forhan's. With the index finger vigorously rub with a circular motion the upper gums, both inside and out, until they feel invigorated. Then massage lower gums. Do this regularly and gums will soon become firm and sound.

With your thumb and forefinger massage the gums both inside and out and the roof of the mouth as well. Massage until you feel the pleasant tingle of increased blood circulation.

Your gums should always look like this—even, sound and healthy. Keep them so by exercising them. Twice daily, massage them with Forhan's for the Gums—the dentifrice that safeguards the health of the gums and cleanses teeth.

We Were Right. More and more people are realizing the importance of oral hygiene. Every morning and every night, they use Forhan's Antiseptic Refreshant. It protects mouth, nose and throat from infection. It keeps breath sweet and fresh. It is safe, effective and pleasant. Try it.

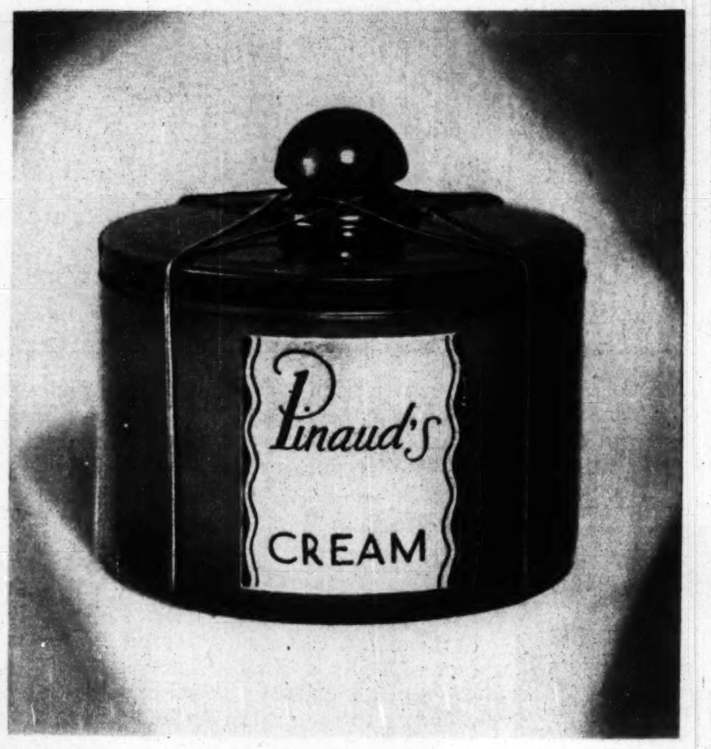
Pinaud Announces after Fifteen years of Research

A NEW CREAM

HERE in one exquisite jar is the exciting secret of a beautiful skin.

Break the seal—lift the sea-green cover - breathe the faintly wafted fragrance. Then—test with your finger-tips the velvet texture . . . .

The most famous dermatologists of America, the greatest scientists of Europe, are eloquent in its praise—this wonderful new cream.



It is actually revolutionizing the care of the skin—this wonderful new cream!

It cleanses your skin more effectively than any cold cream known.

A dash of cool water—and you wash it completely away!

Because the pores are cleansed so gently and yet so thoroughly—with no residue of dirt left hidden below—they contract naturally. Astringents become superfluous.

In thirty swift seconds—in one application—Pinaud's Cream cleanses, "tones," protects your skin as no combination of creams and tonics has ever been able to do!

Get a free trial tube tomorrow—

and make this simple test:

Standing before the mirror in the bathroom, apply a dash of Pinaud's Cream to one cheek with one hand; then a dash of any other cream to the other cheek with the other hand. Now, with cool water, try to wash off the two. Pinaud's Cream "lets go" instantly, sweeping away with it all the dirt from your skin; the other cream remains sticky, greasy, unpleasant. Even after you have wiped off as much of it as you can, the two sides of your face will feel different; for the side cleansed with Pinaud's Cream will be softer, fresher, cleaner!

This simple test will bring home to you unforgettably the amazing difference between Pinaud's Cream and any other cream known to science.

FIRST STEP

First smooth Pinaud's Cream on lightly with the fingertips. You need not use the strenuous stretching motion necessary with other creams — it spreads so quickly and easily. Now you can actually feel this amazing cream at work, cleansing the pores, toning the tissues! Next comes the unique part of the treatment. Instead of simply wiping off the surface cream and dirt, you are going to wash them away!

SECOND STEP

Take a pad of cotton wet in cool water (or an ordinary washcloth, if you prefer—thoroughly wet) and pat your face gently all over. The cream dissolves instantly—washes instantly away! And with it goes every trace of grime, dirt, oily shine—with it go all the clogging accumulations that enlarge the pores and age the skin—and your skin is left softer, fresher, more delicately brilliant than you ever saw it in your life!

THIRD STEP

Now dry your face with a soft towel. Powder it. So exquisitely soft and clear and fresh is the skin that you need no additional "powder base." The effects of this beautifully simple treatment are little short of magical. Pores enlarged by accumulations of dirt deep below the surface now tend to contract to normal size again. The skin, truly cleansed and exquisitely softened and protected, blooms into new beauty.

THE secret of this amazing new Cream? Quickly, delightfully pleasantly—it washes away!

The moment you apply old-fashioned creams to the skin, you automatically push and press into the millions of tiny pores a certain amount of insoluble fat or wax which stays in and cannot come out.

You wipe off only the surface cream and dirt. The rest is left clogging the pores. And this simple fact explains why so many women suffer from blackheads—enlarged pores—prematurely aged skin.

Then, perhaps, you apply an astringent, but that only closes the top of each tiny pore and seals up the deep-lying dirt within. It can be of no permanent help.

All dermatologists know this. That is why they have been searching for years for a cream that would first — like a magnet—gather up every minute particle of dirt and grime from the depths of the pores — and then wash completely away.

It has taken nearly twenty years to find it—but that is exactly what Pinaud's Cream does. Because it is completely soluble in water, this remarkable cream leaves the skin really clean—with the pores unclogged and able to breathe. And Pinaud's Cream has this wonderful additional power: It supples and invigorates the skin tissues to delightful softness and freshness.

Especially if your skin is suffering from deep lying accumulations in the pores, you can actually feel its wonderful cleansing powers the first few times you use Pinaud's Cream. A faint tingling—a slight "pulling"—as the deep-clogged dirt is gently loosened from the pores!

There has never been a cream like this before. For now, with this one lovely jar on your toilet table, you can cleanse—invigorate—protect your skin better than the most elaborate combination treatments can do.

Pinaud's Cream has been tested by the world's greatest dermatologists in this country and abroad. Offered to the public only a short time ago—already in Washington, New York and Chicago especially, America's loveliest women are turning to it eagerly. For experts agree that here is the greatest step forward ever taken in the scientific care of the skin.

Never have you had such an aid to skin loveliness as this. Take advantage of it this very day!

You will be charmed, too, with the exquisitely modelled, sea-green jar Pinaud's Cream comes in. A fitting container for this extraordinary new cream. Pinaud, Paris and New York.

Free Offer— for this week only:

Pinaud's Cream is now on sale at the leading drug and department stores of Chicago. Present the coupon below to any of these stores before Saturday and you will receive a generous free trial tube.

To make sure of getting your tube before the supply is exhausted, it would be well to present the coupon as early in the week as possible. Only one free tube to each person.

New Energy instantly—

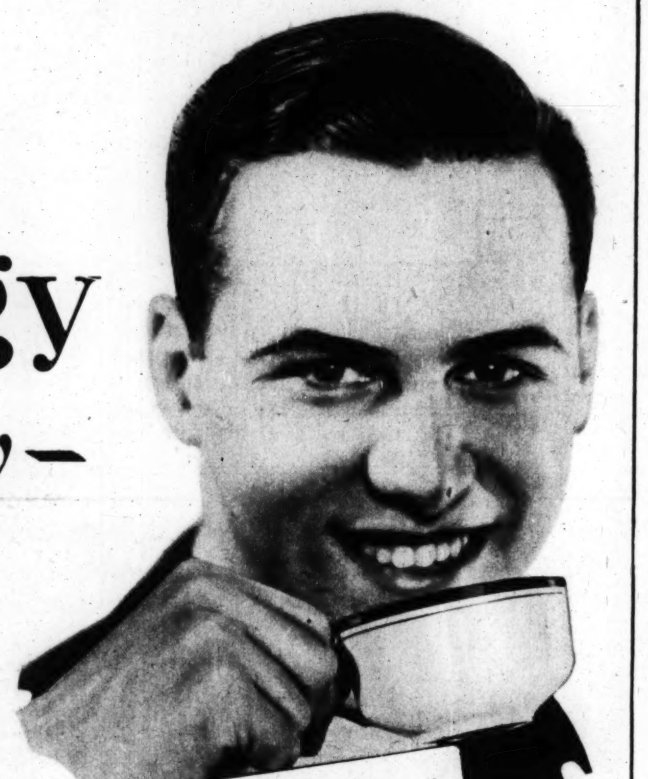
when you feel "all in"



"I didn't have any pep until I tried Ovaltine. It is one of the best builders I have ever tried, and I have found something that will keep me full of pep."
N. E. Rice, Wheeling, W. Va.

This unique Swiss food-drink ends let-down periods . . Picks you up instantly when you're below par . . . Keeps you at your best all day

This 3-day test we offer will prove all

Are you letting yourself be handicapped by periods of slowed-down energy? Times during the day when you simply "lack the pep" to see things through as you should?

Seven out of ten people, it is estimated, are held back from their best work—by these all-too-common mental and physical let-downs.

Now modern science offers you a natural means to keep you "hitting on all six"—every minute of the day. A way that picks you up almost instantly. Both mentally and physically.

It is the delicious new Swiss food-drink called Ovaltine. Not an artificial stimulant. But a quick building-up beverage. Doctors advise it.

Thousands of successful people everywhere now drink Ovaltine regularly at home. In their offices. At soda fountains. It rejuvenates. It sets tired minds a-sparkle. We urge you to make a 3-day test.

Cause of loginess—how Ovaltine overcomes

Mental and physical "let-downs" are due mainly to overstrained nerves or digestive unrest—or both. Ovaltine usually overcomes this trouble, in this way:

FIRST—It combines in easily digested form, certain vitalizing and building-up food essentials, in which your daily fare is often lacking. One cup of Ovaltine has more real food value than 12 cups of beef extract, 7 cups of cocoa, or 3 eggs.

SECOND—Ovaltine has the power actually to digest 4 to 5 times its weight of other foods you eat. Thus a few minutes after drinking, Ovaltine is turning itself and other foods into rich, red blood.

This quick assimilation of nourishment is restoring to the entire body. Frayed nerves are soothed. Digestion goes on efficiently. Energy returns. Your mind clears and your body responds. That is the experience of most Ovaltine users.

Doctors recommend

You will like the flavor of Ovaltine. Unlike any drink you have ever tasted. In use in Switzerland for over 30 years. Now in universal use in England and her colonies. More than 20,000 doctors recommend it. Not only as a quick "pick-up" beverage, but because of its special dietetic properties they also recommend it for restless sleep, nerve strain, malnutrition, underweight and delicate children, nursing mothers and the aged.

A 3-day test

Drink Ovaltine, hot or cold, whenever you feel low or nervously tired. See how quickly it picks you up.

Druggists and grocers sell Ovaltine in 4 sizes for home use. Or get it at the soda fountain. But to let you try it, we will send a 3-day introductory package for 10c to cover cost of packing and mailing. Just send in the coupon with 10c.

Steel blue...green ...mahogany...yellow

LIKE beads around the neck of a savage princess—of many colors, of many shapes! Coffee beans that are steel blue, olive green, pale yellow and mahogany—before they are roasted. Countless different natural flavors from over forty tropical lands!

Yet of them all no single one has ever pleased the critical men and women throughout the United States.

The first real nation-wide fame has come to no one coffee grown, but to a rich mingling of many flavors—to a blend created by a southerner, years ago.

That special touch of richness in Maxwell House has now swiftly made it by far the largest selling coffee in the whole country.

A new adventure in good living for you and your family! That shade of difference in the full-bodied liquor of Maxwell House Coffee!

FIREMAN, SAVE MY CHILD!—And New York fire fighters responded quickly when this three-alarm blaze endangered the lives of fifty persons. The picture shows a number of them carrying girls down the fire escape among the flames, smoke, embers, and falling glass.

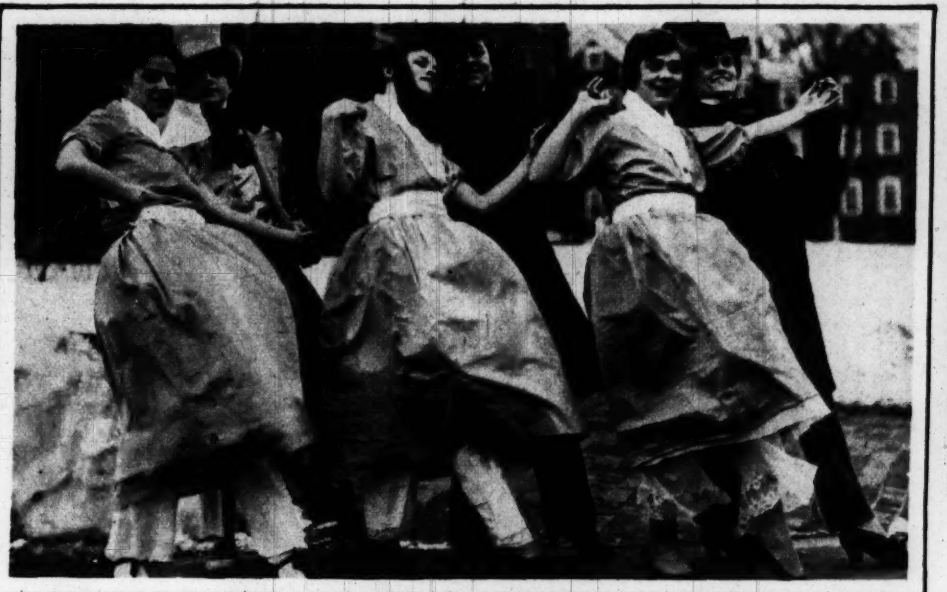
ANTE-BELLUM BEAUTIES—Back in 1914, before the dears started counting their calories to attain that sylphlike shape, these girls of Junoesque proportions were entries in a bathing beauty contest at Venice, Cal. The cause of the tourist stampede to California, perhaps.

(Photograph from International.)



A PAGE OUT OF THE PAST was offered by the Gilbert & Sullivan chorus at the annual rally day celebration at Smith college. All six, of course, are girls; and the "man" in the center is Miss Jane Rowe of Chicago.

BICYCLE DOES A MONKEY ACT—The auto that tried to climb the telegraph pole has become an old saw, but here's a two-wheeled affair that does it. The invention of a New Yorker, the cycle also is convertible into a rowboat; a strip of canvas makes it sea-going.

His Winning
SMILE
...makes many Friends

Mr. William Hamilton tells us he has protected his teeth with Colgate's for nearly 20 years

Drawn from a snapshot of Mr. Hamilton in 1908

MR. William Hamilton is considered a very attractive young man. Bright, interesting, full of personality.

Much of his popularity is due to a remarkable smile . . . . a smile that has made him many friends.

And since 1908 Mr. Hamilton has kept his smile flashing and healthy by brushing his teeth daily with Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream.

In this country, and in foreign countries the world over, you will find thousands and thousands of men and women who began using Colgate's ten, fifteen, even twenty years ago, and whose teeth today are exceptionally sound and beautiful.

There is nothing mysterious about these enviable results. The men and women fortunate enough to secure them did nothing that you cannot easily do yourself.

They visited their dentists for periodic inspections. And they used Colgate's. Choose your dentifrice on the basis of results.

Follow the lead of those who have kept their teeth sound for years.

Simply adopt for your own use the dentifrice most popular among people with well-preserved teeth. The one most dentists recommend.

On one hand you have Colgate's, the chief feature of which is thorough cleansing. On the other you have the fact that countless people who have used Colgate's for years now have exceptionally fine teeth.

In such a vital matter as the care of the teeth, could there be any safer guide than the actual experiences of thousands of people like yourself?

Heart Lake, High Sierra

Beyond snow peaks . . . . the Pacific!

FOURTEEN peaks of the all-year snow-crowned High Sierra exceed 14,000 feet. Mt. Whitney (highest in the nation) tops them all at 14,501 feet. In the midst of this spectacular wilderness Los Angeles maintains a unique natural park.

In all the world there is probably no more wonderful playground than this High Sierra country with its 2000 lakes from 6000 to 13,000 feet. And to this magnificent world of granite, forests, snow and wild life, Los Angeles is the gateway.

This High Sierra trip out of Los Angeles by motor—through the Owens Valley, over 10,000-foot Tioga Pass, through vast forests into the sublime Yosemite and a return via the Ridge Route (on mountain tops for 45 miles), will be one of the outstanding remembrances of a lifetime—yet it is but an incident of your Southern California vacation this summer!

Beyond the snow-clad mountains—in full view from the peaks around Los Angeles—the sparkling blue Pacific marks the nation's west boundary line. Here are 271 miles of wide, smooth, Riviera-rivalling beaches and luring oceanside cities—Santa Barbara, Santa Monica, Long Beach, La Jolla, Newport Beach and a dozen others—offering the keenest surf sports.

Make your plans now to come out this summer—sure. Each vacation day spent in Southern California presents a vivid contrast unlike anything you ever saw before. You will always be going somewhere—beaches, mountains, desert, orange groves, canyons, movie-land, billion-dollar oil fields, "Symphonies under the Stars" at Hollywood Bowl, Old Spanish Missions!

Los Angeles will astound you by its growth and activity. It offers everything and more, for entertainment, for comfort, for relaxation. Los Angeles County is among the wealthiest in natural resources. Its agricultural products last year alone approximated $95,000,000.

Los Angeles is the new approach to Hawaii and the Orient, as well as to the entire Pacific Coast.

A PROMINENT decorator selected Wall-Tex for this bedroom, where it lends a touch of fresh beauty. Wall-Tex is beautiful not only for the minute . . . its delightful patterns and colors are undimmed after years of use. Should it become spotted or soiled, it can be cleaned with a damp cloth, time after time. Wall-Tex is strong and flexible, to conceal cracks in old plaster and to prevent new plaster from cracking. Nothing can equal it for use on ceilings, where unsightly cracks most often occur.

Wall-Tex is made in a large number of smart and attractive designs. They will harmonize with any scheme of decoration, in any room. There are glossy finishes for kitchen and bath. Plain white for ceilings, and for tiffany finishes or rough-cast plaster.

Your decorator or dealer will gladly show you the new Wall-Tex designs. Write us today for the illustrated folder, "The Modern Trend in Wall-coverings." The Columbus-Union Oilcloth Company, Columbus, Ohio.

No Need To Pay More

There is no reason today to pay more than Parker Prices for a fountain pen. You can't buy more than DUOFOLD EFFICIENCY, which will last you all your life.

The cost of highest quality is always lower when there is great demand. More than 17,000,000 Parkers are now in operation.

Thus Parker Popularity pays Parker Users an Extra Dividend in Lower Price.

This is Parker Pressureless Touch

This illustrates Parker's new Pressureless Touch—capillary attraction combined with gravity feed makes the ink flow at the slightest contact with paper—Barrel now Non-Breakable.

* Guaranteed Forever Against All Defects

Parker Duofold Pencils to match, $3, $3.50 and $4

This pen's feather-light weight alone is sufficient to start it writing instantly and keep it writing. Scarcely any pressure from your fingers, no effort, no fatigue. You simply guide this pen. Until you've written with it, you don't know what a fountain pen can do.

Doubly remarkable is this improvement, because the new Duofold is 28% lighter in weight than when made with rubber. Now we are using Parker Permanite, a new material. This pen, therefore, is one of the lightest writing instruments we know.

We've distributed this light weight evenly, thus finely balancing the Duofold—a feature known as "Parker Poise," resulting in an entirely new "feeling" in a fountain pen.

And last, but by no means least, Parker Permanite Material, while making the pen lighter, has made it Non-Breakable also. We have thrown these new Duofolds from an aeroplane 3,000 feet aloft, and from the rim of the Grand Canyon, and not one has broken!

But Pressureless Touch is most important because of its effect of taking all the effort out of writing. It clears the track for THINKING as no other feature in a fountain pen has ever done before. In this way it is almost like a new writing invention. Try it at your nearest dealer's before you buy a pen of any other kind.

Five smart colors—Lacquer-red, Lapis Lazuli Blue, Green Jade, Imperial Mandarin Yellow [new] and flashing Black and Gold—all black-tipped. Duofold Pencils to match.

Three sizes of pen barrels—the Oversize, the Junior and slender Lady Duofold, each offering six styles of pen points tempered to yield to any hand, but proof against distortion from the shape you like.

Get all these Parker features by being sure to look for "Geo. S. Parker—DUOFOLD," imprinted on each pen or pencil. Don't let color only be your guide.

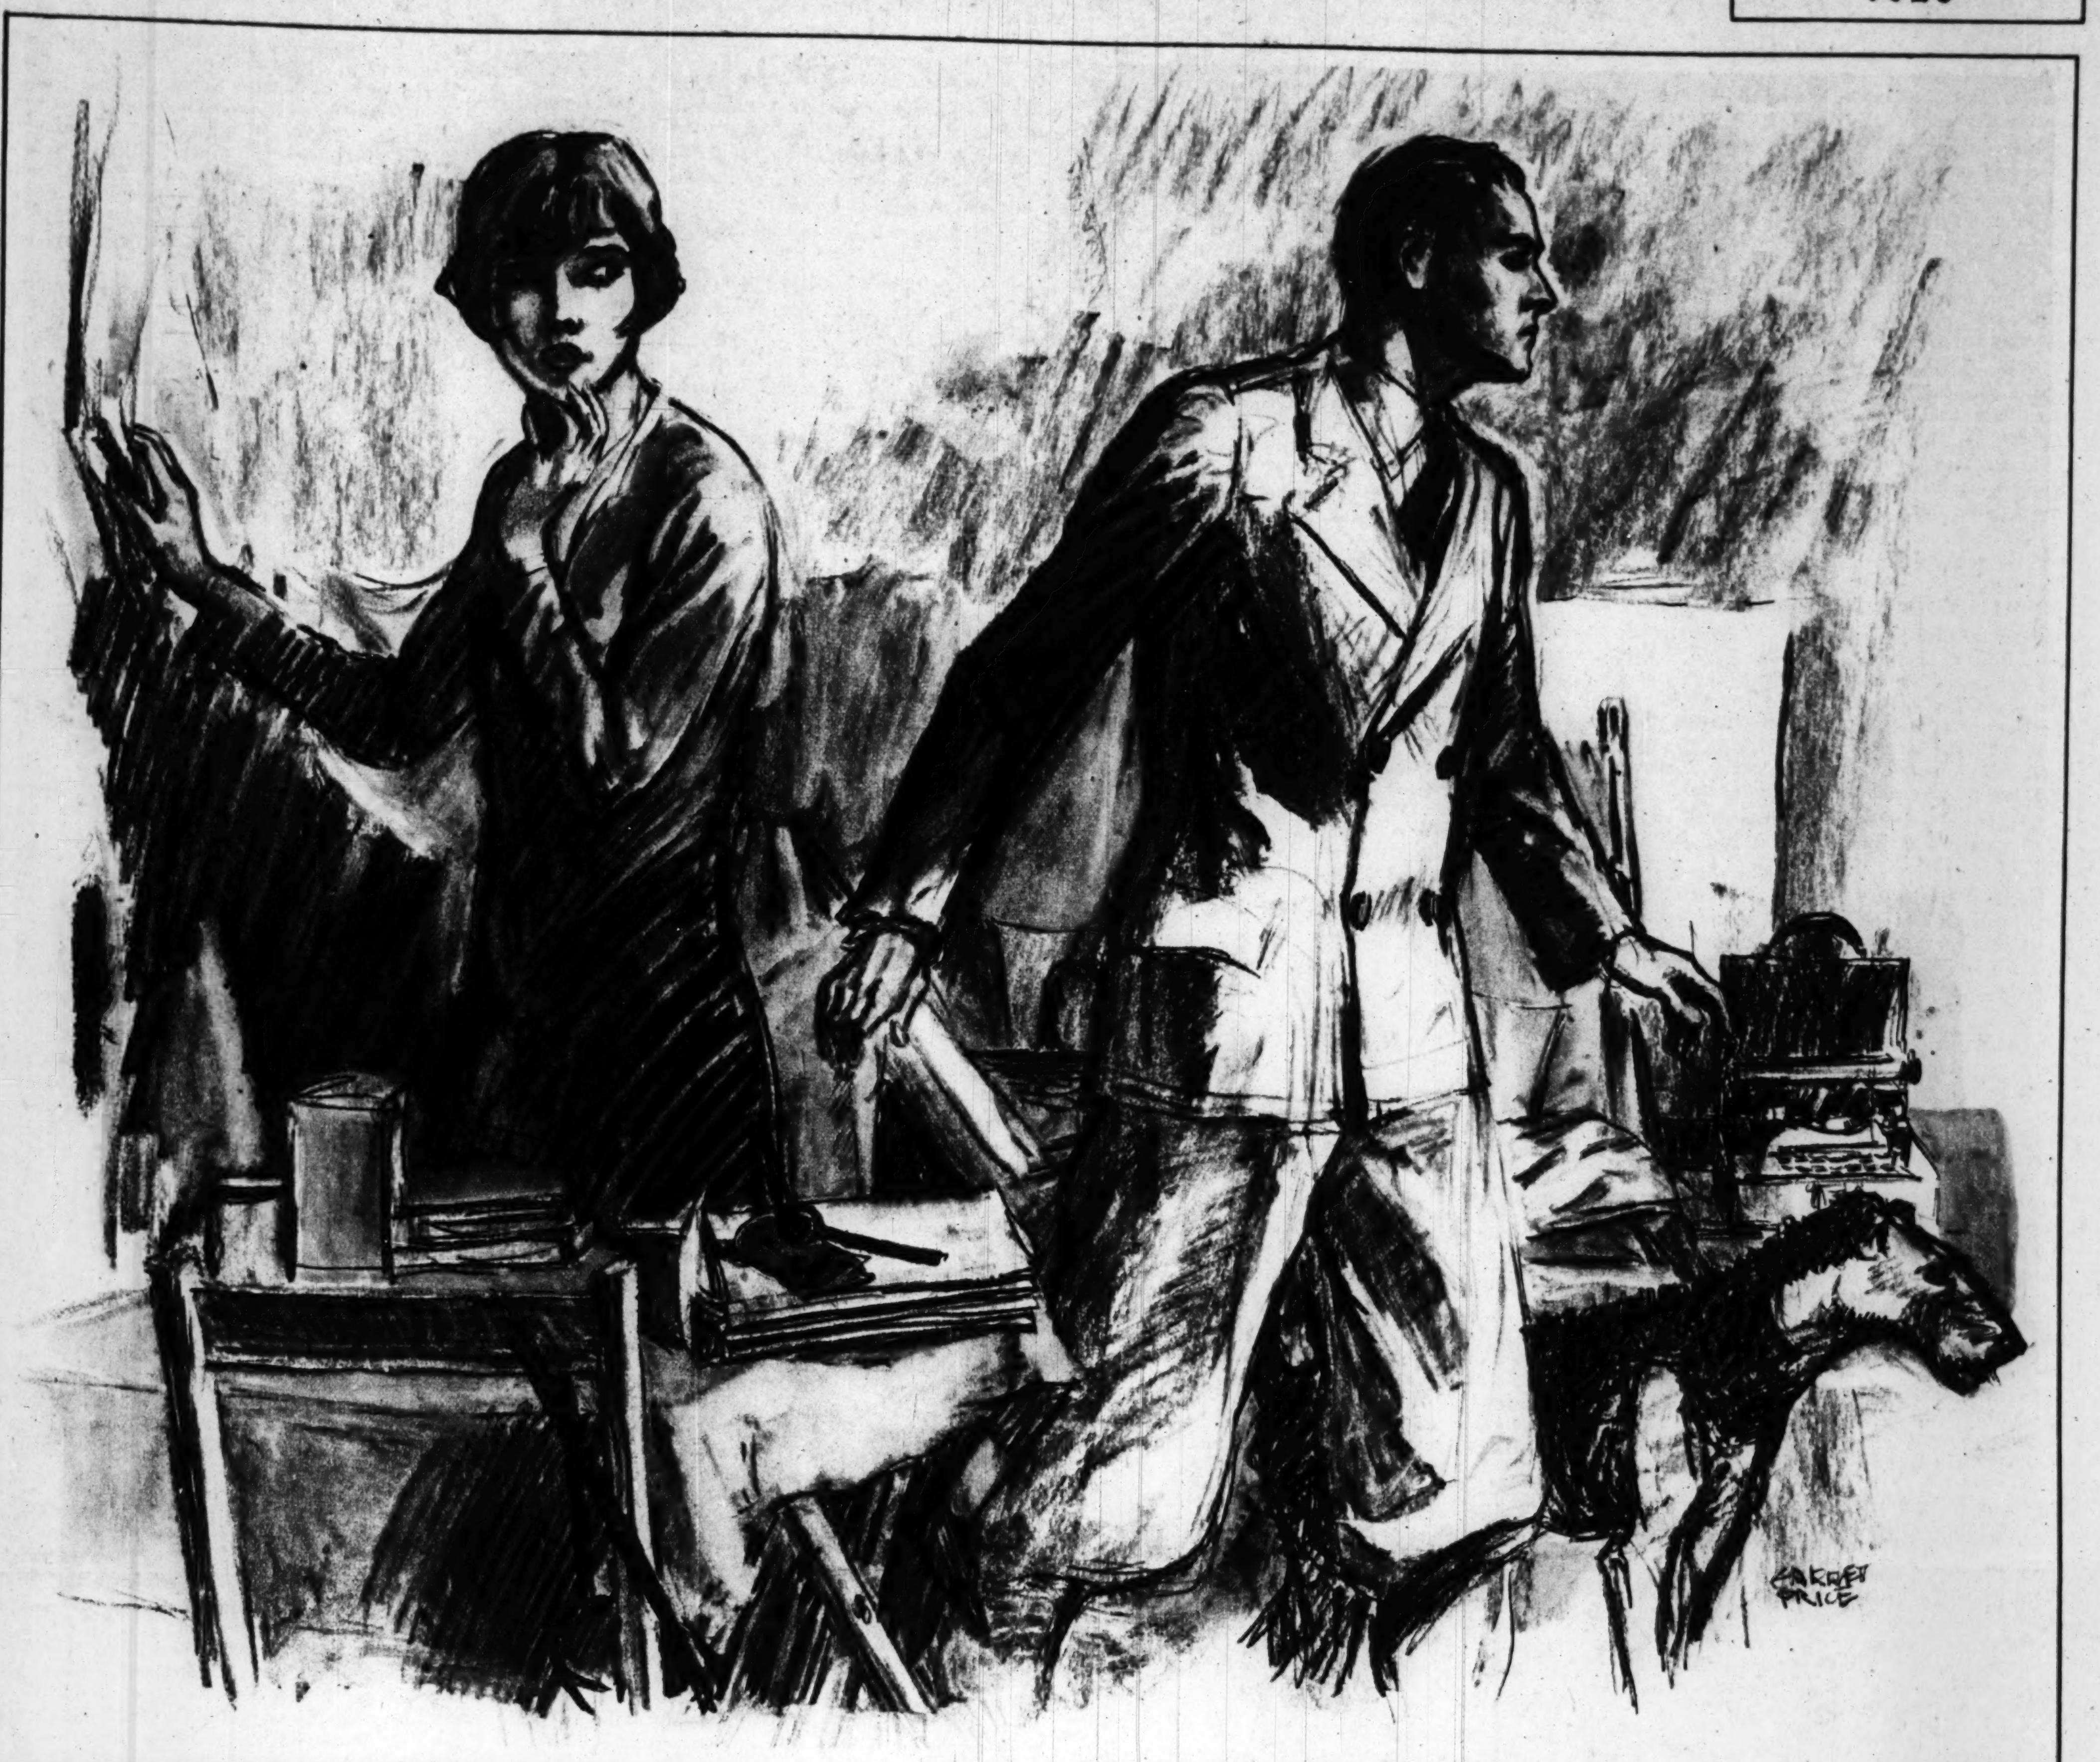
FORCE MAJEURE

by DORNFORD YATES

The Story of a Runaway Heiress and an Author Who Gave Her Refuge in His Hermit Camp in the Mountains



A low growl from Roster snapped the sentence across.

ILLUSTRATED BY GARRETT PRICE.

FROM a point at the head of the gorge the man watched the lights of a car which was making its way up the pass.

It was late August, and night had fallen some two and a half hours ago. The heaven was cloudless and starlit; there was no wind; the silence was absolute. All around the mountain tops could be seen cutting the sky, but the forests and falling water, the glens and torrents, the superb confusion of pasture and crag and timber and plunging streams were out of sight; a mystery of breadth and depth lay in their place, majestic, unfathomable.

The car came on steadily, making its way up the pass. The man watched it curiously, for the infamous Col d'Erreur was not a road to travel except by day. Some of the turns were the devil; in several places water had welled out of its channel to slime the way; there were points where your wheels had a bare four inches to spare. Make a mistake to your right and your car was ditched, but make a mistake to your left and you lost your life.

The car disappeared behind foliage. When it came again into sight one of its headlights had failed. Still it progressed steadily.

Terence Ammiral, frowning, took his pipe from his mouth.

"Blind or mad," he murmured. "An' I'm glad I'm not sitting behind."

The point at which he was standing was close to the road. As a matter of fact, it commanded the only place in the pass where one road became two. Not that mistakes were made—a notice board saw to that. Besides, after thirty paces, the second road slid into a grass grown track. Sometimes at dawn or at dusk a driver would hesitate, but that was all.

It occurred to Ammiral that the car would stop at the fork to make sure of its way. He began to descend cautiously. . . .

The car was very near now. The steady drone of its engine made itself heard; the man could see the beam of its headlight raking the mountain beyond. As the car reached the turn below him the beam began to swing round.

The bend was a stiff one, but the car came up and round, as though it were day. For a moment Ammiral was blinded; then the light passed him and the car stopped.

It was a big car, a coupé, whose hood was up. Its driver was doubtless peering to see which might be his way. Ammiral stepped to the door.

From the driver's seat a girl—a child—met his gaze. No one was with her. Her big eyes had a resolute, fearless look.

"I want to go over the mountain. Which way should I take?"

"You can't—by night," said Ammiral.

"It it closed?"

"No, but——"

"Which is the way, please?"

Ammiral hesitated. Then, "Don't be unreasonable," he said. "I know the pass very well, but I wouldn't drive over by night for a thousand pounds. You've been awfully lucky to get as far as you have, but what you've passed is nothing to what's ahead."

"I must go on," said the girl. "Which is the way?"

The car was plainly heavy, and the lady was plainly tired: her knee was quivering under the strain of holding the brake pedal down.

"Excuse me," said Ammiral, and with that he mounted the step and clapped the hand brake on.

The girl had it off in an instant, but she let in her clutch too fast and the engine stopped. As the car fell back Ammiral applied the brake. Then he switched off the engine and kept his hand over the key.

"How dare you?" flamed the girl. "How——"

"Listen to me," said Ammiral. "In the first place, you've nothing to fear. We're both of us English, and——"

"I'm not. I'm American."

"Well, we both speak English, and we're both in a foreign land. Secondly, I'm older than you. Thirdly, I'm at your service in every possible way. If it was safe I'd drive you over the pass."

The girl's lip curled. "I'm not afraid," she said.

"I know," said Ammiral. "That's the difference between us. Never mind. If you must go on, you must walk. You can leave the car here and I'll walk with you over the pass."

The girl shook her head.

"Thank you," she said. "I think you're trying to help, but you don't understand. I can't leave the car, and I've simply got to get on. You say you're at my service. Then say nothing of having seen me and let me go."

Ammiral hesitated. Then he took the key from the switch.

"I'm sorry," he said, "but I won't. I haven't the right. You see, you don't know and I do. There are bends coming on which you'll have to reverse—with a precipice waiting and not so much as a curb. I'll drive you over at dawn. I swear I will. But not tonight. And I won't let you go alone."

The girl looked him full in the eyes.

"Is that true—about the bends?"

"It is, indeed," said Ammiral. "You'll see for yourself tomorrow. I tell you, I'd drive you up now, if I dared. It's because I know what's coming that I'm afraid."

"O, that's rot," said the girl. "I take it back. The truth is you're not such a fool." She looked around helplessly. "I seem to be in your hands. What shall I do?"

"Put the car there," said Ammiral, pointing to the road on the right. With that, he unlocked the switch. The girl obeyed.

"And now?" she said.

The man pointed up the track. "I'm encamped up there—about ten minutes away."

"All by yourself? What fun."

"It is, rather. I've got a dog: he's guarding the camp. Will you come and have supper? Or shall I bring some down?"

The girl turned out the lights and opened her door.

"I'll come. I'm tired of sitting. May I wash my face and hands?"

"Of course," said Ammiral.

For five minutes they walked in silence. Then a glow leaped out of the darkness a little ahead.

"My beacon," said Ammiral.

"Good," said the girl. "I'm tired. I've come a long way." She threw up her head and breathed deep. "What lovely air."

"The top of the world," said the man, "is the only place. Once you've tasted its fare you're spoiled for everything else. Will you give me your hand here? It's rather treacherous going until we're over the brook."

As he spoke, the gush of water came to their ears. The girl put her hand in his without a word. Twice she stumbled, and each time he held her up. When they came to the water, he paused.

"You'll never do it," he said, "in high heeled shoes. Will you let me carry you over?"

"Yes."

Ammiral picked her up, walked through the icy water and set her down on the turf.

TWO minutes later a nose was thrust into his hand.

"Well, Roster. And here's a lady that likes good dogs."

"How did you know?" said the girl, caressing the eager muzzle at the hem of her dress.

"Instinct," said Ammiral shortly. "Will you go in?"

The girl stepped under the canvas. Then she cried out with surprise, as well she might. The tent was a small marquee, divided in two by a curtain of soft rep. The walls and roof were lined with the same material, and an aged Persian carpet covered the floor. A table and one or two chairs were all the furniture; a candle lantern was shedding a decent light.

Ammiral stepped to the curtains and felt for a switch. The next moment, beyond the curtain, the tent was brilliantly lit.

"I'm going to the kitchen," said the man, "to raise some food. I shall be away ten minutes. You'd like to wash while I'm gone. There's water behind the curtains, and soap and towels."

"Thank you very much," said the girl. She pulled off her hat. "This is better than the Col d'Erreur."

"I'm so glad you think so," said Ammiral.

Supper had been served and eaten; by the man's direction a small bottle of wine had been drunk, and the lady sat back in her chair, with a cigaret in her hand and the Airedale's head in her lap.

"My name," said the man, "is Ammiral. Terence Sadleir Ammiral. Please don't think I want to know yours."

"My name's Elaine Carey. I'm 21 next Tuesday, and I'm running away."

"What ever from?" said Ammiral.

"The most hideous thing," said Elaine. She put a hand over her eyes. "Marriage. To a Frenchman, of course. You see, my stepmother's French. My father was very rich. He left me two-thirds of his fortune, provided I didn't marry before I was 21. If I did, it went to my stepmother—every cent. But I never knew that. . . . I was to have married her son—it was all arranged. They told me father had wished it—showed me a letter in which he said it was the wish of his heart. Forged, I suppose; but I believed it. We were to have been married in June. Then one day he married a typist, without a word. I was too thankful, but stepmother went off the deep end. Of course, it tore everything up. If only I'd known . . .

"Ten days later the two of us sailed for France. You see, she hadn't much time, and, being French, I suppose, she knows the ropes. Besides, I can't speak a word. We came to a château near Biarritz that her mother has. All the family were there—the most poisonous crowd. The worst was a nephew, Georges. He looked like a third class waiter. If ever we went into Biarritz, I was ashamed to be seen.

"One day I had to go to the mairie—something about my passport. Heaven knows what I said and signed; they saw me through—I tell you, I can't speak a word. And then, this morning, a housemaid came to my room. She used to serve English people and knows a few words. She asked if, when I was married, I'd take her as maid. Of course I laughed and said there was plenty of time. She stared at that, and, after a little, I found that I was to marry Georges tomorrow at 12 o'clock. At the mairie, of course. The whole thing had been arranged. If I resisted, I was mad—the doctors were there.

"When she was gone, I felt dazed. I couldn't believe that such a thing could be done. Then I saw how easy it was. Manners, customs, and a language I didn't know. The pack of them against me—as well as my own signature, as likely as not. What I couldn't understand was why. Why must I be married like this against my will? I went straight to my stepmother's room to have it out. She wasn't there, but a letter from father's lawyer was on the floor. I read it and saw the whole thing. Of course, he's in on the deal. He and she are my guardians, my two trustees.

"Well, the obvious thing to do was to disappear. Once I'm of age the game's up. A consul might have helped me, but stepmother's very sly, and I'm still her ward. And then the doctors." Her hand began to tremble.

"That's what I really fear. I didn't know they were doctors until the housemaid spoke, but one was always with us wherever we went. I think the notion's been spread that I'm not myself.

"I just went straight to the stables and took the car. I didn't dare take any luggage. I drove to Bordeaux. There I stopped for petrol and asked for the Paris road. But I didn't take it—I doubled, and drove for the Pyrenees. There's a place called Vernet-les-Bains. Father had a chef called Henri. I always liked him, and, when he left us, he cried. He lives at Vernet-les-Bains, where he keeps a little hotel. If I can get there, he'll help me. Stepmother sent him away."

AMMIRAL stepped to the table and took a map.

After a moment: "From here to Vernet," he said, "is between two and three hundred miles. Very severe going. It's asking a lot of a car to do it all in a day. D'you know whether Henri's there?"

"I imagine so. He sent me a card at Christmas."

"If he isn't, what will you do? I mean, I'll go with you, of course; but if we can't find him . . ."

"We can try," said Elaine. "I don't know another soul."

"Even if we do," said Ammiral, "we're advertising your presence all the way. The car's got numbers. Have you got your papers?"

"I have none. The car is mine, but stepmother said I'd better not drive in France."

Ammiral frowned. "Can you tell me at where you were when you put on your lights? mean, from there on they wouldn't see you."

The girl thought for a moment. Then: "I had them on," she said, "when I came to a place called Aire."

Ammiral returned to the map. "That's right," he said. "Aire. About sixty miles away. Where did you last take in petrol?"

"Not since Bordeaux."

"Which means that we'll have to fill up at the first village over the pass. And that's a pity, for just at the moment you're sixty miles out of their ken."

The girl rose to her feet.

"D'you believe me?" she said. "It's such a fantastic tale that I thought you'd ask some questions. But you haven't asked one that counts."

"I know. I believe what you say. I've seen people out for money. And I think you were very prudent to disappear. In fact, if you'd got a passport, I'd take you straight to England—I don't trust this country an inch."

"You're very kind," said the girl, tremulously. "I've had such a rotten time, and—"

The flap of the tent swayed, and she started violently. "What was that?" she cried.

"The wind," said Ammiral. "See. Roster hasn't moved."

The girl was shaking like a leaf. Ammiral stepped to her side, put his arm round her shoulders and took her hand.

"You must stay here," he said. "I won't let you down. The camp's out of sight of the road, and, with Roster and me to guard you, you'll be as safe as a house. And then, on Tuesday . . ."

The girl stopped shaking and held his hand very tight. Then she went down on her knees and made much of the dog.

After perhaps a minute, "You're very good to me," she said. "I'll—I'll be very glad to stay. But the car—"

"I'll fix the car," said Ammiral.

Elaine returned to the dog. "He'll fix it, he says, Roster. I can't think how he'll do it, but I'm not going to ask. I believe him, you see." The dog licked her face. "And I don't feel afraid any more with him and you." She flicked the tears from her eyes and got to her feet. "O, but I'm tired, Mr. Ammiral. And that ought to show you that you've managed to take the strain."

"Sit down," said Ammiral, smiling. "And listen to me for two minutes and then you shall go to bed."

The girl sank into a chair.

"This car," said her host. "I've got two gallons of petrol and I'm going to drive her back as far as she'll go."

"Not now?" cried Elaine.

"At once, of course. If the petrol holds out, I'll be through Aire long before dawn. Then I'll drive her into a wood and take the train back. With luck I should be back here soon after midday. But I might not get in till evening. In any event, remember you're perfectly safe. Roster will guard you to the death, and I'll give you my pistol, to make you feel safer still. But you mustn't stir out of this tent till I come back. I'll leave some food for you both before I go. And now to bed."

The girl rose at once. When he had shown her the switches, she put her two hands in his.

"I shall look for your coming," she said. "I can't begin to thank you and I'm not going to try. But I'll be very happy and thankful to see you again."

Twenty minutes later the little camp was in darkness, Roster was listening to the breathing of his delicate charge, and the coupe was stealing back the way it had come.

"AND I brought you some shoes," said Ammiral. "I do hope they'll fit. I didn't dare get any stockings or anything else of that sort. But shoes seemed essential."

He produced a very small pair of rubber soled shoes. Elaine cried out with delight.

"O, you darling—I mean, how splendid of you!"

She whipped off a little slipper and put out her foot. The man went down on his knees and, using a card as a shoehorn, fitted the shoe.

"Like a glove," said the girl. "What a wonderful eye you must have. And now I've got everything. I can wash my stockings and go without till they're dry; and I can wear your shirts. I tried one on this morning—I hope you don't mind. They're very nice silk and they suit me most awfully well."

"My wardrobe's at your service," said Ammiral, fitting the second shoe.

"Like everything else that you have. Why are you so good to me?"

The man looked up into the eager face.

"Force majeure," he said, smiling. "You've a compelling way." He rose to his feet. "And now I must bathe in the brook and make myself clean. And then we'll have tea."

Elaine stared at the plates and the glasses which she had used.

"I can wash these up," she said. "If you'll bring a tub of hot water I'd like to do my bit."

Ammiral hesitated. Then, "All right," he said. "But first I must light the fire. While the water's boiling I'll bathe and change. You shall wash up while I shave. And then we'll have tea. But I think first of all I'll take my gear out of the bedroom, if I may go in."

"No, I can't have that," said Elaine. "I suppose you'll insist that I sleep there, as I did till midday today. But I won't have you take out your things. I'll be out of the room by seven or any hour that you like. And then you can get up in comfort."

"My dear," said Ammiral. "I flatly refuse. I've a car fifty paces away crying out to be used. There's nothing the matter with its mirror, and——"

"You can't dress in a car," said Elaine. "And supposing it's wet. And I know those driving mirrors: you can't see a thing. Why can't you do as I say?"

Ammiral pointed to the curtains.

"Because that is your apartment so long as you stay—your private, personal chamber, your very own. I want us both to feel that."

Elaine sat back helplessly.

"This is quixotic," she said. "I wonder you don't decide to sleep in the car."

"I'm going to."

Elaine sprang to her feet.

"In that case I'm going," she said. "I simply won't stay on here at such a cost. Good heavens, my dear, I trust you. I've put myself in your hands. There's no question of compromise, for no one will ever know. Besides, I want you near me. Last night I woke in the night and was frightened to death. If Roster could talk he'd tell you." She came to Ammiral's side and laid her right hand on his arm. "Mr. Ammiral—Terence, please let me have my way. You've put me under a debt that can't be reckoned—an obligation that I can never lift. Let me contribute something. You give me the whole of this tent—this exquisite little home that I shall never forget. Very well. I accept it. And now I give half of it back. Do me the honor to take it. I'll make your bed every evening before I go to my own and as soon as you're up in the morning I'll do the rooms. Please say you agree to this. It's little enough.

Ammiral looked at the fingers that lay on his arm. These were firm and well shaped, beautifully kept. The slenderness of the third was protested by an Antoinette ring. Slowly he raised his head to meet the steady eyes.

"There's no obligation," he said. "I'm very proud of my guest. Indeed, I'm very lucky. Any man would jump at the chance of waiting on you."

"D'you think I'd let any man? Any man that I've ever seen? It's because you're different that I didn't clear out last night directly you'd gone. I let you shoe me just now—without a thought. No man's ever done that outside a store. I'm not giving you any favors, because I've none to give you. Other men, yes: but not you. Can you understand? I call you 'Terence,' and I hope you'll call me 'Elaine.' There's no favor there—it's natural. And so, as my treasury's empty, I want to play my part in keeping your home."

"All right," he said suddenly.

"I'm so glad," said the girl simply.

THAT evening, their simple supper over, the two talked for an hour without any sort of restraint. If this was largely due to the lady's outstanding charm, it must be fairly allowed that Ammiral's tinder was near as fine as her spark. If she struck the pretty fire, be sure he glowed, but he neither smoldered nor burst into flame. This to his infinite credit—to play such a game badly was the simplest thing in the world.

At last the lady regarded her wrist watch.

"Half past ten," she murmured. "I suppose you won't let me carry the tray to the kitchen and bring myself some hot water before I retire."

"I will not," said Ammiral, rising.

"O, Terry, do you 'absolutely refuse'?"

"Roster," said Ammiral. The dog sprang to his side. "The maiden is mocking your master. What shall we do?"

"Roster," said Elaine, mischievously. The dog bounded across. "Your mistress . . ."

Ammiral seized the tray and made himself scarce.

To heat the water took him a quarter of an hour. When he returned half the tent was in darkness and my lady had disappeared. In a corner, however, was a most excellent bed. Its linen was straight and smooth; its upper sheet and blanket were folded back; on the latter lay a pair of pajamas, waiting to be put on.

For a moment the man stood staring. Then he stepped to the bed. One touch was enough; the bed had been made upon a mattress some two inches thick. Ammiral cleared his throat.

"Look here, Elaine—"

A resolute voice cut him short.

"Sorry, my dear, but I—I 'absolutely refuse.' I'm sorry to have asked for the water, but I had to get you out of the way. And now I'm washed and in bed and just falling off to sleep. And this bed doesn't need a mattress; I never was so comfortable before. And warm and everything. So please don't disturb me any more, and I hope you'll sleep very well. Good night, Terry."

Ammiral regarded the curtain helplessly.

At length, "Good night, Elaine," he said.

Ten minutes later he was sleeping like the dead.

. . . . . .

Six hours had gone by, and the two were standing together at the top of the infamous pass, watching the splendor of the sunrise light up the majesty of the earth. The scene was incomparable. Slowly mountains and valleys lifted their heads; gradually color came stealing out of the dawn; the firmament was changing its raiment; a magic overlay of dew confounded the sight.

"The coronation," breathed Elaine. "Our kingdom is being crowned."

"That's right," said Ammiral, nodding. "And this you may see any day for nothing at all."

"Have you seen it often, Terry?"

"A good many times, Elaine. But it's always new."

The girl nodded gravely.

"I'll never forget it. Or how you showed it to me." She pointed a delicate finger. "I'd like to walk that way."

"And a very good way, too," said Ammiral. "Come on, Roster. We can walk on the top of this ridge for nearly four miles."

"On this sort of going? How lovely! And with no one on earth to see us." She took his arm. "When I ran away from the château, I never expected to fall on my feet like this."

"You're very easy to entertain," said Ammiral.

"I'm not at all, really," said the girl. "But you're very nice to me, and I like your ways. And, O, I meant to tell you, I've got an idea. Don't you think that during the day we could open one side of the tent? The far side, I mean. Then I won't be shut up, but still I'll be out of view."

"I don't see why not," said Ammiral. "I think we'd better shut it while I'm away getting supplies. That'll take me an hour and a half this afternoon. But the rest of the time we can sit with one side open and take the air."

"We?" said Elaine. "I'm not going to keep you in. Because I must be a prisoner—"

"My dear," said Ammiral, "I've nothing on earth to do. If you weren't here I should stay in camp during the day. I walk like this in the morning; but during the heat I read and write and generally potter around."

"Whom do you write to, Terry?"

"The public. I try to write books."

"O, my dear, what about?"

"Anything I can think of," said Ammiral. "That's how I live."

Elaine stood perfectly still, finger to lip.

"Ammiral," she said. "I knew that I knew the name. Didn't you—didn't you write "The Bow in the Cloud"?

The man colored with pleasure. "That's quite right," he said. The girl caught her breath. "But I can't think how you remember; it hardly sold."

"Because I loved it," cried Elaine. "And why on earth didn't it sell?"

"Because most people didn't love it. But I'm so glad you did."

"I loved every word," said Elaine, catching his arm. "I can't get over it being you. Of course, that's why we're not strangers. O, Terry, I'm so glad to have found you. If you knew how I've read that book. I love the bit where the maiden helps the shepherd to write his love letter and all the time it's going to go to her. How did you think of it all? Have you ever been in love?"

"Not that I know of," said Ammiral.

"That's right," said Elaine. "I don't want you to be in love. I like you to be as I found you—all alone with Roster, high up in the hills."

"I have to come down in the autumn. I've a little house in London—"

"Like the one the maiden lived in, in Witchery Lane?"

"That's right," said Ammiral.

"With a forecourt and a sun dial and a letter box in the wall?"

"It has all those pretty things."

"O, Terry, my dear, to think that I know your home! Knew it and loved it long before I knew you. Are you sure you made up the maiden?"

"I give you my word," said Ammiral. "I haven't even a sister."

Elaine regarded the heaven, now full of light.

"You described her very minutely."

"I tried to make her look nice."

"She was perfectly lovely," said Elaine. "I wonder where you met her."

"I never met her," cried Ammiral. "I tell you I made her up."

"'So the shepherd kissed her'," said Elaine, addressing the air. "'He'd never kissed any one before, but he knew how it ought to be done. He never forgot his surprise at the feel of her lips; it was so refreshing and comfortable, just as though they had been made to be kissed, as, of course, they had.' And now I've left out some."

"You've a wonderful memory," said Ammiral.

"Nothing to the shepherd's," said Elaine.

Ammiral sighed. "Have it your own way," he said. "I'm a dissolute and profligate—"

"You're not, you're not! No one who was could have written so simply as that. O, Terry, I love to tease you. You take everything so gravely."

"I know," said Ammiral, ruefully. "It's a terrible fault, but—"

"It isn't. It's just your way. And I think I'm very good for you."

"I'm sure of that," said the man, and meant what he said.

"It's like a dream," said Elaine. "You write the book and I love it, and then I run away blindly and stumble right into your arms. You were very stern that first night, weren't you?"

"I suppose I was, but something had to be done."

"I shall never see why. I was an utter stranger, and, once you'd warned me, my blood was on my own head."

"Stranger, perhaps," said Ammiral. "But you were 'within my gates.' Besides, you—you—well, I didn't want your blood to be on your head."

Elaine tilted her chin.

"I don't see why you shouldn't say you liked the look of me. I mean, I think that's the truth. Of course, you're quite right to be careful, but I like you so much that I'd like to know you like me."

The man's heart pounded within him. The world about him grew misty. Every nerve in his body was tingling, and the beauty that stepped at his elbow stung him like an exquisite flame.

By a prodigious effort he steadied his voice. "I liked the look of you," he said. "And I'm very glad you like me, and I do like you very much."

With a maddening smile, the lady peered into the distance, shading her eyes. "Well, that's something," she said. "But I can't help feeling that the shepherd would have—O look at that baby village beside that flock of toy sheep. Will you get them for me to play with while you're away?"

FOUR golden days had gone by and Miss Elaine Carey was twenty-one.

Nothing had happened to disturb the peace she had found or to put in peril her freedom from her stepmother's rule. If search had been made for her no news of it reached the camp, and nothing had appeared in the papers which Ammiral saw. Cars had gone by up the pass, as they always did, but none of them took the byroad, and none of them stopped. And that was as near as interference had come. The two could not know that a car containing a doctor and the inelegant Georges had passed on Sunday morning about eleven o'clock, or that a smooth tongued widow had spent a fruitless Friday at Vernet-les-Bains. . . .

That Ammiral loved his guest there can be no manner of doubt. He had loved her, I think, as he plodded back to his camp that first afternoon with her little shoes in his pocket and her parcels under his arm. Certainly the last three days had been punching a driven nail. He was mad about the lady, found her superlative, a daughter of the high gods. His best friends waited upon her; Nature was radiant whenever she was abroad; the silver trumpets of romance sounded continually in his ears. The man saw and heard these things—and kept faith with himself.

"Boulogne?" said Elaine.

"Boulogne," said Ammiral, lighting a cigaret. "There we try for an emergency passport—a refusal won't matter now. And so to London. I know a solicitor there who'll see you through. He'll know what ought to be done and how to do it. And his name at the foot of a letter will make the recipient think."

"Yes," said Elaine. "And then?"

"I shall bow and retire," said Ammiral. "He'll see you through. I must get back to Roster—we can't take him. I shall leave him at the farm in the valley where I get the milk. And they'll keep an eye on the camp."

"I see," said Elaine thoughtfully.

"We needn't leave here till the evening," continued Ammiral. "There's a train from the railhead for Paris that leaves about ten."

"Good," said his guest, rising. "I'll like to have one free day. When I've washed these things——"

"I'll bring you the water," said Ammiral.

"My dear," cried Elaine, "don't forget that the danger is past. Today I can see and be seen."

Ammiral got to his feet.

"Not here," he said. "Not as my guest. In the car, on the road, in the train, but not in this camp."

"O, Terry, what can it matter? Don't be so strict. Besides, it's a chance in a million. We can't be seen from the road."

"I don't care. It's a chance I won't take. You and I know why you are here, but——"

A low growl from Roster snapped the sentence across. For a moment the two stood listening. Then, "Into the bedroom!" breathed Ammiral.

As the girl slipped behind the curtain he took his stand in the gap which led to the inner room. Then he leaned against one of the tent poles casually enough.

"May I blow in?" said a voice.

Ammiral nodded to the airedale, whose eyes were upon his face. Then, "By all means," he said.

"What 'o," crowed the other. "I'd 've laid a till to a toothpick that you weren't French," and with that the genial intruder followed his Cockney accent into the tent. "Come on, Walt," he shouted, "here's an English gentleman wants you to 'ave a drink."

"Sit down," said Ammiral pleasantly, nodding towards a chair.

Walt appeared in the doorway—as fair a foil to his fellow as could have been found.

Both were fat and of a cheerful countenance; both were exuding good will; both were suggesting an honest belief in beer. But, while Walt was plainly retiring, and a schoolboy shyness looked out of his jolly eyes, the other wore an air of familiar confidence which was not only manifestly invulnerable but positively disarming in its absolute assumption of reciprocal esteem.

"'Ope I don't intrude, sir," said Walt, staring.

"Not at all," said Ammiral falsely.

THE position was absurd—ludicrous.

Till this morning he had been so careful, had never relaxed for an instant his precautions against surprise. And now . . .

With a hazy, halting idea of gaining time, his host waved Walt to a chair and crossed his legs.

"Are you doing the Pyrenees?"

"That's right," said Walt's companion. "Beeritz to Karkersong. The charrerbang's down the road with a wheel in the ditch. An hour an' a 'alf it'll be before she's out. When I said we'd walk on to the pub the driver laughed. 'Ad quite a game with us, didn't 'e, Walt?"

"That's right, Tom," grinned the other.

"Presently a French gent steps in. 'Next pub ten miles,' he says, 'oldin' up both of his 'ands." Walt began to shake with laughter. "I give you my word, Walt 'ere had to 'elp me away.

"Takin' a stroll we was—to try to forget. Then we come roun' the corner right on top o' this nest. The moment I see it I says, 'That's an Englishman's pitch.' Everything clean an' shipshape, an' a nice, white—"

Elaine appeared in the doorway, her hand on Ammiral's arm.

"That's quite right," she said. "My husband's very particular. I'm American myself, but he's taught me any amount."

The two strangers were on their feet.

"Proud to meet you, m'lady," said Tom. "I 'ope we 'aven't disturbed you. It's early yet."

"I'm very glad to see you," said Elaine. "If I hadn't been finishing dressing, I'd have appeared before." She turned to Ammiral. "And now that I'm on parade, will you get some beer?" She returned to her new found friends. "I'm sure you must be thirsty; and to walk ten miles in this sun is a shade too thick."

"So it is, m'lady," said Tom, heartily.

Five minutes later he returned, to find my lady discoursing of prohibition, with Tom and Walt hanging upon her lips. The Antoinette ring which glowed from her wedding finger might have been there for years.

Ammiral poured the beer, cool from the brook.

Half an hour later the strangers took their leave.

Their host saw the two as far as the little byroad. Then he turned to the tent.

As Ammiral hung on his heel, "Don't be cross with me, Terry," she said.

Ammiral stepped to a chair and sat himself down.

"I can't be cross with you," he said. "For one thing, it wouldn't be fair, and, for another, I—I don't feel like it. But I'm wild with myself."

"For heaven's sake, why?"

"For being caught bending."

"O, Terry. And it was such fun. They were so nice and gentle, and they were so glad of that beer."

The man put his head in his hands.

"My dear, you avoid the point, which is that I've let you down. You saved the situation and you did it devilish well. But—well, Tom and Walt look healthy, and I daresay they'll live for years."

"What if they do? We'll never see them again."

"I hope to God we shan't," said Ammiral, fervently. "But, when you inherit, I expect there'll be rather a shout. Pictures of you in the papers, and paragraphs. And, when you're engaged and married, the same sort of thing. Well, that's all right, but what about Tom and Walt? I mean, I guess they can read."

Elaine leaned against the table and stared at her shoes.

"Perhaps. But they'll hold their tongues. Our secret's quite safe with them."

Ammiral jumped to his feet.

"They haven't got our secret. And there's the rub. If they had I wouldn't care. But it breaks my heart to think that they'll——"

Elaine's hands were on his shoulders and her face two inches from his.

"Terry, my dear, you leave out the redeeming feature—the thing that saves the game. Perhaps they'll know my picture, but they'll never forget your face. Or the look in your eyes. It's honest, you see. . . . And so, whatever they read, they'll know there's some good explanation of my being here."

The man put his hands behind him and stared at the roof.

"Elaine," he said, "they were men. And so I doubt if they'd know me if they met me a month from today. They were, I think, decent men, and I find it most hard to believe that, whatever they read, they'll think any harm of you. But the age is against us. And I'd give a year of my life for them to have passed us by."

There was a little silence. Then, "Look at me," said Elaine.

Ammiral lowered his eyes.

"If I'm compromised, so are you. I've posed as your wife."

Ammiral's finger nails dug into his palms.

"To my lasting honor, Elaine," he said steadily.

"Why do you say that, Terry?"

The man looked away.

"I—I don't know. I suppose a man likes to be trusted by the—by a woman he likes. It—it serves his vanity."

"I see. Did I serve your vanity by pretending to be your wife?"

Ammiral nodded. He dared not trust his voice.

"Not good enough," said Elaine. "Look in my eyes."

Ammiral met her gaze.

FOR a moment gray eyes held brown. Then she drew down his head and kissed his lips. The man's arms were about her, and her cheek against his.

"Elaine, Elaine."

"Say you love me, Terry. I know you do. I've seen the look in your eyes. But I want to hear you say it."

"I loved you that first day, my darling. I—"

"That's right. I knew you did. But I knew you would never say so and I didn't know what to do. And then Tom and Walt blew in and opened the door. Don't you think we might be married in Paris? As soon as we can?"

"But you don't really love me, Elaine; I mean, you've only known me——"

"My dear, you're the shepherd. I've loved you for months and months. We've been engaged for ages. And then fate stepped in and brought me 'within your gates.'"

"My beautiful stranger," said Ammiral, putting her hand to his lips.

"And will you take me home to Witchery Lane? I mean, it's my house really. What are you laughing for?"

"Because I can't fight any more. Force majeure can have it. I know when I'm beat. That night there was nothing to do but take you in. Once you were in—well, if you went for a walk with a Trappist, I'll bet he'd be quoting Swinburne before you got back; then Tom and Walt fall from heaven clean into the basket of eggs I've been trying so hard to hatch, and now you bend against me 'The Bow in the Cloud.'"

Elaine threw her arms round his neck.

"Of course I do; I've the right. It wasn't a book."

"What was it then, my darling?"

"My love letter," whispered a child, and hid her face.

The RED KNIGHT of GERMANY

By FLOYD GIBBONS

(Richthofen, with fifty-seven victories, met his first check in the air on July 6, 1917. That day a bullet from the gun of Flight Commander A. E. Woodbridge, Royal Flying Corps, struck him in the head. He made an abrupt landing and, with his usual luck, escaped death. A month later he returned to the front, and on Aug. 16 he shot down a single seater. It was his fifty-eighth victory.)

INSTALLMENT IX.

Turning Tricks in the Air.

RICHTHOFEN'S fifty-eighth victory was his first fight after being wounded, and he knew that he was not the man he had been. The recollection of Woodbridge's bullet and of that 12,000 foot tumble was with him every minute in the air.

Although he flew on daily patrols in which he endeavored to revive the old organization spirit among his new flyers, he did not engage in another combat until ten days later, when a lone flying Spad single seater fell as his prey.

The victim of this fight was Second Lieutenant C. P. Williams, a pilot of the 19th Squadron, Royal Flying Corps. The Germans reported his death several days later.

Richthofen's head had spun and his stomach contracted as he watched Williams go down to his death. Although he had been back at the front just two weeks, he had had enough of it for the time being.

This was not cowardice. He was a wounded man who had not yet recovered his old physical and moral stamina.

He had been granted leave on the recommendation of the medical officers attached to his squadron. With the leave assured, he flew with even greater caution so that an unwise engagement or surprise attack should not prevent his withdrawal.

It was on Sept. 2 that the ace made his next attack. Then he jumped on a sure thing. He was flying a new Fokker triplane which the British had not seen before on this front, and which was not unlike the experimental triplane used by the English naval flyers.

The victim of his sixtieth victory was an old R. E. bus. The plane was flown by Second Lieutenant J. B. C. Madge of the 6th Squadron, and Second Lieutenant W. Kember occupied the observer's seat.

Several days later the Germans dropped a note stating Kember was dead.

Madge was badly wounded when the R. E. piled up on its nose. He spent the rest of the war in German hospitals and jails, and returned to his father's home in Edinburgh after the armistice.

The performance of the new triplane pleased Richthofen. The quickness and ease with which it responded to the controls led him to believe it was at least a match for the new British pursuit planes.

He had the chance to demonstrate his belief in a long and hard fought combat early the next morning, when he bumped into a Sopwith one seater flown by an airman who knew both how to fly and how to fight.

His account of the fight reads:

"Requesting acknowledgment of my sixty-first victory. Date: Sept. 3, 1917. Time: 7:35 a. m. Place: South of Bousbecque, this side of the lines. Type of plane: Sopwith one seater, No. B-1795; 80 horsepower Le Rhone type R motor No. 35123; carrying machine gun No. A-47-23. Occupant: Lieut. A. F. Bird; made prisoner; unwounded. My own plane: Fokker F. I. 102-17 triplane.

"Being engaged, together with five planes of Staffel Eleven, in a fight with a Sopwith one seater squad, I attacked at an altitude of 10,000 feet one of the enemy's machines.

"After considerable maneuvering, I succeeded in forcing it to the ground near Bousbecque. I was absolutely convinced that I had a very capable opponent, because he refused to surrender, even after I had forced him down as low as fifty yards above the ground. Even then he kept right on shooting.

"Before he landed he emptied his machine gun into a column of our infantry, and then, when on the ground, deliberately steered his plane into a tree and smashed it.

"The Fokker triplane F. I. 102-17 was undoubtedly better and more reliable than the English machine.

"BARON VON RICHTHOFEN."

Lieut. Bird is so busy working in his father's flour mills in Norfolk that he hasn't time to discuss his brush with Richthofen. He read Richthofen's report, but refused to add to it.

Manfred's sixty-first victory is not registered in the collection of silver death cups like its predecessors. The Berlin jeweler who made the cups on the ace's orders reported that he had run out of silver and that it was impossible to obtain more.

The remaining twenty victories of Manfred's career are registered only in the war records, the hearts of those flying comrades who survived him, and the battlefield graves of his adversaries.

Showing the English tricks in the air was becoming harder than ever. Just before Richthofen returned from leave the British had demonstrated a few new tricks in planes, pilots, and maneuvers which had cost the German air service one of its greatest pilots, the reserve lieutenant, Werner Voss.

Voss was one of the leaders who carried on at the front while Richthofen was convalescing from his wounds. He met his death in a terrific air battle in which he was greatly outnumbered and in which he won the admiration of his enemies.

The British flight commander, Maj. McCudden, participated in the fight, and he and Voss emptied their machine guns into each other's planes. Here is McCudden's story of the battle:

"I had just started with my squadron on Sept. 23, at 6:30 p. m., for a second flight shortly after we had brought down an enemy biplane. We were flying in an altitude of approximately 6,000 feet. Far to the east we spotted swiftly moving tiny black spots. To the north we saw our machines—pups, Sopwiths, Spads, and Bristols—and, slightly lower, some artillery flyers.

"We were just going to attack six Albatross machines when we suddenly spotted above Poelcappelle a Sopwith machine, which was circling downward and which was followed by a shiny, bluish German plane. We gave up our original attack and resolved to help our Sop.

"The German machine, a triplane, was just below us. We dived as quickly as possible.

"The German pilot detected us and started maneuvering, not the so-called Immelmann maneuver but a new kind of horizontal bow flying. The German plane was now right in the midst of our squad.

"The German controlled and guided his machine wonderfully and even found time to aim at us. It was nearly impossible to stick to him. But suddenly my chance came.

"The German was flying toward me, slightly lower and apparently without noticing me. I pressed my machine nose down and opened fire. Immediately the head of the German plane rose and bullets passed my head and through my wings. . . .

"In the meantime, a red nosed Albatross had turned up and did his best to protect his comrade. . . . The squad of Albatrosses, which we had originally intended to attack, had to remain above us, as a squad of Spads prevented them from diving down.

"The German triplane was still in our midst, fired at constantly by our six Sopwith machines. Gradually the fight went on in lower altitudes. . . .

"For a moment—when reloading my gun—I had lost sight of him and, as I looked up again, I saw that the German was flying very low indeed, fighting with a Sop. The movements of the German plane became uncontrolled, and finally he crashed to the ground, his machine breaking to splinters. . . .

"The triplane had crashed down on our side and on the following morning we received a message informing us that Voss was the name of our victim."

The individual conqueror of Voss was 20 year old Second Lieutenant Albert Rhys-Davids, the same man who had sent Schaeffer to his death. Rhys-Davids shot down twenty-two German planes, and then went the way of his victims.

ANOTHER ace whose career ended when Richthofen was on leave was Capt. Guynemer, the conqueror of fifty-five German planes, and the idol of France.

On Sept. 11 Guynemer, in the midst of a terrific air duel, went down between the blazing lines near Poelcappelle. The Germans recovered his body and placed it in a dugout, which was later destroyed by artillery fire. The remains were never found.

Richthofen spent the first week of October in Berlin. His appearance anywhere in uniform was the signal for cheers and gathering crowds. His replies to these outbursts were boyishly clumsy.

To escape the clamor of Berlin he went by train to Schweidnitz and spent a happy week with his mother. It was the last time they ever saw each other.

He brought with him many of the heavy trophies of his fighting: broken propeller blades, hubs of undercarriage wheels, captured compasses and flying instruments.

November found the ace and squadron commander back at the front in time to participate in the battle of Cambrai, which opened on the 20th with the tank attack by the British.

Manfred's first victim after his return was Lieut. A. Griggs, a pilot of the 68th squadron.

Griggs' exact fate was unknown. His body was never found.

Capt. P. T. Townsend was No. 63 on Richthofen's list, according to a comparison of the flying uhlan's report and the English casualty records. His squadron mates saw him go down in an air combat with a large number of red nosed Albatross triplanes.

It was the flying uhlan's last victory for 1917, which he had started with a score of fifteen planes. He reflected with new pride upon his present record of sixty-three.

The last year of the war—which was to be the year of his death—dawned happily for the kaiser's deadliest ace. Richthofen felt again the thrill of victory on the eastern front, where he had taken his first lessons in the air and where during these first days in 1918 he saw the revolutionary delegates of a beaten and disorganized Russia forced to accept the peace laid down by Germany.

At Brest-Litovsk he mingled and dined with the diplomats of Germany and her allies and met many of the Russian revolutionaries, who believed they had found victory for their own cause in the defeat of their country. Some of them were women communists.

On the whole, however, diplomatic "negotiations" bored him, and, with permission from the commander in chief of the eastern front, he went by sleigh to the forest of Bieloviezh to hunt bison and red stag.

The ace lived in the former czar's hunting lodge for six days. He covered most of the forest by sleigh and succeeded in bringing down another trophy for the walls of his bedroom.

Lothar accompanied him, and with the younger Richthofen the craving to hunt and to kill seemed no less than that of his more famous brother, once he had smelled the wildness of the forest and felt himself in pursuit of game.

The two brothers returned to Berlin on Jan. 20 in high spirits.

ON the front the situation in the air was changing. Russia's collapse had not only released German armies but also German air squadrons for duty in the west, where now, if ever, the central powers would have to force a decision before the arrival of America's full strength on the fighting line.

The British had profited by the costly lesson of April, 1917. Their terrific losses in the air had caused much inquiry and public questioning.

Then the entire air service was reorganized by a fusion of the Royal Flying corps with the separate Royal Naval Air service, and this combination, called the Royal Air force, was placed under the authority of a special secretary of state whose status was equal to that of the political heads of the army and the navy departments.

To replace airplane mechanics who had been promoted to service in the air, English girls went into the grease and oil of the hangars and worked long hours in repairing the planes.

At the same time big improvements were made in the anti-aircraft artillery and ground defenses.

The effect of these attentions began to show in the hopes and smiles of English fighting pilots and also registered in the number of victories which these flyers were able to chalk up against the Germans.

At the beginning of the year the British were equipped with Sopwith Camels or S. E. 5's that could reach an altitude of 15,000 feet, and could do 117 miles an hour at that height. There were Spads and Nieuports that could better this speed. The Camel, upon improvement, developed into a type called the Dolphin. This was later succeeded by the Snipe, which was still faster.

As the fighting reached higher altitudes, the use of oxygen tanks became necessary.

The Germans were using mostly the Fokker scout and triplane. Fokker and Junker monoplanes with 220 horse power motors developed a speed of 150 miles an hour, later in the year. The Albatross and Halberstadter models were considered the best fighting planes.

In spite of the best efforts of their engineering and efficiency experts and combat leaders, German losses in the air increased throughout the spring. On March 8 and 9 forty-four German planes were shot down. On March 24 forty-five were destroyed and twenty-two driven down, as against ten British planes.

The English records claim 372 German planes destroyed and 205 driven down in March, 1918. In April—the month of Richthofen's death—172 enemy machines were destroyed and seventy-five driven down out of control.

The struggle in the air was inclining to the side of the allies. Manfred knew that the chances of death were piling up against him.

Toward the end of February and during the first days of March aerial activity increased as the opening day of the great German offensive of 1918 approached. Lothar came to the front and rejoined his brother's squadron.

On March 12 Manfred shot down his next English plane and captured its two occupants, one of whom he had wounded in the air. The prisoners were Second Lieutenant L. C. F. Clutterbuck, a pilot of the 62d Squadron, and his observer and gunner, Second Lieutenant H. J. Sparks, M. C.

The German ace never knew the names of these two prisoners, and neither Clutterbuck nor Sparks was aware that their captor was Richthofen until the recent unearthing of the flying uhlan's report, which carried the number of the fallen English plane.

Clutterbuck, who lives today in London, prepared the following account of his last fight in the air:

"It's nine years since the greatest incident in my life happened. It ended my career as a flying officer.

"Until I saw the copy of Richthofen's own report I believed that I had been brought down by one of Richthofen's celebrated circus, and had no idea that it was the baron himself whom I had tried to down and who succeeded in downing me and badly wounding my observer.

"Every detail of the scrap is as fresh in my mind as though it happened yesterday, but I can't begin telling it without paying my little tribute to Baron von Richthofen and the men who composed what was known as his circus.

"The squadron to which I belonged was equipped with the latest type of Bristol Fighters.

"The day before I was brought down, the squadron had accounted for, and had confirmed, fourteen machines of the circus, and we had lost no machines, nor had we had any casualties.

"The fatal day for me, we set out nine strong. After being over the lines for two hours at a height of 18,000 feet, we had not commenced operations, although the Germans had a decoy in the shape of a two seater hovering below us. But the air had been rapidly filling with machines for some time.

"My great friend, Lieut. G. Gibbons, was flying on my left, and suddenly I saw him go down as though to attack the large two seater. I followed him, and my observer, Lieut. Sparks, M. C., as usual, tested his gun. Curiously enough, one empty cartridge case flew into my cockpit and lodged between the tank and the joy-stick.

"My friend, in the meantime, pulled out of the dive and climbed up again, while I continued to lose height until I managed to poke the cartridge case aside. By that time my formation was some 3,000 feet above me and a long way off.

"A few minutes later the three machines that had been in our vicinity for some time attacked me.

"My observer managed to get off a few bursts before he collapsed. I decided quickly that the combat was unequal and tried to withdraw. The Bristol Fighter was excessively strong and I had often dived with the engine full on and could always leave anything behind me in a dive.

"I did so on this occasion until, glancing at my planes, I saw several of my bracing wires streaming aft. They had evidently been shot away. I pulled out of the dive at 4,000 feet and, to my astonishment, found I was much further over the lines than I had thought at first. I now kept the plane's nose down and kept up a steady 140 mile streak for home.

"Soon I discovered a machine gaining on me from above and behind. When I thought he was near enough, I turned and faced him.

"We were now approaching nearer and nearer at a terrific pace, neither giving way on direction and neither firing until we were quite close together. I believe we both opened fire simultaneously.

"My gun, after a few rounds, jammed—a No. 3 stoppage, which usually took about three minutes to rectify in the air.

"He then tried to get on my tail or in a suitable position to hit me, while I decided to ram him with my undercarriage; but always he would manage to pass a few feet under me, looking up into my face. I often wonder if he divined my intentions.

"I suppose his machine was just a few miles faster than mine, because I could not gain on him, and all the time he kept firing bursts into me. I kept kicking the rudder, to alter my direction and confuse his aim.

"This went on for a while, and I began to hope that he would run out of ammunition when, suddenly, my observer, whom I had taken for dead, got up and started firing.

"It's hard to imagine my joy. I shouted and cheered the stout fellow. Half his arm was shot away and he had been unconscious for some time and was weak from loss of blood, but he managed to crawl up to his gun and get off a burst. It was too much for him, however, for he sank back in a heap.

"My spirits dropped as quickly as they had risen, and a few moments later my adversary punctured my other petrol tank. It was pressure fed, and, in spite of my efforts to pump up the pressure by hand, the engine gradually petered out and, before I knew what I was doing, I was on the ground. I pancaked from about five feet and stopped, with my wheels in a shell hole.

"My observer and I parted eventually at Le Cateau, where he went to a hospital and I to a cell to be questioned by officers. We were generously offered a dish of likely looking horse meat and macaroni, but had it been pate de foie gras I am afraid we could not have eaten it at that moment."

Clutterbuck and Sparks have never met since their last day together in the air, although both of them live in England.

Sparks is 37 years old now. He was a soldier before the war, having purchased his discharge from the Royal Marine band in 1913 after five years' service. He reënlisted in the Black Watch in 1915, and received his commission as a lieutenant in April of 1917 in the King's Royal Rifle Corps, where he won his military cross.

RICHTHOFEN, on the following day, saw a German plane, dangerously disabled, dashing down from a frightful height. English planes hung on its flanks and tail, trying to deliver the death blow.

The ace and his comrades flew among them with a violent attack which drove them away from their intended victim. The plane continued its earthward glide, more or less out of control, and, while Manfred remained aloft and fought off pursuers, his thoughts were on the occupant of the disabled machine.

The pilot was his younger brother. Lothar's plunge from a height of 12,000 feet to earth is described in the account written by himself. It reads, in part:

"We had just arrived at the lines when we sighted a number of English planes. Each of us took one in hand.

"Dropping down, I attacked my opponent. Then, a loud crash! My machine was hit. Only too soon I found out what had happened.

"Originally I had had a triplane, but now it was only a common biplane. A disgusting feeling to lose one-third of your lifting surface as high up as 12,000 feet. I had to pull out of the fight and retreat.

"When I was still 500 feet up I suddenly noticed a high tension electric wire. It was too late to fly over it, and to duck and fly underneath it would have meant running into two wagon trains. As I did not intend to kill my own countrymen, there was nothing to do but try and make a curve. I tried, and . . ."

That smash kept Lothar in the hospital a number of weeks. It was the worst one he had during the war, which he survived with the rank of a first lieutenant and almost as many decorations as his brother. He was credited with bringing down forty British planes.

In 1919 he married the Countess Doris von Keyserling, the daughter of an old privy councillor to the kaiser. There was a daughter by the marriage, but trouble followed, and the romance of the gallant war bird ended in a separation

Three years later—on July 4, 1922—Lothar and a motion picture actress, Fern Andra, and the latter's manager, were flying from Hamburg to Berlin in an old war type plane.

Motor trouble, a forced landing, and a crash in which Lothar lost his life.

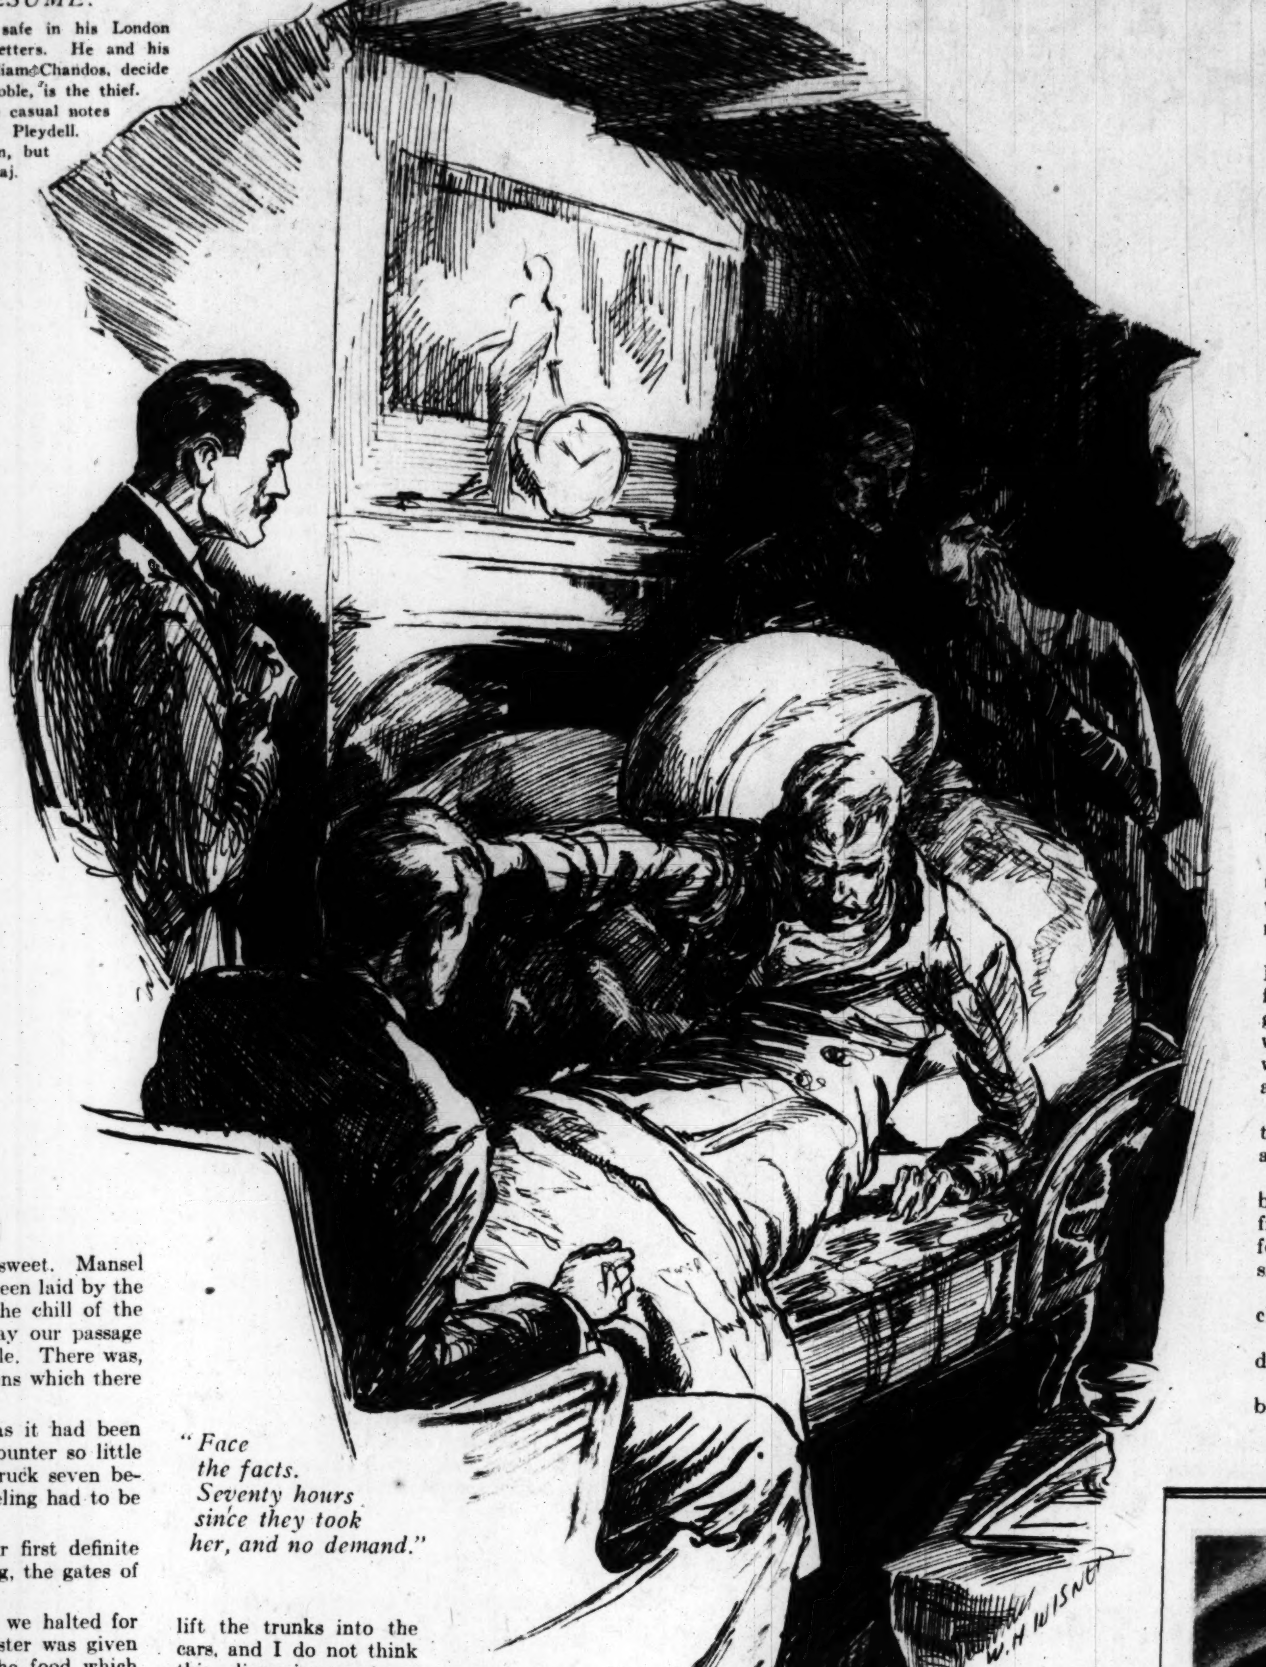
PERISHABLE GOODS

by DORNFORD YATES



"Face the facts. Seventy hours since they took her, and no demand."

THE STORY IN RESUME:

JONATHAN MANSEL finds the safe in his London house robbed of a package of letters. He and his friends, George Hanbury and William Chandos, decide that their common enemy, "Rose" Noble, is the thief. Mansel tells them the letters are mere casual notes from Adele, wife of his cousin, Capt. Pleydell. He makes no attempt to recover them, but goes to Austria for the summer with Maj. Pleydell and Capt. Pleydell and their wives. After returning to London he is in town only a day when he receives from the captain a wire announcing that Adele has disappeared. Accompanied by his two friends and three servants, Mansel crosses the channel and starts the dash to Austria by motor.

INSTALLMENT II.

We Take the Field.

THE day was coming, but so long as the night lasted we had the road to ourselves. Taking advantage of this, Mansel went like the wind, and, since all I could see was his tail-light, and this poor pointer vanished with each dip and bend of the road, it was more by luck than by cunning that I managed to cling to his heels. Indeed, the first hour of our journey imposed a continuous strain, for he drove as though the way were familiar, but I did not know it at all, and, what with fear of leaving the road if I drove too fast and of losing my guiding light if I slackened speed, I wished for the day with a fervor which I think would have opened the eyes of St. Paul himself.

Yet in a way this trial stood me in good stead, for when at last it was light, and I could see the landscape and Mansel's car scudding before me like a gull, to follow behind seemed child's play, and, though he went faster than ever, I was able without any trouble to maintain the pace which he set.

The sun rose about six into a cloudless sky, and, since rain had lately fallen, the country was fresh to look on and smelled very sweet. Mansel raised next to no dust, for this had been laid by the rain and was not yet dry, and as the chill of the dawn changed to the cool of the day our passage become every moment more agreeable. There was, however, a look of heat in the heavens which there was no mistaking.

Our road was no longer so free as it had been by night, but I was surprised to encounter so little traffic, and, indeed, the clocks had struck seven before the pace at which we were traveling had to be sensibly reduced.

At a quarter to eight we met our first definite check in the shape of a level crossing, the gates of which were closed.

To make the best of the business, we halted for a quarter of an hour, and, while Tester was given his freedom, we ate and drank of the food which Bell had brought.

Mansel was plainly pleased with the pace at which we had come, but insisted that now was the time for Hanbury to take my place.

Five minutes later I was sitting with Mansel, and we were again under way.

We had now come to roads that we had traveled before, but, though the features of the way seemed faintly familiar, I could not have taken it safely without the aid of the map nor have threaded a single town without direction. Mansel, however, drove with the utmost confidence, never hesitating where the road forked or peering at any signpost, but whipping through town after town as though it were the place of his birth.

When I remarked upon this, he said it was nothing at all and that I knew the way to Strasbourg as well as did he, but that he was using his knowledge, while I was not.

After a little, he continued thoughtfully, "Memory's a storeroom, that's all: the storeroom of things you observe. If you're observant, so much the richer your store. But you must be a good store man—able to produce the requisite, when the moment comes. Some time ago I observed the way to Strasbourg: and now I'm producing it."

We said no more at the time, and, being, I suppose, more tired than I had suspected, I fell asleep.

When I awoke it was noon, and the day was immensely hot.

Mansel was driving in the same effortless way, looking very well content with his lot and seeming to be perfectly fresh.

When he saw that I was awake, he told me that we should make Strasbourg in two hours' time. We had stopped for fuel while I slept, but that was all.

Sure enough, we came to Strasbourg at two o'clock, and at half past two we were lunching on German soil.

Then I changed places with George, who was white as a miller with dust, for the sun had done its work, and, since there was next to no wind, the cars would have had to travel a mile apart if the second was to escape the clouds which its fellow raised.

The afternoon was made dreadful by the heat and glare of the sun, which oppressed us mercilessly and made the air so sultry that our pace brought us no relief. I never found shade so grateful in all my life, nor yet so scarce, and how Mansel, who had had no respite, bore the burden of that day so lightly I never shall understand.

Twice we were checked by the gates of level crossings and once we stopped for fuel, but these delays were too brief to be refreshing, and I, for one, was thankful when we came to rest at sundown by the side of a little stream. Into this we were happy to plunge our heads and shoulders, and whilst Mansel and I ate and drank, George and the servants cleaned the windscreens and sponged down and sluiced the cars—by no means a fruitless exercise, for we were sick of the dust, and the sight of the glistening coachwork did us all good.

Night came upon us soon after eight o'clock, but a fine moon was westering, and two and a half hours later we entered Austria.

At Salzburg we drove straight to the station, where Rowley lay, stretched on our luggage, fast asleep. It took but a moment to rouse him and lift the trunks into the cars, and I do not think this digression cost us five minutes of time.

So soon as we were clear of the city, a halt was made, and Mansel called the servants to listen to what he would say.

"You all know what has happened," he said. "Mrs. Pleydell has disappeared. Everything points to abduction—by no ordinary gang. As one of the family, I should in any event have done what I could; but, with Capt. Pleydell out of action, it's up to me to take charge. Very well. Here's my first order. Discuss this business with no one. We're certainly going to friends, but we're going to enemies, too, and the latter are already in touch. I've had two letters already warning me not to proceed.

"We're going to drop Rowley at Villach, where he will go to bed. Tomorrow he will take four bedrooms and unpack all our things. And he may as well order supper, for we shall surely sleep there tomorrow night.

"The rest of us go to Poganec, and, while we are there, Carson and Bell will stay with and sleep in the cars."

Then he told Carson to drive and called for Tester, and a moment later we were moving again.

ALL of us knew the way now, so there was no thought of leading or being led, and, though I remember little—for Hanbury was driving and I slept most of the way—I know that we stopped at Villach, to find the inn shut; that the landlord looked out of the window, with an old fashioned cap on his head, and that, when he saw who it was, he began to cry to his household that at last his luck had turned, for the best guests he ever had had were come again.

We were gone, however, before he had opened the door, leaving Rowley in the midst of the luggage, with his hand to his hat.

We were now in most handsome country, very mountainous and closely wooded, with streams and pastures lying in every dale; the air was most soft and rich, and plainly suited the engines, for the cars sailed over the hills, like giants refreshed.

We swept through St. Martin, to hear the church clock strike one, and ten minutes later sighted a long, low house, lying in the lap of a meadow, with rising woods behind.

This was Poganec, and I well remember remarking how fantastic a picture it made, for the moonlight was all about it and all its windows were open and lights burning in every room.

It was, I suppose, ten minutes before Mansel came to a window upon the first floor.

"Will you two come up?" he said.

The front door was open, and Hanbury and I passed in.

Maj. Pleydell met us at the top of the stairs and brought us into a room at the back of the house.

Daphne Pleydell rose to greet us, and Capt. Pleydell, propped with pillows, called to us from the bed. Beside him sat Mansel.

As I went to take his hand:

"Jonah can drive, can't he?" he said with a smile.

Before I could answer—for I had some sort of condolence upon my tongue—he began to speak of the cars, reciting their qualities with judgment and remembering runs he had taken against the clock, and so making smooth an encounter which I had been dreading more than I care to admit.

"I've often followed Jonah," he concluded, "but I've never had to chase him when he had his whip out, and, to be perfectly honest, I hope I never shall." He laughed lightly. "And now sit down, you two—anywhere except on my leg—and Berry will bring you some beer. I think you've earned it."

I tried to reply, but the words stuck in my throat.

I could not cope with such bravery. The man was jesting; his eyes were steady and his speech was firm, but the thick dark hair I remembered was white as snow.

As Maj. Pleydell came forward with a glass in his hand:

"And now to business," he said.

"Today is Thursday. At seven on Monday morning Adèle went out for a ride. She rode in the direction of Sava, a village ten miles away. Her mare came in on her own at a quarter past eight. Every one turned out at once, but found nothing. The mare was clean and unhurt. Inquiries were made at all farms in the direction of Sava. They proved fruitless. Nobody saw Adèle on Monday morning. The day was hot, and she was wearing breeches and boots, a white silk shirt, and gloves. She had no hat on.

"Early on Tuesday morning Fitch found one of her gloves. It was lying by the side of the road almost exactly eleven miles from here, but not in the direction of Sava.

"Well, there you are. I'm afraid I've no more to say."

There was a little silence, and presently Mansel spoke:

"You've had no demand for money?"

His cousin looked away.

"None," he said quietly. "I've got the money ready; it's all I've been able to do." He stretched out a trembling hand. "There's five thousand pounds' worth of notes in that chest of drawers. They've only to come and ask. But they—they don't do that."

There was something so dark about the way he said this as took us all three by surprise; and this, I suppose, he was expecting, for he let out the ghost of a laugh.

"I know," he said. "I didn't get it at first. You know, I made quite certain that they were out for money. It never ocurred to me that Adèle had been taken for herself."

Mansel started to his feet.

"I don't believe it," he cried.

"Then why don't they ask?" said the other, with the sweat running down his face.

"They will," said Mansel.

"Face the facts," said his cousin. "Seventy hours since they took her, and no demand. Face the facts, Jonah, and, when you've had a good look at them, come back and try to tell me not to turn my face to the wall."

There was a dreadful silence, broken only by Daphne's sobs.

At last Capt. Pleydell called her and asked for some drug.

WHILE she was pleading with him, we others stole out of the room.

I was confounded by this perversity of fortune, and I dared not look at Mansel, for here, at the outset of our venture, he was faced with a choice of two evils, neither of which, it seemed, he could possibly accept.

To conceal the truth from his cousin was to withhold water from a dying man; yet how could he ever allow that he, and not her husband, had been offered the lady back? Explain it as he would, the fact must arouse misgivings in the steadiest mind; to a man in his cousin's condition it would be plain poison.

Maj. Pleydell was speaking.

"If they don't make a demand, he'll lose his mind. He hasn't slept since she went. His hair was gray on Tuesday, and yesterday it was white. If they'd only hold her to ransom, he wouldn't care. If they asked a million, he wouldn't care a damn. We might not be able to pay it, but he'd know she was safe and sound. But when the hours go by, and there's no demand——"

"Where have you looked?" said Mansel.

The other stared at him.

"Looked?" he said.

"D'you mean to say," cried Mansel, "that you've been waiting for it to come by post? Why, man alive, that's the last agency they'll use! Haven't you even looked in the box in the gate?"

The front door was open and we pelted out of the hall.

Mansel cried to Hanbury and me to bring some tools and a torch and, in spite of his limp—for he was lame of a wound he had had in the war—ran well ahead of his cousin down the drive.

It was seldom that he took some action which I could not understand; but now I was bewildered, for I knew as well as did he that the box in the gate would be as bare as my hand. Still there was no time to think, and, Hanbury being gone with the tools, I plucked a torch out of a pocket and ran in his wake.

The box was a doll's house business, cut out of the gatepost itself, with a slit for letters before and a little iron door behind.

No doubt it was meant to be used in days gone by, for a man on horseback could reach the slit from the road, but the door had not been undone for many a year, although there was nothing to show this upon the other side.

I held the torch while Mansel played with the chisel and presently forced the lock.

As he wrenched the little door open, Maj. Pleydell thrust in his hand.

When he drew out a folded paper, I could hardly believe my eyes.

The stolen goods will be returned on the receipt by the manager of the —— Bank, Zurich, of your check for five hundred thousand pounds. This sum you can raise, if you please. No time should be wasted, for the goods are perishable. August 30th.

Before my wits were in order, Maj. Pleydell was well up the drive, shouting for Daphne and crying aloud his news.

"It's come!" he bellowed. "It's come! It's been here since Monday. The demand . . ."

As we walked after him:

"Learn of me," said Mansel. "Never burn anything."

When we came to the house, he called a footman to serve us with food and drink, and himself went up to the chamber where Capt. Pleydell lay.

Ten minutes later he returned, to say that the latter was asleep.

A BRIEF council was held the next morning at a quarter to twelve, and the moment I entered the bedroom I saw with half an eye that the patient was a new man. He spoke with eagerness, and the gray look was out of his face. Daphne sat beside him, with shining eyes.

There was no argument and everything went our way.

All were agreed that the sum demanded was fantastic and that the letter should be ignored; and, when Mansel said that we should leave after lunch and should not return, Daphne began to protest, but the sick man inclined his head.

"I thought that was coming," he said. "You were ever a dark horse, Jonah, and dark horses train alone. But tell me where I can find you and send me word when you can."

"That I will do without fail."

It was then decided that the Pleydells should take no action, whatever befell, without communicating with us; that they should accept no message as coming from us, unless one of us had brought it, but should detain the messenger; and that we should recognize no one as coming from them but Maj. Pleydell or one of the servants we knew.

And, so far as I can remember, that was all.

Mansel had already ridden most of the way to Sava and had driven with Maj. Pleydell to the spot where the glove had been found; he had also seen and talked with all the servants employed about the farm; "and, since," he said, rising, "I believe them all to be honest, though painfully inobservant, this is where we come in."

Then he asked that Adèle's dressing case be sent for and packed with such things as she would be glad to have. This we were to take with us wherever we went.

Daphne left to arrange this, and we bade Capt. Pleydell good-by.

For a moment he held my hand.

"Adèle's very lucky," he said, "to have such good friends."

"O," said I, "the boot's on the other leg."

"Sleep well," said Hanbury.

Two minutes later the engines of the cars were running, and Hanbury and I were about to take our

IT'S TIME TO TURN TO Pabst-ett MORE THAN CHEESE

For added daintiness in foods formerly made with cheese

A wonderful evening of bridge — the clock hands point to eleven — serving time — and the time to turn to Pabst-ett, more than cheese.

Any way you formerly served cheese, you will find Pabst-ett most delightful. It spreads like butter for daintier sandwiches; makes smooth, creamy rarebit; never becomes lumpy or stringy with cooking; blends wonderfully in salads. And, its flavor is superb.

For more formal gatherings, when old friends drop in, you can always please with a Pabst-ett dish. Even those who formerly avoided cheese may eat this finer dairy product. It is recommended for young children. Containing all the elements of milk — the milk sugar, milk proteins, milk minerals, vitamins, valuable calcium — Pabst-ett is as digestible as milk. It has not been successfully imitated.

Order by name, Pabst-ett.

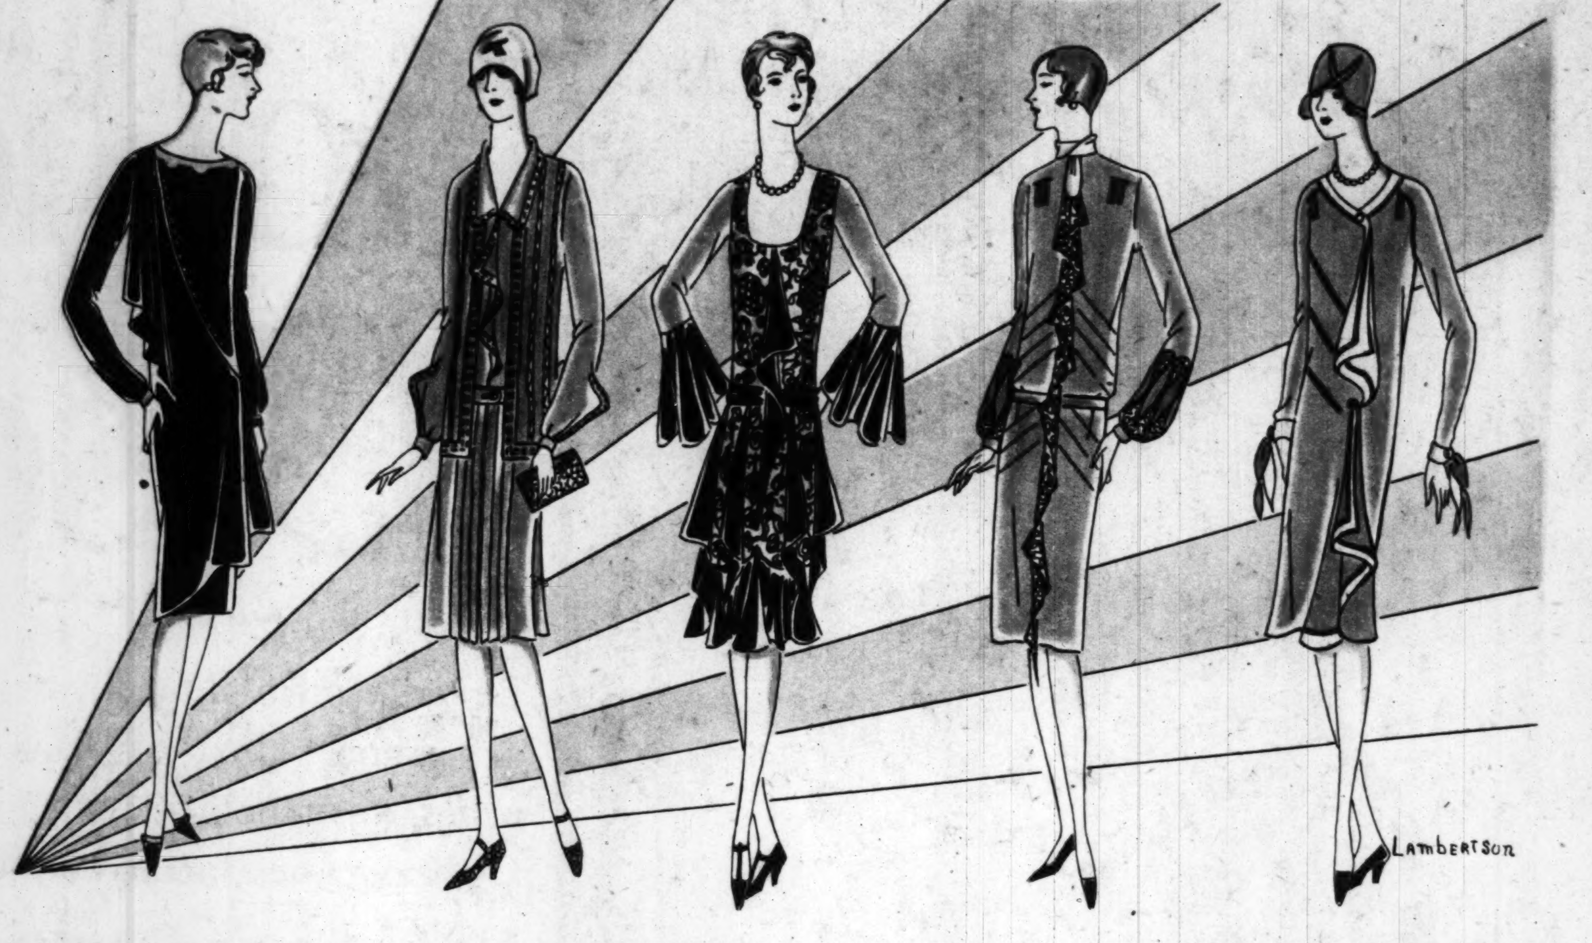
JABOTS PLAY STAR RÔLES

by Corinne Lowe



A jabot drapery that is the scenario for a bolero is indicated in the stunning model of black satin crepe at the left.

Next, a sports costume combining blue crepe de chine and blue jersey expresses other jabot theories.

Fourth, a jabot of beige lace is added to a blue crepe frock, and last in a stunning black and white model we find both skirt and bodice benefiting by jabot attentions.

NEW YORK. — (Special Correspondence.) — Long years ago the famous French poet, François Villon, sang, "Where Are the Snows of Yesteryear?" A modern American poet has paraphrased this by asking, "Where are the beaux of yesteryear?" The fashion writer, however, need take no hand in this sort of catechism. There is absolutely no use in asking, "Where are the jabots of yesteryear?" For they are here—right here on the spot.

Jabots are, in fact, one of the most important details of the early spring season. You find them on coats and on frocks. They are as likely to function on skirts as on blouses. They are as good company for the sports costume as for evening apparel. Frequently they form part of the collar, and just as frequently they become regular Sherlock Holmes of the dress world—detectives following the diagonal line of the bodice from start to finish.

One of the best examples of the jabot's importance in spring modes is offered by the Martial et Armand model at the extreme right of this page. In this black and white crêpe de chine, so typical of what the French designers are now up to, we find the jabot being a heroine all over the place. First of all, it undertakes to supply most of the snowy scenery on the frock. For not only are both corsage and skirt draperies lined with white crêpe de chine but they also are bordered by a narrow band of the same white. Incidentally, it is interesting to see how the snowy band of the irregular neckline merges into the band of the jabot.

In the second place, these two jabots indicate how harmoniously this detail may work with other trimming ideas, for a great deal of the smartness of this model depends on lines of faggoting, which, slanting across the front of the corsage, work themselves up into a fit of higher mathematics in the back. Do not overlook the back view of this frock, for it shows you how the back of many a smart model may be entirely transformed by these intricate lines, be they faggoting, seams, bands, or what not.

As to other features of the costume, there is the overshadowing fact that it is a combination of black and white. So many, many springs have we encountered this phenomenon of the black frock walking a chalk line! Yet, has familiarity bred contempt? Far from it. Still we go in our same old black and white way, and it is safe to say that nothing is smarter today for luncheon or tea than this same venerable alliance.

Although so often the jabot is of the same material as the foundation there is a marked emphasis in more formal models to construe this detail in some contrasting fabric. Thus we encounter jabots of lace, tulle, organdy, and mousseline as a feature of numerous crêpe and satin afternoon frocks. An example of this is supplied by our fourth sketch, another Martial et Armand model that owes its distinction to the long, graceful jabot of beige lace attached to a scarf collar of beige crêpe de chine, both contrasting with the deep blue crêpe de chine of the foundation.

So often the sleeve echoes the chord sounded by the jabot. Thus, in the black and white frock just described, a band of white crêpe de chine tying at the wrists takes up the note of the jabot. And in this present model the puffed sleeves corroborating that cascading frill down the front supply one of the most interesting features of the gown. Observe the finesse of that puff of lace, with its geometric appliques of beige crêpe de chine, and admit that the whimsicality of this sleeve does much to dispel any impression of severity made by the perfectly simple contour of the creation.

For it is such a simple little model, after all! Just a plain corsage blousing a bit over its inset belt of self-material above a skirt that departs from regularity only through a very slight prolongation of the lace jabot beyond the skirt hem. In fact, there are only those diagonal seams crossing the front to do something intricate in the back. But of course here, again, that jabot coöperates with its ally, the diagonal line. In this case fine tucks are the media for the latter, and you find these forming deep points in the front that are continued in the back.

In the center sketch the jabot shows you what it can do in the way of either afternoon or evening entertainment. Here is one of those frocks that fit into the requirements of either tea or dinner dance, one of those magical costumes that convey to a woman the sense that she is neither underdressed nor overdressed. For the woman who is contemplating a trip abroad this spring the advantages of this black frock cannot be overestimated. In the first place, it is black; in the second, it is easily packed; and, in the third, it will see us through all save the most formal evening occasions.

And again much of the charm of the creation must be ascribed to those jabots of black mousseline contributing their effect of fluttering grace to a foundation of black lace. One of these draperies is attached to the front of the U-shaped décolletage, whole four others, anchored to a soft girdle of the mousseline, dip below the hem of the skirt. The sleeves, too, are of the mousseline, and that great "loud speaker" of a ruffle is one of the assets of feminine grace by which this model from Agnes affiliates itself with the broad current of "more feminine" modes.

And even the sports clothes frequently score by the addition of a jabot. As indication of this fact we point to our second sketch from the left. Here is one of those jacket ensembles which still bask in the sunshine of favor, and the fact that the jacket is built on cardigan outlines is significant of the fact that many well bred sports ensembles are still doing that sort of thing.

The cardigan is made of one of the new spectacular jerseys, with a silver thread woven into bands raised slightly above its blue background. Taking the silver in serious vein, a frock of blue crêpe lighter in tone than the jacket is stitched in metal. This effect is especially noteworthy in the boyish collar of the frock and in a jabot attached to this collar. The material of the frock is crêpe de chine, and the jumper closes in front with a silver button.

Now there is a curious thing about these new jabots. They are as apt to move as the old fashioned circuit rider. Therefore, we encounter on the fitted sleeves of the jersey cardigan jabots stitched to the under side. The skirt, as will be noted, is plaited in front.

So much for the jabot situation. Now, how about some of the other trimming features that are going to make this spring utterly different from anything that has gone before? Well, first of all, there is the matter of appliqued materials. From all indications, this is going to be a season when we attach all sorts of unreasonable materials to other materials and call it a fashion day. This is what one means.

Take a simple little georgette frock accompanied, perhaps, by a coat in matching material. The new idea is to almost cover this transparent material with bias folds of some contrasting silk—say taffeta or poplin. Sometimes the silk is in monotone effect and sometimes it is subjected to some gay print, but, in any event, the result is absolutely different from anything we have heretofore seen.

Another trimming that has come up plentifully in the spring is buttons. More and more of these are used, and in a way disconcerting to the old fashioned mind, which conceives a button merely as a means of fastening. For example, one of the most stunning of early spring coats designed in Paris is trimmed with a geometric border formed of tiny buttons covered with the wool georgette of the coat, and there are many less spectacular models showing very small buttons which are made of crystal or of mother of pearl and which lend themselves to all sorts of novel effects.

PERISHABLE GOODS - By Dornford Yates

seats when Mansel called us into a parlor and shut the door.

"It is inconceivable," he said, "that Adèle was taken by chance. Her movements had been watched for some time. Let me go further. They watched her ride out on Monday and met her six miles away.

"Now, no one was seen near Poganec, with or without a car: it follows that their observation post was distant, yet close to a road, so that, once they had seen her ride out and the way she went, they could instantly move to meet her—six miles away. Very well. Now turn to the window and lift up your eyes."

WE did so, to see the breadth of a valley as fresh and green as you please, and, beyond, a press of high hills, rising up very sudden and wooded cap-à-pie. These lay, I afterward found, four miles away. High up in their midst rose a fountain that fell by leaps and rushes down to the valley below, a considerable head of water, for the trees could not hide it, and from where we stood I could see its unbroken length.

"Can you see the bridge?" said Mansel. "A fifth of the way down the fall."

"Yes," said Hanbury, and after a moment or two I made it out.

"Good," said Mansel. "Now, their observation post was somewhere about that bridge. A post in the woods would be useless, for the trees would get in the way; but that torrent commands Poganec; and a man sitting there with a glass could see any one come and go. Then again, that bridge serves a road to Sava—the only road thereabouts."

I took a step to the window, but Mansel stopped me at once.

"I hope and believe," he said, "that they're watching Poganec now. I mean, our movements must interest them no end. So don't give them food for thought by looking straight into their eyes.

"And now come and look at this map.

"Here's Poganec, and there's the bridge — due south. We're all going there at once. But Chandos and I are going to come up from the west, while Hanbury, Carson, and Bell will drive from St. Martin to Sava and come from the east. We may find; we may draw blank; we may meet our friends by the way." He turned to Hanbury. "Your way will be much the longer, so, if, when you come to the bridge, Chandos and I are not there, drive on round to St. Martin and thence to Villach. If you find any one suspicious, detain him, but not by force. If he won't be detained, follow him; drop Bell at the first crossroads, to put us wise; but, whatever you do, don't lose him, for he'll show us the way to Adèle."

With that he put up the map, and two minutes later the cars were clear of the drive and were making towards St. Martin at a leisurely speed. Not until we parted were we to let them go.

"There's a road on the left," said Mansel, "somewhere just here."

With his words the turning appeared, and, as we swung around, Hanbury flashed past our tail lamp in a pother of dust.

Our road ran into the valley and lay in full view of the bridge, and, since any one who was watching must now suspect our move, we went like lightning till we came to the foot of the hills and a pretty, white walled hamlet where four roads met.

A woman, busy at a runnel, gave us good-day.

"I'm looking for some friends," said Mansel. "Have you seen any car go by?"

"I only came in from the fields, sir, a quarter of an hour ago. But no car has passed since then."

Mansel thanked her and immediately turned to the left.

It was soon evident that we were approaching the bridge, for the noise of the fall was thunderous, and the pleasant smell of wet earth was unmistakable. Indeed, an instant later we saw the bridge not sixty paces away, and at half that distance a car in the middle of the road, with a man bent double beside it, trying to pull off a wheel.

He was so much engaged that we had stopped alongside before he knew we were there, and, when of a sudden he was aware of our presence, he gaped at us and our car as at an apparition.

Now this was not the way of a spy; and, indeed, it was easy to see that the fellow had nothing to do with those we sought. His cloth apart—for he wore a clergyman's habit—one look at his face was enough. The man was a genial simpleton, in whom there was no guile.

"You're English," he cried, twittering.

"Yes," said Mansel. "And we were to meet a man here. By that bridge. But we're late for our appointment, and I'm afraid he may have gone."

"No one was there," said the other, "ten minutes ago. And I've been here more than an hour. But he might have come since."

With that, before we could stop him, he started to run to the bridge. We overtook him half way, for, fool though he looked, it seemed prudent to be there first; but he only sought to step on to our running board and, fouling the tool chest, fell heavily into the road.

AND there you have Hannibal Rouse, clerk in holy orders. The man was futile. He was the most garrulous, seldom said anything worth saying, and laughed at everything he said; he was prodigal of energy, seldom did anything worth doing, and bungled everything he did. Yet out of the fool came wisdom, and, but for this pelting idiot, I do not believe we should ever have traced Adèle.

I helped the man to his feet, and, since, in view of his report, there was nothing to be gained by proceeding, Mansel berthed our car by the bridge and walked with us back to Rouse's machine.

Rouse may be fairly judged by the fact that he was seeking to change a wheel without first raising his car by means of a jack; and, when, perceiving that the wheel was sound, we asked him why he wished to change it, he insisted that its tire was punctured, and seemed dumfounded to find it as tight as a drum. It presently emerged that another of his tires was flat, and that he had confused the two. He was not at all abashed by these errors, but attributed them boldly to his being "no engineer."

He then told us that he was touring, and cared not where he went, but proposed to stay at Villach and prove the country round. This was ill news enough; but when, after staring upon Mansel, he presently addressed him by name, and then, in an ecstasy of triumph, went on to remember White Ladies and how he had attended some fête there before the war, I know that I groaned in spirit, and wished the man at the devil.

We had changed his wheel, in spite of his assistance, and were upon the point of leaving, when Hanbury arrived. This necessarily delayed our going and gave Rouse time to remember that he had a camera with him, with which he must photograph us all. We protested that we could not wait, but while we were still protesting the thing was done. I confess that it did not delay us, for he took his picture as we reëntered the cars, laughing the while like a maniac and promising to show us a proof.

Mansel drove very fast to where Adèle's glove had been found and set us all to seeking some mark of a tire. "For here," he said, "I am certain that she changed from one car to another, and, while she did so, contrived to drop her glove, for they would have watched her too closely to let her throw it out as she went."

In proof of this he showed us where oil had been dripping on the edge of the grass by the road, as is sometimes the way of a car which is standing still.

"The relay was waiting," said he, "half on and half off the grass, close up to the hedge. The other ran up alongside, and the transfer was made. And now we'll all work in a line, searching the ground as they do on a dairy farm."

We did so for more than hour, but found nothing.

Then we took to the cars and drove very slowly west, until by evening we had come to a great hog's back some fifty miles from the spot where the glove had lain. Then Mansel led us to Villach as fast as he could.

There, more to my disgust than surprise, we found that Rouse was to lodge in the very same inn. I will not dwell upon his follies, the tale of which was enough to make the angels weep, but merely record that for the next three days he continually invited violence, pressing his company upon us whenever we were at hand and openly trying to follow us when we went forth.

This we did every morning at break of day, as best we could to search the country toward the west, for to that quarter, we made sure, Adèle had been carried off. Mansel, who alone could speak German, visited the villages in turn, stopping at wayside inns and engaging in conversation men and women whose business kept them in sight of the road. George or Carson or I went always with him. The others repaired to the hog's back, from which four men with glasses could command a very great view; if ever a car was sighted it was carefully watched, and two would leave in pursuit so soon as the line it was taking could be fairly presumed. But questionings and scrutinies alike bore us no fruit, for Mansel learned nothing of value, and the occupants of the cars, which were few, gave us no cause to doubt their honesty. Indeed, at the end of three days we seemed to be no nearer Adèle than when we left Cleveland Row. In that time, however, we received a savage monition that, though we had no idea where "Rose" Noble was, he had his hand upon us and could, so to speak, twist our tail whenever he pleased.

TEMPTING MENUS FOR THE WEEK

By Jane Eddington

Some Real Specialties

AN ancient rhymester has said that some things dressed up seem very grand, though at the best but second hand; and old as Adam some appear, though newly dressed from year to year. The new dress is sometimes no more than a new button, yet the whole thing is announced as new. It is a great trick with popular cooks to announce as new some ancient thing, taking advantage of the popular demand for something different and novel.

Yet almost any country will help us to novelties in sweet things, but will we do the work required to make the more or less timeless things? Mostly not, but many people will buy if they are told what.

One of the most unique products of the pastry shops formerly, and something that may yet be found rarely, was the German tree cake or baumkuchen. A large tree cake might be several feet high and have the pagodalike shape of a tree laden with snow, but when you looked for the trunk of the tree you found a hole. The reason for this was that it was baked on a spot or cylinder, whence the French have called it "the cake of the spit." In turning the spit bulges at regular intervals are made on the cylinder to give it the shape of a tree (if one's imagination is good).

In Germany this cake used to have much the same taste as our old fashioned marble cakes, and it was finely striated. It was iced, and because it kept well it was cut up and sold in boxes. Once it was baked before an open hardwood fire, but a modern German cook book says it is simpler and more comfortable to bake it before gas. You can see gas spits here and there in our midst, but not often active.

In France the wilderness of tiny cakes, or "petit fours," is a great institution. When we can get the tiny tins, and will patiently care for them, we can produce novel specialties at small expense. The outfits for dolls' houses contain almost identically the same tins as are used for some of these. And the scallop shell for the French madeleines is quite easily procurable among the small cooking molds of sorts.

Among the larger French sweets the Gateau St. Honoré is a dessert structure of note. A rim of tiny cream puff balls is glazed to the edge of a plaque of cooked pastry to make this, and within the ring there may be both cooked and whipped cream, the latter piped to match in size the puff balls, and perhaps peaked a bit.

The French use the cream puff dough for many things, from tiny pea sized pieces for soups ("profiterolles") to the "religieuse," which is partly a sort of cream puff like a little tower or turelle. It, too, is a structure.

Another Case for—

Bayer Aspirin! The universal antidote for all sorts of aches and pains! Millions who used to have headaches, ward them off with one tablet of Bayer Aspirin. Or bring a headache that has reached its height, to a sudden stop.

Even those bone-deep aches from neuralgia are quickly dispelled the same way. Colds arrested in an hour. Broken-up at any stage—quicker than cough and cold mixtures start to work.

Many women depend on Bayer Aspirin every month in the year, and are happier and healthier for its aid. A tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin has taught many a woman that systematic suffering was not "her natural lot."

The action of Bayer Aspirin is so quick and so complete, people used to think it must affect the heart. But it doesn't affect even the stomach! Doctors give it to children. And tell you to take it freely, whenever you feel pain—or feel pain coming on. With so marvelous and harmless a preventive, it is folly to suffer pain. But it is worse than folly to trust to any imitation. Bayer should be on the box, and on every tablet, or it isn't genuine Aspirin.

Bayer Tablets are Genuine Aspirin. Get Bayer—prescribed by physicians for 28 years. Every drugstore has the genuine product, with which are always enclosed the complete, proven directions for use. Bayer on every tablet, on the bottle, or this familiar pocket box.

Coats Show the Whims of the Feminine Mind

They're Long or Short, Full or Scant, Embroidered or Plain, According to the Desire Of the Wearer.

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—A smart coat is not only the first principle, but the first principal of fashion mastery. We are inside of our coats so much of the time that we cannot get outside of their sphere of effect on our general chic. The only women who don't have to think of coats for spring are those who are forcibly detained within steam heated structures twenty-four hours a day and those who inhabit the regions of equatorial Africa. They are unfortunate, because coats this spring are of such infinite variety and such irresistible charm that no woman wants to forego the pleasure of wearing them. While political Paris is concerning itself with votes for women, smart Paris is occupying itself with the broader interest of all kinds of coats for every sort of woman.

The coat is like every other unit in styles, this season, in that its most important characteristic is individuality. There is no one standard coat line, but coat silhouettes vary just as frock silhouettes do, according to the fancy, taste and creative talent of the fifty Paris couturiers who make Paris fashions. There are long coats and short coats. There are medium length coats and coats that are mere coatees (in the classical English vocabulary). There are coats that show an inch of the hemline and coats that come below it.

As for lines, there are coats that flare from the shoulders and coats that flare from the waist line. There are coats that are straight and narrow, and coats that are bulky from shoulders to hips. There are coats with big sleeves and coats with sleeves that sheath the arms tightly. Libre is the word. You put your money on your favorite line, and fashion approves. If you like embroidery on your coat, you choose an embroidered garment. And so on through the whole subject and its branches. There is no one supreme coat commandment issued by Paris.

It may, and I believe it will, happen that many women this spring will wear one type of coat, but for those who crave something different and more personal in the way of a wrap or wraps, it is to be remembered that liberty of selection is no hinderance of cachet.

A type of coat I feel certain a great many will prefer, although this is not the coat of the season, but only one of them, is the simple straight model, not trimmed with fur. This kind of coat is created in many versions by great Paris houses, and it is distinguished invariably by extremely simple, but highly effective trimming consisting of bands, lines of stitching, tucks or geometric encrustations of self-material.

The greatest charm of this type of wrap is the fact that its lines, while straight, are not narrow, but they flow in an easy stream line silhouette, made individual by the trimming which constitutes inter-lines to increase the gracefulness of the coat. Such coats are smart and they have the great attraction of being extremely practical, because they may serve with many different kinds of frocks and for many occasions. They are not luxurious in appearance, because of the absence of fur, but they are, when they are well made, distinctive, which is a more significant and more to be desired quality.

Our first sketch illustrates one of these coats that may serve as a standard of the whole class. This model is from Germaine Lecomte and it is made of a new woolen material which has a silky surface. The color is a new red that is variously called English red, lion red, and Japanese red, an extremely vivid tone not unlike vermilion. This is one of the new shades shown by Paris for coats, while other very smart neutral tones for this kind of coat would be black, navy blue, beige and gray.

The raglan sleeves are characteristic of many coats, this spring, and the small, flat collar is another detail that is used by many Paris houses for such coats. The trimming of this model is very narrow bands that make a deep pointed yoke effect in front and back and that create the diagonal lines that move downward from the closing in front to rounded curves in the back. Bands also indicate cuffs on the sleeves. This coat may be wrapped around or it may be worn open, presenting an equally smart silhouette either way.

Our second model shows the extremely short coat, actually no more than a jacquette, which will probably repeat its tremendous success of last season as a late spring wrap. When worn, this coat is usually lighter in color than the frock it accompanies. In this case Germaine Lecomte has made the wrap of beige tusli-kasha, Rodier's fabric which looks like both tussor and kasha and which is made of silk and wool. Narrow pipings of black outline the seams and cuffs.

The waist of the frock is also made of tusli-kasha in beige and it is the new surpliced waist that Paris adores, the surplice crossing being cutaway in effect, and the lines of the silhouette slightly moulded. Tiny tucks cover the body of this blouse, while black edged bands outline the closing and neckline, the band on the left side of the neckline terminating in a small plaited and black piped jabot that passes beneath the band of the surplice.

The skirt of this model has the smart circular godets at front and back from below the hipline, which Paris prefers to plaits. This skirt of black rep has inset motifs of self-material at the top of the godets.

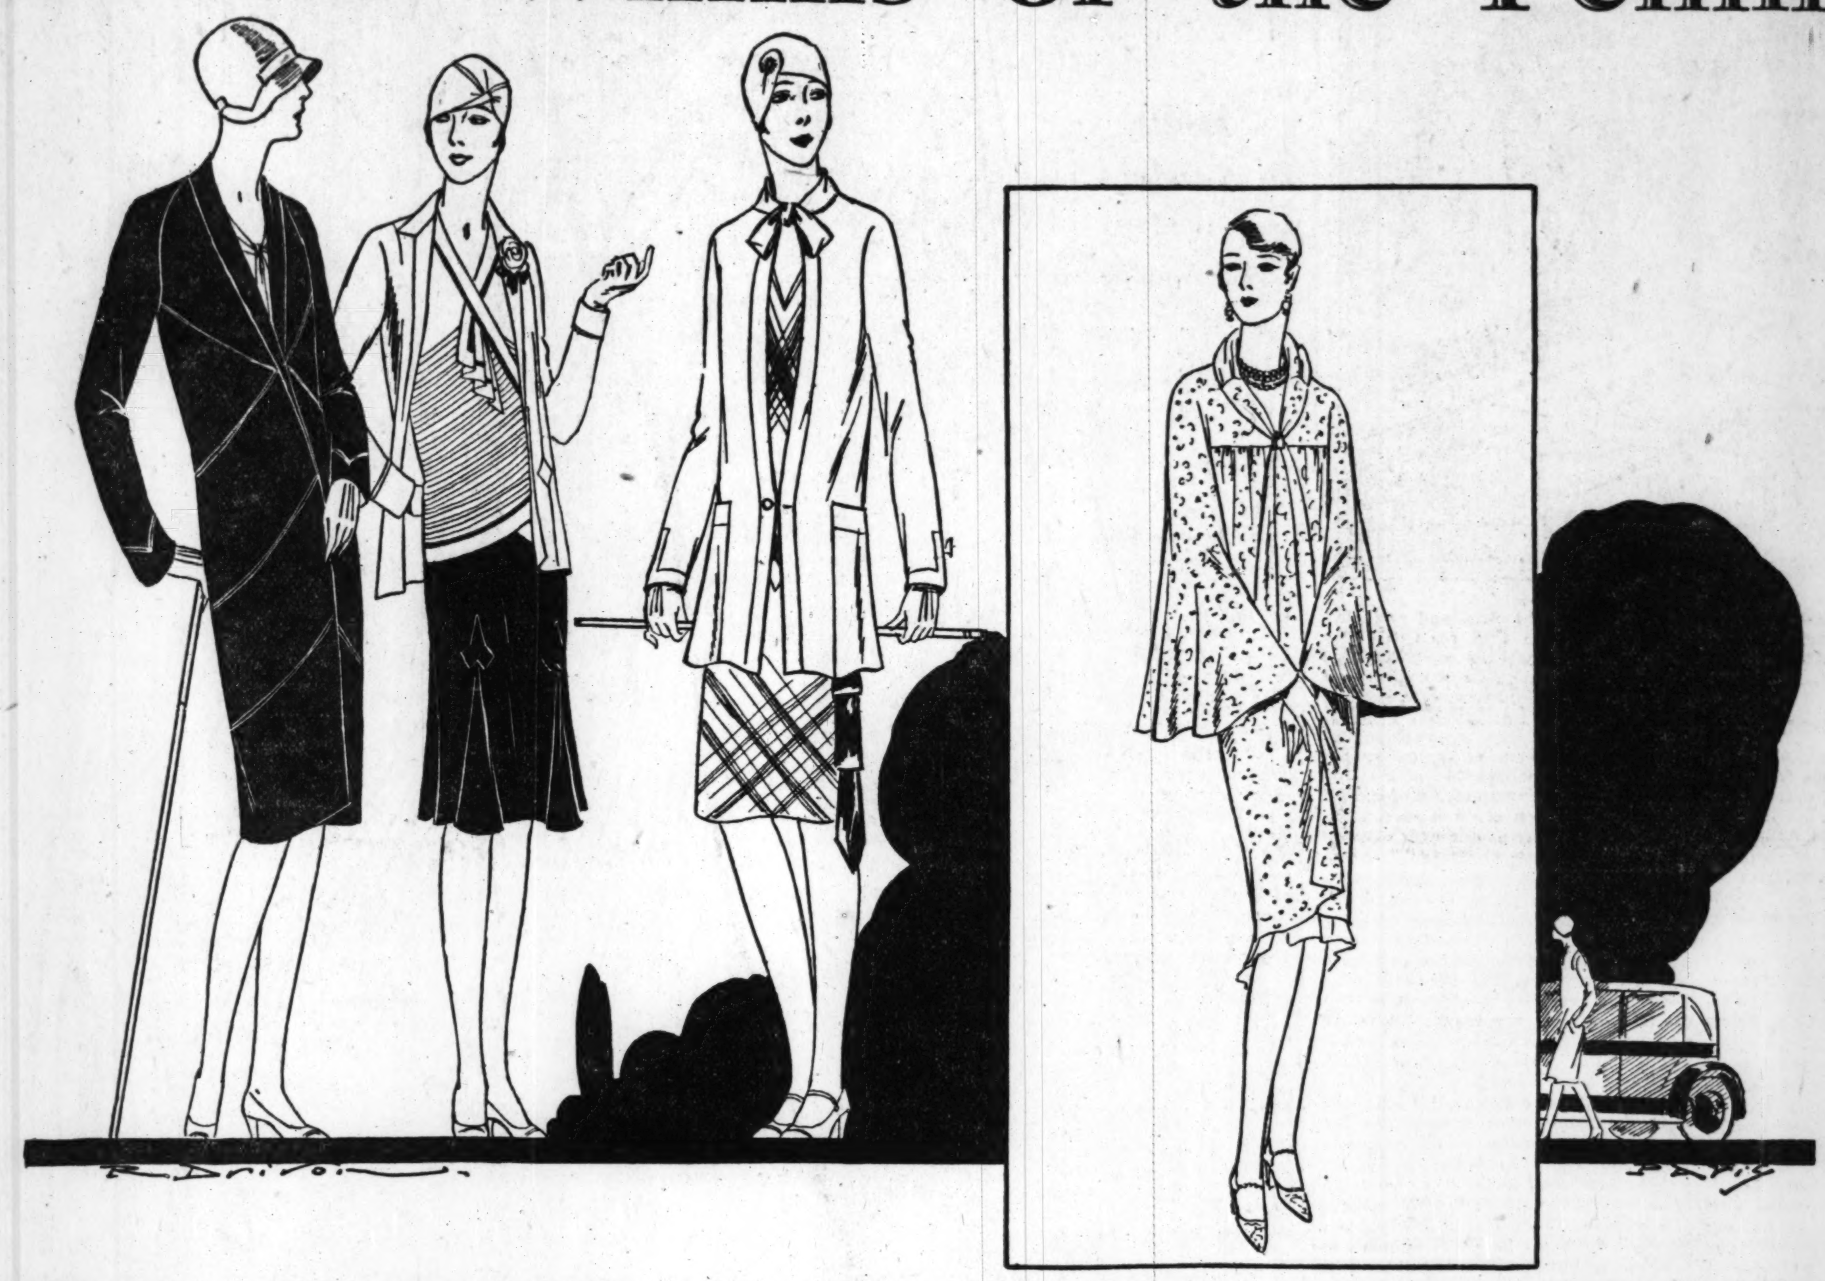
Our third model shows one of the new three-quarters coats which Paris favors for spring wear. This model is from Champcommunal and the coat is made of navy blue woolen. It has huge patch pockets at the sides, these pockets emphasizing the slight flare of the coat. The small scarf which acts as a collar is much worn here, and it varies in size from the type illustrated to very wide scarfs which tie in a bow under the chin, the ends falling to the hemline.

The coat does not quite meet in front, showing a bit of the navy blue and white frock beneath. This material is both finely checked and plaided—a new type of printed motif for spring. A long sash of navy blue hangs below the hemline on the left side.

One of the most favored of spring wraps is the cape, and the cape coat, and when this garment is made of printed material it gains an added chic, according to Paris. This Germain Lecomte cape is made of navy blue taffeta with a pattern of very small flowers. The scarf collar of this wrap is knotted at the base of the deep yoke and the ends hang to the waistline.

The circular capes at the sides extend to the hips and the inner coat part of the wrap is straight in line. This is gathered on to the deep shoulder yoke with flat shirring.

Capes favored by Paris come also in all lengths and vary from flaring capes to the straight types with fitted shoulder lines.



The straight line coat is a short cut to chic this spring. This model of lion red woolen, shown at the extreme left, is trimmed with narrow self-material bands. The small, flat collar and raglan sleeves are smart details.

Next, this very short coat of beige tusli-kasha worn with a black rep skirt and surpliced blouse of beige represents one of the favorite wraps for sports and town wear this spring.

Third, a navy blue coat has its message of style, which is the three-quarters length, the big patch pockets, the flaring side-lines and the tied scarf collar. It is worn over a frock of printed crepe de chine, both checks and plaids making the pattern.

Last, the cape and the cape coat will flourish exceedingly in smart circles, this season. This cape coat of navy blue printed taffeta shows the newest of materials combined with one of the smartest cuts.

FINANCIAL TEAM PLAY

By Doris Blake

Reg. U S Pat. Off

Co-operation and a Mutual Understanding of Their Joint Income Are Essentials to Those Who Want a Smooth Running Marriage

A CERTAIN husband recently called his wife into the small workroom the house provided for his sole use. He closed the door quietly, asked his Emma to be seated. He wanted to talk money to her. After fifteen years of married life, he told her, all the savings he had managed to accumulate were somewhere in the neighborhood of five thousand dollars. An investment opportunity which he had to turn down that day because the amount required was double the sum, suddenly awakened him to the need of taking his wife into his confidence.

This husband, be it understood, had worked up from an income of $55 a week at the time of his marriage to close to $300 a week. He was an indulgent father and, paradoxically, niggardly with his wife. She had accounts. The bills for the children's clothes, schooling, and household expenses were met with occasional outbursts, but not frequently.

Now he wanted his wife to help him. They went over expenses for the last year together. She listened patiently, sympathetically. But when she got through, with that prerogative of her sex, the last word was forthcoming. She said:

"If you had taken me into your confidence ten years ago you would have had the money to go into that proposition. I've forgotten the value of money. I have bought things we would have gone without. Every woman does who operates her expenses on charge accounts. You have complained a little, but you never told me what you were earning since you got the promotion to $75 a week. I've never had an allowance of my own. I haven't any great complaint to make, but I feel we would both have been better off had you let me be a working partner, instead of the silent one."

Team Play Is Vital.

It's but another illustration of the value of team play in family financing.

If young couples starting out would adopt team play as their financial working policy there would be fewer domestic tragedies. Money may not be the root of all domestic evils, but it is the root of a great many of them.

If a husband starts out thinking a wife incapable of managing money a situation arises immediately that may in time kill her affection for him and certainly does kill her enthusiasm to be a partner to the sacrifices she would recognize as necessary were the necessary faith given her.

First, young people must recognize that it takes money to make a home go. And what's more important to the young weds—it takes sacrifices, as well, to make it go. There will be going without exacted on both sides of the house. Unless he is married to a tried and proved moron in money matters, it is not the husband's prerogative to hold the purse strings.

Women are no longer in the servile class as wives. They are not dependent on men for maintenance. Where the spirit of justice does not enter in the handling of the family purse there is an easy exit for the woman. She can go out to work—and she frequently avails herself of the privilege for no other reason than the lack of coöperation offered her in the handling of the family funds.

Meet the Subject Early.

There are in most marriages difficulties outside of the money one that have to be faced and worked out. If to these are added intolerable money conditions, the temperamental difficulties are increased. The subject of the family pocketbook, in fact, ought to be threshed out before marriage. And it should be threshed out on the basis of team play and nothing but.

It's all in the way a young couple begin. Money readjustments later are invariably made with quarrels, misunderstandings, and pain, if accomplished at all.

If the girl has worked before marriage and is willing to give up her job to devote her time entirely to her home, she is going to find the financing of it a bit difficult at first. The average working girl is able to satisfy her desire for clothes and small luxuries without an interminable wait. She has developed the habit of getting pretty much what she wants when she wants it. Married to a young man on a fair salary, there will be self-denial to be practiced. The way to make her understand the necessity of restraint is to let her be a financial partner. If she is selfish and extravagant and unwilling to take her share of the burden of self-denial, then she has to be dealt with differently. But my plea, today, is for the wife who is willing but whose husband is incumbered with the archaic belief that a man knows more about handling the money than a woman.

Sane Program Urged.

A sane program must be adopted in the new household in regard to money matters. And though it may seem incongruous for the small wage earner to budget the expenses, the budget is the fairest measure of showing husband and wife exactly where the money is going. The budget teaches a certain amount of responsibility about money that husband and wife do not get otherwise. It teaches each to know that desires cannot be satisfied beyond the actual earning power. It teaches them to look ahead and plan for the extras. But, most of all, it gives concrete understanding of what it means to carry on a household.

In their book, "Wholesome Marriage" [Houghton, Mifflin Co.] Ernest R. Groves and Gladys Hoagland Groves, say of the budget:

"The scheme leads every member of the household to look ahead and plan for his needs so that each will not want at the same time a winter coat or some other expensive purchase. The wife has some realization of the large expenditures the husband has to meet. He also has a clearer appreciation of his wife's problems in trying to administer the household economics. The children, particularly, profit from a discussion which gives them a preparation few young people ever acquire for their own homekeeping."

It is no wonder that family dissension is caused by finances in homes where husbands and wives spend without each other's knowledge, the authors think. When the man has to pay an insurance bill his wife may have been running heavily into debt for new hats or some luxury for which she could have waited a little longer—and might have if she had understood his predicament.

There is little occasion for the common squabbling over finances, in the authors' experiences, when a family uses team play in spending its income. It's the fact that coöperation replaces worry that makes the budget the helpful thing it is. "Money, instead of being the cause of division, is made to yield sympathy and unselfishness," are the words of these authorities on wholesome marriages.

Trust Is Appreciated.

It is difficult for the independent wage earner to accept a sister's submission to a high handed controlling of the family finances by the latter's husband. But there are wives, and a surprising number of them, even in this advanced day who have to ask for money and receive humiliatingly small handouts for the asking. In other ways the man may be generous enough, but nothing quite inspires a wife to devotion and sacrifice when it is needed so much as trust in her in money matters.

There may be an occasional woman who does not know the value of money and never will learn it. So are there irresponsible men, and our hope is that nature prevents them from ever being drawn together into matrimony. But no woman ever learned the value of money unless it was entrusted her. A man owes his family the responsibility of making his wife a money equal in the event of his passing on and leaving her to take up the burden.

The value of savings and life insurance is talked much from the standpoint of economics. As promoters of domestic harmony they need to be emphasized more. Mr. and Mrs. Groves, in their helpful and wholesome work on marriage, say: "In no way is good sense and real affection of a newly wedded couple more tested than with a reference to saving for the future. The habit of making provisions for future needs and security must be built up early or most families will never learn to save. On the other hand, the desire for thrift must not be allowed to destroy present comforts or pleasures. The golden mean is nowhere more in demand than in the field of family finances."

A young husband should not overload himself with insurance in his eagerness to protect his wife, our authorities advise. If he has not one already, he should start a reasonable insurance and increase the amount of it as the family's income increases.

Expensive Gifts Are Significant.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a young man 25 years old for seven months. Three months after I started to go with him I accepted a diamond ring and for Christmas I received a wrist watch. I'm not in love with him and doubt if I'll ever marry him. I'm interested in another young man whom I went with for about six months. Shall I keep the ring or return it? FRIEND."

One doesn't accept such expensive gifts from a mere friend, and even though there was no significance attached to the acceptance of the ring, you should tell him you're interested in some one else and return the gifts.

Break Chest Colds with Red Peppers

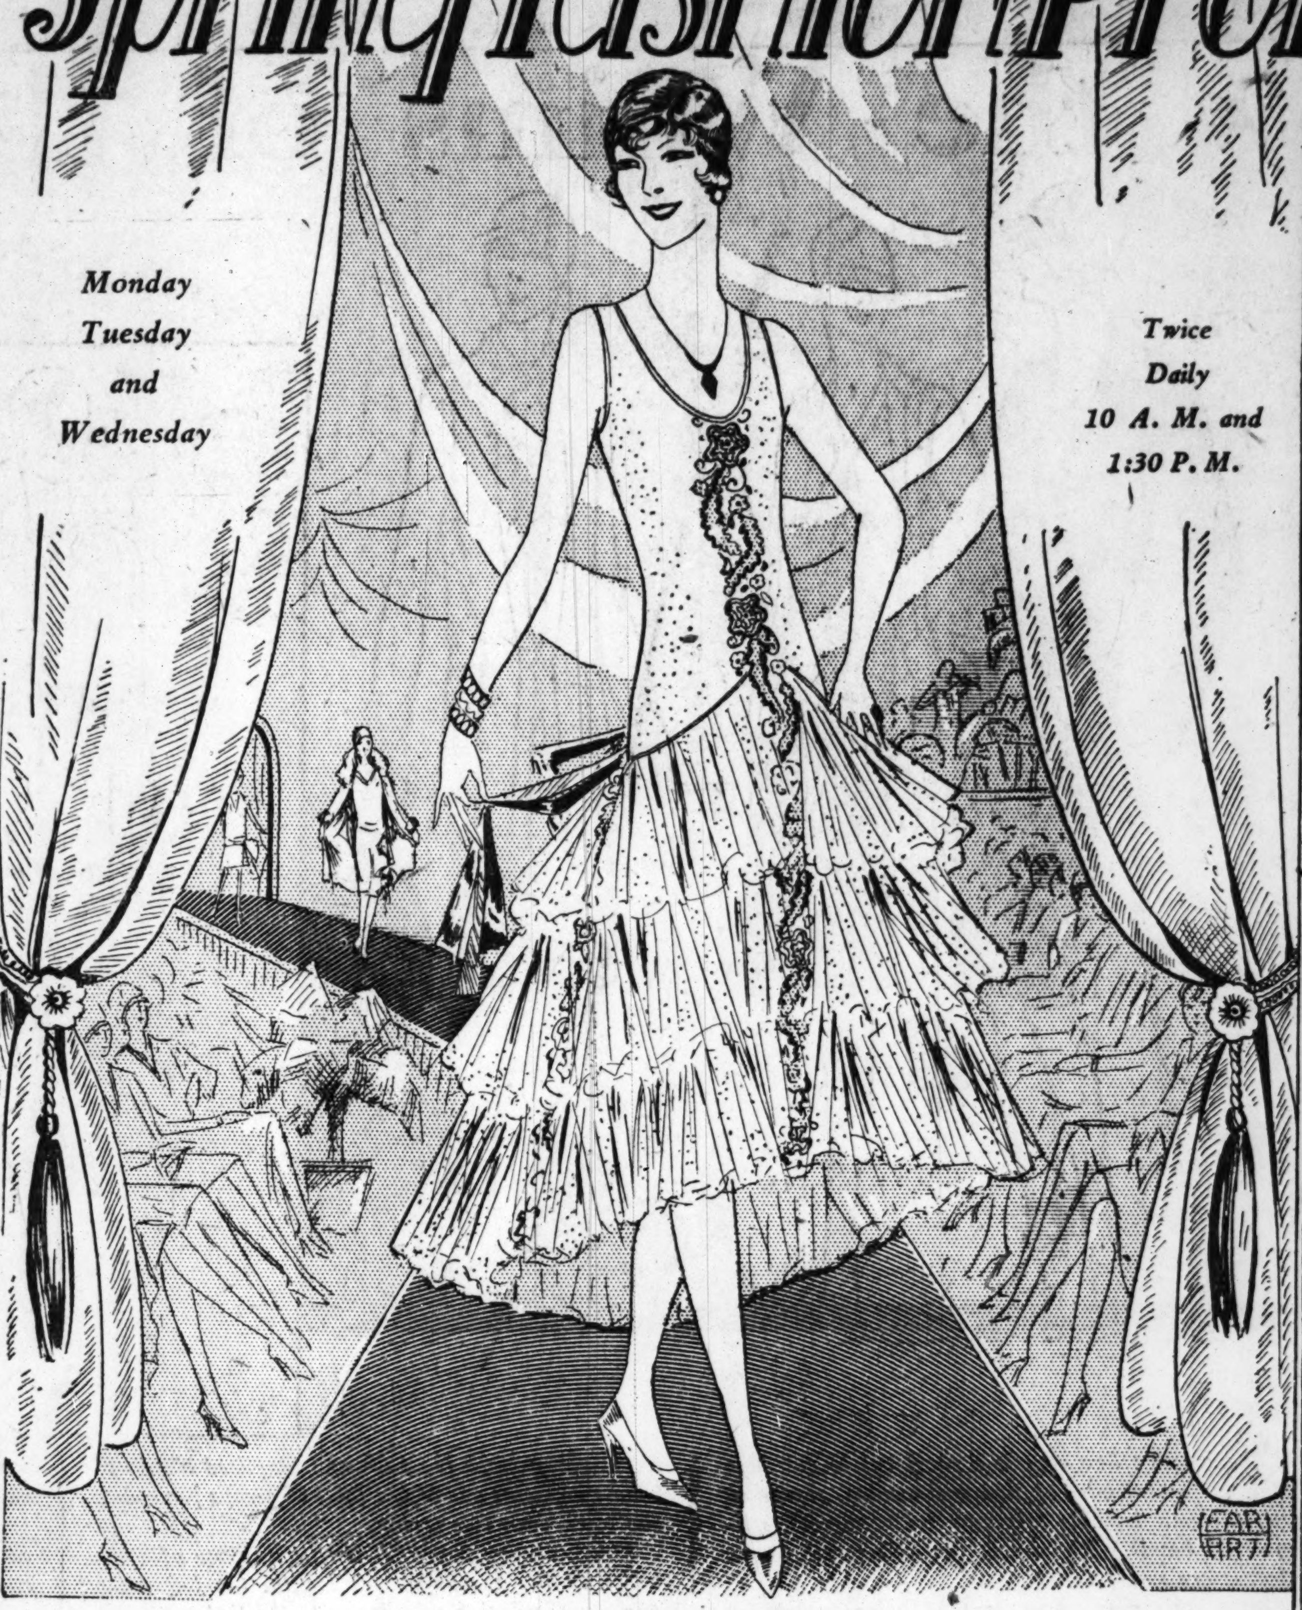
Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints, relief comes at once.

The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering from a cold, rheumatism, backache, stiff neck or sore muscles, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known. Always say "Rowles."

Spring Fashion Promenade



Monday Tuesday and Wednesday

Twice Daily 10 A. M. and 1:30 P. M.

Sketched from our own display

Our Spring fashion revue

Portraying with living models spring's newest frocks for sports, street and evening wear.

The event is a demonstration of the remarkable scope of our ready-to-wear section—giving the women of Chicago opportunity of seeing new phases of modes which appeal to the imagination and the "dress up" impulse. Fullness, back drapings, fitted hip yokes, swinging capes and silhouettes of irregular outlines.

Music by Meincken's Orchestra

Printed chiffon for afternoon wear plays an important role with longer skirts and uneven hems.

Ensembles will be one of the predominating modes for the coming season and are featured in both silks and soft woolen.

The Easter parade will see the all black coat with just a wee bit of monkey fur, coats with scalloped bolero, the capelet coat in Leda cloth, also new flared coats of Kasha and clever sports coats of tweed.

Our dept. of accounts is happy to extend the courtesy of charge accounts to responsible persons.

A FRIEND IN NEED
by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friends in deed and friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

Asks for Fur Trimming.

"I am in need of some fur to trim an old coat I am trying to fix over. I can't afford to buy it and I wonder if one of your readers would have some to give me. MRS. F. F."

The pieces of fur you no longer have any use for would provide the trimming this correspondent needs to remodel her coat. May she not have it?

Skates Would Make Her Happy.

"I am a girl of 14 and am anxious to get a pair of roller skates so I can go skating with my little girl friends. They all have skates but me, and my mamma cannot afford to buy me any because she only works half days. Thank you, Sally. M. L."

Surely this is one of the signs that mild and balmy days are not so far distant! Can you provide the skates this little girl is so anxious to have?

Little Family Needs Clothes.

"I am hoping to solicit your aid in getting clothing for four children who are spending their first winter in Chicago, having come from the flooded district of Louisiana, and who are entirely unused to a cold climate. They lost everything in the flood; the father has not had steady work, and besides the four children there is a baby 3 months old. The boys are 13, 12 and 10; the girl is 7. They are particularly in need of heavy coats and anything for the baby. P. B."

Accustomed to the warmth and sun light of a southern home, this family must be suffering a great deal of discomfort without sufficient clothing to withstand the ravages of a northern winter. The things your children have outgrown and discarded would provide the warmth they need.

Gas Lamp to Give.

"I have a gas lamp we no longer use and I would like to dispose of it. You may have it for any of your readers who can use it. R. B."

Those of you who still use gas for lighting purposes will find this both a decorative and useful ornament. Write me if you'd like to have it.

A Generous Offer.

"I have an accordion I no longer want and I would like to donate it to some invalid. Do you know one who would care to have it? C. K."

Here's a generous offer, indeed, which will probably mean the fulfillment of a life long ambition for someone. Write me if you are interested in securing this instrument; do not telephone.

China Cabinet Needed.

"Could you secure a china cabinet for me through your column? I need one badly, for I have no place to keep my dishes, and I can't afford to buy it. "MRS. V. H."

The cabinet growing dusty in your storeroom could be renovated with a little varnish, I know, and would be both a decorative and useful addition to this reader's home.

My Most Embarrassing Moment

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moment, The Tribune, Chicago. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

Plenty of Cordiality.

I have a habit of attending different churches on Sunday. On one particular Sunday I visited a church on the north side. After the services I met the minister at the door. He noticed I was a stranger and said he would like to call at my home. My wife being of a different religious belief, I did not care to have him come to our house.

When he asked me for my name I gave him a fictitious one. I went back into the church to get a book which I had forgotten. One of the elders stepped forward and asked me my name. I gave him my correct one, and he insisted on introducing me to the minister. Before I had time to tell I had met the minister he reintroduced me, only giving my correct name.

The minister was surprised for an instant, but immediately regained his composure and chatted with me a few moments. However, he never called at my home. D. M. H.

One Week Early.

Three weeks before the event I gave a young friend of mine money for a ticket to hear Fritz Kreisler. We knew he was coming to Chicago, but paid no attention to the date. On the Sunday we thought was the day, we met and rode downtown together [never looking at our tickets]. We handed them to the man at the entrance door, and he remarked, "You are just a week early."

Everyone about us smiled, and we hurried away, and not until after we were outside did we have a good laugh.

The next week we made our second trip and were very happy when we saw another man taking the tickets, and believe me, hereafter we shall always look at the date. M. A. E.

Mothers:

Next to the natural laxative from a mother's breast, a plain, old-fashioned preparation is always best for keeping baby's little digestive tract clean and sweet. When your little one doesn't eat, or can't sleep, give him a few drops of plain Castoria. It is purely vegetable, you know. Any doctor will tell you that it is utterly harmless to the youngest infant. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. Yet its gentle influence is soon felt all through the tiny system. Not even castor oil can compete with Castoria and how much better it is to use this milder means of regulating a baby! Never give baby paregoric or similar opiates, because, a few drops of Castoria are just as soothing, and no harm is done. That's the beauty of using pure Castoria; you can give it just as often as you discover any sign of colic, constipation, or diarrhea—or those times when you don't know just what it is that has caused an upset. Only get the genuine Castoria—bearing Fletcher's signature. It isn't expensive, and with every bottle comes the book, "Care and Feeding of Babies"—worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

How to Make Pusher of Tractor Plane

Many Stunts Can Be Performed with the Model.

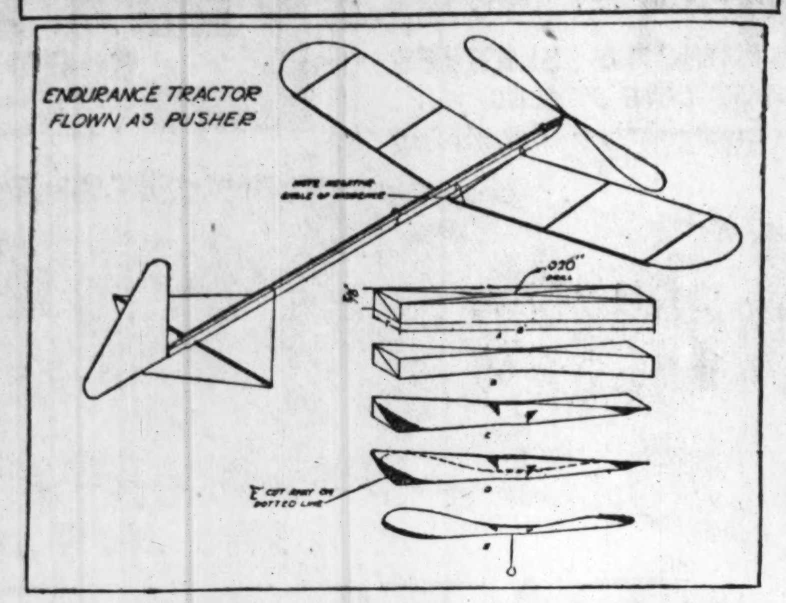
BY MERRILL HAMBURG.

[Secretary, Airplane Model League of America.]

This is the sixth article on model plane construction. Next week the construction of the famous outdoor twin pusher, the ship that holds the world's record of 10 minutes and 14 seconds, will be described.

Boys who build these planes will be eligible for a tournament to be held in May, at which the Chicago champions will be selected to represent Chicago in the national contests to be held at Detroit on June 29 and 30 under direction of the National Aeronautical association.

TRACTOR FLOWN AS PUSHER



The indoor endurance tractor, with very few changes, will fly as a pusher. Build a pusher propeller for it, as shown above, and fly the tractor, tail surface to the front.

THOSE who built the indoor tractor airplane model described in THE TRIBUNE last week, according to direction, have a plane that flies smoothly and well. Possibly it has been able to fly two minutes or more. If so, all sorts of interesting stunts can be performed with the tractor. This article tells what to do and how. But if the tractor follows a path resembling an ocean wave or a series of connected Zs, it should be improved until it behaves. Profit by experience and build another.

There's something to be said for both plans. In rebuilding the tractor find out what was wrong with it in the first place. Maybe the motor stick was too heavy, maybe the wing spars weren't well balanced, maybe the propeller was too thick or badly curved, or maybe the fin was set crooked. Any deviation from the standard will affect the flight of the tractor, and probably, with a little extra work, it can be converted into a first rate ship.

Care Does the Trick.

In rebuilding the ship or constructing a new one, get the parts down to size! Remember that the motor stick for the tractor is 15 inches long, ⅛ inch wide, and ¼ inch deep. It can be tapered down at each end and it can be sandpapered to still smaller dimensions, but those given are best for beginners. Remember that the wing spars are 16 inches long, 3-32 inch wide and 1-16 inch thick. Remember that the blades of the propeller should be no more than 1-32 inch thick in the center and no more than 1-64 inch thick at the tips.

Above all, remember that care does the trick. A rough, uneven motor stick; a loosely constructed, flimsy wing; a crooked fin; a wavy elevator surface—such things don't go toward making a model that will break records.

The tractor should rise slowly in large circles until it reaches a height of 50 feet or more, and it will then come down slowly to a perfect landing. Here are the things that can be done with a tractor like that:

It can be turned into a pusher that should fly from 60 to 75 seconds.

It can be tried out for altitude as well as duration.

Its speed can be determined and the distance it will travel.

It can be made to loop the loop, turn in short circles or fly straight, or a landing gear can be built so it can rise from the ground.

Turning the tractor into a pusher isn't hard at all. Just move the wing toward the propeller, wind the propeller the other way, and launch the pusher with the tail to the front!

Give 300 Turns.

It may not fly perfectly the first time. If it climbs too rapidly, set the wing back toward the propeller; if it climbs too slowly, set it forward. Give the propeller at least 300 turns—to the left as you look toward the tail, remember—and the transformed indoor tractor will give the indoor pusher a contest!

Of course, the propeller on the tractor can't be expected to be as efficient as a pusher propeller. Its blades are scooped out a little, so that the propeller will get a better hold on the air as the edge cuts its way through. Naturally, when the propeller is wound up the other way, this "camber" helps the air to slide off the blades—it's a hindrance instead of a help. To make the tractor perform as well as a pusher, make a pusher propeller for it.

The propeller for the transformed tractor should be carved from a block 8 by 1 by ⅝ inches in size. Start by squaring and sanding the block on all sides. Draw diagonals on the surface that is 8 by 1 inches, as shown in A of the drawing. Draw similar diagonals on the opposite face, and then drill a hole at the intersection by pushing a pin through the block.

Carving the Block.

Now carve the block along these diagonal lines until it resembles B. Be sure to leave the middle at least ⅛ inch thick, so the propeller won't break while working on it.

The next step is to curve the block to the shape indicated in C. Notice how the two lines at the end of the block are drawn—they are in opposite directions because they run from different corners. These lines indicate the slight curve, or "camber," given each blade. Get this curve with sandpaper, after carving a flat surface with a knife. The last step is to cut away the wood opposite the cambered surfaces until there are two blades, each about 1-16 inch thick. With fine sandpaper, finish the blades to 1-32 inch thick, except at the hub, where the hub, as in D, round off the ends and the propeller is finished.

Don't forget, when putting this pusher propeller on the transformed tractor, that it is a "right hand" propeller. That means that it must turn to the right to push the plane, and therefore you must turn it to the left to wind it. With this pusher propeller, the improvised pusher would fly at least half as long as it will fly as a tractor.

Will Spiral 100 Feet.

By restoring the original propeller to the tractor, and resetting the wing so that it will fly with the wing to the front once more, the tractor can be tried for altitude. A well made tractor will spiral up to 100 feet, if a building can be found with a ceiling as high as that.

Even though the tractor flies in a circle, it isn't hard to find out how far it will fly. Suppose the fin is set so that the plane will fly in a circle with an average diameter of 30 feet. [A good model will follow the same path around and around.] If the diameter is 30 feet, then the circumference is 30 times 3.1416 [pi], or 94.25 feet. Now time the tractor during several flights, until a good average figure represents the number of seconds the model takes to fly once around its circle. Now, knowing the distance represented by the circle and the time required to fly it, the "feet per second" speed of the plane can be found. Once that is done, all that is necessary to find the distance the model will fly is to multiply the number of seconds it stays in the air by the number representing the speed.

To Get Flight Distance.

For example, suppose the tractor flies around a circle 30 feet in diameter in 15 seconds. That means it is traveling about 95 feet in 15 seconds, a rate of 6 1-3 feet a second. Now suppose the tractor stays in the air 120 seconds. To get the distance it flies, multiply 120 by 6 1-3, and you get 760, and number of feet the model flies.

As for making the tractor loop-the-loop, this can be done by putting the wing far forward and winding up the rubber until there is a double row of knots. With enough motor power—perhaps a double strand of rubber will have to be added to the motor—the ship will climb steeply, turn over on its back, and describe a pretty loop!

By experimenting with the washin and washout on the wings, the tractor can be made to fly right or left or straight, although the fin may have to be warped to help.

The Landing Gear.

Then, if desired, a landing gear can be made of two pieces of bamboo, 1-32 inch square and long enough to keep the propeller from touching the ground, ambroided to the motor stick one on each side and slanting downward at an angle of 60 degrees from the horizontal. Another short piece of bamboo should be placed across these members, so that the whole structure looks like the capital letter A. Now place two small L-shaped pieces of piano wire at the bottom of the uprights, ambroiding them so that two sections will project to form axles. Slip fibre wheels over these axles, and then place a drop of ambroid on the ends of the axles to keep the wheels from coming off. Don't glue the wheels on. Naturally they won't turn if this is done. (This method of constructing a landing gear was diagrammed in the Baby R. O. G. article.)

Maybe with this landing gear added, the plane will lack lift. This can be remedied by increasing the tail surface, if resetting the wing doesn't overcome the difficulty.

Jimmy, our 3 year old, is a fascinated observer of the untiring circling of the goldfish. He is also a rabid motorist.

One morning, after a long period of unusual quiet, mother called, "What are you doing, Jim?"

"Jes' watching the goldfish looking for a place to park," came the reply.

L. J.

Two days after my wee Mary had had her photographs taken she fell off her tricycle and broke her arm. As we were returning from the hospital where she had had X-ray pictures taken she said, "Mother, isn't it funny that when they take pictures of your arm you don't have to smile?"

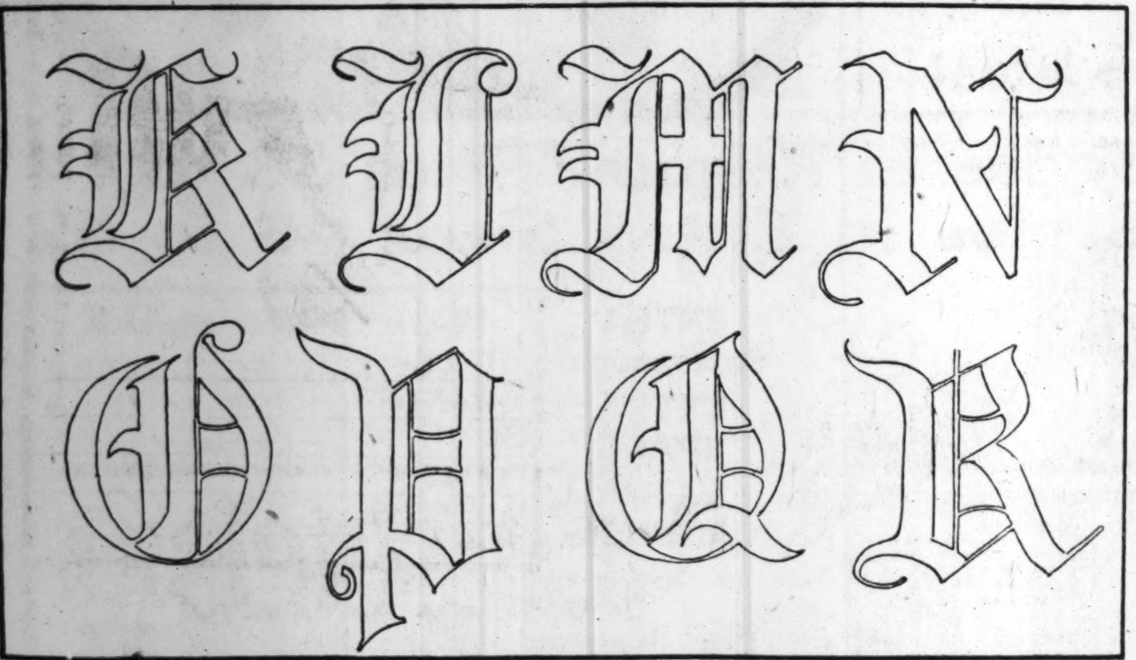
Practical and Fancy Needlework

BY CLOTILDE



This Is the Second Installment in the Popular Old English Alphabet for Embroidering

THE Old English alphabet is doubtless the most popular of all letters for embroidering, and an initial beautifully embroidered will give an air of distinction to any article.

Initial letters should be first outlined in a close running stitch, then the spaces filled in with a chain or other padding stitch. Where a running stitch is used, it should be longer on the upper side; and it should always be heavier in the center than toward the edges, thus giving a curved and rounded surface when finished. The padding stitches must all be on the right side, having the stitches that come on the wrong side as small as possible so as to keep the wrong side flat.

The embroidering should be done in a frame, and the satin stitch is the one used—it is a simple over and over one, taken close together—always running at right angles to the padding, and taken as close together as can be without lapping.

Use tracing paper to transfer the imprint of a letter to the material, and use a single strand of darning cotton for the outline work. Choose a needle that will take the floss and darning cotton easily, and pull through the material without any effort. If the needle is too large the material will surely be injured.

To make the embroidery good looking, the work must be evenly done. Haste is simply out of the question. The satin stitch used in this sort of embroidery is simply the over and over stitch, always taken across the letter at right angles to the filling stitches. Where there are curves, the stitches must be taken close together on the inside, and on the outer edge there must be no spaces, but have them come just close together. On the inside they must never lap.

A little practice will make it possible to do beautiful work; and if one is inexperienced, time will be well spent by practicing first on an ordinary piece of cloth. Embroidering is fascinating work, but unless it is well done there is no beauty in it.

The last installment will be shown next Sunday.

ISN'T IT ODD?

By William Atherton Du Puy.

ISN'T it odd that a man may own a a forty acre tract of land and, by planting apples on it, find that part of it is in one climate and part in another.

When these trees have grown up and arrived at the time for bearing fruit, the farmer may find that those in one part of the orchard bloom ten days earlier in the spring than do those in another part. I have actually seen such an orchard, part in full bloom and part with never a flower.

Careful study has shown that this is not a matter of soil, but of climate. There may be climatic differences in a single orchard that are as marked as though one part of it was 500 miles farther north than the other.

Part of such an orchard would run up the gentle slope of a hill. The other would lie in the hollow. The trees on the hill would bloom earlier than the others. The climate there is milder than it is in the hollow.

There is a peculiar reason for this. The reason is that the trees on the hillside have "air drainage." Those in the hollow have not.

It is well known that cold air is heavier than warm air. The cold air that gets into a room in the winter time settles to the floor. The warm air tends to rise to the ceiling.

So with this orchard. The cold air of spring settles into the low places. The low parts of this two climate orchard form a basin that holds cold air. There is no air drainage out of this basin. On the hillside there is a circulation of air. The air which these trees get is of warming spring quality. The trees in the hollow are held back by the cold air held by the basin in which they dwell. Those on the hillside feel spring earlier. So there is a week or ten days' difference in the time of blooming.

Lower lands may not be colder than nearby hills. If they have air drainage they may be just as warm. But basins that hold the air as lakes hold water are cold.

Bodies of adjacent water, such as lakes, may have a warming effect on climate. When cold spells come that might otherwise injure fruit these bodies of water which are warmer than the air roundabout keep up the temperature.

Don't Let a Cold Put You on Your Back

A cold is a serious germ attack, highly contagious. Don't neglect it for an hour. Nobody knows where a cold may lead.

Four things should be done for a cold—and at once. Break the cold, check the fever, open the bowels, tone the system. HILL'S Cascara-Bromide-Quinine tablets do all this in 24 hours—end the cold in one day. HILL'S means safety as millions know.

Be sure you get HILL'S in the red box with portrait. At all druggists—30c.

Careless Washing Spoils the Hair

If you want beautiful hair, ordinary old time methods of washing will not do. To bring out the real beauty, the hair must be shampooed properly.

Proper shampooing is what makes it soft and silky. It brings out all the real life and lustre, all the natural wave and color, and leaves it fresh looking, glossy and bright.

While your hair must have frequent and regular washings to keep it beautiful, it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why discriminating women, everywhere, now use Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo. This clear, pure and entirely greaseless product brings out all the real beauty of the hair and cannot possibly injure.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

It leaves the hair soft, silky and easy to manage and makes it fairly sparkle with new life, gloss and lustre.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store.

A four-ounce bottle lasts for months.

LAUGHTER IS BETTER THAN MEDICINE - - - -

by Antoinette Donnelly

We Take Ourselves Too Seriously; a Little Mirth Is What the Great American Face Needs

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The trouble with the great American face is that there isn't enough evidence of laughter about it.

I don't mean that you and I don't think our faces aren't funny in spots. We probably do. But even that we're serious about. And it is the seriousness that's stamped all over what might be right merry physiognomies that's what's wrong with the great American face.

Walk along any crowded thoroughfare at noontime, say, when one ought to look cheerful over the prospect of breaking the morning's fast, and try to find the one that does! I'm not saying you won't—but it's going to entail a bit of discouraging peering into countenances to find the gay one, unless you're lucky enough to run into a group of giggling young girls.

For a nation that's as supposedly prosperous and as blessed with the comforts of life as we, our faces might be grateful enough to show it a bit more.

We've talked considerably about the beauty advantages of saying it with a gayer expression, how you can do your own face lifting without any fear of a damage suit against the plastic surgeon by such simple practices as keeping the corners of the mouth up, and so on.

Now, on the excellent authority of Dr. James J. Walsh, medical director of Fordham university school of sociology, in his new book, "Laughter and Health" [D. Appleton & Co.], we learn that the face isn't the only possession we share in common that is benefited by learning not to take ourselves so seriously. The heart and the lungs and the liver, the spleen and the ductless glands, the stomach and the intestines, and the mind go about their respective businesses much more effectively if we treat them to a hearty guffaw oftener than every now and then.

Being a member of the medical profession in excellent standing, Dr. Walsh naturally is more concerned with the physical effects of laughter on heart, stomach, liver, and other organs, including the mind, than its beauty value.

We of the feminine gender might have our attention arrested more quickly were laughter exploited as the latest wrinkle in beautifying exercises. If a new Mr. Coue came over with a set of laughing exercises and a bit of advance publicity he'd get a houseful of women, providing he'd guarantee that faces could be changed with a couple of treatments. Or if some Yogi came along to establish a laughing cult he'd have to rent a bigger hall for the second meeting. And—there'd be fewer complaints about the reliability of the courses than there have been with other cults and faddisms. For laughter is good for the face. There's nothing better for it. And for the very reasons outlined by Dr. Walsh. What's good for the heart, liver, stomach, intestines, and other organs is even better for the face. Particularly may laughter's relation to mental health be considered in connection with facial beauty. Mental tension is so bound up with one's facial expression that the only way you can loose them one from the other is to give them both the laugh.

From the Physical Aspect.

From its purely physical aspect we learn through Dr. Walsh that the principal agent of laughter is the diaphragm or midriff, as it is called in old fashioned English. This is the large muscle that separates the abdominal region from the chest.

"This large muscle," says our eminent authority, "moves up and down in respiration over a distance of two or three inches, according to the depth of the inspiration. In laughter it probably moves up and down from four to six inches, and the jerky movements of it have considerable effect upon the important organs which have anatomical relations with the diaphragm. . . . As the heart and the lungs lie just above the diaphragm and the liver and the stomach and pancreas and spleen lie just below it, and as the kidneys and the large and small intestines are all affected by these movements of the diaphragm, it is easy to understand that laughter must play a rather important rôle in the life and health of humanity."

In support of the old phrase, "laugh and grow fat," Dr. Walsh contends that people who laugh easily and heartily are much more likely to be healthy and to continue in good health than those who are almost never heard to laugh out loud and whose highest attempt at mirth is likely to be a quiet smile.

It is a fact often commented upon that nervous ailments have increased greatly in recent years. Dr. Walsh says it is also a matter of common knowledge that the patients who suffer from the functional nervous troubles take themselves too seriously. Laughter and more of it is what they need. The best way to get rid of worries is to laugh them off.

This Modern Life.

"It has often been said that the reason for the increase in nervous symptoms in our time is that we are living the strenuous life and men are deeply intent on a few things and profoundly preoccupied. There is a great deal of truth in this, but the principal part of the truth is that men laugh ever so much less than they did before and laughter is an extremely important element for health.

"Women laugh much less readily and heartily than men, as a rule," Dr. Walsh continues. "Women are brought up with the idea that they should repress more of their feelings than men. They smile quietly or laugh very gently over jokes that cause their husbands or brothers to burst out in a gale of laughter." This taking themselves too seriously and not permitting themselves to enjoy the relaxation of hearty laughter accounts, in the physician's opinion, for not a little of their tendency to suffer from functional nervous affections.

"We need laughter," Dr. Walsh repeats, "for the maintenace of health and above all for that relaxation of mind and body which keeps us from taking ourselves too seriously."

When the diaphragm goes up and down in the course of laughing, large drafts of air are drawn into the lungs and then are forcibly ejected. The deepest voluntary breathing we can exercise will not approach in thoroughness the effect of good breezy laughter, Dr. Walsh contends.

Churning Process Helpful.

The stomach is directly affected by laughter. The action of the diaphragm on the stomach has a churning effect.

"Anything that encourages this churning process is sure to do good," says Dr. Walsh. "We all know that laughing during and after meals is an eminently useful adjuvant for digestion and that the state of mind which goes with laughing is an important factor in making the digestive process more effective than it would be otherwise. Laughter at meals and just after is one of the best aids to stomach disposal of food that we have."

It is natural for man to laugh, Dr. Walsh holds. Environment has robbed some of this native privilege. People who live under circumstances of comparatively little laughter are likely to give their diaphragms little exercise. Those who have been brought up in the midst of hearty laughing, on the other hand laugh heartily and easily.

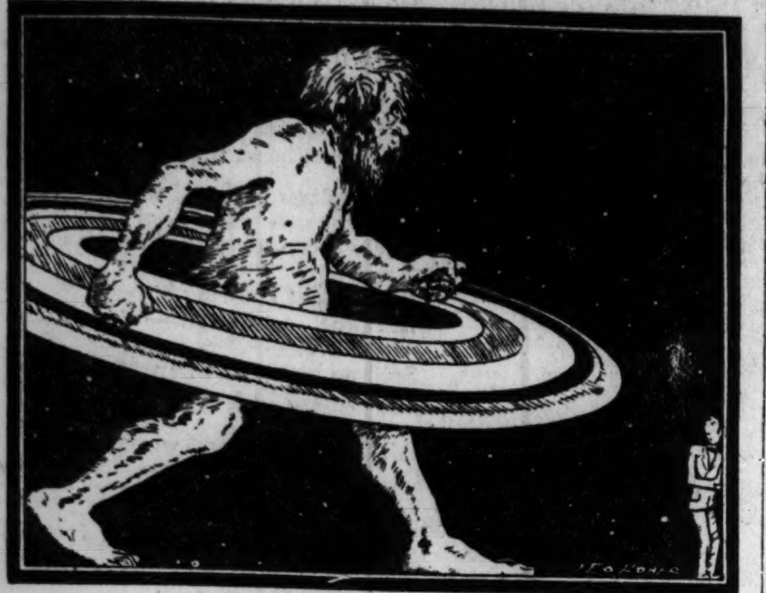
Mists Are Lifting for the March-Born



Marion Meyer Drew's weekly articles are presented solely for the entertainment of readers. Separate answers to individual questions cannot be given.

By Marion Meyer Drew.

TODAY, March 11, is a better anniversary than any which fell to the lot of the folk who celebrated their births on any of the days last week. It isn't quite free and clear for the period ahead even yet, but the mists are lifting, and if the sons and daughters of this date will refrain from ill-advised actions during 1928 they will come out rather better than any one might expect to look at them now.

The present month will be a poor one for these people, likewise April and most of May. After that the general aspects are more favorable for them and the period between July 1 and 15 should be quite good. The planet Saturn hovers close by, however, and little new ventures should beware of this old chicken hawk and keep safely at home in their daddy's vest pocket. No financial gains will come from investment or speculations for these people during the coming year.

March 12 is still a little better than the previous date. It promises some change for its children, some advantageous and even spectacular change; health not always of the best, particularly for the women of this anniversary, while the men of this date may feel this influence through the illness of some woman closely connected with their home or business interests. Extravagance is evident for this group during the coming year and should be avoided carefully during the summer months. The last part of 1928 and the beginning of 1929 will be a cumbersome and delaying time, so make allowances for some lack of speed in all your activities when that period pulls around, if this is your date of birth.

The next two days—March 13 and 14—are alike in their prospects for the coming year in that they foreshadow annoyances and difficulties in and through women throughout most of the twelve months directly ahead. This influence will be strongest during the fall and winter, but the present month will not be an easy one for these people, and they will do well to keep out of dangerous or compromising situations and even to avoid the little family responsibilities which might result in added contact with the older women members of the circle. The money aspects for these people seem quite strong, the indications for travel and pleasure are good, and the influences which govern artistic or literary interests are also favorable. The same force which affects women is also connected with health in these horoscopes for 1928, and these two subjects will need supervisory attention if an upset is to be avoided.

Strange new friends will enter the life of the March 15 group in the course of the next year, also unadvisable changes may be made on the spur of the moment if outside counsel is listened to or new ideas sought. The best period in 1928 should be that between July 14 and Aug. 5, while the months of September and December will prove generally disappointing.

March 16 is a rather favorable birthdate for the coming year, as it shows general good health, the overcoming of some subtly nerve-racking condition in life and more or less profit and pleasure through young people. The good results noted here will not come about all at once but will add up at the end of the year to rather imposing figures. Men of this date will find that business progresses more slowly than they might wish and that the best returns will come through personal or less commercial interests. January of 1929 will not be good in any way, but that is a long way off.

Saturday of this week is a very interesting date for an anniversary, promising as it does close connection with inventors or people of a startling and fascinating new range of ideas—some benefit from this association, too, although the profits may be less tangible than those counted as assets at the bank. The indications for travel are very strong in the horoscopes for this date, and definite events will take place in the lives of these men and women which will be grouped directly about journeys, even if the trips are only little runs into the country or up the sound. But they appear to be longer and more unique than either of these possibilities. The least favorable time of year for these people will be next August, and that because of deception or false promises on the part of supposed friends.

For the rest of us this week is somewhat better than last, particularly in regard to our dealing with young people. Conditions generally seem dull and this should strike the groups born near the middle of December, March, June and September—because of the strong position of the depressing Saturn at the present time. These people will all do well to hold out a little longer, a few weeks here making an almost unbelievable difference in their business and health conditions.

Persons born around the last week of June will find this a poor time for changes, while those of the last week of September also will be very much disturbed should they take this period as a time to make alterations or expansions in business. It seems a favorable time for those born near the middle of November, but somewhat uncertain and apt to develop unexpected factors and sudden changes. The next week-end, however, should be a pleasant time for nearly every one and should prove an exceptionally good time in which to entertain or further any interests in art, music, or literature.

LEAP YEAR PROPOSALS

Do you know of any girl who invited a man to marry her? If you'll send us a brief account of the affair, we'll pay $1 if we print it. Address Leap Year Proposals, Chicago Tribune.

No Ten Year Wait for Them.

A certain friend of mine has been going with a girl for about a year. He liked her quite a bit but did not have the nerve to ask her to marry him. One day just a short time ago they were reading the paper together. They came upon this column headed, "Leap Year Proposals," and started to read it. One of the stories told about a couple who had waited ten years before the fatal question was asked. This got them both laughing, and then she asked, "Shall we wait that long?" That settled it. All they had to do then was fix the date.

He maintains that it was all providential, but I have my doubts. I think she had her campaign all mapped out. R. R. McB.

She Had Initiative.

She was a country school teacher, a refined, pleasant individual, but lacking in those characteristics which make one exceedingly popular—namely: good looks, overflowing good spirits, and no self-consciousness. He was a wealthy village son, who inwardly and outwardly scoffed at the little school ma'am.

When the United States entered the war, he went overseas and she was left at home to continue teaching school. At one of the campaign meetings in the home town, an enthusiastic speaker told of the homesickness and suffering of the boys over there, and suggested that the audience write letters to these absent soldiers. She acted on the idea and soon he received a letter from the little school teacher at home. Of course, he answered, and then began to look forward to receiving the next letter. Correspondence continued.

In 1918 the soldier boy came home and the first person he went to see was the little school teacher whose letters he had so thoroughly enjoyed.

In 1920 they were married, and a happier couple than they are has, perhaps, never existed.

And all this happened because the woman was wise enough to take the initiative. B. C.

Refresh Your Face as Actresses Do

Other faces grow dull and drawn and tired looking. But not actresses' faces. In spite of late hours, weariness, grease paint, on-creeping years, their skins must remain fresh and youthful.

Yet they have no magic—no secret you may not share. They know a better cleansing method, that is all. A method that dissolves the hidden dust and powder and dried oils; that brings the reviving, youthifying blood tingling to the surface. Not with costly treatments or soaps or creams. But with Calonite—a pure white powder that they apply with a wet wash cloth.

Let your face enjoy this refreshing, too. Feel the drawn tired skin respond—instantly. Feel the gentle bubbling, as dirt you didn't know was there, dissolves. Feel the warm, life-giving blood glowing in your cheeks. Look for the blackheads, the sallowness, the oiliness — all gone! How clear and clean and new your skin looks then. How fresh and young it feels. After a Calonite cleansing you look and feel a new person.

Ask your druggist for Calonite. Try it—this very night.

Your money back if not delighted.

An Old Recipe to Darken Hair

By JANICE RANDALL

Almost every-one knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a spronge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

The walls and re painted a subtle green- ish. Fine depressions in the mold and woodwork are picked out in enta, which forms a pleas- ing distinctive contrast. Lemon yellow ment silk curtains at the windo roduce a sense of joyous sunlig d constant good cheer. They finished with a narrow bind- enta and are topped by ices painted to match the lum colored rug with an tern in greenish blue is floor. Sapphire blue glass add noticeably to the tion. Completed, this room presents a decidedly unique and luxurious atmosphere, in spite of the fact that all of the furnishings and decorations are of an undeniably inexpensive nature. Choosing and carrying out a sophisticated color scheme can create such delightful miracles!

Quite different from this first dining room is one done in colonial style, so well suited to use in the small house or apartment. The furniture is reproduced from the style of our well known Duncan Phyfe, with graceful, dignified lines and lovely proportions. Woodwork and wainscoting are painted old ivory in a deeply mellow tone. Above the wainscoting is a quaint flowered paper in a nosegay pattern. A coat of shellac has effectively deepened its tones, so that it looks exactly like a really old paper. Amber colored window draperies are hung by means of rings, straight to the floor, from ivory wooden poles. Old ivory net makes the glass curtains. Chair seats are upholstered in old blue. There is a two toned blue rug on the floor. Several fascinating pieces of old pewter are displayed on the sideboard. An interesting mirror hangs above.

As there is plenty of figuring in the walls, curtains and draperies are of plain materials. Pale apricot silk gauze makes the glass curtains, and the draperies are of mauve sunfast—a most unusual and pleasing color combination. The furniture is Chippendale, with chair seats upholstered in deep mauve diaper patterned mohair. Repeating the green of the woodwork, and further adding to the out of doors effect of the room, is a soft green carpet which covers the floor.

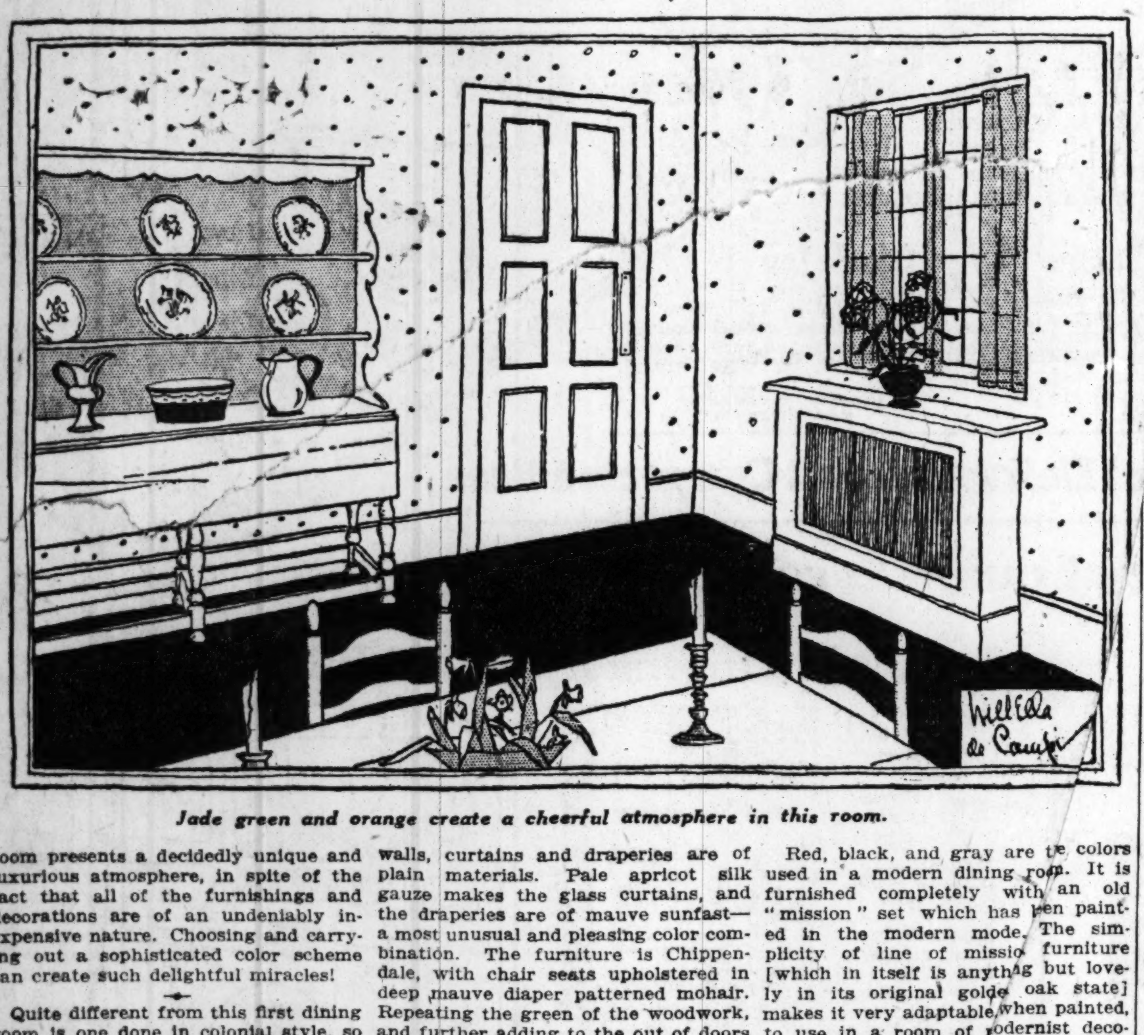
Informal in character is the small dining room illustrated today. The furniture is painted a gay jade green. White wall paper shows jade green dots, and the woodwork matches the furniture.

At the windows are curtains of orange theatrical gauze, finished with worsted stitching in jade green, bright yellow, mauve, and black. Linen runners on the dining table and serving stand are dyed orange to match the curtains. A dresser with open shelves displays a set of china which shows a pattern of gayly colored flowers in peasant style on a yellow ground. Black linoleum covers the floor.

Red, black, and gray are the colors used in a modern dining room. It is furnished completely with an old "mission" set which has been painted in the modern mode. The simplicity of line of mission furniture [which in itself is anything but lovely in its original golden oak state] makes it very adaptable when painted, to use in a room of modernist decoration. In this instance the mirror which was built onto the buffet has been removed and put into a narrow wooden frame. It now hangs in the wall space above.

A square dining table, chairs, serving stand, and buffet are painted black. The mirror frame is vermilion. Vermilion leatherette has replaced the old brown leather of the chair seats. Walls are painted a soft French gray. Black woodwork and doors are relieved by fine lines of vermilion. Curtains at the windows are of sunfast turkey red, finished at the edges with narrow black upholsterer's fringe.

Side lights in an oxidized silver finish are fitted with square, white parchment shades, bound with vermilion leatherette. A black rug covers the floor.



Jade green and orange create a cheerful atmosphere in this room.

Obedience Is for the Children's Good

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

IN India that wise, powerful beast, the elephant, docilely obeys man—whom he could crush in an instant. For whose good is he taught to obey? For his own good, so he will grow to be a bigger and better elephant? Or is he taught obedience for the convenience and good of man? We know it is for the latter purpose.

Then think of the elephant in his natural state. There he has to obey, too. He has to obey the leader of the herd—he and all the rest of the elephants, young and old. The herd leader is absolute in his command and the herd must be absolute in their obedience or they feel the authority of their leader in no gentle terms.

And why is this so? They are required to render obedience for the good of the herd, for its health and its safety. The leader will test the bridge before they cross it, with his own carefully applied weight, he will feel his way with huge tentative foot where quicksands threaten, he will prevent stampede and panic by his authority, by his command of their obedience. Is all this for his own good? Because he likes the feeling of power? No. It is because he has the wisdom and strength to look out for the welfare of the herd which they have ininstinctively intrusted to his keeping.

End Often Forgotten.

It is so easy to lose sight of the end in enforcing the means. We're jammed close up against the means, but the end is far away. Sometimes we need long vision to see it.

So it is with obedience. We know its importance and we expect it from our children and enforce it. But with some of us the reason why is lost sight of. And with a few it never has been truly seen. To the latter obedience is a convenience, as it is with the owners of elephants in the east—therefore they exact it to the letter. Or it may be with them merely an opportunity to exercise authority. It gives them a sense of power to be able to control the actions of another human being.

"I just guess you'll obey me or I'll know the reason why," say many fathers and mothers when it looks as though their power wobbled.

"My children know whose word is law around here. I don't stand any nonsense from them, I'll tell you," is the attitude of many parents on the subject of obedience.

What is the implication of such expressions? It's very simple. The parents are going to be boss. They are the masters. Being stronger physically and financially, and being older, they can rule and revel in the exercise of authority.

Often the people who expect the most absolute, the most militaristic sort of obedience, are the people who have failed in their other relations in life. Here is one place where they can lord it over another human being—and they do.

When Problems Arise.

Of course, most of us are not so tyrannical as this. But I think it is very easy in the stress of living, in the complexities of everyday existence, to lose sight of the real reason for obedience. Especially is it difficult when things reach a climax—when children are hard to manage, when they become defiant or excitable or impudent. We get into the habit of expecting them to obey us and when we see our authority questioned we are quite apt to be incensed at such rebellion.

Often our anger will rise, and then we are apt to think of nothing but ourselves. "Do you dare to disobey me?" shows no thought for the child—only for our own position of power—for the respect they owe us.

The thing for us to realize and then to keep always in mind is that obedience must not be required as a tribute to our authority.

Two Great Needs.

Provided always that we are intelligent and reasonable, the obedience we expect from our children will help them to the two great necessities—the ability to adjust themselves to the world they live in, and the power of self-control.

If they learn to live happily and peacefully in their own family, doing their share by work or thoughtfulness or unselfishness, without friction or discord, they have learned to live in one part of the world—their home—which is their chief world while they're young. If they are taught to obey some one else they have taken the first step in control of themselves—the first step toward learning that invaluable lesson, self-control, without which we are slaves.

As far as our end of it is concerned, I don't see how we're going to do our best for our children without the use of obedience as an ally. Suppose we have fine ideas, high ideals, intelligence, reasonableness—how can we bring them to affect our children's lives if we can't control them? If we can't obtain obedience from them, how can we put our plans into effect? How otherwise can we see that they eat the right food, have the right amount of rest, dress for the weather, show consideration for other people, acquire a few manners, unless we have their coöperation, if you think that word expresses the relation better than obedience?

If at first glance it seems to us that some obedience may be for our benefit, if we follow back practically all of the accepted ways in which we require it, we'll find that they reflect benefit on the child. If we expect him to pick up after himself, to run errands without grumbling, to do things the first time he is told, to go to bed without fussing and fuming, his gain is greater than ours.

I think many of us would be conscious of a different quality in the control of our children if we kept before us all the time that the aim of all obedience is—not the maintenance of our authority or the exercise of power—but the children's good.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their systems. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

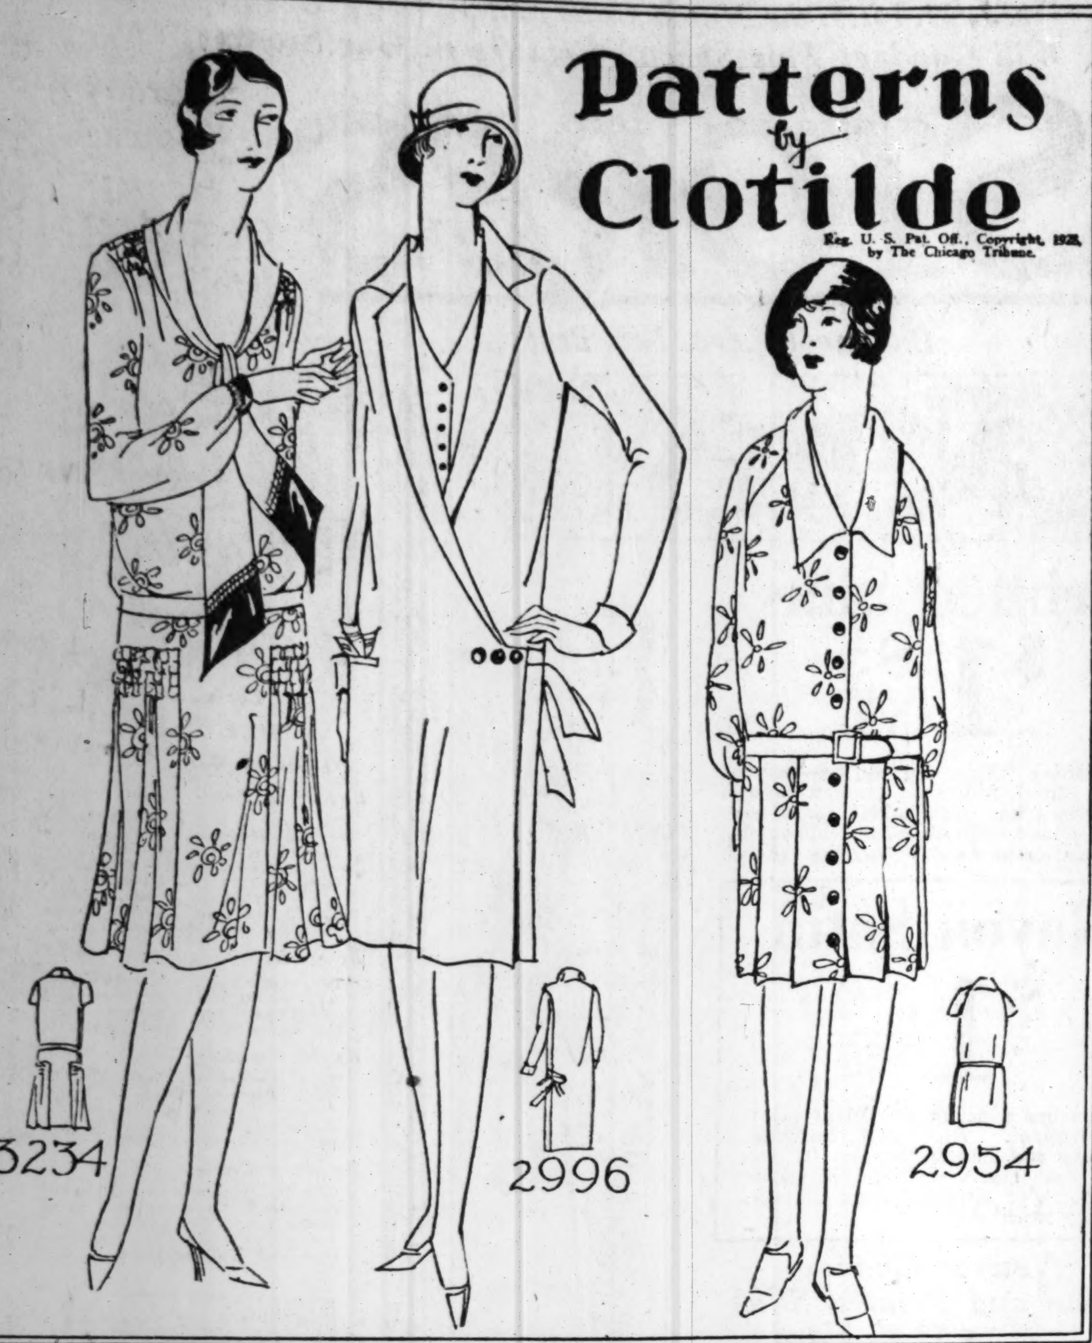
Patterns by Clotilde

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.; Copyright, 1928, by The Chicago Tribune.



3234—Woman's and misses' dress. Size 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 40 inch material, with ¾ yard of 36 inch white and ¼ yard of 27 inch black contrasting.

2996—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 40 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 18 inch contrasting.

2954—Girl's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1⅞ yards of 40 inch material, with ⅜ yard of 32 inch contrasting.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

A SMART dress that achieves distinction from its tight hip arrangement and unusual neckline treatment is shown in pattern No. 3234. Skirts of dresses today are cut to allow the proper fullness, but if they are to achieve chic the straight line appearance must not be disturbed when one stands still. And this design is well carried out in that respect. It lends itself particularly well to the lovely soft fabrics that are so well liked now, such as georgette crêpe, silk crêpe, wool crêpe, and crêpe satin. Printed pussy willow silk crêpe, and printed chiffon are also lovely.

The dress won't be at all difficult to make, and it is always fascinating to watch the work come to completion under your fingers. The front and back are cut separately from the shirred sides, and the underarm and shoulder seams should be put together before setting the shirred insets in place. These seams can be basted together and the dress tried on. After any necessary adjustments have been made, finish these seams. French seams make the best finish for light weight materials.

Of course the shirring on the front of each shoulder must be perfectly done before basting the shoulder seams together. The first shirring is exactly on the shoulder seam line, and the three succeeding rows are five-eights of an inch apart. Take tiny running stitches, lay the gathers and fasten securely, bringing the threads through to the wrong side to fasten. If you are certain the threads have been pulled up right, you can stitch right through the gatherings on the machine, not forgetting to bring all threads through to the wrong side to fasten. Do the same way with the shirred insets before setting in place on the skirt. But you should take care that the threads are not pulled up too tight.

French seams may be used where the insets are set in, first stitching the pieces in place across the top. The dress may be hemmed across the bottom, or the hem allowance omitted and the skirt edge finished with a narrow bias binding. That is a little dressier than a hem. The sleeves may be made long or short, the long ones being gathered at the wrists into narrow, fitted bands.

The tie collar is exceptionally pretty and makes the best possible finish at the neck. The dress measures at the bottom, for size 36, about 2⅜ yards.

Pattern No. 2954 is an attractive design for a dress for growing girls. The raglan sleeves are both smart looking and comfortable, and the deep V neckline is finished with an attractive looking collar. The box plaits at either side of the front of the skirt flare gracefully when in motion, and a narrow belt covers the joining of the skirt and waist. This model is especially good for classroom wear, and is suitable for novelty woolen, jersey, crêpe de chine, English prints, printed pique, printed linen or printed sateen. The dress is cut in such a manner that it will launder well and the wash materials suggested are both appropriate and smart.

The hems are laid down the front of the dress after the waist and skirt are joined, and buttonholes made on the right front. If wash material is used it will be a good idea to buy good pearl shank buttons, and make eyelets to put the buttons through. These can be easily removed for laundering, and it makes ironing a much simpler thing. The sleeves may be long or short, and the belt may be made of the dress material, or one of the pretty kid belts can be used.

Skirt and waist may be joined in a right side seam, turning the seam up towards the waist after stitching and covering with seam binding, stitching it on, on both edges. The dress is finished at the bottom with a hem.

Pattern No. 2996 is a chic design suitable for street or for afternoon wear. The back is cut in one piece and is quite straight. The fronts are rolled to form revers, and at a hip length there is an extension to the right front that gives it quite an individual air. Tie strings are made of the dress material, one being attached over the left underarm seam and the other underneath the right front extension. Perforations on the pattern show exact places to attach the sash ends. Featherweight tweed, crêpe satin, flat silk crêpe, angora jersey, crêpe Roma, printed silk crêpe and Canton faille crêpe are interesting fabrics from which to choose. The vest should be made of something contrasting, and the cuffs can match the vest.

A Dollar for Your Dreams

Have you ever had a dream which later came true? If you'll mail us an account of your prophetic dream we'll pay $1 for every letter published. Address Dreams, Chicago Tribune.

A Murder in a Dream.

Once I had a singularly vivid and horrible dream. I was traveling and had taken a room in a hotel. That night I dreamed that instead of lying in the bed I was standing in the doorway and looking into the room. A beautiful young girl was lying in the bed and bending over her was a man with a shining knife upraised in his hand. Twice he plunged it into her breast, when with a loud cry I awoke.

A few days after I had returned home I read in the paper an account of a murder in the hotel where I had stayed on the very day after I had left. The room was the same one I had occupied and all the circumstances were the same as in my dream. So the dream was prophetic. A. J. D.

Visualizing a Robbery.

A few nights ago I dreamed that my sister and her husband had gone to the theater. As they entered their apartment on their return they saw a flashlight in the dining room. My brother-in-law hurried in, but as he reached the door to the room he could see no sign of any one in the room. He turned laughingly to my sister and as he started to speak the back door slammed. Rushing to the door, he found the lock broken. The burglar had disappeared.

I awoke with a start and could not sleep the rest of the night. Because the dream had seemed so real to me, I called my sister on the phone early the next morning and asked her if anything had happened.

"Yes," she said. "We had a frightful scare last night. When we came home from the theater we heard some one in the dining room, but whoever it was escaped before Henry could catch him. The lock on the back door was broken. The drawer containing the silver was open, but nothing was missing."

I had a decidedly peculiar sensation when I hung up the receiver. V. B.

In His Sleep.

We live on a farm several miles from town and have a large spring where we get all our water. From the spring runs a little brook, over which there is a small foot bridge.

One night I was dreaming I had run all the way from town and was very thirsty. I ran toward the spring, and being too anxious to get a drink, I did not take down the dipper nearby, but lay down on the foot bridge to drink from the spring. I drank a long draught. I awakened with the surprise of my life. There I lay on the foot bridge in my pajamas twenty yards from the house, trying to get a drink from the spring.

As my lips touched the water, I awakened. Since that many times my dreams have come true, but not so quickly as that one. D. M.

Saw the Shadow of Death.

I was visiting for a couple of weeks, with an old friend in a city on Lake Michigan.

She had been in ill health for years but had so concealed her sufferings by cheerfulness and a strong sense of humor that I didn't realize her true condition.

One night I dreamed of being in a cemetery up on a hill with many little markers all around me.

I was so impressed with the scene that I told my friend next morning, but to my surprise she did not "laugh it off" as usual which depressed me still more, although not connecting my dream with her, until, less than three months later, I received word of her death. My dear old friend was laid to rest in the very cemetery of my dream. G. W. S.

Provided For.

On Friday I swept the coal bin and chopped a few sun flower stalks for kindling, and invested my last dime in a bottle of milk. In the pantry there was a half a loaf of bread, and a few condiments. That night I saw myself going downstairs for the mail. There was a package from home and a letter containing a check for some vague amount. There was a break in the continuity and then I found myself preparing a large fat capon for the oven, stuffing it with savory dressing, cooking cranberries and potatoes and all the "fixin's."

While I was eating a frugal breakfast the next morning, the parcel post truck drew up to the door, and I received a bulky package marked "perishable." Excitedly pulling at the strings, I recalled the dream. When at last I had removed the wrappings, I fairly shouted with joy for there was none other than the fat capon of my dream. Then I remembered the letter and the check which had appeared so happily in my sleep. It was a day guarded by kindly stars, for two hours later the postman delivered the letter. It contained a check for five dollars—not a fortune, but enough to buy coal and a few groceries and tide me over the lean time. K. J. P.

Keeps Your Skin Naturally Youthful

To make your skin lovely and to preserve the beauty of girlhood, use regularly a little pure mercolized wax. Get an ounce at any drug store and use as directed. The wax peels off the outer layer of aged, wrinkled or blemished skin gently and safely, removing all such imperfections as pimples, freckles, and dry coarse skin. With the removal of the outer cuticle, the new skin is revealed, clear, fresh, supple with that lastingly lovely appearance of youth. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and other age signs, use as face lotion 1 ounce powdered saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel.

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

The Lenten Mothering Sunday Cakes or Simnels Are Nicely Historic.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

By Jane Eddington.

ONE of the several names for next Sunday, or mid-Lent, is Mothering Sunday. It is not, perhaps, so euphonious as Mi-carême, but is accounted as a more free and pleasant name, and around it have centered the most interesting, perhaps, of the old customs or those of three or four hundred years ago, and we do not know how much farther back. By the way, another name is Refreshment Sunday, because in the old church days it was a feast day in the midst of a fast.

No less a person than Arthur Machen, English writer of note, has an essay, "On Simnel Cakes," in which he says he has a vivid recollection of the manner in which the festival was observed in the west country of England fifty years ago. As a child the ritual appealed to him, and particularly the appearance of the country town on the Saturday before Mothering Sunday, which Saturday was market day. He was impressed by the appearance of the town, but more particularly by the aspect of the confectioners' shops which, he says, were more gorgeous on that day than on the market day preceding Christmas.

In his own words here is how he describes them: "They were full of cakes, cakes for every purse, wonderfully adorned with icing, white and pink; a truly delicious spectacle. For the custom of the country was that on the day following, Mothering Sunday, every child should present his mother with a cake. I believe that farm servants, in especial, made a great point of this observance. Out of slender savings—five or six or seven pounds a year were their wages in those days—they would buy a cake and beg leave of absence from the farmer on the Sunday, tramping, some of them, ten miles over the hills to the maternal cottage, there to make their offering and warm their hands at the old hearth before setting out again for the farm by deep lanes and black March woods. A friendly, kindly custom: one of the good observances that smoothed the rough places of life in the old days."

Arthur Machen's Simnel.

Mr. Machen's description of the Mothering Sunday cake confirms me in the belief that the recipe given below, which is one I took from a New Zealand cook book sent me by a reader there, is nearly the real thing. At any rate, it has the almond paste.

"Now these kinds of cakes were, of course, Simnel cakes, though I do not recollect whether they were prepared according to the usual recipe which so pleasantly puts a layer of almond paste not only outside the cake but in its very vitals. And, that everything should be pleasant about this mid-Lent festivity, some ingenious person was at the pains to invent an etymology for the word simnel, which is matchless in its absurdity. Simnel was just medieval English for a cake. It comes from the Latin, simila, which means the finest wheaten flour. Originally, I suppose, the English word was 'simmel,' this because 'simnel,' as 'pantomime,' becomes—on some lips—'pantomine.'"

Cakes with Almonds.

One might not believe it until tried, but it is possible to grind blanched almonds coarsely and then put them through a fine disk of the food chopper with sugar, and have the product something that would take the place of a combination of sugar flour in a sponge cake. If this does not seem like a reasonable statement, the fact is that when such a mixture is combined with eggs, in a sponge cake fashion, the product will taste like a sponge cake made of flour, sugar and eggs, only with a light almond flavoring.

This fact seems worth mentioning, and even noteworthy, because the amateur cook is quite likely to get a rather soggy cake or candy when using ground almonds, because they contain over fifty-four per cent of fat. When they were pounded in a mortar as in the old cookery, various devices were used to keep them from oiling.

One of the almond cake dainties that has survived the centuries is the macaroon, but there are many other cakes which were quite as deserving when successfully made and which had just as large a proportion of ground almond made up in these latter days into almond paste to save the cook time and trouble. This is probably never equal to the freshly prepared nuts.

One care that must be exercised is in using a grinder. Some meat grinders cannot be trusted, especially when they pack, because whatever damp thing is being put through them will grow black or be blackened somewhat. If the meat chopper is well cared for and cleaned out by putting some dry bread crumbs through after it is used it may be all right. But of all the utensils that need prompt care after they are used a meat chopper leads. It should not be soaked and need not be ever if it is cleaned immediately after it is used.

Pain de Gêne.

Many a dowager living in the city of Paris, France, on a small income counts the lovely scalloped pain de gêne as about the finest thing she can offer her guest when she gives her afternoon tea, even though it be a little soggy. She buys it at a pastry shop. As for me, no utensil I purchased in Europe has been so carefully treasured as the heavy little flat-bottomed tin with deep scallops and, as mentioned above, I have had made in it an almond cake that did not exactly justify itself because so nearly like a flour sponge cake though by the same recipe that I got in a Paris cooking school, which cake was not iced but merely sprinkled with powdered sugar.

The recipe in metric terms reads: One hundred and twenty-five grams of blanched almonds, one hundred and fifty grams of sugar, pounded together, three eggs, forty grams of sifted flour and lastly sixty grams of melted butter. Another ingredient was two tablespoons of kirsch for flavoring, but we have to get on without that.

In our measures this recipe contains four and one-half ounces or not quite a cup of whole blanched almonds (the weight is the safer thing to go by in most cases, but particularly in a case like this), five ounces or a little less than three-fourths of a cup of sugar, one and one-half ounces of flour or about a third of a cup after one sifting, two ounces or a little more than one-fourth of a cup of melted butter.

By the French method the almonds are pounded with the sugar. We put them through the coarse disk of the chopper, then mixed them with one-half the sugar and put them through a fine disk, and finally rubbed the mixture through a sieve. We used our own method with the eggs, beating the whites till stiff, folding the other half of the sugar into them, then the sugared almonds with a few drops of almond essence. Add two tablespoons of ice cold water to the yolks and beat till thick, then fold in the flour. Combine with folding these two mixtures and bake in the buttered pan with a paper on the bottom for about three-quarters of an hour at 325 degrees.

The cake will mound in the middle when the batter gets hot through, but this will drop back to leaven when it is done. If baked in tiny paper cups this makes a wonderfully dainty bit. Put the cups in small muffin tins and fill them a little more than half full of the batter. Bake at the same temperature.

This cake would be one for the diabetic, although any really hungry person—diabetics often are exaggeratedly hungry, we have been told—might eat more of it than was good for them.

Graham Cracker Cake.

Layer cakes made of dry rye bread or graham crackers when put together have a quality and flavor that seem to be appreciated in an almost ecstatic fashion. Some of the packages of these crackers have perfectly good recipes on them, but some of them call for shredded cocoanut, which we do not consider as good as nuts.

We can recommend the following recipe: One cup of sifted sugar, one-half cup of unsalted butter, twenty graham crackers, or practically six ounces when crumbled or one and two-thirds cups of the crumbs when rolled and put through a coarse sieve, two or three level teaspoons of baking powder, three eggs, three-fourths cup of milk, one-half cup of walnut meats cut fine.

Cream the butter and mix the sugar into it, and work into them, alternately with the milk, the cracker crumbs, into which the baking powder has been well mixed. Separate the eggs and beat them separately. The yolks may be added to the butter and sugar, or they may be folded into the whites and the two folded into the above mixture. [A white can be spared.] Lastly add the nuts.

A Bread Cake.

Because in old days home cooks bought a small portion of raised dough from the bakers and added sugar and spice and shortening to it, and because such old American cakes as that called election cake were made in this fashion, we recommend the following recipe, but we are now inclined to think that a rather stout sponge is better than the dough to use. At any rate, with a good sponge a wonderfully wholesome and moist seeming cake can be secured, good enough for a rather homely gift, and really much more likely to be appreciated than some more elaborate and almost sickishly sweet sorts. One cup of bread sponge, one-fourth cup butter, one cup of sugar, two eggs, one cup of flour, one-half teaspoon of soda dissolved in one tablespoon of milk, one-half cup of raisins or other dried fruit, about a teaspoon of powdered spices.

If the sponge instead of a dough is used, the raisins and spices will give this an old fashioned shade and quality, with a pleasant moisture such as we do not often see. Cream the butter, add the sugar to it gradually. Work this and the floured raisins into the sponge with the beaten yolks. Fold the egg whites and the spices in last. The mixing and folding should be exceptionally complete, especially if the whole is more like a dough than a batter. Bake in a bread tin for one hour in a 325 oven. You may bake this on a tin in a cottage loaf, if you use bread dough instead of a sponge. Our sponge was made with two and a fourth cups of flour to two cups of scalded milk, one-fourth yeast cake, and a teaspoon of salt.

A GAME OF MENTAL CHESS

Mrs. Harry Serves on a Committee and Outwits the Obnoxious Chairman in a Series of Clever Plays

Persis Standish will answer questions of all kinds on etiquette, manners, and politeness. Self-addressed, stamped envelopes must accompany each request for information. Send your letters to Persis Standish, Sunday Department, Chicago Tribune.

By Persis Standish.

MRS. HARRY is not one to be on many committees but Mrs. Clement had requested that she take her place on the committee to raise funds for a certain children's hospital during a drive, because Mrs. Clement was ill and had to go south. Mable Clement always did so many nice things for others that Mrs Harry felt she could not well refuse.

Mrs. Clement said, "I don't think I would be ill enough to go south if it were not for this very committee. I must warn you that the chairman" [whom we shall call Mrs. Wrath] "is a sultan. She made my life simply miserable and I would not ask you to take the job if you weren't strong in mind as well as in body."

Mrs Harry laughed, thinking this was probably a bit of an exaggeration for she knew Mrs. Clement's gentle sensitive nature and just supposed that the chairman was the usual efficient, hard spoken, quick tempered sort of person one finds at the heads of committees.

So she fared forth serenely to the first meeting. It was snowing and traffic was unusually heavy, so although she allowed the usual time for getting downtown she was ten minutes late for the meeting. There were twelve persons at the lunch table and when she went in she discovered that she only knew four or five of them. She went up and introduced herself to the chairman who looked up haughtily and said, "How do you do. Perhaps you do not know that you are late."

"Sorry," said Mrs. Harry politely "have I missed the minutes?"

"No, indeed," answered a Mrs. Brown whom Mrs. Harry knew slightly. "Do sit next to me." She moved over to allow Mrs. Harry to draw up a chair, but the chairman spoke again.

"Mrs. Harry's place is reserved for her next to Mrs. Munn on the other side of the table," said she.

Throwing Down the Gauntlet.

Mrs. Harry looked at her in amazement, drew up her chair and sat down next to Mrs. Brown. "I would just as soon sit here, thank you, Mrs. Wrath," said she, doing so.

Mrs. Wrath flushed and a smile of satisfaction went round the table, also rather to Mrs. Harry's surprise.

Nothing of much importance occurred at the meeting, but after it was over Mrs. Brown patted Mrs. Harry on the shoulder, saying, "Good for you! We all appreciate what you've done for us."

Mrs. Harry did not think it wise to go into the matter, but pretended she did not understand Mrs. Brown.

The next meeting was called for the same time at the same place the following week. Mrs. Harry was on time and took her place next to Mrs. Brown. The chairman came in two minutes late and after calling the meeting to order, said, "Mrs. Brown, since Mrs. Harry is so fond of that side of the table perhaps you will oblige me by moving. It becomes a little crowded at that end of the room."

The Tables Turned.

Mrs. Brown blushed and started to rise when Mrs. Harry turned swiftly to the only man who was serving on the committee and who sat on her other hand. "Don't bother, Mabel," she said, "I'm sure if Mrs. Wrath finds it too crowded here to be a pleasant sight Mr. Simpson will oblige us by going to the other side of the table." She smiled sweetly at Mr Simpson, who returned it, trying to conceal his delight and his laughter.

He rose before the chairman could object, and took his seat on the other side of the table. Several members of the committee tittered. Mrs. Wrath blanched with anger and then she said "I never consider when I am serving on a committee that it is well for women who know each other too well to sit side by side, because they always manage to waste the time of every one by having private conversations."

She looked severely at Mrs. Harry and Mrs. Brown. The former spoke in a ringing voice: "Don't you find, Mrs Wrath," she said, "that undeserved criticism wastes more time than any one other thing on earth?"

Mrs. Wrath did not deign to answer what she could not gracefully answer, and so the meeting went on uneventfully until almost its close, when she took occasion flatly to contradict statements made by Mr. Simpson regarding certain conditions which he and two other members of the committee had been sent to investigate.

Several minor meetings were held, however, in the halls to discuss it. Mr Simpson communicated his grievance to Mrs Harry and threatened to resign. Mrs. Harry pacified him and promised, now that she knew what it was all about, to fight for him in future.

Kept in Ignorance.

No notice of the next meeting reached Mrs. Harry, but it had been understood that it would be held in the same place at the same time each week until the drive was over, so Mrs. Harry appeared five minutes before the appointed time, to find that the private dining room was empty. She wandered about seeking information, and was finally told at the desk in the lobby that the committee meetings had been moved, by the request of the chairman, to another private dining room, on the floor above, at the end of the building.

There she proceeded to go, but the great hotel was crowded with a convention of some kind. It was a feat to cross the lobby and took some minutes to get an elevator and then another five minutes to get to the end of the long corridor where the dining room was situated. Consequently she was about twelve minutes late when she arrived at the meeting.

Mrs. Wrath was holding the floor when Mrs. Harry came in. Her face flashed first surprise and then anger. She turned on Mrs. Harry, coldly saying, "Well, really, to come at this hour and disturb us all is worse than not coming at all."

Mrs. Harry said quietly, "Had I been informed of the Chair's intention of changing the location of the meetings I should not have been late."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Simply that no one notified me that you ordered the room changed and I have been wandering about the hotel for twenty minutes."

"That," said Mrs. Wrath, "is no excuse—no apology." rather expected to receive some."

"Your attitude is simply intolerable. I will vote that you are a hindrance rather than a help."

Both Funny and Annoying.

Mrs. Harry smiled. "I am serving my friend, Mrs. Clement, and the hospital board; I am afraid you will have to lodge a complaint. If you do, I shall be most happy to repeat what I am about to say now, that I have found your pedagogic attitude to all of us at once funny and annoying. At present it seems to amuse more than annoy me—but then I am only temporarily on this committee."

"I shall resign if you do not," from Mrs. Wrath.

"I am sorry but I cannot resign until Mrs. Clement returns," said Mrs. Harry. "It would be a breach of trust."

So the upshot was that Mrs. Wrath was forced to resign. The committee elected Mr. Simpson, at Mrs. Harry's suggestion, and all is now serene.

Better than Soda for Stomach Gas

ADLERIKA HELPS for 24 HOURS or LONGER

SODA HELPS for ONLY FEW MINUTES

PEOPLE who use soda or magnesia for gas on the stomach, sour stomach and indigestion know that these give but very temporary relief. The gas and sourness may be removed for a short time, but soon returns because the cause still remains. Recent discoveries made by medical specialists show that gas and sour stomach are nearly always due to just one cause—Intestinal Stasis.

Intestinal Stasis

THIS insidious disease, specialists tell us, is caused by faulty diet and lack of proper exercise, and afflicts three people out of every four.

Intestinal Stasis means the too slow movement of waste food matter through the intestines. By remaining too long in the bowels, this matter ferments, forms gas and poisons, and is the cause of gas bloating and pains, sour stomach, dyspepsia, dizzy spells and nervousness.

Even if the bowels move daily, enough old matter may be left to ferment, cause stomach gas, and poison the system. Only by continued, REAL intestinal cleansing of both upper and lower bowel can lasting relief be secured.

Dr. Carl Weschcke, in his private practice, perfected and first used the bowel cleanser and intestinal prophylactic now known as Adlerika. Adlerika is a compound of the best saline intestinal evacuant with vegetable buckthorn and cascara, together with glycerine and other gas-expelling and detergent elements. Unlike other medicines, it acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel.

Relieves Gas Quickly

RELIEF from stomach gas, gas pains and bloating, is felt almost instantly after Adlerika is taken, unless due to malformations or other deep-seated causes. ONE spoonful often brings out an amazing amount of old poisonous matter which you never thought was in your system, and which may have been the hidden cause of gas, indigestion, nervousness or sleeplessness.

Even if your bowels move every day, Adlerika frequently brings out an astonishing amount of additional matter which might otherwise be poisoning your system.

Adlerika is recognized by many physicians as the one dependable remedy for Intestinal Stasis and stomach gas, or whenever a thorough bowel cleansing is needed. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you.

"In my 50 years' practice I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."—Dr. James Weaver.

"I suffered with intestinal stasis and gas. Soda or magnesia helped me very little. I got relief from the first dose of Adlerika, and since taking it, I eat almost anything, sleep well and gained weight."—Mrs. Chas. Rhodes, Yakima, Wash.

"Both my wife and myself suffered a great deal from indigestion and gas. Soda would give some relief, but Adlerika has done us more good than anything we have tried."—Charles Slaven, Terre Haute, Ind.

New Hair Mode from Broadway

"Everyone admires my hair, now that I'm doing it the new way that nearly every really smart girl I know is using," says Miss Agnes Traney, popular dancer, now appearing in the Broadway hit, "Rio Rita." "My hair doesn't need shampooing more than once a month, now. My scalp feels better than it ever has felt. I have gotten rid of all my dandruff. My hair is much easier to arrange, and it stays that way. All I do to keep it like this is put a few dashes of danderine on my brush every time I use it. It's wonderful how Danderine adds to the beauty of your hair, makes it look so silky and lustrous."

Danderine is not oily. It removes the oily film from each strand of hair and restores the natural color and lustre. It dissolves dandruff, cleanses and invigorates the scalp. It is delightfully fragranced. The big bottles are just 35c at all drug stores. Beautiful, smooth, gleaming hair and a healthy scalp for a few cents.

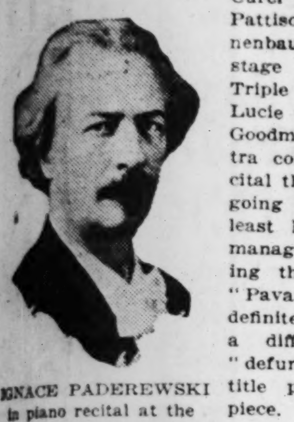
Paderewski Heads List of Music Events

By Edward Moore.

PADEREWSKI is here today, and this would seem to rate as the important news of musical events this morning.

To be sure, there will be plenty of other concerts at the same hour. There always is a rush on Sunday afternoons during the season, and today's is a little worse. Galli-Curci is back, so are Maier and Pattison—by the way, Belle Tannenbaum Friedman will take the stage with them for the Bach Triple Concerto—a new pianist, Lucie Caffaret, will appear at the Goodman, there will be an orchestra concert here and a joint recital there. And Mme. Caffaret is going to do something new. At least her enraptured New York manager sends on a program saying that she will play Ravel's "Pavane pour une infante definite," which somehow conveys a different picture from the "defunte" that Ravel put on the title page when he wrote the piece.



IGNACE PADEREWSKI
in piano recital at the Auditorium today.
[(C) Hartsook Photo.]

But Paderewski is different. Though much alive, he is almost a semi-legendary figure, and thus able to enjoy the tales that have collected about him while he is still on earth. "A poet of the piano" in the mauve decade, a composer, if not of the first rank, at least of definite merit—anyway he wrote his minuet, the predecessor of Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C sharp minor in the affections of every amateur pianist in the world—a shrewd and high minded statesman and the first prime minister of his reconstructed Poland, a patriot who gave away his fortune with both hands, and then put the same hands to the successful earning of another. And if the reference books are to be believed, he will be 68 years old the sixth of next November.

Beat Actors at Their Own Game.

When some one gets around to writing a history of matinée idols in the United States, the career of Paderewski in the nineties will be an interesting item: the quarts of sentimental tears that used to be shed at his recitals, the way he used to be nearly mobbed on his own platforms, the number of times he was asked for autographs, all the customary gush. He beat the actors at their own game and could have compared favorably with the heroes of the galloping snapshots today. Once a New York newspaper made its contribution to the culture of the city by estimating the total mileage of blonde hair in his aureole.

It was a joyous and uplifting period, though to give Paderewski credit, he never took any stock in it for himself. He was too busy being an artist, putting in too many hours a day on his keyboard and his manuscripts. And then, after he had abandoned the professional stage for five years or more, he came back and did it over again, against the skepticism of managers and musicians who thought that he would be unable to come back as pianist or box office attraction, and at last reports he was doing better in both than he had ever done before.

The only thing he has given up is composition, and this is too bad, for he used to have what only a few composers in this age have or care to have, a definite sense of good melody. They say that he grew discouraged over composition when his opera, "Manru," did not make a success at the Metropolitan. From what can be learned about the circumstances, it would appear that "Manru" suffered the same fate as many another opera, being presented with no particular conviction on the part of the company, and not given often enough to let the public find out whether it ought to be approved or not. If this is no great encouragement to American composers, at least they are not the only ones to have had the same sort of setback.

So when Paderewski plays one of his own works, he goes back into the past and takes an early one. That of today will be the Melodie in B, which has the publication number of opus 8, No. 2. Elsewhere he will play Schumann's Symphonic Etudes, the Beethoven Sonata, opus 110, a large group of Chopin, one of the Liszt Hungarian Rhapsodies, and another group of Liszt transcriptions of Schubert songs. These are rather unaccountably neglected by pianists in general just now, in spite of the fact that they rate among the most delightful of the Liszt works. At least they are when Paderewski plays them.

About the American Opera Company.

Everything that can be learned about the American Opera company, due to appear at the Studebaker for a season beginning the end of this month, points to the same fact. All the works in its repertoire have been successfully debunked and given brains and a reason for existing other than being vehicles for famous singers, and the reason is that no one concerned in their presentation has paid the slightest attention to operatic tradition. Everything has been as carefully restudied as though every opera in the list was a new manuscript. With the exception of Cadman's "The Sunset Trail," which began its career with the intention of being a cantata, they are all operatic veterans, and some of them are quite elderly. But they have not been treated like veterans.

Tradition is a great thing because it saves so much intellectual effort, and sometimes in places where intellectual effort can only with difficulty be spared. Probably because of this, tradition frequently converts serious opera into unintentional comic opera and exposes it to loud and well deserved jeers. There are still vivid memories of one time when "Die Walküre" was being sung at the Auditorium, and Cyrena Van Gordon, as Brunnhilde, led a white horse on the stage. Every time Miss Van Gordon opened her mouth to inform Siegmund in Wagner's words that his earthly finish was near, the horse opened his to chew on the invisible wire bridle that was annoying his teeth, and there was a most curious and interesting effect of a visual though not audible human-equine duet. Why did this happen? Because there is a Wagnerian tradition that Brunnhilde must have a horse.

But the American Opera company does not do things that way. It introduces innovations, not because they are new, but because its operas have been studied from a new and unprejudiced viewpoint. There is much talk about the way Faust is rejuvenated in the opera of his name. Instead of his walking behind a tall chair, hastily removing a long cloak and long whiskers, and smoothing down his wig as he returns, the old Faust walks off the stage and a young and different one returns to take up the action. The reason given is that it is dramatically true for a young man to have a different quality in his voice from an old. But this will probably raise the blood pressure of a good many traditionalists.

Innovations Are Fitting.

And in "Mme. Butterfly" there is no drop curtain but only the sliding screens of the Japanese house. The second ends with the silhouettes of the three characters on the closed screen, facing the audience, and they say the effect is novel and beautiful.

Or in "Pagliacci," the action of the second act takes place inside the traveling showman's tent, with the choral audience distributed around the way an audience would naturally be arranged. Or in "The Marriage of Figaro" there is a silver screen of rococo outlines set against black velvet curtains, and this is the principal part of the scene until the last act. What is more, they say that "The Marriage of Figaro" is really funny, and the other Mozart piece, "The Abduction from the Seraglio," is, too.

For all the operas are to be sung in English. Don't for-

Story of Cohan 'n' Cohn Is Hilarious Lyric

"Flying Romeos."

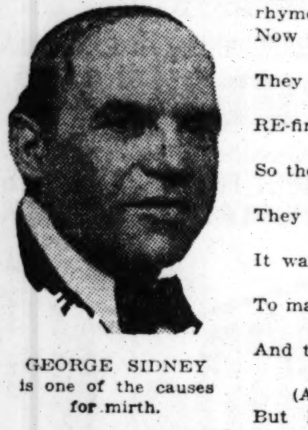
Produced by First National. Directed by Mervyn Le Roy. Presented at the State-Lake theater.

THE CAST:

Cohn	George Sidney
Cohan	Charlie Murray
Minnie	Fritzi Ridgway
Goldberg	Lester Bernard
Aviator	Duke Martin
The Nut	James Bradbury Jr.
Mrs. Goldberg	Belle Mitchell

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!
I will sing t' ye this morning of Cohan and Cohn
Who have such adventures as never were known,
In their quest of a love that was ne'er to be theirs;
Said quest causing naught
But excitement and tears.
(Pronounce the tears with a slightly foreign accent and it will rhyme all right.)
Now Cohan and Cohn were butchers before
They decided that barbering offered them more
RE-fined employment. Prestige, on the whole.
So they took down their meat sign and set up a pole.
They boarded and roomed in the flat o'er the store,
It was run by one Minnie, whom both did adore.
To manicure for them was also M's task.
And thus in the light of her presence they'd bask
(A good part of the time.)
But Minnie for earth-bounds it seems, did not care;
Her thoughts were continually up in the air.
She eyed Lindbergh's picture with eyes that were dim.
"I will wed none," she said, "but a flyer like him!"
(This was terrible, vurra! "Oi weh!" said poor Cohn. Cohan groaned "Wurra! wurra!")
Came into the shop on a fair April day.
(It was, perhaps, May, or June. April, however, is needed for the meter.)
A tall, handsome chap, with a gay, lordly way.
A fellow who said, with a smile flashing bright,
That he flew. And WOULD fly in the Trans-Atlantic flight.
(Trans'lantic must be pronounced as one word, please!)
"My hero!" cried Minnie, ablaze with delight.
"Fair one," quoth the stranger, "may I call tonight?"
Might he call? O, my goodness, just MIGHTN'T he call!
O'er Cohan and Cohn there settled a pall.
The haircut they gave this intruder, you'll wage,
Was enough to inspire in him berserker rage.
He yelled he'd get even. And did he? O, yes!
In ways I am sure that you never could guess.
The title doth tell you our Romeos fly,
But not where they fly to; with whom; nor how high.
In respect to all this, I, too, silent shall be,
Leaving you in suspense till the picture you see.
As a farce comedy this film holds up vurr' well.
The acting is able. Direction is swell.
(Swell is not an elegant word, but it certainly does rhyme with well!)
There are times when your laughter will heartily ring,
Though you'll say no doubt, "This is the SILLIEST thing——!
But remember this team is supposed to be silly.
Were they otherwise one wouldn't care for them, really.
(Rilly!)
And it's good for what ails us to can all our guile
And relax and be idiots—once in a while.



GEORGE SIDNEY
is one of the causes for mirth.

(There are, of course, many who are just naturally relaxed all of the time. Wonder how it feels!

HURRIED ANSWERS TO "VOICE OF THE FAN": "YOU should know, Miss Tinée!")
My poem is ended. Mid pæans of thanksgiving?
O, well, you have read it—and still you are living.
Suppose every Sunday YOU'D this space to fill!
Suppose!—and forgive!—and just swallow this pill.

Bits aBOUTem.

MANY OF YOU have written this week asking about the ending of the picture "Love." You saw it downtown and it had a sad ending. You saw it uptown and the finish was a happy one. Most of your letters had a baffled tone. Quite evidently you thought there was something the matter with you, and that you had, as the saying goes, been "seeing things."

Nothing of the kind, alannas. Here's the explanation—culled from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials:

"Love" was originally made with the ending like the one in the book, "Anna Karenina," from which the picture was adapted. But certain exhibitors set up a howl. "Our people won't STAND for a sad ending!" they cried. "We won't be able to do any business with that picture unless you let things turn out all right finally for Greta Garbo and John Gilbert."

SO—another ending was made. Now "Love" obligingly caters to the community where it is being shown. Patrons who like strong meat on their screens and revel in welling teardrops, behold the choochoo train do its ultimate to poor Greta. Those who insist that life in the movies they see must be a continual spring song, tra la, are treated to the sight of John and Greta about to be "happy forever after."

And that is the that about the two endings of "Love."

* *

THERE IS A NEW MOVEMENT toward realistic looking men in the movies. The handsome Latin types who were going to "succeed Valentino" have folded their tents and are willy nilly slinking away because the box office says folks don't want 'em no mo'. The day of the so-handsome movie hero seems gone forever. Good looks are no particular asset nowadays for the male hunting a screen job. The ideal candidate for screen honors, according to King Vidor, the director, is the young fellow who looks like the average, normal youth of the day and whose talents are those of real acting ability.

It's the truth. Gary Cooper, George Bancroft, James Murray, Lane Chandler, Richard Arlen have no romantic beauty, but HAVEN'T they just forged into the public eye and favor!

PATHE-DE MILLE has a "gag" woman. Her name is Beth Brown; she was formerly a Follies girl, and William De Mille has engaged her for work on "Tenth Avenue," which he is directing. Miss Brown is said to be the first woman engaged solely for suggesting gags and comedy for a picture in course of production.

* *

AN ALL-NEGRO FEATURE is being made by Dunbar Productions at the Vitagraph studio in Brooklyn. Says Variety: "The high light is a scene wherein an irate and long suffering wife horsewhips her no-count husband. This scene has been done before in other Negro pictures and is always a business-getter for the colored houses, of which there are over seven hundred in the United States."

The colored audiences like to see the villain get his retribution in large, liberal doses.

FIRST NATIONAL is discussing a new contract with Richard Barthelmess—he to get a salary increase of $1,000 a week. The star asks that he be allowed authority on selection of story, director, and casts, and that he have his unit separate from executive supervision by studio officials. (Buy-buy, pretty baby!)

See you tomorrow!

The Al Smith Question Mark

By Clifford Raymond.

IT will not have much import if Al Smith is nominated and defeated. That will mean that the voters whose decision controls the electoral college either by a majority or a plurality do not want Al Smith for President. They may not want him for one or any number of reasons, possibly merely because he is a Democrat.

Being a Democrat was sufficient to keep Davis, Cox, Parker, and Bryan (three times) from being President. It has been enough to keep all but two Democrats in 68 years from getting to the White House.

It will not shatter precedent, astonish politics, or perplex the electorate if Al Smith is nominated and defeated. The significance will be in the Democratic convention which does or does not nominate him and in the reasons which control. Gov. Smith's candidacy before the convention may ask if there are unwritten disqualifications in American citizenship. Defeat in the convention may answer it. The answer may imply, suggest, or confess "yes."

It may be, in the opinion of politicians controlling the nominations, that candidates are qualified or disqualified by their religious beliefs, and that the emotions of the voters have added an unwritten abridgment to a principle of their government and liberties.

It may be in actual political procedure that faith or lack of faiths fits or unfits in the prevailing opinion of a nominating convention. It is true of the agnostic and certainly true of the atheist. No man could say to the American electorate that he was unable, with all respect for religious faiths, beliefs, and institutions, to bring himself to any faith or belief and be elected President. In his unfaith he might even be passive and unhappy. He could not make his confession and be elected. No convention would nominate him. Agnostics may have been in the White House, but they did not declare their lack of faith. They may have included Washington, Jefferson, and Jackson. There might have been greater possibilities of political success for an old style free thinker in Washington's day than now. It was the time of Tom Paine and the French revolution. However, Washington was a churchgoer. Jefferson was called an atheist by his enemies. Lincoln's religious experiences were not all orthodox. Jackson's acceptance of a creed was almost a death bed decision.

Now the candidate goes to church, and no free thinking one would dare clear his conscience by a frank statement of his religious doubts, if he had any. He conforms to some faith.

To this extent religion is a qualifying factor in the United States. It gets its validity from the instinct, conscience, and tradition of the people. But, to go further, is it probable that a major party would nominate a Jew, whatever his philanthropies, public service, purity of life, patriotism, intelligence and public usefulness might be? The supposition is no. There has never been such a candidate before a national convention. No such candidacy has been considered by the man or by the party.

Al Smith is conceded to be the leading Democratic candidate in the United States today. He may be outranked by a half dozen men in the party for qualifications which might be important but which seem not to be, qualifications which pertain to mind and manner—by Bruce and Ritchie of Maryland, Glass and Swanson of Virginia, Reed of Missouri, Walsh of Montana. Smith may be inferior to some in the mental dressing which is supposed to be required in statesmanship, in the conception of doctrine and the application of it to the life, but he outranks them all in present day political requisites. He is a great executive in public office. He is a liberal, although Tammany raised. He is a wet, although striving to be constitutional and legal. He is a Catholic.

Although the ranking candidate, he might not be nominated because he opposes Volsteadism. That is a question of policy in which a party is expected to decide. If Smith were rejected as a wet, there would be no other significance than that the Democratic party did not hold against prohibition, whether for principle or for expediency. In either case the party would be proceeding according to accepted ideas of proper political action. The party is both wet and dry. The men who have nominating power in the north are for the most part against the Volstead act and are willing to declare themselves against it. That doesn't work in the south, not owing to any difference in beverage tastes north and south but to other influences. One is the Negro. Another is the character of the religious control.

Volstead is a real issue in the Democratic party, full of explosives, but the partisans may not be as irreconcilable as they seem. Smith is held responsible for the repeal of the New York enforcement act, but he declares his adherence to the federal act. His candidacy in the convention can be backed by the promise to give as strict enforcement of the law as could be expected of any Republican or of any dry Democrat. That the promise wouldn't be believed, either by the drys or the wets, would be of no consequence if the Democratic politicians north and south wanted to believe it. Do they want to believe it in the south? There is a good deal of evidence that they do. They think Smith offers the one possible chance of winning. And they want to win. They have nothing but husks which were on the corn of the Wilson administration. It's useless to tell them that any Democratic President would be a bad President. A dry Republican gets them nothing. Wet or dry, a Democratic President is a Democrat, with consideration for the family.

A dry Democratic candidate who produces a dry Republican President makes prohibition a costly principle for southern politicians. They would like to believe that Al Smith could satisfy their people with his sincerity in pledging Volstead act enforcement and upholding of the eighteenth amendment.

If the southern party leaders tell the northern party leaders they cannot accept Smith because of the Volstead act, the northerners in the convention will not believe them. They are convinced that the south will vote for any Democratic candidate. They do not believe the south will bolt a winner because he is opposed to the Volstead act. They will say that Al Smith is unacceptable to the south because of his religion and that they will not tolerate this declaration of ineligibility in the Democratic party. They might tell the south that if the party will not take Smith it might as well nominate no one; it might as well recognize its incongruity as a party and divide into its consistent parts, one dry, agricultural and committed to the doctrine of religious qualification, the other industrial, urban and insistent on constitutional qualifications.

* *

In considering a question which may challenge the theory of tolerance in the United States, it is fair to observe that for the most part religious qualifications have been as little considered in practice as they are in law. New York has not made a point of Al Smith's church. Chicago elects a Catholic mayor and then a Protestant mayor. Illinois elected a Catholic governor without giving the matter a thought. In spite of the Kluxers the general tendency of political action in the various units, even as large as states, is to give this irrelevant political issue its proper avoidance. That is not a universal rule, but it wins more adherence than it suffers fractures.

Would the south vote for an eastern metropolitan wet Catholic candidate for President, nominated by a Democratic convention? The guess is yes. Possibly with protests, quivers and quakes. Possibly with false starts in the direction of the Republican party, but in the end, yes.

The Republican party recognizes Negro political equalitarianism, and when that subject is raised everything else is a flat tire in the south. Would the south turn to a party which recognizes Negro judges, Negro aldermen, and Negro legislators, and do so merely because southerners did not like a Democratic candidate's ideas of sumptuary law and his church affiliation? It seems at least unlikely.

Prosperity Restores David Belasco's Art

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Chevalier David Belasco, who has not been doing so very well with recent productions, appears to have recovered a little ground, financially, with a comedy called "The Bachelor Father." If it isn't a hit it is giving a fearfully good and quite promising imitation of one. It went to capacity figures Wednesday night and held that pace the rest of the week.

Not, please understand, that financial success has anything in common with the art of the drama. Except to the extent that if the play is not a success the producer goes out of business, and his art passes out with him.

Edward Childs Carpenter wrote "The Bachelor Father." You probably remember him best as the arch-sentimentalist who gave you "The Cinderella Man" some seasons back. He is pretty keen for the sweet and pretty, the wholesome and trivial. But he does know his public and when he hits it he hits it hard.

JUNE WALKER
plays Toni in "The Bachelor Father."
[Florence Vandamm Photo.]

In this piece he has taken the familiar Cinderella theme, crossed it with the Peg o' My Heart motive and brought them both nearer to the modern heart's desire. Or, at least, the modern generation's desire.

He tells you the story of old Sir Basil Winterton of Rooksfold House, come upon gouty and grouchy days in his sixties and suddenly concerned about the illegitimate progeny he has scattered over the world.

A lusty but honorable old stag is Sir Basil. He has taken good care of his mistresses, keeping them all these years properly card-indexed and provided for. Now he feels that he would like to have a look at his little—eh—his little improper relations.

So Sir Basil sends his solicitor first to Kate Trent in Manchester, and asks her to let Geoffrey, their son, visit the father he never has known.

And then to the Signora Biana Credaro, whom he had met at the stage door of La Scala, to ask her if she will permit little Maria, their daughter, to visit a papa who is really interested in her future.

And, finally, to look up the residence of Antoinette Flagg, one-time headliner in American vaudeville and so proud she would never accept help from Sir Basil, even after little Antoinette was born.

* *

Sir Basil Meets His Family.

Within a month the three little illegitimates are gathered at Rooksfold, and agreed to give Sir Basil a chance to prove to them that he is worthy of being a father.

Of course he thinks them all fine—Geoffrey an upstanding lad (and why shouldn't he be, considering his parentage?); and Maria a dainty little singer who is bound to be a great soprano, like her mother (which is natural; isn't her father musical, too?) and Toni——

Well, Toni is more difficult. She has practically brought herself up on New York's East Side. She has a job as a telephone operator and is self-supporting and self-respecting. But she is also self-willed and outrageously slangy. Fresh, in fact. Thinks nothing of telling Sir Basil where he gets off and when and why. But a likable minx. Stubborn, yes. (Wasn't her father?) But ever so lovable.

Another month and the amusingly disrespectful offspring have Lord Fauntleroyed the old gentleman, put him back on his tennis and given him something worth growing young for. And then, for the sake of the drama, he must suffer a few of the minor tragedies of parenthood as well.

Maria gets a job in an opera company and leaves him. Geoffrey turns out to be the son of an army officer. Mother was only fooling Sir Basil about him. And Toni not only tries to smash herself up in an airplane, but finishes by marrying Sir Basil's solicitor.

"You'll have to hand us this," Toni tells her father when he reluctantly consents to her marriage; "it's the only wedding we've ever had in this family."

The second act, full of bold and spicy intimacies and healthy laughs, is the play's strength. June Walker plays Toni as well as Laurette Taylor played Peg, which I submit as high praise, and Geoffrey Kerr is the young solicitor. C. Aubrey Smith is the Sir Basil, Rex O'Malley and Adriana Dori the other kids.

The Moralists Recoup.

The most interesting drama of the week, as so often happens, occurred off-stage. I refer to the closing of the play, "Maya," by the police censors, which happened much as it was predicted it would last Sunday in these columns.

Few of us have any use for censors of the drama, nor any faith in their methods as a cure. You cannot, as has been proved rather conclusively the last thousand decades, legislate an urge for decency into the minds of either morons, or so-styled intellectuals. Nor sweep such minds clean of an urge toward indecency by any other process than education.

The self-appointed moralists of each generation merely pass the buck to their successors of the next generation in preference to accepting the responsibility of attempting a cure. Education is a slow process and evolution is slower. And moralists, impertinently assuming a divine prerogative, refuse to wait.

But just the same I did have to chortle a bit at the surprise this particular clamping down of a censorship gave the show folk and their managers.

They have, as you know, been literally thumbing their noses at the lawmakers and would-be censors for years.

ENGLISH WITHOUT A DON'T POSSESSIVE WITH GERUND

By Wallace Rice.

FOR more than a century grammarians stated that the possessive must never be used with verbs in "-ing"; for the last fifty they have been stating that only the possessive shall be used; grammarians are like that.

Bishop Lowth in 1762 called the use of the possessive "particularly offensive." Gould Brown in 1851 condemned "There is a possibility of some ignorant readers' confounding the two," and sums up "Possessives before participles are seldom to be used."

George R. Carpenter's Grammar (1906) says: "The noun or pronoun must be in the possessive."

All this time the great writers were using one or the other, as they preferred. They knew, at least, that "I am surprised at Smith playing" and "I am surprised at Smith's playing" do not mean the same thing.

Fowler points out that "Women having the vote reduces men's political power" isn't good English, while "Women's having the vote" makes it right.

J. Leslie Hall notes that "Have you ever heard of this being done" can't be made into "this's." Yet, "that's being done" is not unusual. He further notes that intervening words make the possessive impossible, as in "Have you heard of Smith, the carpenter, being injured; of Smith, of Tammany Hall, being killed; of Smith, who used to pitch, being hurt?"

As a matter of common sense, the schoolmasters have been wrong in condemning either. Sometimes "I thought of him doing it" is best; sometimes "I thought of his doing it." Good writers use whichever they wish, knowing that the two do not always mean the same, as is plain.

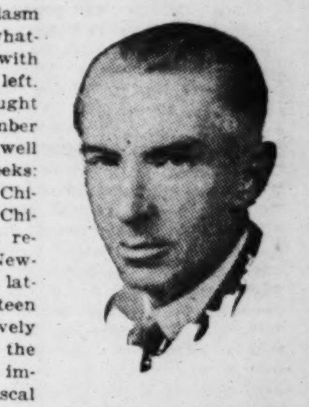
This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

MR. JOLSON'S inserting himself into "A Night in Spain" classifies among what are known in New-York as "events of the week." Also, it classifies as an interesting example of hair-trigger showmanship: the arrangement was made Friday by telephone when the Messrs. Shubert had convinced themselves that Phil Baker was out of sorts, if nothing worse, and had dropped his enthusiasm for playing his accordion or whatever it is called while kidding with Mr. Silvers in the box to his left. "A Night in Spain" was brought into the Four Cohans in November in the hope that it would do well for six or, at most, eight weeks: "Good News," made ready for Chicago, was within easy hail had Chicago been gelid or even tepid regarding the show from the New-York Winter Garden. But the latter has held up through fifteen weeks, and has been lucratively liked for just what it is; and the coming of Mr. Jolson will be immensely interesting in its fiscal aspects. To say that he is the most highly-paid entertainer in all the world today is not an exaggeration or a thoughtless echo of Rialto chatter. He has but to raise his finger to go into the hip-hip-hurrah movie-houses at a minimum of $20,000 weekly. 'Tis true that such employment would mean for him four appearances a day seven days a week, as against eight or nine times a week as the head of a song-and-dance show; but, who else may get $20,000 for a week's work of, at the most, thirty hours in the theater? Caruso, in one of his infrequent tours in recital, may have had that much income one or two weeks; and it is not improbable that John McCormack, or Chaliapin, or Galli-Curci, or Kreisler, or Paderewski may have had a personal net in that sum two or three times. But none of them took it from one city in a week.



WILLIAM HODGE
He'll be back next week in "Straight Through the Door."

* *

Better Late Than Not at All.

It has taken until now for a playwright to make use of "Companionate Marriage" as a title. Jane Ball, whoever she may be, has caught up with the topic, however: a piece ascribed to her and called by that name is to be exhibited tomorrow night (in what the invitation-cards call a "world-premier") in the Evanston Theater, which, oddly enough, is in Evanston.

Miscellany.

George M. Cohan, who recently gave up his rôle therein to Henry E. Dixey, is to resume it tomorrow night, when the piece is given in Philadelphia. He has been expected to take up an incidental part in his new comedy of "Whispering Friends," concerning which he and Haywood Broun, of the New-York World, have been having controversy. Mr. Cohan, using the newspaper-ads of the play as his medium of circulation, has overlooked little concerning Mr. Broun—not even the minor fact that the latter, eager for a stage-career, joined the actors' union and tried to do a comic monologue in a revue.

Harry Lauder's engagement in New-York, timidly booked for two weeks, lasted six. . . . He is still a tentative booking for the week of April 2 in Chicago.

Mr. Arliss, having exhibited his Shylock in New-York eight weeks, goes on tour in the rôle; but he will not reach Chicago this season.

"His Blossom-Bride" is the name of something new by Richard Watson Tully, who took in a great deal of money from the trash called "The Bird of Paradise," although it was eventually decided by a Federal court that he was not the author. The piece has its locale among the Hopi tribe of Indians in the Painted Desert; and thirty of these storied redmen, 'tis told, will help to make whoopee in the performances.

Mr. Belasco, who hasn't had much luck in recent seasons, seems to have a popular success in "The Bachelor Father," dealing comically with the theme of casual and illicit paternity. . . . Chatter is that the piece was so much of a good-thing in the experimental performances that Mr. Belasco turned to the chore of writing a piece that is to bear his name as author. I don't even smile nowadays when told that Mr. Belasco is writing a play: the information merely means that he is helping somebody else fix up a play written by that or another somebody else.

More Miscellany.

John Cromwell is said to be the fellow for the principal rôle in one of the forthcoming plays about newspapers, "Gentlemen of the Press."

"Kidding Kidders" (and that's not a good title) is something new based by Steve Champlain, said to be important in the varieties, on a story by the late Frederick Isham, who provided the plot and idea for "Nothing But the Truth."

The play tentatively listed for April 22 in the Adelphi, "Babes in the Wood," was at first credited to Kenyon Nicholson, author of "The Barker," and S. N. Behrman, author of "The Second Man": now it is said to be Mr. Nicholson's only. . . . And there appears to be some sort of a hitch in the matter of having Richard Bennett act in "The Barker" in London. The cast of which he is the star is to end its American activities this week, after a "season" that began in mid-April of last year, and carried right through the Summer in Chicago.

Although he cabled from London, following the première of "The Trial of Mary Dugan," that there were thirty "calls" for the actors and that the occasion had all the indicia of a success, A. H. Woods added that he feared the run there would not be longer than two years.

Mrs. Fiske, Miss Crosman, and Mr. Skinner are to have a go at Manhattan with their revival of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," which was Yuletide diversion in the Illinois.

Philadelphia, from all accounts, gave a great week at the box-office to Mr. Tyler's revival of "She Stoops to Conquer," with Miss Pauline Lord's name added to the roster, although she merely reads Garrick's prologue to the farce, and is not in the cast.

George Jessel, through at length with "The Jazz-Singer," says he is to perform next season in "Salute!" something of which he is co-author.

"Black Belt," a piece about Negroes, is expected to be among the new things tried out in the impending Springtime. It has to do with the woes and the joys of a family moving from the South to Harlem and seeking to adjust itself to existence in the faubourg made famous by Carl Van Vechten.

George Kelly's "Behold the Bridegroom!" is through in New-York, where it didn't click at the ticket-window, but is to be tried on tour. . . . The author, a bit discomfited by popular attitude toward this piece and "Daisy Mayme," staged last season, is said to be going into seclusion abroad long enough to think things over. And, as I see it, a chap who has written "The Show-Off" and "Craig's Wife" may have pleasant thoughts even after two flops.

Prosperity Restores David Belasco's Art

By Burns Mantle.

A play of questionable morals is produced, the moralists attack, the papers spread the news, the district attorney threatens to take action, the police are called, the producers are arrested, they sue out an injunction, the price of seats jumps, and the theater is crowded for weeks pending decision upon appeal and counter appeals.

That is the way it has been happening. But not this time. Last year a moralist representative named Wales slipped a theater "padlock" law through the New York legislature which permits the police to order the closing of any play in which may occur even A SINGLE LINE, characterization or scene which, in the belief of the district attorney, tends to corrupt youth.

When "Maya" was produced not a single newspaper reviewer suggested its suppression. Most of them saw beauty in the play's symbolism, but much that was ugly, depressing and dull in its exposition. And each and every one of them reported, for the guidance of his readers, that it was the story of a prostitute commercially engaged in the pursuit of her profession in the seaport of Marseilles.

The next night Assistant District Attorney Wallace and Secretary Jimmie Sinnott of the police department, who used to be a newspaper man himself, visited the performance of "Maya." The next day Mr. Wallace told the producers of the play that unless it was withdrawn he would proceed against it; that he was positive of a conviction under the new law and that he would close the theater for a year if he secured a verdict.

Play Withdrawn.

This padlock threat dragged in Manager Lee Shubert, returned suddenly from Palm Beach, and he went to see the play. There was sheer beauty in it, said Mr. Shubert, but he thought they had better close. And close they did last Saturday. Nor will they reopen in another theater. Why? Because the padlock law has been made so effective, apparently, that they are afraid, not only of having their theater closed, but of the prompt arrest of any and all parties connected with any attempted revival of the banned play.

Here, then, is what amounts to a legal and political censorship of the stage, which countless societies have fought for for years, so quietly put into effect as to have been almost secret. And the producers, whose open and sly defiances are responsible for it, stand aghast, open mouthed, and muddle brained before it.

I do have to laugh a little at that. The expressions on their faces are too funny for words. And the words they utter in hysterical protest are nothing but sound and fury.

Fortunately those of us who have been shouting the last ten years that this is what would happen are too polite to run up and down Broadway yelling, "We told you so!" and this is helping to hold the homicidal records of the town down to normal.

Guy Bates Post Returns.

Guy Bates Post, who used to play "The Masquerader" and "Omar, the Tentmaker," has been in Australia for years. Now he is back and has brought a terrible melodrama called "The Wrecker" with him. Where he picked it up I have no idea. But I can guess pretty safely where he will drop it. In some friendly storehouse eventually. It is a wild tale of a mad railroad man who blows up favorite trains on schedule and a Scotland Yard heroine's chase of him. Not quite bad enough to be funny, nor good enough to be exciting.

We also have the colored boys, Miller and Lyles, back on 63d street with a successor to "Shuffle Along," which they call "Keep Shuffling." Lively, and spotted with Negro comedy, with a hot or humming song stuck in every few minutes. "Give Me the Sunshine" is one. "I'm Just Wild About Harry" and "Love Will Find a Way" are others.

My Best Joke

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned. Address Best Jokes Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

That Explains It.

"I'll bet you," said the humorist, "that I can make trees fall by telling them jokes."

"All right, we'll see if you can," answered his companion.

And so they went into a forest. The humorist told a joke near a hickory tree, and immediately after the tree broke in two and fell. Another joke felled a maple tree. He stood near a stately tree and told a joke, but the tree remained standing. He told another and still the tree remained. Finally he became disgusted and the two left the forest.

About four o'clock a great report came from the forest and, hurrying to the scene, they found the tree broken in two and part of it lying on the ground.

It was an English walnut tree.

Now and to Come in City Theaters

THIS is the calendar for the Chicago theaters as indicated by the resident-managers down to midnight of Friday last. Change of plans since last Sunday's issue has been made with respect to some of the houses:

"Dancing Mothers" in the Kedzie: the piece about the rebellious wife of a faithless husband given two years ago in the Selwyn and the La Salle. It had a season's run in New-York. . . . This afternoon, for the week.

"Africana," with Miss Ethel Waters, in the Adelphi: a Negro show that is said to have the merits of good singers, good dancers, and speed. . . . Opens tonight.

¶ ¶ ¶

Miss Katharine Cornell in "The Letter" in the Olympic: W. Somerset Maugham's dramatization of his like-named short story with the actress of Iris in "The Green Hat" as the faithless wife who kills her lover. . . . Opens tomorrow night.

¶ ¶ ¶

"'Camille' in Roaring Camp" in the Goodman Memorial: the younger Dumas' most celebrated play in an old-time English version performed for the laughs in a setting showing the big saloon and dance-hall of a mining-camp in 1849, with the miners, gamblers, dance-hall girls, et al. comprising the stage-audience. Fairish fooling. . . . To be given through this week, with Ibsen's "The Vikings" bulletined for the 20th.

¶ ¶ ¶

"Juno and the Paycock," with the Irish Players, in the Blackstone: Sean O'Casey's comedy of Dublin tenement-house life in the days of the gunplay between the Free State troops and the Die-Hards, acted to the nines by Mr. Sinclair, Miss Allgood, Mr. Morgan, Miss O'Neill, and others of this superb ensemble. If the play, itself, fall somewhat short of the greatness attributed to it by the British press at the time of its London première, it is nonetheless a moving and a powerful work; and the performance is among the good things that every true lover of drama and of the theater ought to see. . . . Second and final week of the comedy, and fourth and final week of the Dublin actors.

"Savages Under the Skin" in the Central: something picked with a view of pleasing the special clientèle of this theater. . . . Second week.

"Excess Baggage" in the Garrick: a colorful and effective piece about the small-time performers in what they call vawdavill, well acted and well staged, with James Spottswood, Frank Beaston, Miss Ethel Wilson, Miss Julie Ring, and Alexander Clark (jr.) in good characterizations. . . . Third week in Chicago.

¶ ¶ ¶

"Good News" in the Selwyn: a song-and-dance piece that has been one of the try-to-get-in successes of Manhattan since back in September, given here by a second cast. The performance is fleet and effective. . . . Fourth week.

¶ ¶ ¶

"The Silver Cord," with Miss Laura Hope Crews, in the Studebaker: a good and a witty comedy by Sidney Howard. Excellently acted by Miss Crews and Miss Elisabeth Risdon. . . . Sixth week.

¶ ¶ ¶

"Wooden Kimono" in the Cort: a who-done-it piece that is, perhaps, as good as most of, if not all of, the other who-done-it pieces. . . . Sixth week.

¶ ¶ ¶

Earl Carroll's Vanities in the Illinois: fourth show bearing this name to be given in Chicago. Julius Tannen, Moran and Mack, and Johnny Dooley are funny. . . . Eighth week.

Miss Ethel Barrymore in "The Constant Wife" in the Harris: a brilliant comedy by Mr. Maugham wherein this actress has her most popular conveyance since "Déclassée." . . . Twelfth week.

¶ ¶ ¶

"A Night in Spain" in the Four Cohans: a funny show from the New-York Winter Garden, with Al Jolson, Miss Aileen Stanley, and Ted Healy heading the long roster of performers. . . . Sixteenth week.

"The Desert-Song" in the Great Northern. . . . Twenty-eighth week.

* *

Impending.

"Diplomacy," in George C. Tyler's revival, in the Blackstone. . . . Opens March 19.

William Hodge in "Straight Through the Door" in the Princess. . . . Opens March 19.

"The Vikings" in the Goodman Memorial. . . . Opens March 20.

"Honeymoon Lane," with Eddie Dowling, in the Erlanger. . . . Opens March 25.

Miss Beatrice Lillie in "She's My Baby!" in the Illinois. . . . Opens March 26.

"She Stoops to Conquer," in Mr. Tyler's revival, in the Blackstone. . . . Opens April 2.

Harry Lauder: theater not named. . . . Opens April 2.

"Don't Count Your Chickens!" with Miss Mary Boland, in the Harris. . . . Opens April 8.

"Four Walls" in the Adelphi. . . . Opens April 8.

"Sidewalks of New-York," with Miss Ray Dooley, in the Woods. . . . Opens April 8.

Balieff's Chauve-Souris in the Olympic. . . . Opens April 8.

"Babes in the Wood," with Owen Davis (jr.), in the Adelphi. . . . Opens April 22.

Winthrop Ames' revival of Gilbert and Sullivan's operettas in the Studebaker. . . . Opens April 23.

"Billy" for Forty Years.

SIR: Thank you for that appreciation this morning of the late Billy Crane! He was "Billy" to me for forty years. You must have known him better than "slightly through a long time"; for you "caught" him. Like you, I always had the wish that all actors might be like him—and I, myself, am an actor.

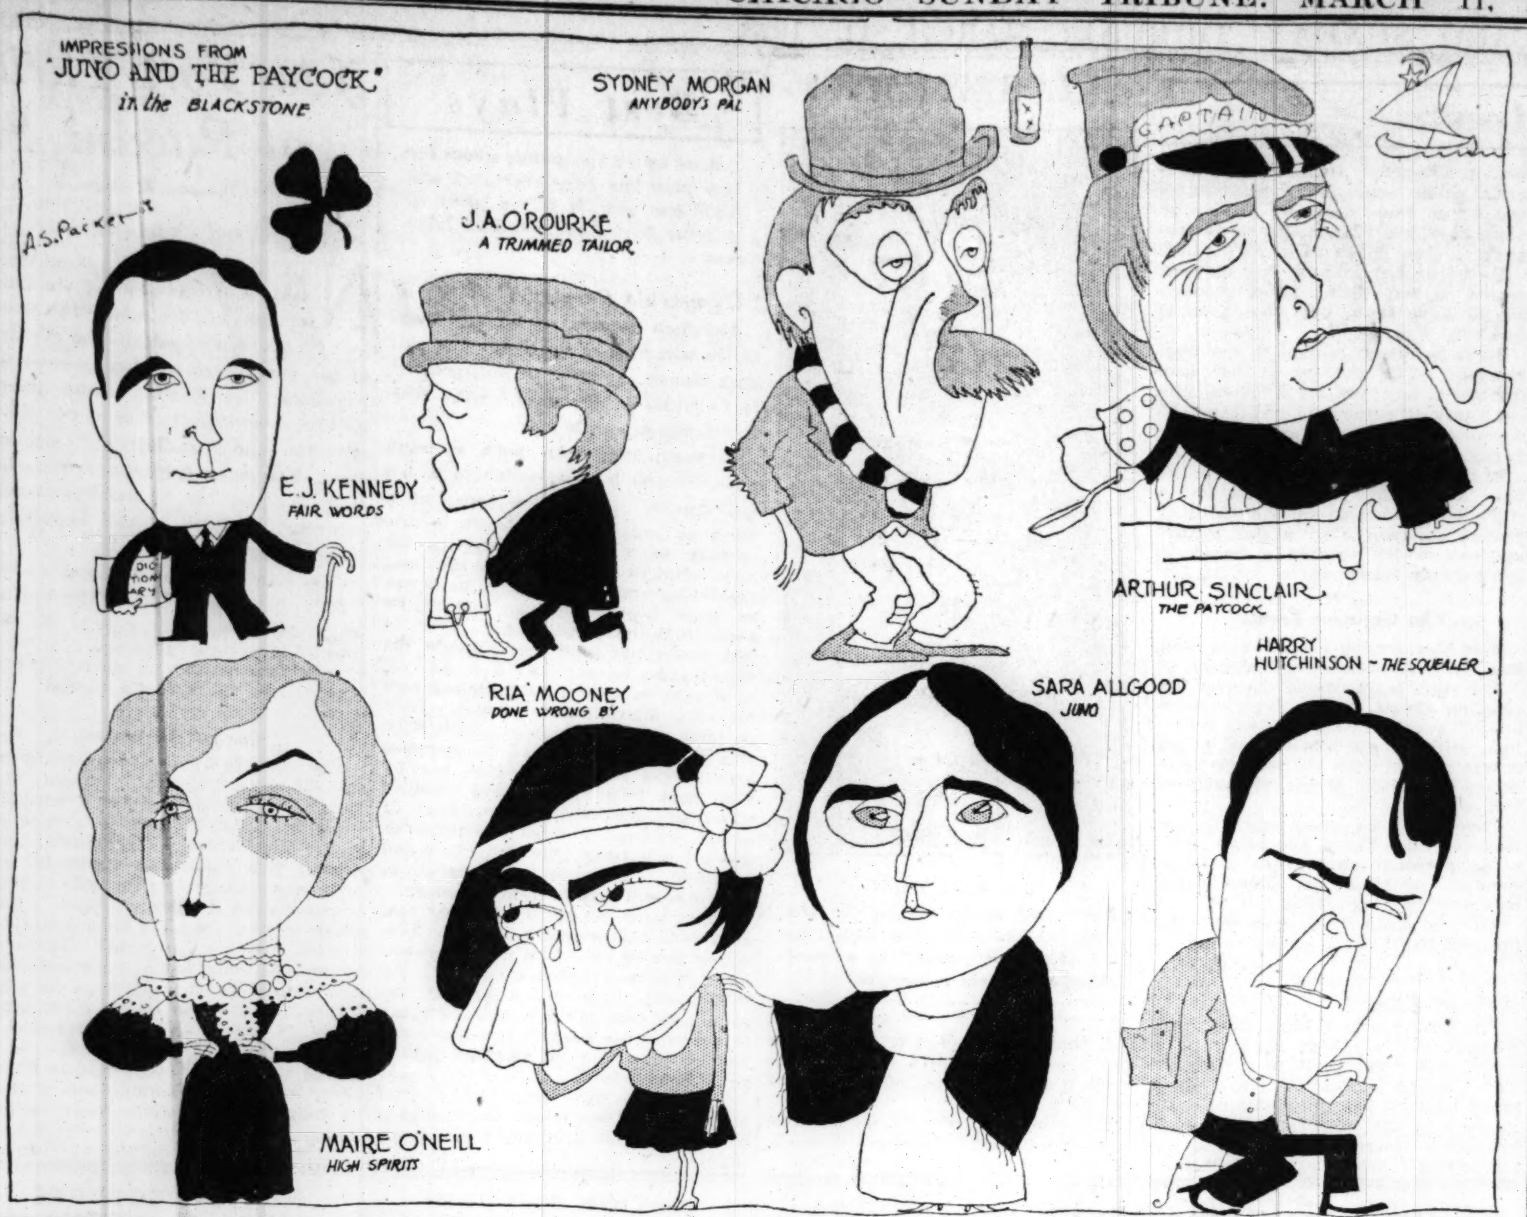
Chicago: March 8, 1928.



Raising Singers for Comic Opera

By Figaro McGee.

READING that Grace Moore, a pleasant and placid young soprano who sang unimportant music nicely in the Chicago showing of the last issue of the Music-Box Revue, had gone into the Metropolitan Opera, I've taken to wonder at the small crop of competent singers developed in what can justly be called a renaissance of operetta in the United States. As has been pointed out more than once by F. D. in THE TRIBUNE in the last twelve years, we stopped raising comic-opera singers back in the Mauve Decade, when that form of diversion lost its hold on popular fancy, and was succeeded by what has ever since been called by the absurd name of "musical comedy," starting, perhaps, with the importation of the early London Gaiety samples, "A Gaiety Girl," "The Shop-Girl," "An Artist's Model," and "The Geisha."

It wasn't that any of those pieces was too successful here. Indeed, all save "The Geisha" were abominably cast in this country with players who would have been regarded as merely fair in the English provinces, where ten dollars is still a great deal of salary to the rank-and-file performers in Shakspere, in comedy, in farce, and in the song-and-dance shows. But the public here evinced a sudden weariness with old-line operetta, wherein the hero was always a tenor and the villain a baritone, the comedian had a "topical song" with innumerable verses of doggerel, and the mise-en-scène had to do, nine times in ten, with, Act I, courtyard of the Lion Inn and, Act II, grand ballroom in the ducal palace. When the operetta ran into three acts, the favorite locale for that would be a grove by moonlight.

¶ ¶ ¶

However, it was wellnigh always possible easily to cast such pieces with competent, able performers. Most of the low-comedians could sing the music falling to them. Indeed, of the first-flight comics of the 'Eighties and 'Nineties, only Francis Wilson and James T. Powers were voiceless. De Wolf Hopper, Edwin Stevens, Digby Bell, Charles H. Drew, and Fred Leslie had good voices, and knew something about the art of singing. Tenors were scarce: that is, tenors who could sing, who could act passably, and who were not effeminate in speech. Johann Strauss, Von Suppé, and some of the other Continental composers wrote the lovers' rôles for sopranos, so scarce were adequate tenors. Look back, and you'll find that the "leading juvenile" of such classics as "Fatinitza," "Boccaccio," "The Queen's Lace Handkerchief," "Prince Methusalem," and others was a girl in tights.

We've been importing operetta and making a stab at writing it with increasing energy ever since, in 1907, "The Merry Widow" was a world-craze; yet, the problem of casting an operetta is not much easier today than it was twenty-one years ago in the case of Lehar's masterpiece. The Shuberts, who have gone in heavily for operetta, seem forced to transfer their singers from one piece into another for New-York, sending seconds and thirds on tour. In the matter of romantic rôles, but one outstanding performer has been developed—Dennis King; and he owes his eminence less to high qualities as a singer than to his facility in fussing up a rôle, as in "The Vagabond King," so as to make it seem of vast dramatic importance. Here in Chicago this season, Alexander Gray is come into popularity in "The Desert-Song," although he has been an annual visitor for some seasons without, as we used to say, getting even a tumble from the populace.

Vivienne Segal, according to F. D., is the most competent singer among all the young women recently heard here in operetta; but she is hardly a box-office riot. Apart from her, who else possesses what can justly be called an identity for the average theatergoer? If you answer Evelyn Herbert, I may reply that she is come into the operettas out of opera—that her training had the Metropolitan and the Chicago Auditorium in mind.

Certainly, nobody is come up to take the place Fritzi Scheff gained in "Mlle. Modiste" twenty-two years ago. Nobody to hold the popular fancy as Lillian Russell did through three generations of theater-goers. Nobody capable as Pauline Hall, Marion Manola, Lillian Grubb, Fay Templeton, Marie Jansen were capable. Winthrop Ames, giving three of Gilbert and Sullivan's pieces in revival, has a cast that contains not a name of especial meaning to theater-goers who haven't yet seen his performances.

We've been since 1907 raising singers from operetta; but the crops have been slim and weedy.

AS HEROINE

MISS MILDRED BROWN

She's in "Good News," wherein she has the rôle of Constance, the humble maiden who undertakes to prepare the hero for qualification as captain of the Eleven by quizzing him in astronomy. . . . Miss Brown was, earlier in the season, here in "Queen-High."

New in Manhattan

"Twelve Thousand," by Bruno Frank, with Basil Sydney and Miss Mary Ellis. . . . The play, of German origin, has to do with the Hessians hired by Great Britain to help fight against the American colonials in the Revolution. The scene is Germany. Mr. Sydney and Miss Ellis have been performing since October in "The Taming of the Shrew" "in modern dress," and have, from all accounts, been doing pretty well at cut-rates.

¶ ¶ ¶

"The Three Musketeers," from the elder Dumas' romance by William Anthony Maguire, P. G. Wodehouse, Clifford Grey, and Rudolf Friml, with Dennis King, Miss Vivienne Segal, Lester Allen, Miss Vivienne Osborne, Reginald Owen, Joseph Macauley, and Miss Yvonne d'Arle. . . . Reports from Boston are that it is a good operetta, although Friml's score is "heavy." The venture is Mr. Ziegfeld's.

"Killers," by Louis E. Bisch and Howard Merling, with Harold Vermilyea and Miss Beatrice Nichols. . . . Mr. Bisch, of the authorship, is said to be "a famous criminologist."

¶ ¶ ¶

"The Buzzard," by Courteney Savage, with William T. Tilden, Miss Leona Hogarth, Miss Clara Blandick, Leonard Doyle, and Eugene Powers. . . . Mr. Tilden is the tennis crack: his ambition for the stage has led to his making himself absurd in at least two other plays.

¶ ¶ ¶

"Veils," by Irving Kaye Davis, with Miss Hilda Spong, Warren William, Miss Charlotte Granville, and Miss Elsa Skelly.

"King Henry V," in revival by Walter Hampden.

They Sometimes Are.

The newest niche in the taxicab hall of fame is held by Joseph Conrad. Mr. Conrad's favorite stand is around the Metropolitan Opera-House; for he is by way of being an admirer of music and a bit of a critic. As a matter of fact, he took us uptown after a special matinée recently, and said, as we got out: "What did you think of the performance? Personally, I thought some of the singers this afternoon were very much out of voice."—From the New-Yorker.

THE ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

By Fanny Butcher.

For those who do their playgoing in the armchair, or who, having seen a play, relish it again in reading it.

IN NEW YORK.

OF THE week's openings in New York only two may be attended by those of us who live in what the east is wont to call the sticks. And those two are revivals. Bayard Veiller's first success—and the echoes of it still ring in the letters of those who feel impelled to tell the world what play they enjoyed most of all—"Within the Law" has been yanked out of oblivion and with an impressive cast is offered to a generation that takes its thrills with a ho-hum. Read it and weep!

"The Cherry Orchard" is the other revival—one of those famous matinée affairs. If you saw it performed by the Moscow Art Players you saw one of the most stunning of all plays done by one of the most brilliant of all casts. Chekov wrote in it one of the most touching and at the same time most poignant plays of his career. It has been translated many times, and has been read probably by every student of the drama as well as by almost every one who ever heard that there ever was a doctor who turned his scientific knowledge of human beings into dramas of their reactions one to the other. And the number of little theater groups that have "given" "The Cherry Orchard" is like the sands of the sea—a little hard to keep track of. James B. Fagan, who wrote "And So to Bed," has made an English adaptation of the Russian classic.

IN CHICAGO.

Tomorrow evening our prairie town is to be let into the secret of one of the season's most successful New York dramas, "The Letter." If you haven't read it yet, and if you intend going to see Miss Cornell in it, pray wait until after you have given her a chance to give you a thrill before you do read it, because, although it's not actually a mystery play at all, there is, for a little while, some mystery about it. But afterwards, read it, because as I have said before, I believe Somerset Maugham is one of those really skilled playwrights who writes for readers as well as audiences, and even in a play as slight in importance as "The Letter" [and it is one of the least of Mr. Maugham's works] there is a deftness that is delightful. It was made, as you remember, from a short story which was one of the Javanese and far eastern tales in "The Casuarina Tree."

PUBLISHED.

"Theater," edited by Edith J. R. Jacobs, was published before Christmas, but we didn't have an Armchair Playgoer to relish it then. And it is the sort of book that readers will find extremely stimulating. It is composed of essays which have appeared in the Theater Arts Monthly from the pens of some of the best known writers on the theater.

There is nothing commonplace about any of them—either the writers or their subjects—and their articles are all very quick indeed (as opposed not to the slow but to the dead). They are alive with the newest theories of the stage, its settings, its architecture, its lighting, its costumes, the relation of the dance to the theater, the Negro in the new theater, American vaudeville, the theater and the university, and other subjects offered by such people as Stark Young, Sheldon Cheney, Kenneth MacGowan, Alfred Kreymborg, George Pierce Baker, Ruth St. Denis, Irving Pichel, Claude Bragdon, D. H. Lawrence, and Lewis Mumford.

One might almost say that no really earnest armchair playgoer dare refrain from reading it, if he or she yearns for the better life in the theater.

Bartlett Cormack, late of our town, is the author of one of the best crook plays that New York saw this year, "The Racket." The critics were unanimously lyric about it. Read it and see how the other half lives in our Utopian village, where bombs are the calling cards of some of our most prominent citizens.

Vawdavill Verities.

SIR: Thanks for sending me to see "Excess Baggage"! As an old-time business-man of variety-shows, I went, after reading your report on the play, with a sneer, and in the spirit of laughing at a guy who spells Shakespeare Shakspere trying to tell us what's what in facts about variety-stage performers, whom I've known in all their moods, guises, and manifestations. You're right about the play, Sir. It has the thing you've told us used to be called vraisemblance, although that word in a "notice" would have sent the old-time hoofers and sidewalk-talkers and monologue-men to bed with a week's illness. I got a great big kick out of the first act and its chatter, out of the quartet in practice, and out of the "sister act" made up of mother and daughter. (I used to pay that act off with $85 a week: I don't like to use names.) But maybe you didn't know that the slide-for-life has always been done by Japanese—never by Caucasians. The play errs here in having a white performer enjoy celebrity because of doing that stunt, although I know, of course, it makes for the punch at the end.

I'm out of the business now; but it's immense to have lived long enough to see a back-stage play about the variety-theaters getting over with the public.

TUESDAY PAY.

Chicago: March 6, 1928.

William H. Crane.

SIR: There are half a dozen of us in on this letter. We tossed to see who would write it; and I lost—lost in the sense that any of the five others could have made a better job of it. All of us knew the late William H. Crane: two of us acted with him, three of us knew him at the Lambs, and one of us he put on his feet at a time when the world looked like the Hell of a place to be. I recall that, when you wrote something about the late Sam Bernard following his sudden death, somebody wrote in to tell you that an actor had to die to get a good notice from you. Well, after what you wrote today about Mr. Crane, I don't believe that any longer. Crane did more than his share toward trying to make the stage an occupation for a gentleman.

SIX ACTORS.

Chicago: March 8, 1928.

"Split the Difference."

SIR: I like the idea in today's paper about reconciling the pros and the cons on the drama of yesteryear by making one column called Fifteen Years Ago. Let the theater-goers who were naïve ten years ago hold to their illusions, and don't strain the memories of those for whom it is a task to think back two decades. Split the difference.

ALLEN M. DONAHUE.

Chicago, February 26, 1928.

TEN YEARS AGO IN CHICAGO'S THEATERS

From The Tribune of March 10, 1918.

SINCE theater-building is a habit to which Chicago is little addicted, a brief, provincial enthusiasm may be condoned for A. G. Woods and his new house, the Woods, at Randolph and Dearborn. Mr. Woods is known as a showman of many successful enterprises, operating extensively in racy farce, modern melodrama, and character-comedy of the Potash-and-Perlmutter type. He is an intrepid investor in the stage; but his daring is mitigated usually by an intuition which preserves him. That is, he avoids the five percent that is hopelessly good in the theater, and the five percent that is hopelessly bad; and he banks, reluctantly, no doubt, on the ninety percent that is prudently mediocre.

Mr. Woods long since disposed of his share in the theater bearing his name to Aaron A. Jones and associates. Later, he sold his share of the Apollo to the Messrs. Shubert. The Adelphi, which he bought ready-to-wear, he retains.

"Friendly Enemies," the first play for the Woods Theater, comes from the titular Capital, with the plaudits of the President. Other Presidents have successfully engaged in dramatic criticism heretofore, as when Mr. Taft said of Miss Laurette Taylor that she was "cute," and Colonel Roosevelt classified "The Dollar-Mark" as "bully." Mr. Wilson, in his box the other night, arose and said that the theme of "Friendly Enemies" was praiseworthy; and he applauded its illustration by Mr. Woods' actors. In it, Mr. Sam Bernard is a German-American who is more American than German, and Mr. Louis Mann is a German-American who is more German than American.

"Friendly Enemies" was terrible tripe, and the most successful of the plays that sought to turn the war into dollars at the box-office. Its success provided the answer to what was then a problem—what to do in wartime with the so-called "Dutch comedians." The Chicago cast took care of Bernard and Mann; indeed, Mr. Bernard owned part of the venture. Lew Fields found refuge in a Boston cast. Other dialect-men were taken care of in other casts. The play was just the sort of thing Woodrow Wilson could be depended on to like. Audiences soused in the emotions of the period would rise and cheer when Mr. Mann, as a bad German, reformed to the extent of tearing the Kaiser's picture from the wall and substituting Wilson's. Yes: that kind of play. . . . It was "The Man of the Hour" Colonel Roosevelt called bully—not "The Dollar-Mark," which was awful stuff. Mr. Taft, when President, gave approval to "A Gentleman from Mississippi."

Following the expiration of Mr. Warfield's season on April 6, William Courtenay and Thomas A. Wise will be presented at Powers' Theater by Charles Dillingham in "General Post." It is a play of the war, of English authorship, and its leading actress is Miss Olive Tell.

"General Post" was a neat piece of no importance; and it is recalled now for the fact that William Courtenay acted in it as if he believed it to be important. It wasn't successful in this country, although at the time we were Great Britain's ally.

In "The Riviera Girl," which comes March 24 to the Illinois, Miss Wilda Bennett is the prima-donna, and the other players include Miss Juliette Day, Sam B. Hardy, Carl Gantvoort, J. Clarence Harvey, and Miss Marjorie Bentley.

"The Riviera Girl" had a good tune or two in it, and was otherwise commonplace and easily forgotten.

Al Jolson's new contract with the Messrs. Shubert calls for $2,500 weekly and twenty-five percent of the profits, according to the theatrical trade-papers. Mr. Jolson's new extravaganza, "Sinbad," is pronounced the most entertaining of all the Winter Garden shows.

A great deal of money then; and $2,500 a week still is, even without a quarter of the profits. But I've been told of weeks in later years when Mr. Jolson's share has been $25,000, which also is a great deal of money.

Miss Lucille Watson, who plays the naughty widow in "The Naughty Wife" at the Cort, is to be succeeded by Miss Blanche Yurka, over whose acting in Miss Jane Cowl's "Daybreak" a great fuss was made in the East not long ago.

Miss Yurka's acting has never been worth "a great fuss," but has always been better than the general run of acting.

After two years' worried examination of Miss Margaret Mayo's "Twin-Beds," the British censor decides to allow the saucy American farce to be presented in England. Weedon Grossmith is to play in it.

"Twin-Beds" was cheap fun, making a fierce attempt to be dirty. Weedon Grossmith, long since dead, was a somebody of the London stage. He had played in this country with Rosina Vokes, and in New-York in an amusing and unsuccessful piece of his own writing named "The Night of the Party."

20 YEARS AGO

From The Tribune of March 8, 1908.

ARNOLD DALY, erstwhile exponent of Bernard Shaw's plays, will begin an engagement in the Studebaker tonight in a new serious play called "The Rejuvenation." The work is a dramatization of Owen Kildare's book, "Mamie Rose," by the author and Walter Hackett. Those who have read the book will recall it as the story of a man who had been a rat of the slums, a thug, a thief, a prize-fighter, a soldier of fortune, a man who until past thirty could not write his own name, and who was regenerated through a girl in settlement-work. The play is described as a faithful study in Bowery life, intensely absorbing to those intersted in such types of the nether world. Mr. Daly's company includes Chrystal Herne and Helen Ware.

In the Illinois Theater tonight, Richard Carle will present himself as both author and composer in a new musical gambol, "Mary's Lamb." As in the case of "The Spring Chicken," Mr. Carle has Americanized a French farce, this time using "Madame Mongodin." He has laid all the scenes in Haverstraw, (N.-Y.), and made all the characters American. He appears as Leander Lamb, whose wife, Mary Miranda, he describes as his "better three-quarters." Miss Lida McMillan, an old Chicago favorite, appears as Mrs. Lamb; and Miss Jeannette Lowrie, who has appeared here in a number of musical comedies, has the rôle of a dashing actress.

"Mary's Lamb" served Mr. Carle through two seasons. It was a song-and-dance version of a farce used by Stuart Robson and Madame Janauschek under the title of "Mrs. Ponderbury's Past," which in turn had been taken from "Madame Mongodin." . . . Hollywood (Cal.) was given as Mr. Carle's address when THE TRIBUNE last had occasion to look him up. Miss McMillan and Miss Lowrie have long been out of public notice.

"The Honeymooners," a George Cohan musical play Chicago has not seen, comes to the Great Northern Theater for a week, beginning with the matinée today. The new play deals with life in the town of Tigerville (Vt.), and is said to get a lot of comedy out of small-town life. The production is described as elaborate; and the company includes Willie Dunlay (in the rôle formerly played by George M. Cohan), Ida Burt Lawrence, Bessie Marlowe, Maude Morris, Rose Gildes, and Anna O'Neill. There are twenty Cohan musical numbers.

"The Honeymooners" seems, at a distance of twenty years, to belong in an inventory of opera by Mr. Cohan not witnessed by or known to the writer of these memoranda. . . . Mr. Dunlay had in him, managers of the day said, a deal of promise; and he didn't get anywhere of importance.

"The Time, the Place, and the Girl" returns to the La Salle Theater at the matinée today, and will stay two weeks while the resident company goes to Milwaukee to give "The Girl Question" and to prepare "Honeymoon Trail" for presentation here on March 23. The cast is headed by John E. Young, Elizabeth Goodall, and Eulalie Jensen.

"The Time, the Place, and the Girl" was the most successful of the pieces put on in the old La Salle—meaning the theater in the days when Mort H. Singer was its director. It was a compound of many plays, including "Seven Days." The cast called in to give it in the old house was road-worn and weary from many miles of travel, devoted to making money: the show was immensely prosperous on tour. Mr. Young, who had Cecil Lean's original part, was in Chicago last week in "Oh, Kay!" Miss Jensen went into films.

Consult Secretary Mellon.

SIR: What do you think of this idea? 'Tis mine! Let a committee of 500 representative playgoers get up a big banquet to the ticket-brokers, feed 'em well, and then serve them booze that's been officially poisoned by the United States Government. The whole thing would cost $2.50 a plate; and we could safely charge $9—or, if the banquet be Saturday or Sunday, $11, so as to keep things in key. (No war-tax: 'tis for charity.) I am ready to wager I might be elected President after pulling off that benefaction, and with this slogan: "The only good ticket-broker isn't!"

The Voice of the Movie Fan

Can't Always Look Up.

Dear Mae Tinee: O, yes indeed, it is "Good morning"—your nice greeting and outside the day is so clear, so crisp and beautiful, just like—um—Well, yes, I did "meet" you—and—and—then you go and praise "Underworld" and say sumfin about Ben Hecht holding a mirror up to Chicago's gangland. Can he hold up anything so true and bright as a mirror?

Hurrah for the movie magnates that they cut out some of his sordidness, but why waste money and talent in such uninspirational pictures—not a real character in it? I have marveled that his books are printed. There must be printer's ink to waste and those who like mud, morons, subnormals and sich. I wish somebody or sumfin would chase Ben Hecht and his nauseating pen up to the top of some pure snow-clad mountain, so the clean breezes of the upper world would purify his mind, or "blow him over"—and I wish that someone would write a true story of Chicago and the the world's "Upperworld,"—the beauties of Chicago; its buildings—up—up; its citizens of stable character, minds clean in spite of the smoke and the noise and the greed of gold. You know, and I know pure gold people—like diamonds and rubies and pearls, living lives of beauty, helpfulness and self sacrifice—not flawless, perhaps, but human and worthwhile.

Yes, "Beau Geste," Lindberghs, Valentinos. 'Course they are idealistic, but were they, are they not true? Why not airplanes instead of muck rakes and—when we have The Tribune tower why be reminded of the cow pasture beneath it?

Pardon, fair lady. I know you won't print this, but I am so disappointed in you—you—praising anything of Ben Hecht caliber. O, heck! Prejudiced maybe, but I rather want to keep my vision lofty of you—and the world we live in. . . . MAREA.

Editor's note: There is earth as well as sky and it can't be ignored. Can it?

Dick Under a Heavy Load.

Dear Miss Tinée: "Richard Dix in The Gay Defender,' with Thelma Todd." So read a subtitle which in my humble opinion would have been worlds better thus, "Richard Dix in 'The Gay Defender' WITHOUT Thelma Todd," for of all the dumb and stiff acting I've ever seen she almost takes the cake.

"Something different for Richard," you said, and goodness me! How right you were! Poor Richard did pretty well, considering the burden he was carrying, i. e., the fair Thelma and the half-witted gang led by its laughing hyena chief. Honest, now, Miss Tinée, don't you think such an obvious monstrosity would have met at the wrong end of a Spanish dagger long before it had time to murder the commissioner?

I do not question the veracity or likelihood of the tale—merely its punk pictorial execution. Ye gods! And I had expected to see another "Mark of Zorro"! Poor Richard, it is almost a weeping occasion to see him so abused. Are his producers playing with the idea that Dick is now so popular that they can pawn him off on us any old way they choose? What an awakening is in store for them if they do!

I should think the box office reaction to the great Gish after a few miscastings ought to be lesson enough for any producer with a pair of eyes and ears. Poor Lillian! Her popularity has sunk so low in our town that they had to show a Florence Vidor movie to draw the people in to see "Annie Laurie." Too bad, because her Annie was the best thing she's done since "The White Sister." I enjoyed it immensely, but must admit that Lillian was not the sole reason for enjoyment, Norman Kerry and Old Sandy helping out more than their expected share.

Queer about Kerry. I delight in his acting whenever I see him, realize then that he is one of our top notchers, and yet almost never think of him when stars are talked about. Wonder why Charles Farrell should stick more firmly in my mind, or Dudy, Wallace Reid, Doug, Harold Lloyd, and Chaplin? (Please don't say these men have "it," that brainless so typically Glynish bit of nonsense.) A few more performances like "Annie Laurie" should put Norman Kerry at the very top, though, and I hope he gets there, and soon.

I suppose I should have included John Gilbert in the above list, but I have not gone to see him since "Bardeleys" because I am surfeited with those flaming, mushy sort of plays overcharged with kisses, whose film length must be measured in terms of mileage rather than footage. Plenty of others still enjoying them, so John should worry.

"Seventh Heaven" was simply glorious, and I did love Janet Gaynor. As for Charles Farrell, he fairly ran away with this family's sympathy and imagination. There are no adjectives in Webster's which really fit those two youngsters' superlative acting in "Seventh Heaven."

Just broke a pencil point, which is as good a signal to stop as any. 'By, Miss Tinée. Thanks for listening. I always feel better after I have shed my movie grouches on you.

Kindest regards to you from the whole family and, of course, your rabidest fan, MESA H.

Editor's Note: 'By! And thanks to you. Also, regards to the folks!

Calls "The Noose" Great.

Dear Mae: I saw "The Noose." It was great! Richard Barthelmess as Nickie Elkins was wonderful! He couldn't possibly have played his part any better. And Lina Basquette—what did you think of her, Mae? I thought she played Dot to perfection. I like this Lina Basquette. She's so natural. And Alice Joyce. I didn't know she was in the cast, and when I saw her as the governor's wife, I was surprised and a little sob escaped me, I don't know why. I think Alice Joyce was wonderful and I think she is the most refined looking woman on the screen, don't you? Montagu Love was good, too. In fact, all the rest were.

"The Noose" was great! I cried. So did others. I heard them sniffing. The picture was great because it was so realistic, so human. It caught us in the mood. Didn't some of those scenes remind you of pictures you've seen recently in the paper of the people who were punished for that murder case? Those pictures came back vividly to me. I believe they came back to others in the show, too.

It's strange what effect a good picture has on us. I feel so different this morning. I seem to understand and love people more. Not that I hated any one yesterday, but I seem to see things in a different light. It's strange how a good picture grips all of us. How it makes us realize. We saw how Dot loved Nickie, how loyal she was to him. Nickie who loved his mother, was loyal to her, Nickie who wouldn't have been justified had he hanged, and we saw the Greater Power, which is really faith and love. Yes, that's why the picture was great! It was human!

Sunday you said the picture was good. That's all I read. That was sufficient. Last night I went to see it. When I got home, I read your review. I agreed with you. You asked for comments. These are mine.

"The Noose" was great! MARY G.

[Editor's Note: I sure am glad you liked it!]

Worth Seeing Twice.

In my opinion the movie that rates above all the others I have seen is "The Way of All Flesh." The story is highly interesting, has sequence and continuity. The various characters are finely drawn and artistically acted and the principal character played by Emil Jannings stands out in bold relief.

The direction was in able hands and the photography high class.

The story shows how an upright, conscientious man, through an unexpected incident in his life, can be taken out of the straight and narrow into the wide and wicked path. No detail has been overlooked and the various scenes depict some exquisite humor—also some rather sad episodes—and your emotions run the whole gamut.

I was highly interested from the first scene until the last, and as some writer aptly remarked, Emil Jannings shows more eloquence with his feet than a great many movie actors and actresses do with their eyes.

The play grips you with a firm hold and it is certainly worth seeing more than once. M. F.

A Great "Mother" Picture.

"Stella Dallas" comes before my mind as the best movie I've seen. Perhaps this is due to the beauty of Belle Bennett's presentation of the part of Stella.

I read the story with little sympathy for Stephen Dallas as a man. He seemed like a boy tired of his toy; while Stella seemed to be a woman struggling against an environment which she couldn' understand, and which made no effort to help or understand her. Her motherhood was perfect, even if mistaken in method.

Muriel, in her love for her mother, comes as near being what Stephen should have been, but wasn't, as is humanly possible.

Stella is almost sublime in her final sacrifice. The nobility of her love for Muriel and, yes, for Stephen, lifts her above all sordidness and leaves no memory with us of her innate vulgarity.

In the picture, Mrs. Morrison is the only one besides Muriel who has a right understanding of the truth of Stella's spiritual life. A fine picture and one which teaches a lesson in sympathetic tolerance. J. L. J.

The Greatest Treat.

The best movie I have ever seen was "Scaramouche," by Sabatini.

The story built around the ever fascinating theme, "The French Revolution," seemed, with its swift action, just written for a movie. Best of all, it was so real with the historic characters of Danton, Murat, Robespierre, and others.

Then the three screen stars, Ramon Navarro, Alice Terry, and Lewis Stone—the personal appearance alone of each was satisfying and added to that was their exciting acting.

All this made "Scaramouche" the greatest treat of the screen to me. J. B. M.

A Great Film.

The best movie I have ever seen, without the slightest shadow of a doubt, was "The Birth of a Nation." How skillfully Griffith plays upon every emotion one is capable of experiencing in that picture! With what breathless interest one watches the plot unfold! Incidentally, I might mention that I have seen it three times and it would still thrill and move me to see it again. Is that not a sufficient test for a movie?

For unalloyed entertainment "The Birth of a Nation" surpasses them all. G. R. J.

AL'S HERE!

Best Plays

"Cyrano de Bergerac."

Although I have seen many plays in the last nine or ten years, the play that stands out most in my memory, is "Cyrano de Bergerac," with Walter Hampton as the star.

A very ugly man with a large nose, Cyrano is most sensitive to his appearance. He is the leader of a band of outlaws and death is the penalty to anyone referring to his nose. Not in fear of man or law, and the leader and ruler of men, he is yet so weak because of the woman he loves that he permits her lover to jest about his nose and ridicule his appearance, as through him he can give vent to some of his hidden love for this unattainable woman. How pathetic and sad when he pleads with this man to be allowed to compose love verses to be recited to her by him, and how happy and thrilled when this sweetheart runs short of sweet nothings, and he incognito beneath her window tells of his love and yearning. The pathos and despair in his voice still lingers in my memory.

Years later, he spends a great deal of time in this woman's presence, consoling her for the loss of her sweetheart who was killed in a war. Although this man died a coward, Cyrano does not tell her this, wishing to preserve the beautiful memory she had of him, and he remains just a good, true friend.

There may have been many good plays, but the sentiment and thoughts in "Cyrano de Bergerac" are beautiful. N. S.

New York Thrills to Premieres of Puccini, Stravinsky Operas

By Alfred Frankenstein.

NEW YORK, March 10.—[Special Correspondence.] — The events of the week in New York music, perhaps the events of the year, were operatic premieres. Puccini's "La Rondine" was given its first American hearing at the Metropolitan and Stravinsky's "Oedipus Rex" was given for the first time in New York by the Boston Symphony orchestra, assisted by the necessary soloists and chorus.

"La Rondine" made a definite and, I believe, permanent hit. The opera, which dates from 191[illegible], speaks the old Puccini language. It adds a new type of feminine distress to those already exploited in the master's works.

"Magda" Revamped.

The story is apparently taken from the old play "Magda." Magda, the heroine, is the mistress of a wealthy Parisian. She falls in love with a young man from the provinces, and deserts her salon, not precisely for love in a cottage, but for affectionate constancy in a Riviera hotel. But when a letter from the lover's mother arrives blessing her future daughter-in-law, the usual scene of renunciation and return to the old ways results. "I am not fit to enter your pure home. I cannot destroy your future." And all the conventional guff.

The title of the opera means "The Swallow," and the significance of that is that swallows come back to old nests.

How easily the stories of Puccini operas can be summarized in head lines:

"Husband Faithless, Kills Herself" (Butterfly).

"Dies as Estranged Lover Returns" (Boheme).

"Girl Leaps to Death as Fiend Pursues" (Tosca).

And now a new one is to be added: "Renounces Love When Secret of Past Is Revealed" (Rondine).

Just as the old hoke flows in the plot of the newly presented opera, the old surges and climaxes of glorified sentimentality are present in the score. One who confesses to be reduced to a state of blabbering idiocy by the old Puccini again emerged from an opera house cooing joyously.

Bori had the main rôle and was beautiful as ever. Gigli was the lover, and seemed middle aged, fat, and stodgy next to her.

Try to Get In.

"Oedipus Rex" brought out a mob. The result of the mob was that out of town correspondents weren't wanted. Announcement of this fact was made at the last minute, when no ticket was to be had for love, money, pull, or other consideration. Therefore this correspondent spent an enraged evening looking for the chance turned back ticket, which was not turned back.

"Oedipus Rex" was written last summer. The text is by Jean Cocteau and the story that of Sophocles' tragedy. Stravinsky says it is (or was) the last word in Stravinsky, and that means the utmost in modern power animating the tone patterns of Handel's day. I trust it will next be given in a stadium seating half a million.

Hard Times Hit the Movie Studios

By Rosalind Shaffer

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—A certain studio that is at present suffering from a prolonged shutdown is run by an elderly gentleman who has recently given a pretty good exhibition of the sort of extravagance that has put the picture industry into the slump that it is now undergoing.

In the last two years this producer imported several European actors, kept them on salary for periods running up to a year and a half, gave them no work, and then let them go.

One of the young men so released secured a good contract with Paramount immediately after he left the studio in question and has been making great progress as a leading man. Another is being sought by two studios. The third, a feminine "find," has an interesting history.

While the old gentleman was traveling abroad with his son, visiting various watering places, his son saw a beautiful girl on the beach, who turned out to be the daughter of a wealthy and aristocratic family. She was signed at once to a contract and brought to this country.

Publicity but No Camera.

On her arrival at the studio and in Hollywood a great reception was given her. She was publicized and received adulation for some months. No work was assigned her. Finally, officials decided she was taking on weight.

At considerable expense the young continental charmer was sent to Arrowhead Springs, a local watering place, to take off weight. When she came home she had gained exactly twenty pounds. Her contract has been bought from her at a cost of $10,000 and she is being sent back to Europe without a camera ever being trained on her.

Another famous European male star was brought to the same studio at great cost and given a rôle that was absolutely unsuitable for him and unlike any with which he had made his fame. Of course the picture was a terrible flop and the famous actor's five year contract was bought from him. He is back in Europe enjoying an increased popularity in Berlin made pictures. "How was I to know," said the star, plaintively, "that Mr. X suffered with stomach trouble when I signed my contract?"

That the studios have had a very bad year so far is obvious. Christie's is closed till May 1. Warner Bros.' is also closed with the exception of work on Vitaphone playlets. First National has one company working where in times past anything from six to twelve pictures were going at the same time. Universal is shut down. Samuel Goldwyn has been on leave from work. United Artists, with all their various units, have one working and two in preparation.

A Hollywood grocer points the lay of the land when he tells that with a series of special sales at cut prices he has had no buyers for some weeks beyond the inexpensive staple articles. Thousands of extras are starving in a genteel manner.

Two Thrifty Brothers.

Up until a year or so ago the Yaconelli Brothers were a well known vaudeville pair, their specialty being musical stunts. Now the boys are founding a motion picture career on an unusual basis. Frank Yaconelli plays the accordion for movie set music. So does Brother Earl [he is known as Earl Douglas in Hollywood]. In between music jobs and with the money their instruments earn, the boys make movie "quickies." So far they have completed eleven pictures.

Frank is the director, Earl is the star. Pretty soon they won't have to play at all, any more, except for entertainment because their short reel pictures are finding a market that is slowly expanding.

Frank Yaconelli and his accordion furnish the only music that Alan Hale and Bill Boyd will have when they make pictures at De Mille's.

New Subdivision.

A new subdivision in Hollywood is being widely settled by film people. Located in the Hollywood mountains, it furnishes a fine lot of hillside sites with picturesque old trees and an extended view of the countryside. Dolores del Rio was one of the pioneers in the tract and is living in a beautiful Spanish home.

Her yard boasts a sycamore tree over 150 years old. From the old days it has been called the Pirate's tree. Local tradition claims no less than thirteen pirates were hanged from its spreading limbs.

* *

Fame in Six Months.

June Collyer, Fox's young find, is anxiously awaiting word that she may start for New York, which she calls home, after six months in Hollywood. Few girls can claim such a return after a six month fling in films.

Leaving home as an unknown who had played only one rôle, that of the rich girl in "East Side, West Side," June returns to her home town with two pictures playing on Broadway and her name in electric lights. The pictures are "Womanwise" and "The Four Sons."

Miss Collyer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton J. Heermance, her father being law partner in the firm of Murray Hulbert & Clayton Heermance and member of an old New York Dutch family. Her mother was a Collyer, a daughter of Dan Collyer, comedian of a generation ago, who spent 54 years dispensing mirth across the footlights.

Incidentally, the magic six months also brought June her election as a Wampas baby star.

News of Films and Players.

Polly Moran, who is getting together a wardrobe of freak clothes for her next picture at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, tells one of her recent hard experiences as a character woman.

Her director had given her the script to read. Looking over her part, Polly read: "He lifted her veil to disclose the ugliest face he had ever looked upon."

"What about my makeup for this part?" Polly asked the director. "O, no makeup, Miss Moran, just play it straight with ordinary screen cosmetics," he answered carelessly.

"I sat down," says Polly, "and I'm still thinking it over."

Polly, who is a west side Chicago girl, says she broke into stage work when she was 10 years old in Chicago when Robert Mantell's company advertised for children. She's been at it ever since. "My official biography on file at the studio is very pretty," says Polly. "It says my dad was a contractor. Huh, all he ever knew about bricks was throwin' 'em."

The patronage of the movies has created a shifting scale of prices at the amusement and eats concessions at ocean side parks here. For instance, if one of the big studios sends a cast of twenty and 100 extras to spend two days making pictures in the neighborhood of some amusement pier the quotations on hot dogs, pop, and ice cream will have advanced by the time the studio outfit reaches the scene.

It is even more businesslike when a studio charters one of the roller coasters or ring throwing games for a whole day. The sun plays a part in gouging Mr. Producer. For instance, if the thermometer is over 75 degrees the rental increases 20 per cent. If over 80 degrees, 30 per cent, and over 85 degrees, 50 per cent. The theory is that the hotter the day, the more business the concession will have to turn away if it is chartered for the filming of movie scenes.

JOHN STEEL

He's in the week's bill in the Palace, where his especial style of singing things for tenor will probably be as popular as when it was displayed in the Ziegfeld Follies and in the Music-Box Revue.

$5 for War Letters

If you're a world war veteran with vivid memory of some thrilling experiences ten years ago, back in 1918, tell us about it in 300 words or so and we'll send you $5 if we print your letter. Address War Letters, Chicago Tribune.

Among Her Souvenirs.

As I was looking over my SUNDAY TRIBUNE my heart took to throbbing at the war scenes of the rotogravure section and then I got another real thrill when I came to your "$5 for War Letters."

Feel like writing you, but you invite only the doughboys, soldiers, sailors, and marines—and say nothing about the doughgirls. Would you turn down a letter from an honest to goodness doughgirl who made beaucoup honest to g. dougnuts for our doughboys over there?

That cut showing the long and short of it certainly strikes me. That looks like home around the Toul sector ten years ago. 'Twas in just such huts that we girls made thousands of doughnuts with sugar on and hundreds of G. I. cans full of coffee avec la creme—a la Pet [thanks to the home guard] and into which huts thousands of our buddies came continuously—soaked with rain or mud and hungry—to "make the line" as many times as possible with their mess kits and get whatever and as much as we could give them. Then they would gather round the stoves to dry out. The hut would be saturated and thick with steam and cigaret smoke. Some musical [or not] chap would be banging out "When Yankee Doodle Learned to Parlais-Vous Francaise" or "Where Do We Go from Here?" on the salvaged piano. Many would be singing—many more would not—and many would get up and dance together. I can see just such "longs and shorts" as in the picture cluttering a fox trot together in their heavy, muddy boots—to be called out, possibly, the next day to—none knew where.

'Twas about this time that we were planning a Valentine party for the boys. One of them had made a beautiful tin washboard for us—corrugated 'n everything. So we got him to make us a heart shaped tin cookie cutter. O, it was lovely and it made grand cookies [so the boys said] for the Val. party. Well, when we came to break camp, I think one of the biggest battles fought in France was between my girl buddy and myself over the final possession of these nice articles which helped win the war. She carried away the washboard, but I brought home the cookie cutter, and I have it right now — "Among My Souvenirs"—and if you don't believe it, buddies, just get up a good party and invite your over seas sisters and see what "sweet cookies" you might get. B. M. B.

Locked Up at Camp Grant.

I spent that never to be forgotten winter ten years ago in Camp Grant, amid more snow and zero weather than I ever saw before or since.

There was quite an epidemic of measles around the camp and, not entertaining a high opinion of the regimental medical staff, I believed a good many of these cases were "gold brickers," for after their two weeks' vacation at the base hospital they got a ten day furlough.

A young lad, a recent arrival, was taking a nap on his bunk one Sunday afternoon and when he came to I noticed the red dye from a sweater he was wearing had spotted up his neck and chest and had given him the appearance of having a fever and measlès, though the boy said he felt fine.

As a joke I sent him over to the regimental infirmary on a sick call and, much to my astonishment and consternation, they pronounced it measles and sent him to the base for the usual vacation—and quarantined our company for two weeks.

I got quite a laugh out of it, though I had to enjoy that laugh to myself, for the boys in the company would have murdered me for the fine hand I played in getting them locked up for two weeks. W. H. B.

Not Scared, But——

It was on board the Leviathan while in mid-ocean, carrying Wisconsin troops to France, that this sea monster suddenly listed to one side, followed by a terrific crash and a hissing of steam. All on board believed the ship had been struck by a much dreaded torpedo. They put on their life savers and prepared to abandon ship.

After waiting for some time under a nervous tension, word arrived that the coal in one of the bunkers suddenly had shifted, causing the big ship to list, and a large pile of tables in the main dining room had fallen over, breaking several steam pipes.

After the nervous tension was relieved, the men laughingly accused each other of being frightened. Such accusation was put to a Capt. Smith, who, being an attorney in civilian life, was reluctant to commit himself. He said:

"No, I cannot say I was frightened—just deeply concerned." H. B. E.

get that. It will be the first time that any crowd of opera givers have given the operagoers a concerted and professionally prepared chance to find out for themselves whether opera in English amounts to anything or not.

In past seasons we have had semi-amateur performances in small theaters and professional performances in large theaters. In either case the value of the English language was put to too severe a test. This is entirely professional effort made understandable and debunked, where the opera is held out as more valuable than its singers. For that reason it has many indications of being the most interesting of all of them.

Here and There in Music.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra is commended to your earnest attention this week, not that for twenty-eight weeks in the year it is generally leading the procession of the musical arts, but that this week it is a little extra special. Jacques Gordon, its concertmaster, will be the soloist, playing the Vivaldi-Nachéz Concerto in A minor and Respighi's Concerto Gregoriano, while Mr. Stock promises Mozart's Symphony in D, Richard Strauss' "Don Juan," and Smetana's "The Moldau."

A complete program of Wagner is listed for Friday and Saturday, with the assistance of Florence Austral, who has the greatest soprano voice of its kind that this generation has heard, and Richard Crooks, who in a few seasons has become important in matters tenorial. Miss Austral's services were sought by the Civic Opera company this winter when Claudia Muzio was forced to abandon the tour because of her mother's illness. Previous assignments made it impossible for Miss Austral to accept, but there is gossip to the effect that the company will do some Wagner here next winter and that she will be in the cast.

She will be heard in Isolde's Narrative from "Tristan and Isolde," and Brünnhilde's Immolation from "The Twilight of the Gods," also in a scene with Mr. Crooks from the same work. Mr. Crooks will sing Lohengrin's Narrative from the opera of the same name, Walter's Prize Song from "The Master Singers of Nuremberg," and Siegfried's Apostrophe to Brünnhilde from "The Twilight of the Gods." Meanwhile Mr. Stock and the orchestra have set out a series without the singers, which includes "The Flying Dutchman" Overture, the Prelude to Act I of "Tristan and Isolde," the Prelude to Act III of "The Master Singers of Nuremberg," the Introduction to Act II and the Ride of the Valkyries from "The Valkyrie," the Voices of the Forest from "Siegfried," and the Death Music from "The Twilight of the Gods." Altogether it looks like a program to include many Wagnerian high spots and no low ones.

The burial of Miss Amy Fay, March 1, at Mount Auburn cemetery, Cambridge, Mass., recalls the days, fifty years ago, when she was a beautiful and well beloved concert pianist and writer on music. Nearly fifteen years she lived and worked in Chicago; then in New York for twenty more—and then came back to spend her declining years in her childhood home of Cambridge.

Her "Music Study in Germany" became a classic, still in print after fifty years, and was translated into French and German and published in France and Germany, also in England, with prefatory notes by Vincent d'Indy and Sir George Grove. The first American edition had a preface by Longfellow.

She died in her eighty-fourth year, after painless confinement to her room since 1923. She is survived by her sisters, Mrs. William E. Stone and Mrs. Theodore Thomas of Cambridge, and Mrs. C. H. Wilmerding of New York, and her brother, Charles Norman Fay of Cambridge, the three last also former residents of Chicago.

The Central Uptown Chicago association sends word that the series of Sunday afternoon recitals at the Aragon ballroom were so successful that a similar series is planned for next year.

◆

Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who has done more for chamber music in the last ten years than any other one person, announces the tenth and final chamber music festival next September at her home in Pittsfield, Mass. It will be a reunion of the various organizations that have grown out of her festivals, among them the Gordon String quartet of this city, the Lenox and the South Mountain quartets, and the Elshuco trio. This is apparently not her farewell gesture, since she has commissioned Igor Stravinsky to write and Adolph Bolm to produce a ballet for the hall which she built and presented at the library of congress in Washington.

Burton Holmes will conclude his season of pictures and information thereon this week with a trip through Italy. Reversing the usual order of treating the big cities at length with glimpses of the smaller ones, he will place the greater emphasis on the district lying among the Etruscan hills, Perugia, Orvieto, Urbino, Gubbio, Assisi, Pisa, and Verona. But in addition there will be views of Rome, Florence, Venice, Naples, Capri, Amalfi, and the other places that continue to attract the footsteps of the tourist.

Rudolph Ganz, once a Chicagoan, has decided to become one again. He is now one of the vice presidents of the Chicago Musical college.

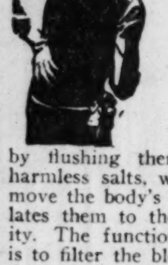
The Academy of St. Scholastica, 7416 Ridge boulevard, will give a sacred concert in the academy chapel next Sunday afternoon, March 18, at 3:30 o'clock. Thomas J. Loftus, Chicago baritone; trio from the Woman's Symphony orchestra; male octet from "The Desert Song"; selections by the St. Scholastica Glee club, and other numbers are on the program.

HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON



When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts, which helps to remove the body's waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which every one should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

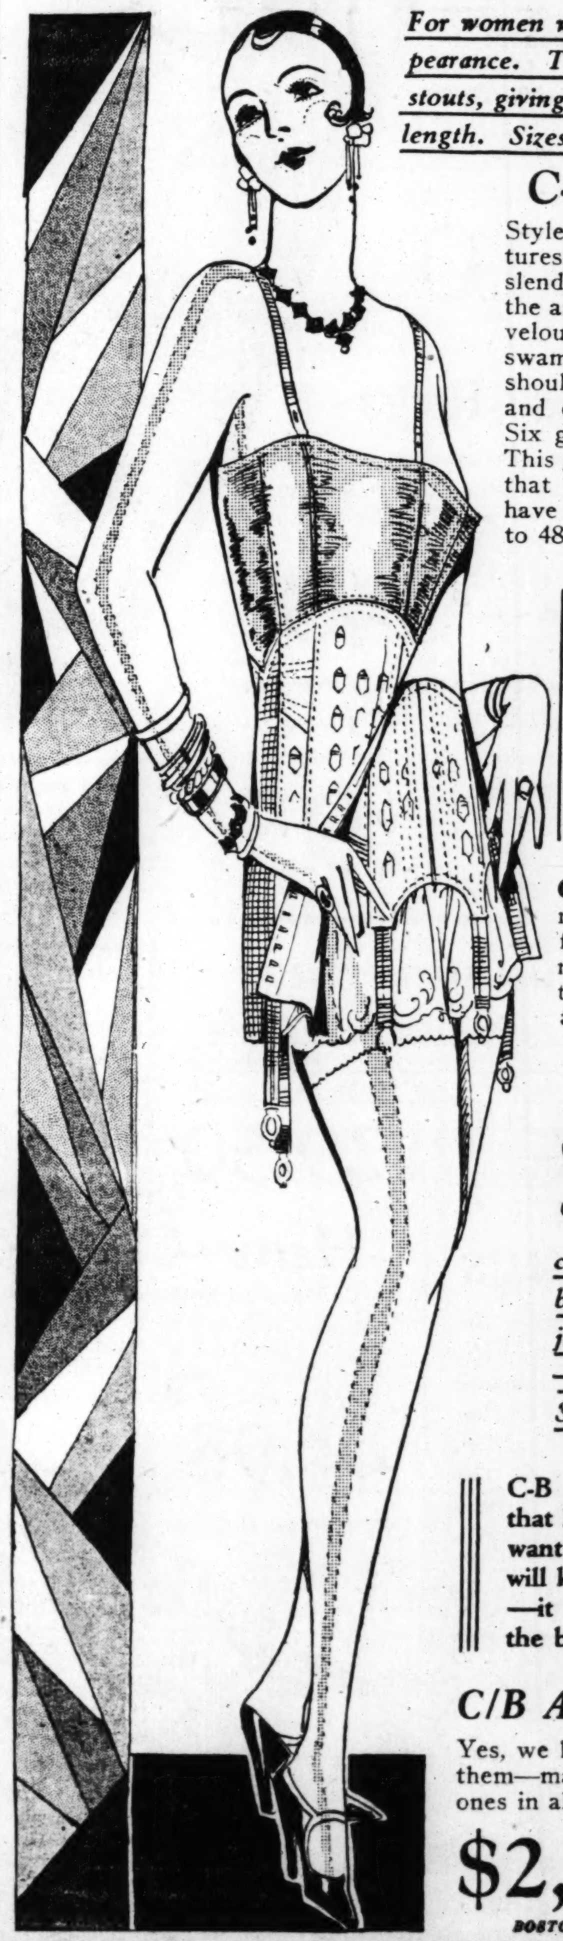
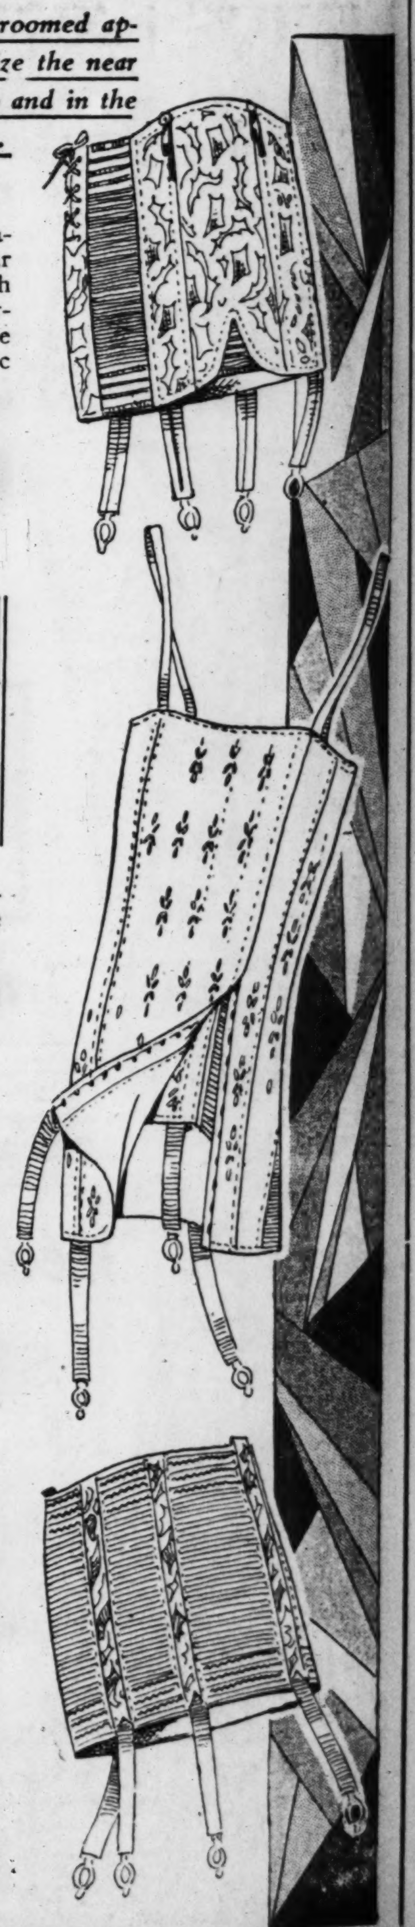
Spring Showing C-B a La Spirite

Bodicettes - Step-ins - Girdles



For women who pay attention to quality, fit and well groomed appearance. They give grace to the slender and slenderize the near stouts, giving comfort at the waist line, through the hip and in the length. Sizes to fit Maid, Matron and the College Miss.



C-B A La Spirite Bodicette

Style 4536, as sketched, has many special features that enable the near stout woman to appear slender. The inner belt is so constructed, with the aid of elastic material and boning, that it marvelously slenderizes a prominent abdomen. The swami top gives splendid control of bust—elastic shoulder straps that are removable and can be laundered separately. Six good quality hose supporters. This garment possesses everything that a fastidious garment should have for style and comfort. Sizes to 48 bust measure, at.......... $5

C-B Step-in Style 817—sketched. A dainty garment for the "Younger Set" who need control at hips and back. It is just a "wisp of a thing," but Oh! so comfortable—made of silk, surgical elastic and brocade material—the short lacing at each side helps tremendously in stepping on and off. Sizes to 34, at....... $5

C/B Style 819—Not sketched—same garment, only for the matron who is a little fleshier, and who needs a little more length. Very desirable for the evening gown. Sizes to 34; at $6

C/B Bodicette Style 2324

FOR the average figure—gives that beautiful slightly curved waist line—an inner belt that makes you feel well controlled and "held in"—boned down the back for support—adjustable shoulder straps—six hose supporters. Size to 46 bust measure 3.50

C-B "Step-in" Style 132—sketched. For that large number of school girls who don't want to be fat. This little garment will keep them slender. All elastic—it is such fun to pull it up by the boot-straps. Sizes to 34, at.. $2

More Letters from Movie Fans

This, That and the Other.

Dear madame: Thanks for your favor of Sunday. Your point is well taken. No, I have not seen the reel "Underworld" but I have see the "real" seamy side of Chicago's "upper 10" and "lower 5." being at one time the correspondent of an eastern paper I had the "entree" to sights and scenes that are usually denied the unsophisticated. I found many bright intellects in the underworld rendered cynical by whisky and dope.

They are human beings, after all, and many are gifted with a sense of humor that their sordid lives does not wholly eradicate. I glean from descriptions of Hecht's play that he brightens it with rough raillery to lessen the tension round the cardaic regions. Someone, some day may write a comedy dealing with the lighter side of the shady world, but it is one thing to have the data and quite another to be able to put it on paper. Even if I could, it is possible and probable that I would have more gray hairs than I have now before some producer would give it the once over. How long did Frank Bacon carry the manuscript of "Lightnin'" in his pocket before it got a hearing? If not mistaken, it was 20 years or more, and that is quite a pause between trains, is it not? No wonder the would be dramatists get discouraged.

Pardon my prolixity, this is just a social chat on this, that and the other. I am not seeking publicity as I am fed up on that, so take this outburst as the chatter of an old man who looks back on life as a great adventure, glad to have been privileged to visit this world, and can now take a rest and speculate on what the future holds. Regarding the movies — it seems a pity to men that the producers thus far do not seem to realize what a tremendous chance they have for the uplift of humanity in an educational way. 'Way back in 1912 I recall a picture of "Valley Forge" with Washington and his army, suffering from the cold and lack of covering to keep them warm. I was wishing the children in all the schools could have seen it, as it made a lasting impression on me—tenfold more than any school book I ever read. H. L. P.

Editor's note: You do write such interesting letters. Thanks for the paragraph omitted—and please come again.

From the Scotch Viewpoint.

Dear Miss Tinée: I'd like to give you my opinion of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" and tell you why, perhaps, it did not draw at the box office here.

It was the star, or rather the featured player, who caused the rumpus, namely Ruth Taylor. While Miss Taylor played the rôle satisfactorily, in my estimation, still there are two or three seasoned stars would could have worked wonders with the rôle of Lorlei. For instance, Laura La Plante or Phyllis Haver. The latter, I think, has forged ahead so quickly within the last year, that soon she will line up with Norma Talmadge and Marion Davies.

I would even have trusted the rôle of Lorlei to Lois Wilson, who, with a blonde wig, could have scored heavily. Lois is my favorite actress, and while she specializes in "goody-goody" rôles, I think she could have done better than Ruth Taylor, whom we hardly know.

I am not casting any reflections on Ruth, but these are my sentiments. It's high time some producer starred Lois Wilson, Miss Tinée. What do you say?

I'm glad to see you are still on the job, and hope you will be for many years to come. Your column is the best movie column in the world.

Best regards.
Guid nicht.

Takes Up the Cudgels.

Dearest Mae: O, how could Mrs. H. G. say those awful things? I think she's the biggest crab in Chicago. No wonder she thought John Gilbert and Renée Adoreé were too silly in their love making. Show me a person of 60 who wouldn't! There is plenty of difference between the love pecks of 40 years ago and today. I guess the rest of us flappers didn't think it silly, did we, huh?

Dear Miss Tinée, please excuse me if I said something I shouldn't have said, but my temper is boiling over. Can I say something to Mrs. H. G.?

Please, Mrs. H. G., go and see "The Divine Woman," and see if you can like our Greta a little, and I promise you some wonderful acting.

I guess that's all for today. Yours,

BLONDE.

Editor's Note: If ever I need a defender I'll know whom to page!

SINGS WELL

MISS ETHEL WATERS

She comes tonight to the Adelphi for an engagement in a melange named "Africana." Miss Waters, who was last season in the Princess for a few weeks and later in one of the South-Side floor-shows, is the favorite colored songstress of Ashton Stevens, Carl Van Vechten, George Jean Nathan, and other practitioners of play-reporting whose ideal ballad is "John Brown's Body."

Crested Titmouse Tells Lake Forest Spring Has Come

American Woman Leading Authority on Shakespeare

By La Dauphine.

THE raising of a million dollars in the United States to rebuild the theater at Stratford on Avon recalls that an American woman, Clara Longworth, now Comtesse de Chambrun, is one of the world's leading authorities on Shakespeare. She is also an example of a happy Franco-American marriage. Like her brother, Nicholas, speaker of the house of representatives, Clara Longworth was born in Cincinnati, but for twenty-five years has lived chiefly in Paris or Morocco. While still a young woman she met in Washington her intended, Comte Adalbert de Chambrun, but several years were to pass—two of them in anguish—before fate permitted her adventurous fiancé to return to America and take her to live in France.

The Pineton de Chambrun family, into which Clara Longworth married, has an honored place in French history and in present day activity, as well as important links with America. Louis XIV., when weeding out the mushroom nobles in 1669, recognized as authentic the De Chambrun claim to parchments which mount to the fifteenth century.

Pursued by the King.

This, however, did not prevent that monarch, after revoking the edict of Nantes, from pursuing one Protestant member of the family clear into Holland, whence he escaped into England with the prince of Orange, later King William III. After producing, in the eighteenth century, several soldiers, the De Chambrun family was thenceforth to be eminent chiefly in politics and diplomacy. For the last hundred years some one of the direct line has represented the department of La Lozère in the French chamber of deputies.

The Comte Charles-Adolphe de Chambrun, who would have become Clara Longworth's father-in-law, reached America on a special mission for the French government in 1865. He arrived in Washington just in time to sit on the platform beside Charles Sumner and hear Lincoln deliver his famous second inaugural address. Through his friendship with Sumner, he was also invited to accompany the presidential party to the surrender of Richmond. He made such a good impression that his government decided to keep him in Washington, where for twenty-five years as legal councilor to the French embassy, he was a prominent figure in the capital. Here he raised his family, all of whom were to attain eminence, and here was born Adalbert, who first met his future bride, Miss Longworth, in Washington.

A Career in the Army.

Adalbert had intended to study law, but on returning to France to do his military service, decided to become a soldier. He entered the army as a private. Through the influence of his brother-in-law, the famous explorer Pierre de Brazza, he was given command of the artillery in the Fourneau-Lamy expedition to the French Soudan in 1898. Betrayal by Moslems in the heart of Africa drove him into hair-raising adventures.

For over two years his family had no news of him. In the fierce engagement where Lamy was killed, Adalbert had his arm fractured by a bullet. Almost alone, he found his way through a thousand miles of jungle with only a theodolite for guide. Finally he reached the coast, got a boat for Antwerp and hurried to Cincinnati to marry Miss Longworth.

Back in France, he entered the Ecole de Guerre, and by merit rose to the rank of captain. Even before the war broke out, he was in command of the garrison at Saint Mihiel, where the famous salient developed which was finally wiped out by the American troops under Pershing. In 1917, Adalbert de Chambrun became liasson officer on Pershing's staff; and in 1919, lectured at the United States War school. He received nine decorations for soldierly qualities shown during the great war and more recently in Morocco, where he is now governor of the province of Fez, with the high rank of division general. Here, in the picturesque center o. the former Sheriffian empire, with its marvelous architecture, its gorgeous color, its mingling of the orient and the west, Gen. de Chambrun recently received, like a viceroy, the visit of the native sultan.

Famous in Politics.

Gen. de Chambrun, in spite of his great civil and military responsibilities in Morocco, finds time to keep in touch not only with his sister, the Comtesse de Savorgnan de Brazza, widow of the celebrated explorer who brought much of the Congo under French dominion, but also to follow the careers of his older brothers.

The Marquis Marcel de Chambrun, who was a member of the Joffre-Viviani mission to the United States in 1917, has, like several of his ancestors, represented the department of La Lozère in the chamber of deputies for thirty years. His wife, Margaret Rives Nichols, had in Joseph Longworth the same grandfather as Clara, and he, like his brother Adalbert, was married on the same estate near Cincinnati. Marcel, although not born in Washington, spent his youth there, becoming a member of the District of Columbia bar. Comte Charles de Chambrun, born, like Adalbert, in Washington, is now, after long experience in diplomacy, French ambassador to Vienna.

A Lover of Shakespeare.

Clara Longworth de Chambrun, who has her part in official duties in Morocco, does not neglect her illuminating studies of the great dramatist. Writing in French, as well as in English, her latest work, "Shakespeare, Actor-Poet," has had a flattering reception in France.

Along with her vast knowledge of Shakespeare's epoch and her sympathetic gift of interpretation, her acquaintance with French influences on Shakespeare has stood her in good stead. Her brilliant elucidation of the rôle of Montaigne and his translator Florio in enriching Shakespeare's genius, recently won for her the much prized special degree of doctor of letters from the University of Paris. Using a hint from Victor Hugo's son, François, she cleverly identifies the celebrated Dark Lady of the Sonnets as almost certainly Mrs. Davenant, the coquettish siren who welcomed the clients at the Oxford inn, later known as the Crown, and whose black eyes caused the unhappy jealous break between Shakespeare and his youthful patron, the Earl of Southampton.

Miss Dorothy Vilas, daughter of Mrs. John D. C. Towne of 44 Banks street, is one of the young women who are to enhance the program for the Army and Navy clubs' annual ball to take place at the Congress on Saturday, March 24. Her stalwart protector is named "Bodo."

Mr. and Mrs. Quentin H. Gilbey of London are making their first visit in Chicago since their marriage in England last September. Mrs. Gilbey was Miss Betty Ball. They are visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Otho Fisher Ball, of 1305 Ritchie court. (Top, left.)

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Peabody Brush Jr. (Katrina van Dyke), (lower right), have been popular additions to the just married set since they established themselves here last fall. They and their Scotty, Jock, occupy an attractive apartment at 23 Bellevue place. Mrs. Brush is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry van Dyke of Princeton, N. J.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Van Hagen Jr., of Barrington, Ill., are respectively, George III., Ford, who is the baby, and Mary Claire. (Top, right.)

Peter and John Luther Dole Jr. are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Luther Dole of Winnetka. Mrs. Dole was Miss Barbara Dunham.

Mrs. John Lewis Cochran, president of the Junior league, and a group of her contemporaries are to pass out programs at Count Keyserling's lecture at Orchestra hall tomorrow evening, under the auspices of the Chicago Forum council. (Center of layout.)

Now North Shore Begins to Think of Its Gardens

By Mme. X.

LAST Monday morning early I heard the first note of spring. It was sung by an odd looking bird who, with a chic little crest and fluffed up feathers, was seesawing on the leafless top of a small tree in the X. family's garden at Lake Forest. The ornithologically minded member of the family looked it up in a bird book and found it was a crested titmouse, an elusive creature who usually haunts the woods, where its note is supposed to lure the unwary wayfarer into deeper depths, though when the inquiring listener gets there the crested titmouse doesn't do anything but go still further into leafy hiding. In spite of the fact that at that moment the thermometer marked some ten or fifteen above zero that lovely little warble sent a warm glow through at least one listener, who felt spring was really only just around the corner.

Owners of well kept gardens are grieving over the snowless winter which will probably necessitate the creation of entirely new lawns for those who had no extra covering for their grassy spaces. Dealers in grass seeds will probably raise their prices on reading this. It will afford some garden proprietors an opportunity to put in some of the several new kinds of grass that make a weedless, velvety turf such as the Arthur Cables and Mrs. Stanley Field have in their domains. It looks, to the uninitiated, like stage grass. Close knit and exquisitely fine in texture, it also resembles certain fine furs, sable and so on. It's said to be expensive and not to be especially enduring. That's neither here nor there in a screed supposed to be dedicated to social doings; this preamble is merely a reminder to my readers that we are really emerging from the bleak days of winter.

Why should we berate so pleasant a season as this last winter, which treated us so mildly and gave us so many pleasant social occasions? Except for its malignant effect on our neighboring lawns, it was as gentle and inoffensive as a winter could be. Nevertheless, many of our elitest élite betook themselves early to milder climes and others of their ilk are still planning hegiras in search of warmth and sunshine. Among these are the Donald Ryersons, who are soon departing for Nassau in the Bahamas, where they are leasing the John T. McCutcheons' lovely and remote island for April. The latter are returning to Chicago late this month.

Treasure Island Leased.

Treasure Island, as the McCutcheons call their enchanting and secluded semi-tropical place, is an hour's ride or less by motor boat from the Bahaman capital. In reality, however, it is a thousand or more miles from the rest of the world. A popular and brilliant cartoonist has to live so utterly in the midtide of his times; he must be so completely in tune with its loudest and most insistent hurlyburly that when he takes his relaxation he seeks it in a place of infinite silences and utter repose. Such is Treasure Island to John McCutcheon. No one can approach it or land on it without the knowledge and connivance of the owners.

On the walls of their charming cottage hangs a copy of this lovely and descriptive ditty, which gives an idea of the state of mind with which both Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon betake themselves to their West Indian retreat:

When quacks with pills political would dope us,
When politics absorbs the livelong day,
I like to think about the star, Canopus,
So far, so very far away.
Greatest of visioned suns, they say who list 'em;
To weigh it science always must despair.
Its shell would hold our whole dinged solar system,
Nor ever know t'was there.
When temporary chairmen utter speeches,
And frenzied henchmen howl their battle hymns,
My thoughts float across the cosmic reaches,
To where Canopus swims.
When men are calling names and making faces,
And all the world's a'jangle and ajar,
I meditate on interstellar spaces
And smoke a mild seegar.
For after one has about a week of
The arguments of friends, as well as foes,
A star that has no parallax to speak of Conduces to repose.

An Idyllic Spot.

If I'm not mistaken these lines were writ by the late B. L. T. [Bert Leston Taylor], of more than local fame, a wit, poet, and philosopher, as well as every inch a man. They express to his satisfaction the way that John McCutcheon thinks about his island. It, too, has no parallax and, as one sits on the edge of his bluff overlooking the whole Atlantic ocean, one seems to be but a part of vast interstellar spaces on the edge of immense cosmic reaches.

It is to this idyllic spot that the young Ryersons are soon going for a month's sojourn. They'll roam under the groves of cocoanut palms that almost cover the island. They'll bathe in the pale green waters that lap so gently those white coral sands, and they'll sleep at night such sleep as none of us in these tumultuous regions can even imagine, so still, so soft, so fragrant are the nights on Treasure island.

Off to Arizona.

Other Chicagoans who, even as late as this, seek the warmer sunshine and more mellow breezes of other parts of the U. S. A., are Mr. and Mrs.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Byron Harvey, who betook themselves last Wednesday to Castle Hot Springs, Ariz. Mrs. Harvey only returned from a winter in Europe a fortnight or so ago. She spent four months abroad with her eldest son, Byron Harvey Jr. They traveled in England, France, Switzerland, and Italy.

The Harveys will stay in the west until it is time to open their Lake Forest house, which will probably be some time late in April. During his wife's absence Mr. Harvey and their son, Stewart, have been occupying Mrs. M. R. Unwin's apartment at 936 Lake Shore drive. This was, I think, the first of what has now become a popular style of abode. When Mrs. Unwin's first husband, the late Ernst Walker, built it, he called it a roof bungalow. Today such are known as penthouses. It is on the top of the flat building that stands on the corner of the outer drive and Walton place.

A Suggestion.

By the way, why can't that stretch of our famous water driveway be called just simply Outer drive, instead of confusing taxi drivers and others by calling East Oak street the Lake Shore drive, mussing up the street numbers sadly and bewildering the uninitiated to a distressing degree? The Lake Shore drive could begin its great northbound career at Bellevue place; Oak street could continue eastward until stopped by the lake; the outer drive could assume its real name, or else bear that of whatever drive from the south connects it with our splendid system of north side boulevards, and so let out at least one of the knots in our street traffic.

It is confusing to have a street turn a corner and go in a different direction, assuming the numerical responsibilities of a street already existing. Oak street is an old and much respected thoroughfare, and, between you and me, has always resented this curtailment of its existence. If the people in those palatial apartments that face the lake along this final block on Oak street are averse to being labeled as living on a plain street, instead of a drive, it could be called Oak drive. This is merely a suggestion, evoked by the frequency of having to describe that stretch of roadway to inexperienced drivers.

An Outdoor Life.

The Charles Edward Browns Jr. have also joined the Chicago colony at Castle Hot Springs. The Laurence Armours, the Joseph T. Bowens Jr., and Mrs. Helen Caldwell are others of our fellow citizens who are there. Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, who spent several weeks there last month, recuperating from a serious setto with pneumonia, returned to Chicago a fortnight ago and left here again yesterday for Aiken, S. C., where still other Chicago outfits are passing this interval between winter and summer.

The life in Aiken is wholesome and simple and largely devoted to horses, hunting and cross-country riding being much the vogue. There is also golf for the nonriding set, and for indoor exercise there is "contract" bridge. In fact it is gently hinted that if you don't do any of these things you'd better stay at home, or at least not intrude on the Aikenites. They don't know what to do with such guests as do care for none of these things. Unless such benighted mortals can and will find their pleasure in such solitary sports as walking in the fragrant pine forests, or taking lonely motor rides through those pleasant and secluded lanes, they'd better seek some other spot for their recreation.

Many Chicagoites at Aiken.

Among others of our Chicagoites, or ex-Chicagoites, who are in search of rest and renewal of their vitality in Aiken is that charming young woman, Mrs. William G. Beale, who was here lately. While here she bought a renowned English hunter, which she shipped down to Aiken, where she recently purchased a place which she intends to make her winter home, spending her summers in a house she has in Bar Harbor, Me.

I forgot to say that Mrs. Chauncey McCormick is going to open and occupy her uncle Richard Howe's place in Aiken. She needs more sunshine and out-of-door life to complete her cure.

Mrs. R. R. McCormick has one of the most attractive estates in or near Aiken. Here she is collecting a fine stable of pedigreed horses. She herself is an accomplished rider and plans to enjoy the hunts that are tri-weekly events there. The Samuel T. Chases also have a house there, having selected this place, instead of their usual winter choice, Palm Beach, in order that their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Chase, a famous horsewoman, should have the cross country riding she delights in. She is achieving an international renown as a rider and is much sought after by people who want to show their horses in horseshows and in amateur race meets. Her younger sister, Miss Janet Chase, is also a noted rider and hunted in England with the James Simpsons Jr. last month before going to France, where she is studying French.

An Error Corrected.

It seems that this col. was misinformed when it stated a week or so ago that the Military Aid society collected garments and distributed them to the widows and orphans and to the families of the officers and men of the army (if we did make such an assertion). These are only given to the widows and orphans, among whom they do an enormous amount of good.

The matter of the pensions allotted the families of our fighting forces who have given their lives for their country is one that ought to be a continuing concern to the citizens of this, the richest nation ever known, until the matter is in at least a measure set right.

As an instance of the injustice of the present rate of pensions is the case of the widow of that remarkable man, Gen. Wood. She is receiving from our government the munificent sum of $30 a month; that means that that is what you and I are paying the widow of that gallant and valuable military officer and civil administrator. Cuba, in remembrance of what he did as governor for that formerly afflicted island, has made her a pension of $500 a month. Whatever her other resources may be, Mrs. Wood must look with mixed feelings at that monthly $530 as it comes to her.

The Military Aid society makes a great record in its administration of the funds it collects and distributes annually. Mrs. William H. Hubbard, president of the Chicago branch of the society, told me, just before she departed for Europe last week, that the $84,000 the association took in last year cost the society only $800 to get. And of this sum over $500 was spent in postage and the rest in such clerical work as was unavoidable. That's a remarkable example of efficiency.

Awaited with Interest.

The much heralded Count Keyserling is spending this week end in Chicago as the house guest of the Charles Petersons. Much interest is being manifested in his lecture about marriage at Orchestra hall tomorrow under the auspices of the Chicago Forum. He and his equally noted compatriot, Emil Ludwig, are a part of the great procession of foreign men of letters who have discovered in America a new field, and one not without its auriferous charms to the alien and learned.

The procession of these distinguished and interesting visitors began as long ago as the forties or fifties of the last century, when Anthony Trollope came to see us and returned to his native land, whence he emitted cries of disapproval and criticism that got under the skin of the folk of that day. Today friendliness hurt our feelings. Today we are great and powerful and, I hope, much tougher in our epidermis. You can't hurt a large, corpulent, millionaire nearly as easily as you can an eager, delicate, not very opulent youth.

We can learn much from these foreign folk, though perhaps not entirely from what they say to and of us. When they happen to make complimentary remarks, however, how pleasant to lap them up. Herr Ludwig, for example, pleased several million elderly ladies when he said that never before had he seen so many young older women. Of age there seems to be almost no trace among the matrons of the country. They look as young as their debutante daughters. Their figures are as slender and supple [he ought to see them exercising and rolling on the floor]; their complexions are fresh and fair [he ought to watch them taking a "facial"]; they have as gay an air as any girls [he ought to be present at a woman's luncheon].

Charm Is Lacking.

But, alas, in spite of these things so kindly commented on by Herr Ludwig, along comes Graf Keyserling and says our women "lack charm." What is meant usually by a foreigner seeking charm is really "sexual appeal." This is a serious deficiency. It cannot be imparted by muscular exercising or by facial massage. It has to spring from some one of those subterranean forces, those constantly surging emotions that bubble and seethe within us and often cause the sensitive such embarrassment. The Puritans nearly extinguished these subconscious batteries, thereby almost destroying woman's greatest attribute, charm. To be charming was anathema to Calvin, John Knox, Wesley and their ilk. It was o fthe devil and to be exorcised. Perhaps we've exorcised it too hard. Together with our daily dozens and our complexion masks let us also study that elusive, but most necessary adjunct to the perfect woman—charm.

Flower Show Planned.

Under the auspices of the Garden Club of Illinois the second annual garden and flower show will be held at the Hotel Sherman from March 24 to April 1. The exhibit will be divided under four captions. Section 1 will have miniature models of house and garden. The second section will have a competition in shadow boxes. The third will concern itself with luncheon tables, and the fourth with arrangements of buds or branches or anything except flowers.

This smacks somewhat of the Japanese art in such things. The latter lead the world in the exquisite symbolism and symmetry with which they make three or four sprays create an effect more beautiful than any mass arrangement of flowers less enlightened people can give.

Another Notable Visitor.

Next week is coming here still another interesting and notable visitor, Herr Theremin, who draws music from ether waves. This sounds so exquisitely miraculous as to take us right up and out of this workaday life into realms of which we've dreamt, but in which none but those who believe in fairies ever dared dwell. I think Herr Theremin is a German, though his name would suggest one of the Balkan nations. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swift are to be among his hosts here. They also entertained Emil Ludwig.

Those Chicagoans who did not join the numerous throng of their fellow citizens who went off to other climes have had an unusually interesting time here lately and have met many world renowned celebrities. Staying at home isn't so great a hardship as our nomad friends would have us believe.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Rhinelander Clan Again in Limelight

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK, March 10.—[Special Correspondence.] — The vicissitudes of the Rhinelander clan have been of interest to New York for several years now. Of course, one hears very little of the famous—or rather notorious—Kip Rhinelander, whose wedding to one Alice Jones was much more than a nine days' wonder.

By reason of Kip's notoriety, the other members of the Rhinelander family, and a family incidentally almost as old as New York itself—have done their best to keep from the public eye. Kip's father, Philip Rhinelander, remains close to his home in 48th street and mixes little in society.

But long before Kip was old enough to get himself in trouble, his sister Adelaide startled society by marrying a young man—hailing from Brooklyn—whose social status was, to say the most, negligible. But Grace church, if I am not mistaken, saw the wedding of Adelaide Kip Rhinelander and Julian Shackno.

Lived in Europe.

It was quite a brilliant affair—but was followed almost immediately by the permanent departure of the Shacknos for Europe, where young Mr. Shackno went into business and Addie did her best to do justice to the American society in the capital of France.

From that far off spot, in the course of time, came the edifying news that the Julian Shacknos were now the Julien St. Charles Chaqueneaux. Society here took it to mean that the Rhinelanders asked for the change in name so that people would forget that Addie Rhinelander had married an ordinary Brooklyn lad.

Now, however, it appears that we may all have been wrong in our deductions. Reports of marital difficulties between the Chaqueneaux have been many. At present Julien is abroad and Adelaide is here for the purpose of obtaining her freedom. Some weeks back she journeyed to Reno for that purpose, but is in town once more under the wing of her aunt, Mrs. Walton Oakley, at her father's residence.

Discovers a Title.

The new development comes from Paris, where, I am told, Julien has discovered that he is entitled to a notable French title, and that he has made all plans to assume it, giving up his name of Chaqueneaux for one still more difficult to pronounce.

He has informed his friends that the title was long neglected, but that since his stay in France he has traced his ancestors and discovered the old patent of nobility.

Mrs. Chaqueneaux, of course, is mum on the subject, but Park avenue is saying more than enough.

Last Balls Planned.

The few last of the hardy annual affairs are being planned now. The butterfly ball, always given at the Ritz-Carlton, is scheduled for April 10, and, of course, there will be the usual cabaret and horde of somewhat weary post debs.

Mrs. Henry Leroy Finch is president of the Junior auxiliary, Mrs. Clarence G. Michalis, Mrs. Livingston French, Mrs. Joel Ellis Fisher Jr., and Mrs. Thomas Ellis Brown being the other officers.

Among the members who are to aid in the ball are Mrs. Gilbert Darlington, Mrs. Henry Coleman Brayton, Mrs. Van Devanter Crisp, Mrs. Frederick Cameron Church, Mrs. James Lenox Banks Jr., Mrs. Leonard Cox, Mrs. George Temple Bowdoin, Sylvia Hillhouse, Genevieve Clendenin, Adele Tevis Kelley, Alice McKim Voss, Muriel Wurts-Dundas, Eugenie Peabody, and Dora Hotchkiss.

Engagement Rumored.

Many a time has Genevieve Fox been reported engaged. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyttleton Fox and granddaughter of Morgan J. O'Brien has been at Palm Beach all winter, and it is from that faroff spot of warmth that another reported betrothal comes.

Joy—as she is known—is said to be contemplating Auguste Noel as her prospective husband and, indeed, society considers that it is about time the elder daughter of the Foxes was giving a thought to marriage. She is among the most popular of the post-debs, a good tennis player and golf player, and an ardent follower of horse racing.

Once upon a time Joy was said to be fond of George M. Laimbeer, son of Mrs. Nathalie Schenck Laimbeer by a former marriage of his mother, taking the name of Laimbeer following his mother's wedding to the society man, who lost his life in the same accident that accounted for the death of the late Osgood Pell.

However, that seems to have petered out—for we have not seen Joy and George together in many a month, and at present everything is Auguste with Joy at Palm Beach.

An Old Family Tree.

Young Noel lives at 18 Washington Square, north, the one section of the famous little park that still clings to its greatness. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. August E. Noel. His brother, Louis W. Noel, married Natalie Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Butler Duncan, and his social standing is higher, indeed, than that of Joy.

She, of course, is vastly connected, since the O'Brien clan is a large one. Her uncle, Kenneth, married Katherine Mackay, daughter of Clarence H. Mackay and sister of Mrs. Irving Berlin.

No announcement of the engagement is expected just at present, as the Foxes will not return from Palm Beach for some time, but society confidently awaits the news to be made public shortly after Easter.

ENGAGED

MISS RUTH PHYLLIS EISENBERG.
[Russell Photo.]
Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Ruth Phyllis Eisenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Eisenberg of 1401 South Tripp avenue, to Barney Greenfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Greenfield of 1342 South Kedvale avenue.

SOCIETY PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wyatt of Oklahoma City, Okla., who have been visiting their nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Kettenhofen and Mrs. D. B. Wyatt at 5035 Winthrop avenue, departed last Wednesday for a few months' cruise of the Mediterranean.

Miss Josephine L. Rhodes has returned to her apartment at the Sovereign hotel after a sojourn at Whitehall, Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Noonan of 1111 North Shore avenue and their daughters, Helen and Eddyjo, are in Hot Springs, Ark.

Mrs. Chester Otis Glidden of the Belden-Stratford hotel is in Palm Beach, where she will remain until the end of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoffman, formerly of Albany Park, will return from New Orleans, where they have been visiting their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sims, the latter part of April. Upon their return they will reside with their other daughter and son-in-law, the J. I. Friends of 8340 Drexel avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Eitel, who have been staying at the Blackstone hotel, sailed from New York yesterday on their return to Stuttgart, Germany. Mrs. Eitel is the daughter of the late John Martin Kranz of Chicago.

Mrs. A. Woldenberg and her daughter, Sally Ann, have returned to their residence at 5133 Ellis avenue. Mrs. Woldenberg has as her house guest her mother, Mrs. L. M. Gordon of Nashville, Tenn.

Activities of Women

New York City has more than a thousand women accountants and auditors and nearly 40,000 women bookkeepers.

Marion Talley, the youthful opera singer, has earned more than $300,000 in less than two years.

Mrs. Catherine Stewart of New York City, who has just celebrated her 94th birthday, spends her declining years in painting pictures.

In foreign countries the majority of school teachers are men, while in the United States approximately 86 per cent of the total are women.

The revenues of the French government have increased sixfold since the women of that country took up the fad of smoking cigarets.

Members of the Maidens' association of Japan have announced that in the future they will not marry young men who have not had military training.

The former queen of Greece is a greyhound racing enthusiast and is making purchases of dogs with which to form a kennel of racing hounds.

Mrs. E. P. Ricker Jr., of Poland Springs, Me., finished second in the annual New England sledge dog race, which was won by Leonard Sepalla, hero of the antitoxin dash to Nome.

MISS ELOISE TREMAN, principal of Ferry Hall and president of the Chicago branch of the American Association of University Women, is in charge of the arrangement for a meeting of the northwest section of the association to be held in this city at the Sherman hotel on Friday and Saturday. Miss Alice Wright of Milwaukee, director of the section, will preside. Delegates will be present from Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, and Ohio.

The animal protection committee of the Woman's City Club, of which Mrs. Duane T. McNabb is chairman, is in charge of the program for the March dinner on the evening of the 20th, when speakers and guests interested in the committee's recent investigations will be present.

Mrs. Robert W. Richards, I. F. W. C. chairman of the Park Ridge School for Girls, and Mrs. W. A. Eaton, second district chairman, are co-chairmen for a benefit card party on Thursday afternoon at the Southmoor hotel, the proceeds to go toward the maintenance of the school, which cares for dependent girls from 6 to 16 years of age. At present six cottages for 125 girls are supported by women's clubs and individuals.

Plans Conferences on Mental Hygiene, Animal Protection

By Kate Webber.

THAT applied civics includes in its scope practically every problem of the human race is shown by the ambitious program of the Woman's City club for the immediate future. Though it is concentrating its main efforts toward "getting out the vote" in the April primary, it also will attempt to show before March is out its progress in and aims for humane education.

On March 20 the animal protection committee, of which Mrs. Duane T. McNabb is chairman, will have charge of the club dinner. On March 22 the club will hold a conference on mental health, in conjunction with the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene, and it will have a discussion of problems of delinquency at the club breakfast on March 29, under the auspices of the courts and police committee.

Report on Investigation.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. McNabb a survey of animal refuges in various cities has been made. The committee's findings, embodied in a recent report, have been presented to the city finance committee, with a request for authorization of a bond issue for a new municipal refuge for dogs. This display will be on exhibit at the dinner next week, together with an exhibit of work in humane education from the public schools.

Speakers at the dinner will include Horace K. Ferry, chief humane agent of Cleveland, O., Miss Laura Cawker of Milwaukee Humane society, and Will Judy. Special guests will be Irene Castle McLaughlin, John J. Abbott, treasurer of the Anti-Cruelty society and George H. Scott of the Illinois Humane society.

Mental Hygiene.

The child welfare and public health committee, through its chairman, Miss Mary Murphy, is seeking through its March 22 conference to acquaint the public with the broader application of mental hygiene, in enabling individuals to adjust themselves to the exigencies of everyday life. The program for this open meeting will include a talk on mental hygiene by Miss Helen Myrick at 10:30 o'clock, a case presentation by Elizabeth Davis, and a talk at 11 o'clock by Dr. Harry Levey of the Lower North Child Guidance center. At luncheon Dr. H. Douglas Singer will speak on "The Mental Hygiene of the Adult."

Miss Julia Jaffray of New York, chairman of problems of delinquency for the general federation of women's clubs, will tell the possibilities in reeducation for the adult delinquent at the club breakfast on March 29 when members of the courts committee of the Chicago Woman's club will join with the same committee from the Woman's City club.

In addition to these programs a candidates' day will be held on April 2. On April 11, 12 and 13 Mrs. May Wood Simons, chairman of the municipal citizenship committee, will conduct a municipal institute which will study finance, traffic handling and municipal organization.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

Several departments of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs will hold meetings at federation headquarters during the coming week, including the public health and child welfare department, at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning; meetings of the community service department at 10 o'clock and the education department of the seventh, ninth, and tenth districts at 2 o'clock on Wednesday; and two meetings on Thursday, one of the tenth district community service department, at 10:30 o'clock, and one of the first district committee on coöperation with war veterans at 1:30 o'clock.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans

"AND now," said the long time member, looking up from the bulletin at the club members around the tea table, "one of our leading club women has stated that we might disband nine-tenths of our women's organizations and thus make those remaining more intelligent and stronger than they are today. What do you think of that?"

"Upon what does she base her statement?" asked the education chairman.

"Duplication of effort, principally," answered the long time member.

"It's better to overlap than not to meet," voiced the treasurer.

"I'd like to know just how we could have too much duplication of effort for better citizenship, or better health measures, or improved living conditions?" inquired the welfare chairman.

"I think," reflected the ex-president, "that the leading club woman is out of touch with the small and the local clubs. I've always felt they meet a need that the larger, more centralized clubs can't possibly fill. Eliminating nine-tenths would make the one-tenth still larger, and still centralized."

"And just think of all the presidents and vice presidents for whom there would be no offices," observed the treasurer.

"There are thousands of women who wouldn't belong to any but a local club," declared the long time member. "It's easy to know every one; the hold on the members is strong; they can get to it in a few minutes, and be home as soon as their children are out of school, if necessary."

"The needs of each community are different, too," claimed the treasurer, "and each should have a local organization to appreciate and deal with them."

"There may be duplication of effort, but eliminating clubs won't put an end to it," remarked the long time member. "Rather, the getting together and agreeing on coöperative programs, whenever possible, will solve the problem."

Question.

"Should a member of a committee be expected to pay part of the committee's expenses out of her own pocket?

"M. D."

Reply.

Not as a rule. Clubs usually appropriate a certain amount of the club funds for the expenses of committees.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Critic Finds Quality of Music in Joseph Birren's Paintings

Landscapes Are Lovely as Chords Played on a Harp

And there were flowers in the spring,
Pink like clouds of stardust caught
In the streamers of the dawn,
Fairy-dreamed and fairy-wrought—

There was music in the trees,
Notes that flew from bird to bird,
Magic music in the spring—
I stood below a tree and heard.

An emerald coat hung on a branch,
Its skirt was blue and swept the sea—
The flowers were in its buttonhole—
The coat was Spring and fitted me.
E. J.

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE paintings by Joseph Birren at the Chicago galleries resemble the chords of a harp stroked with a loving and lingering touch. Their beauty is resonant; echoes of the pinks and greens and blues that enliven his canvases ring in the memory. The effect of the exhibit as a whole is that of a beautiful chant, a prelude to an outburst which is suggested, but never liberated. A charming restraint measures the moods of the pictures. Like bits of a pattern, the full design is one of beauty.

Landscapes from many states show nature in many guises. The Massachusetts trees differ from the eucalyptus of California, but both have permitted Mr. Birren to portray them, vigorously, thoughtfully, and beautifully. In the plan of his composition and in the marvelous and unique treatment of his paint, this artist stands as a modernist, so he himself hints. To be frank, there is nothing, absolutely nothing, of the modernist, in the accepted meaning of that word, about the paintings of Mr. Birren. They are modern, yes; modernist, no. They are of today and for tomorrow—a phrase which cannot be credited to modernist work (with some exceptions).

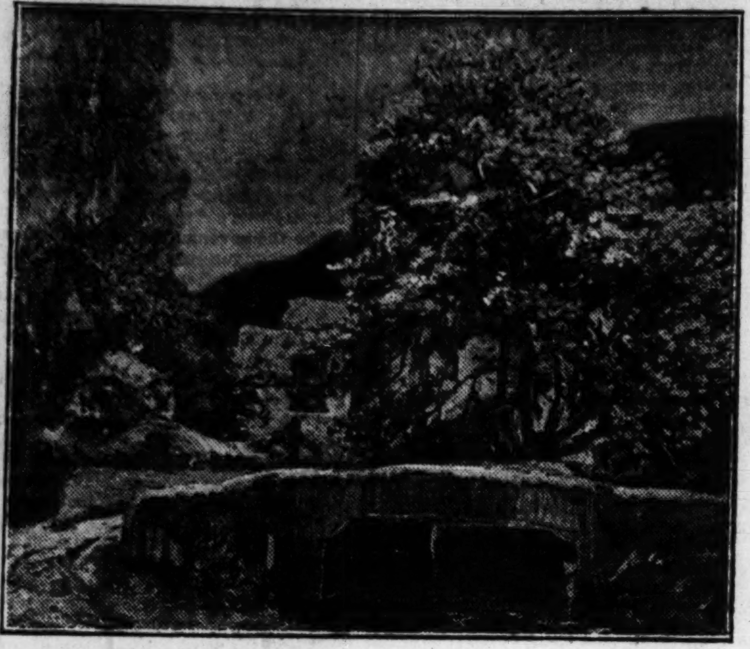
A New Technique.

At all events, Mr. Birren brings a new technique to us. A most fascinating technique it is. His surfaces are uneven, raised, and yet run back and melt into each other, these levels of color, and blend and compose themselves into charming unity with a sureness that can be only the result of infinite pains and infinite care. The finished technician—that might be one synonym for Joseph Birren.

Meanwhile, the exhibit. There are some forty canvases and they run from the fragile and gay little "The Call" and "Main Street" to the superb "Weavings of Springtime," "Tree Lace," and "Wild Cherry Tree." "The Last Snow" is a lovely bit. It was painted last spring in the forest preserves. The leaves were out and the grass a tender green, a few flowers had answered the call of the sun, spring was in the air. All of a sudden, the sky was gray; the wind swerved into the north; snow fell. Mr. Birren added a light mantle of snow to his landscape, and retreated with his exquisite trophy.



"THE CHERRY TREE," by Joseph Birren, in his exhibition of landscapes now to be found at the Chicago Galleries, 220 North Michigan avenue. Irving Manoir and Gilbert Foote contribute their work to make this current exhibition one of the best the Galleries has given us this year. The exhibition will run through March 24.

Manoir Canvases a Delight.

Irving Manoir shares the gallery with Mr. Birren. Mr. Manoir's paintings are always a delight. He has imagination and skill and a capital color sense. Here are found illustration of his ability for which congratulations are in order. For example, the "First Snow," a delicious blend of olive green and soft white. Then look at, and fall in love with, the "Sleigh Path," a tiny scrap of perfection. "Cuban Harbor" is a vivid flash of blue water in a setting of golden sunshine; it comes upon you like the swift unrolling of a bolt of ribbon.

The "Decorative Screen" and the "Peacock Screen" are of interest. Above each in turn is a curious panel, exotic and original. The one is "Sea Fantasy" and the other "Black Swans." They cry to the imagination. Another stunning effect of birds is found in the "Flying Geese." And there are a number of good portraits in black and white, one or two portraits of girls in color, pictures from Taos, from Cuba, from California—a wealth of material all eminently satisfactory. One little canvas must be mentioned, the "Russet Year." It is, in mood, like a soothing French song, an old song, as sentimental as the drip of rain from a roof, as intimate as the smooth touch of a child's hand.

Completing the Exhibit.

Paintings by Gilbert Foote complete this exhibition. These are in a room to themselves and have a great deal to commend them. One feels the artist as young, trying his way. At least two different manners are clearly shown. A suggestion of modernism influences the "River Drama," but straight academic painting shows in the "Old Fashioned Bouquet" and "Italian Slums." If Mr. Foote goes over to Ross Moffett and Bellows and Kroll, there will be more "Pastoral Symphonies" in the future and fewer "Hillside Patterns." The gain would be a conservative loss. Here's hoping the loss will never be realized.

Other Shows Interest.

At the Palette and Chisel club Holger W. Jensen has a brilliant show. About thirty of his pictures are hung and nearly all of them are worth close attention. A soft, glowing color distinguishes the large canvas, "The Quarry." Romantic and lovely is his "A Kentucky Bridge." Like castles along the Rhone are the rocky sides which show in his "Kentucky River Cliffs." "Barbara Smiles" is an adorable still life centered about the charming happy portrait bust in marble of a little girl. The group of water colors is brimming with points of beauty and clever craftsmanship.

At the O'Brien galleries there opened last week an exhibition of paintings by four women artists. To place them in a few words one might sum up their different talent something in this fashion: Florence W. Gotthold, firm, texture; Lucille Howard, gentle, romantic; Emma Fordyce MacRae, modernist; M. Elizabeth Price, imaginist, orientalist. Following these suggestive terms of description you can invariably pick out the one artist from the other. Each runs true to her own type.

Decorative Work.

Elizabeth Price has some exceedingly decorative work. There is a great deal of beauty about her painting. The beauty, to be sure, is not always orthodox, but it is beauty. Look at the "Oriental Poppies," the "Black Tulips," the "Giant Russians," all of them magnificent flower compositions. With flowers and with ships her brush deals, and deals well.

Florence Gotthold has a splendid showing. A group of little pictures in textiles is utterly charming. In the larger work she gives us a still life, excellent in composition, masterly in finish, the "Incense." "Summer's Ending" is a royal bouquet of fall flowers, a stunning panel rich in color. Her paintings bear close inspection and their essential firmness of character makes them ring more true in looking back upon them. They are of such pictures as "remember" well.

The work by Lucille Howard possesses a quiet, rather shy, charm. A suggested French atmosphere runs through them. They are soft and gentle and gay, delicate whimsies which a cross look would send trembling to a corner. Perhaps the most exquisite of her things is the "Bacchanale," the overmantel decoration, a composition of cheerful cherubs and peaceful landscape.

A Single Modernist.

Emma Fordyce MacRae is the single modernist. An element of confusion is in her paintings. The backgrounds are crowded with disturbing figures, each, one feels sure, symbolic, if one had the key. So much modernism is symbolic—and only too often there is no key. Here the lack of a key is negligible; the door is left, in each picture, on the latch. One can enter and enjoy the paintings; their differences are an invitation rather than an obstacle.

A few of these compositions are even rather beautiful. To illustrate, "Daisies" is quite a lovely thing; "When Summer Comes" is gay; "Orange, White, and Green" is an intricate pattern but reasonable; "Roses" is almost fascinating. The "Iris with Oriental Rug" is an imperatively stunning decoration for an overmantel.

This exhibit will continue to March 24.

Opening March 14.

At the Carson, Pirie, Scott's galleries there will open March 14 an exhibition of paintings by Anna Lee Stacey and John F. Stacey. Mr. Stacey is resigning on March 16 from his position as instructor in art at the Crane High school, a position he has held for thirty years and one in which he has made himself beloved to countless Chicagoans. Mr. and Mrs. Stacey plan to leave shortly after their exhibition and to summer in the east.

The Illinois Women's Athletic club is enjoying a splendid exhibit of paintings by Illinois men artists. The paintings are not many in number but each is distinctive in quality. Charles P. Killgore shows a stunning mountain landscape of the snow draped rocks above the emerald blue of Lake Tahoe; Frederic M. Grant has a remarkably well composed and beautifully painted still life; Carl Bohnen has two portraits, a gracious one of his wife and a cheerful, human portrait of his son, Román, as a little boy; Harry F. Engle shows a romantic landscape and Frederic Tellander is represented by a vigorous sweep of surging water. Edgar Cameron brings one to dreams again with his lovely forgotten corner from a French town.

Bishop Freeman to Talk Here This Week

The religious editorial printed in The Tribune Nov. 13 1927, entitled "Why 1,000 Men Confer on Evangelism," by Oscar C. Hagen, president of the Presbyterian union, has been reproduced in leaflet form for nation-wide distribution. Dr. Charles L. Goodell, secretary of the commission on evangelism of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, was so impressed by the editorial that he requested the privilege of distributing 10,000 copies. Mr. Hagen, who gave the banquet to the 1,000 Presbyterian men, paid for the publication and placed them in Dr. Goodell's hands. As an indication of the popularity of the Tribune religious editorials we are glad to say that ten other of the editorials have been reprinted in one form or another.

The new volume of "Religion Today," containing the 52 editorials in full of the last year, with pictures of all the authors, will soon be ready.

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THE Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, D. C., will give a series of addresses in Chicago this week. Bishop Freeman is well known in Chicago and the west as the rector for ten years of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Minneapolis, Minn. He is nationally known because of his leadership in building the cathedral at Washington on Mount St. Alban, where the late President Woodrow Wilson is buried. It is hoped the cathdral will be recognized as the Westminster Abbey of America and that other notables will find there their final resting place.

When completed the cathedral will cost $30,000,000 and will have a seating capacity of 7,500. Mount St. Alban is the highest ground in Washington and the central tower of the cathedral, 262 feet in height, will rise 107 feet above the top of the Washington monument.

Impetus has been given to the cathedral project by the acceptance of the chairmanship of the committee in charge by Gen. John J. Pershing, commander-in-chief of the American forces over seas during the war. An anonymous gift of $500,000 was recently announced.

Bishop Freeman will speak tonight at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall at 8 o'clock on the subject, "Understanding the Times." He will also speak each day this week, 12:10-12:30, at the Lenten services in the Garrick theater. Tomorrow at 12:45 a luncheon will be given under the auspices of the Church club at the Wedgewood room, Marshall Field's, in honor of Bishop Freeman, to which all are invited who desire to come. Tomorrow evening he will speak at St. Elizabeth's Episcopal church, Glencoe, and on Thursday evening at the Church of the Redeemer, 56th street and Blackstone avenue.

On Wednesday, in the ballroom of the Hotel Stevens, at 12 noon, there will be the first of a series of luncheons to be held throughout the country under the auspices of Congregational Women in the Interest of World Fellowship.

The Rev. H. D. Dildine, D. D., will preach this morning at the service of the First Methodist Episcopal church, the Chicago Temple, Clark and Washington streets, on the subject, "Conditions in China Today." Dr. and Mrs. Dildine have spent twenty-five years of missionary service in China and have lived in intimate and close relations with the people who are making the struggle for life in such centers of conflict as Tai-anfu, Shantung province, and Peking, one of the greatest cities in the world. On this account Dr. Dildine is eminently fitted to give a real and authoritative picture of that people, so difficult to understand. The occasion is the annual thank offering of the Women's Foreign Missionary society.

The Rt. Rev. Charles P. Anderson, bishop of Chicago diocese, will preach and bless the new chapel at St. Barnabas' Episcopal church, 4241 West Washington boulevard, today at 4:30 p. m. He will also officiate at the annual confirmation service at this time. The new chapel is the gift of Mrs. Randall, wife of Dr. E. J. Randall, secretary of the bishop and council, and formerly rector of St. Barnabas'. The present rector is the Rev. Walter S. Pond.

This evening at the Thoburn Methodist Episcopal church, 64th and South Paulina streets, at 7:45 the Rev. W. F. McDermott of the publicity department of the world service commission of the Methost Episcopal church will preach on the subject, "What Happens After Death." The soloist will be the noted Italian tenor, Mario Capelli, of whom the Rev. Dr. John H. DeLacy, pastor of the church, writes: "Signor Capelli was once a member of the choir in the pope's own cathedral in Rome and Caruso in 1917 predicted that he might prove to be the one tenor alone who could worthily succeed him." Two special numbers in Signor Capelli's program will be "The Prodigal Son" and "Goin' Home."

The Rev. Peter Guilday, Ph. D., professor of history at the Catholic university, Washington, D. C., president of the Catholic Historical society, and author of the "Life and Times of Bishop England," will be the guest of the Chicago Calvert club at a reception and breakfast today at 12:30 noon at the Auditorium hotel. Dr. Guilday will speak on "Historical Backgrounds of Maryland." Also tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. I. Cudahy, Dr. Guilday will address a meeting of the Chapel Guild of the Convent of the Cenacle, and tomorrow evening the Medievalists.

At the church of the Epiphany, Ashland boulevard and Adams street, this evening at 8 o'clock, there will be a special Lenten organ recital at which L. J. Heath, organist and choir director at All Saints church, Ravenswood, for the last 17 years, will be the soloist. Francis E. Aulbach will render the service and the Rev. C. E. Williams, rector of St. George's Episcopal church, will be the special Lenten preacher.

Dr. George Craig Stewart, rector of St. Luke's church, Evanston, will deliver noonday Lenten addresses in Baltimore, Md., this week and has just completed similar services at Cleveland, O. Dr. Duncan H. Browne of St. James' Episcopal church has been the noonday Lenten preacher at Trinity church, New York City, the last week.

THE REV. DANIEL A. LORD, S. J.
[Walinger Photo.]

The Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J., is the author of a drama of the Passion entitled, "Behold the Man," which will be presented in the St. Ignatius auditorium, Loyola avenue near Glenwood avenue, March 26-April 1. Father Lord is the author of "The Pageant of Peace" and "The Pageant of Youth," which have been given at Loyola on previous occasions. The coming drama is one of a series of cultural entertainments, given under the auspices of the Loyola Community theater.

Father Lord is the editor of "The Queen's Work" and is the author of several books and plays; he is also a frequent contributor to various magazines. The screen picture, "The King of Kings," now being shown in Chicago, was partially directed by him. The producers engaged him to edit the film version of the life of our Lord. "Behold the Man" is described in the announcements as dealing with big business in Jerusalem in the year 33 A. D., and with big business in America in the year 1928 A. D.

The Presbyterian church of Hillsboro, Ill., will celebrate the 100th anniversary of its founding today by two services. The Rev. James M. Duer, Clinton, Ia., pastor in 1905, will deliver the centennial sermons. The exact date of the founding of the church was March 10, 1828. The Rev. Dr. A. M. Eells is the present pastor.

At the 7 o'clock service of the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall during March and April the Rev. Albert W. Palmer, D. D., of the First Congregational church, Oak Park, will give a series of Bible talks on the general subject of "Some Typical Saints and Sinners." The first of the series will be given tonight on "Adam." Bishop Freeman will preach at the 8 o'clock service, as announced elsewhere in this column. Courtenay Barber will have a part in the service.

At 10:45 on Saturday morning St. Patrick's day will be celebrated at St. Patrick's Catholic church, Adams and Des Plaines streets, with a solemn high mass. The Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., assistant general of the Holy Cross Order of Notre Dame, Indiana, will preach, and music dear to the hearts of the Irish people will be rendered by Dr. J. Lewis Browne, organist, and the choir of the church.

Prof. Scott Nearing, who last summer was summoned to act as economic advisor to the Cantonese government of South China and who has recently returned from Russia, will deliver a lecture on "The Present Trend in China and Russia" this afternoon at 3:15 in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel under the auspices of the Chicago forum. This evening at 8 o'clock he will speak on "The Future of Labor in World Affairs" before the West Town forum in the Masonic building, 3951 Wilcox street at Crawford avenue.

At the Uptown forum held in the People's church, 941 Lawrence avenue at Sheridan road, this evening at 8 o'clock Prof. Frederick Starr of Seattle, Wash., formerly at the University of Chicago for thirty years, will speak on "What Is Today's Civilization Doing to the Race?"

Tomorrow evening, under the auspices of the Chicago forum, Count Hermann Keyserling, noted author and philosopher, will deliver his lecture on "Marriage" at Orchestra hall. Count Keyserling is the descendant of a line of German-Baltic barons and now lives in Darmstadt, where he married the Princess Bismarck, daughter of the famous "Iron Chancellor."

This evening at 8 o'clock at 5521 West Lake street, under the auspices of the Austin Community forum, the address will be given by Alderman Wiley W. Mills on the subject, "The Crisis in Chicago's Public Schools."

Dr. A. C. McGifforth of the Chicago Theological seminary will be the speaker at the Lenten service of the Y. W. C. A., 59 East Monroe street, Friday at 5:45 p. m. Dr. McGifforth will use as his text, "We Have No King but Cæsar," John xiv., 27, with the parallel topic, "Where Do You Give Your Allegiance?"

Celebrants at the noonday masses of the Catholic club, held in room 512 Willoughby building, 81 East Madison street, during the week will be: Monday, the Rev. J. Ross-Evanson; Tuesday, Bishop Sheldon M. Griswold; Wednesday, the Rev. W. E. Hoffenbacher; Thursday, the Rev. L. C. Ferguson; Friday, the Rev. H. J. Spencer; Saturday, the Rev. William T. Travis.

An attempt will be made today by the Presbyterian churches throughout the United States to underwrite a budget of $63,000,000 or more. This day has been appointed by the Presbyterian general council as Every Member Canvass Sunday. The local budgets of about 10,000 churches are reported to amount to $46,000,000. In addition, the general council has asked the churches to subscribe $12,000,000 for the year to guarantee the work of the four missionary and educational boards of the denomination. The budget of $12,000,000 for benevolences as apportioned to Presbyterian territory includes $867,317 to Illinois.

A series of lectures for non-Catholics will be given each evening this week at 7:45 by the missioners of the Holy Cross Order of Notre Dame, the Rev. Joseph J. Boyle, C. S. C., and the Rev. William J. Burke, C. S. C., at St. Patrick's Catholic church, Adams and Des Plaines streets, with the following subjects: Monday, "Am I Obliged to Believe?" Tuesday, "Is One Religion as Good as Another?" Wednesday, "Jesus Christ, Messiah and Son of God"; Thursday, "Is the Bible a Sufficient Guide to Salvation?" Friday, "Marriage and Divorce"; Saturday, "Confessions of Sins to a Priest"; Sunday, "Why Am I a Catholic?"

Tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, at 19 South La Salle street, the Congregational Ministers' union will be addressed by Arthur E. Bestor of New York, president of the American Chataqua institute, on the subject, "Constantinople and the New Turkey."

A luncheon in the interests of the World Christian Fundamentals convention, which will take place in Chicago May 13-20, will be held at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street, tomorrow at 12:30 p. m. The business meeting of the Chicago Fundamentals Ministers' union will begin at the same place at 10 a. m. Dr. W. B. Riley, president of the World association, will speak at 11:30 a. m. Following the luncheon the question of the world conference will be discussed.

Dr. King D. Beach, pastor of St. James' Methodist Episcopal church, 46th street at Ellis avenue, this evening will begin a series of sermons on the general subject, "A Preacher's Frank Confession of Faith." Tonight the theme will be "What I Believe About God." "What I Believe About Jesus," "The Bible," "Immortality," "Prayer and the Church" will follow on successive Sunday evenings.

SERMONS AND SERVICES IN CHICAGO CHURCHES TODAY

THE REV. ALFRED LEE WILSON, D. D.

Dr. Wilson will preach his first sermon as pastor of the Kenwood church (Interdenominational), 46th street and Greenwood avenue, next Sunday morning. He succeeds Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, who was pastor for sixteen years and is now in Santa Monica, Cal. Dr. Wilson comes from a seven year pastorate of the First Presbyterian church of Canton, O., where he left a membership of 1,500. He is a graduate of Wooster college, O.; Princeton university, and Princeton Theological seminary, from which latter institution he received the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1906.

The Kenwood church, formerly called the Kenwood Evangelical church, was founded in 1885. In 1925 a community house was erected in connection with the church building. There have been three pastors only in the history of the church to date—the Rev. John P. Hale, the Rev. John R. Crosser, and Dr. McCartney. The church is said to be the oldest interdenominational church in Chicago.

During the war Dr. Wilson spent one and a half years with the army Y. M. C. A., connected with the 332d regiment.

GAGE Hats

The French influence again! This Gage model, FEMINA, owes its trim of tiny primroses to Agnes. The lovely linen-textured straw is a favorite of Alphonsine, and the faultless chic of black and white is a passion with Reboux. FEMINA, with other Gage models just as smart, is waiting to be tried on by you.

Riviera Building Boom Under Way

By May Birkhead.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1928: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MONTE CARLO, March 10.—[Special Correspondence.].—The vast amount of building everywhere on the Riviera from St. Raphael to Menton is the first feature to strike the eye of the newcomer to this section. This is particularly true in and around Cannes and both sides of Monte Carlo. The new resort of Juan les Pins, only about two years old, is taking on the atmosphere of an old village. It is attractive in combining the new with the old, being in realty a section of the old Antibes, whose monuments bearing inscriptions take it back to the ancient Greeks and Romans.

An American Patron.

This attractive new resort has American connections through having Frank Jay Gould for its godfather. For some years he had a villa at Nice, and presented the city with its magnificent tennis courts. This year he has a villa at Cannes, to be near Juan les Pins, having a majority of shares in the company which built the tremendous Hotel Provencal, which overlooks the gulf and already is becoming a fashionable center of the Riviera at the height of the season. There also is a marked drift here fof the summer, this particular bay having a wonderful bathing beach.

With so much building going on in Monte Carlo, the new company is acquiring the famous Hotel de Paris, also the Hotel Hermitage, and reorganizing the Casino.

The Lido's Rival.

Plans are under way to make a summer resort of Monaco. Twenty new tennis courts were opened last week at the new Festa Country club, said to be the finest in Europe, marking the first step in the building of the new Monte Carlo. The next move will be the making of a bathing beach where now there is nothing but pebbles. Twenty million francs will be spent in constructing a rubber beach. The pebbles will be covered with a sort of rubberized substance. It is the plan of the company to make Monte Carlo rival the Lido.

Americans generally are not particularly noticeable at the hotels, while those having villas are not great in number. Among the Chicagoans who are permanent winter residents this season are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lytton, who bought and reconstructed the villa Elgia at Cap d'Ail, adjoining Monaco, on the road to Nice. The Lyttons have become part of the Monte Carlo American colony and are often hosts at gala dinners at the various fashionable restaurants and entertain at their villa, as well.

News of Chicagoans.

Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth Park MacKenzie, accompanied by Miss Mary Anderson, who have been at Cannes throughout the season, will motor to Paris next week and return to Chicago in the spring. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Born, also Mrs. Elias Meyer, and other Chicagoans, often are seen at the Cannes Casino.

Monte Carlo, which used to be more famous for yachting than any other point on the Riviera, is well on the way to a revival of this sport, though the facilities are not so great here as at Cannes for the craft to make a long stay.

In the harbor now is Anthony J. Drexel's yacht, the Sayonara, which just returned from a long cruise around India. Franklin Singer's Xarifer, after being at Cannes for weeks, just arrived here, with the owner and a party aboard. It is a bautiful auxiliary cruiser, built for ocean cruising. Mr. Singer and his French wife have entered much into society life at Cannes, often entertaining friends at the casino.

Ira C. Copley's yacht, which has been both at Cannes and Monte Carlo for some weeks, now is in the bay at Villefranche. It will leave in a few days on a long cruise, with Mr. and Mrs. Copley aboard.

Quick Action.

Our dog has lately been subject to fits for which we have been treating him. The other day, believing him cured, we allowed him to go on a hunting trip with us.

I was walking along some distance from my husband when I heard him shout about something. I walked toward him to see what he wanted, and when I did so the dog, which had had another fit and gone mad, rushed toward me.

Shouting to me to step aside, my husband took a hasty shot and the dog dropped at my feet. Talk about thrills, I got one then that I will not forget for some time. C. E. O.

Thinking Fast and Clearly.

One evening, while alone in my home, I was sitting quietly in the living room reading. After a few minutes I seemed to sense some prying eyes. Without moving my head I glanced toward the window and there was the face of a man. His face was horribly scarred, which fact made him more terrible to me. After my first feeling of weakness I thought quickly of the doors, whether they were locked or not. The front door and cellar door were locked, but the back door I had neglected to lock. Leisurely getting up I crossed the room and switched off the lights. Tiptoeing quietly out to the back door I grabbed the key and turned it in the lock just as the door knob turned from the other side. After several attempts he gave it up and left.

Needless to say, my doors were locked and my window shades pulled thereafter.

the PROFILE

A new and charming grace the PROFILE lends to the ankle. Delicate lines—not a solid block of color—converge into a slenderizing effect. Just a touch, subtly achieved by a patented weaving process, gives this hosiery an unusual distinction. And its charm is especially compelling in the sheer chiffons. Phoenix style alertness is made clearly apparent by this new feature. An outstanding example of the fine texture, sturdy service, charming color of Phoenix hosiery!

London Shows Are Mostly American

By Contra Fagotto.

LONDON, February 20.—[Special Correspondence.] — There isn't much to be seen in the many theaters here that doesn't classify as either old stuff or American export. As an example of how the managers are put to it for attractions, permit me to tell of what happened to me the other night. I had promised some friends to go with them to see the play made many years ago for Richard Mansfield from Tarkington's "Monsieur Beaucaire," and said I would meet them at the theater. In the afternoon of the day I was to go, I ran my eye hastily down the columns of theater-ads in the Times, and near the foot of the page saw "Monsieur Beaucaire" advertised as in the Scala, to which I repaired after-dinner, to find that what was to be given there was the operetta based on the play, with music by André Messager, shown in Chicago at least eight years ago.

I was astounded, inasmuch as my friends had explained the reason for their wishing to see the play as being friendship for Sir Frank Benson, who continues to direct a troupe called the Bensonians, now that he no longer is the director of the Memorial Theater at Stratford. After waiting until 8:15, I asked an attendant if Sir Frank were about, and was told he wasn't—that, indeed, he wasn't concerned with the entertainment. Fortunately, the house-manager had a copy of the Times on his desk, and, appealed to, consulted it, and then told me that the Bensonians were to be seen in the original play at Hammersmith, miles and miles away to the West. Knowing but one theater in Hammersmith, the now-celebrated Lyric, I told the taxi-man to take me there. When I arrived, at 9:30, it was to learn that "The Beggar's Opera" was in revival; so, for old times' sake, I bought an admission and had another earful of the delightful old piece, which is a sure-fire stopgap when this house needs a show. As to "Monsieur Beaucaire," it was in another theater around the corner in the High Road.

"On Approval," a failure last year in Chicago, has reached 300 here, with Ellis Jeffreys in the rôle acted there by Violet Kemble-Cooper. "The Vagabond King" is still on view, in the Gaiety, and "The Desert-Song" in the Drury-Lane, with Edith Day in the principal part. The lovely thing Chicago knows as "Blossom-Time" is in revival here as "Lilac-Time." "Hit the Deck!" is here; and so is "Cradle-Snatchers," called "Sauce for the Gander." The critics scorched this one, but without deterring the public from buying seats.

"The Second Man," "The Silver Cord," and "Crime" are other works known in Chicago that may be viewed here. Noël Coward, whose stock hereabout isn't as high as it was after "The Vortex," is in "The Second Man"; and Lillian Braithwaite, who was in Chicago with Coward in that piece, and Clare Eames, wife of Sidney Howard, are in "The Silver Cord."

Marie Tempest is reviving "Mr. Pim Passes By," A. A. Milne's first success in the theater; and he is represented here by another piece, "The Fourth Wall," which is a detective-play. "Judith of Israel," a new piece based on the story in the Apocrypha, is by E. De Marnay Baruch, an American. The critics don't think much of it, although they rave over the acting as Judith by Sybil Thorndyke.

Of the revues I've seen, the neatest and best is "Clowns in Clover," with Jack Hulbert and his clever wife, Cicely Courtneidge, who were so well liked in Chicago in their show named "By-the-Way!"

Sutton Vane's odd piece named "Outward-Bound" is in revival. It wasn't taken to Chicago from New-York, where it failed. I'm told that I ought to see "S. O. S.," in which Gerald Du Maurier, still London's "most fashionable actor," appears; "The Dance of Death," with Robert Loraine; and "Macbeth," as put on by Sir Barry Jackson in the clothing of today. To all of them, however, I'm putting up a magnificent sales-resistance.

Sloppy Models.

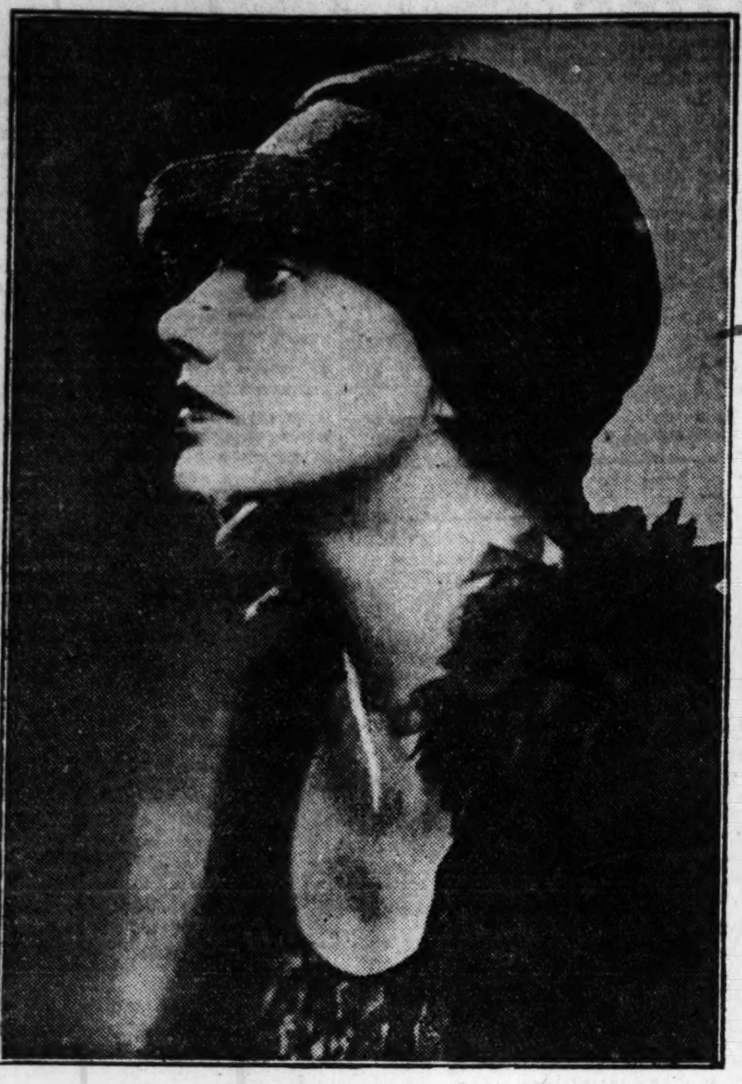
The New-York stage is not nearly so international as rhapsodists say. It takes a good seven-eighths of its tone from the London stage. An influential number of its leading actors are Englishmen. . . . American actors are, in general, deliberately-bad speakers. Deliberately, because English acting is their model, and English acting makes almost an ideal of lazy, hazy, slovenly-enunciated speed. In drawling, in dropping the ends of sentences, there is supposed to be a sort of smartness. Just as one dare not wear his dinner-jacket too well, lest he betray the actor in him, so he must not treat his vowels and consonants too respectfully, lest he betray the orator. Death, divorce, and all the soul's dilations must be discussed on the ideal Anglo-Saxon stage in the same depressed, chilled, unobliging way as one talks of going over to pop a couple of grouse or to play bridge with the Dowager Duchess.—Gilbert Gabriel in the New-York Evening Sun.

Smart!

There's "dash" in a neat and gleaming head of hair! Apply a little "Hair Groom" in the morning and your hair, straight or waved, is "set" for the day—neat and lustrous. "Hair Groom" is greaseless and refined in odor. The most fastidious people use it. Be sure you ask for "Hair Groom". It's "different". At all drug stores.

"HAIR-GROOM"

RETURNS AS A FORMAL STAR



MISS KATHARINE CORNELL

SHE comes, after an absence of nearly three years, to the Olympic in "The Letter"; and it is told that Mr. Maugham, the author, insisted when he made arrangements for the American performances that Miss Cornell should have the part of the unfaithful wife who, after killing her lover, bankrupts her husband with the costs of defense. . . . Miss Cornell was cheered by most of the play-reporters when last here, in 1925, in "The Green Hat." Apart from that she is virtually unknown in Chicago.

That Boobery We Call First-Nighting

THERE is something undoubtedly about the opening-night of a new play. To become a first-nighter is to achieve prestige in one of the simplest, swiftest, and most curiously-inexplicable ways. "Oh yes! I was there at the opening": it sets you up sweetly above your fellows to say that, with careful casualness, when a play is being discussed. Your hearers look at you with a becoming, though new, respect in their eyes: immediately you are to them a marked New-Yorker—one well in the know; one who walks with assurance along the ground floor. Few things can make you feel so comfortably, so unassailably, the heir of the ages. And you can have it all for the cost of two first-night theater-tickets, or a sum scarcely more than a king's ransom amounted to back in the days when people were interested in ransoming mislaid kings.

I don't know just why it is that this feat of being among those present at a play's maiden performance should be classed so high in desirable achievements. I am only certain that sense has little, if anything, to do with the matter. In the first place, those who attend a first-night represent the triumph of hope over recurrence. Maybe the play will be perfectly great; and maybe—maybe nothing, alas! "Probably" is the word—it will be just another one of those things. You have no word, either of mouth or pen, to warn you away, or to urge you in.

¶ ¶ ¶

True, there are sometimes provocative rumors of a play's sure-fire success in its previous tentative unveilings back in the misty "dog-towns"; but it's strange and it's sad how things may have changed by the time it reaches New-York. If the star is one of the major lights of your life and the playwright one whose past works have meant practically everything to you, on them you may bank your pretty hopes; but even glamorous stars and glittering authors have been known—shall we mildly say?—to disappoint. You cannot be sure what your evening's entertainment will be, or even if it will be an evening's entertainment at all. Well, maybe it is that element of chance that does much about luring you into the theater. . . .

But, once seated, no actor, no playwright, no manager could ask a fresher, a more naïve, a softer-boiled, audience. The members are pathetically eager for the play to be good. They applaud the entrances of even the most minor character; and, when the star appears, they do everything but a snake-dance in their ecstasies of welcome. They laugh joyously at what can possibly be considered funny. A performance or a play need be far less than great to set them cheering the actor or shouting for the author. It makes no difference how many first-nights they have attended, how many disappointments they have suffered: each new opening finds them as hopeful and excited as children at a Punch-and-Judy show.

And hope and excitement are contagious things. That, I guess, is what makes everybody want to go to the opening-night of a play.—Dorothy Parker in McCall's Magazine.

Chicagoans in Pilgrimage to Ireland's Holy Mount

A pilgrimage to Croagh Patrick, the holy mountain whereon St. Patrick prayed and fasted during the whole of lent in the year of 441 A. D., has been arranged by the Mayo Men's association of New York. Many Irish of Chicago are being enlisted for the voyage. The S. S. Samaria of the Cunard line has been chartered for the pilgrims. They will leave New York on July 14, sailing direct to Galway, which is close to Westport, site of the Croagh Patrick and one of the most beautiful of Erin's scenic regions. The last Sunday in July—July 29 this year—is the traditional date for the services on the mountain.

The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel—46 stories high, with 3,400 rooms.

IT would be hard to guess how many business enterprises and plans for civic development have been arranged across the hospitable tables of the restaurants in the Morrison Hotel.

The Finest Menus at Moderate Cost

The intimate, carefree atmosphere, and the singularly moderate charges—so rarely associated with such de luxe service—give little indication of the extent to which the Morrison Hotel has shared in making municipal and national history.

1944 Rooms—Each with Bath

The same perfect service prevails in all other departments. Every guest-room is outside, with bath, running ice water, bed-head lamp, telephone, and Servidor. The last-named affords valet service without contact with employes, and assures privacy with its "grille" feature. A housekeeper is assigned to every floor, and all guests enjoy the privileges of the hotel's garage.

Rates, $2.50 Up

for rooms that would cost $5 up in other leading hotels. The central location has established subrentals that pay all the ground rent, and the saving is passed on to the guests.

There's only one S.S. Leviathan

CONSIDER the advantages of sailing to Europe on the world's largest ship, the S. S. Leviathan. In a trifle over five days you have crossed the Atlantic Ocean. Yet so steady is this giant liner that you've hardly been aware of any motion. Think of the many luxuries of those five glorious days: a cuisine so unusually fine that you will always remember it; decorative furnishings designed by artists; courteous stewards who seem to guess your every wish. And with all this, your trip is actually economical. Next sailing from New York on March 24.

American cabin ships

Cabin (one-class) ships resulted from a widespread demand for liners with luxurious accommodations but low rates. Cabin class passengers enjoy the best there is on board. The American cabin ships are the S. S. George Washington, S. S. America, S. S. Republic, S. S. President Harding, and S. S. President Roosevelt.

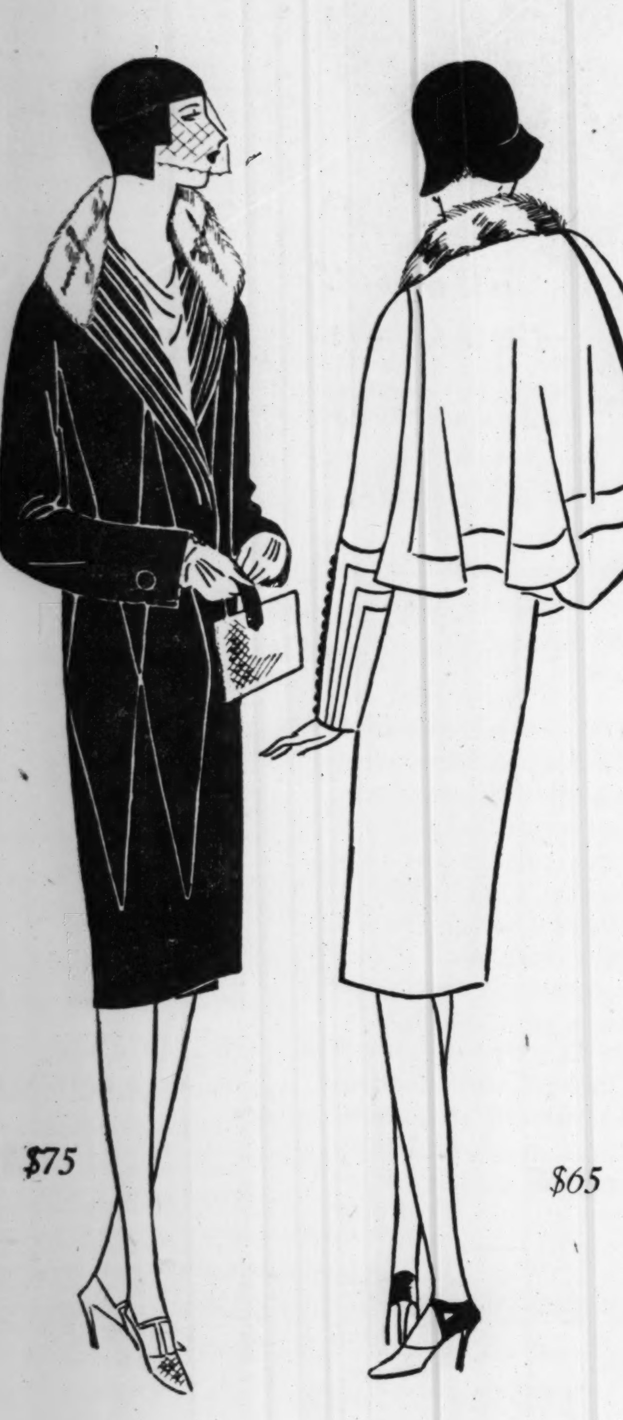
Commencing tomorrow—March sale of Paris-sponsored Coats for women



Each year, at this time, concentrated effort is directed toward assembling coats of recognized style-rightness and decided value. This year's effort has resulted in these three attractive groups featuring spring-weight woolens in smart new tones.

Furs:	Colors:

Models sketched but typify their respective groups.

$65

The season's success—the CAPE COAT—is here attractively developed in beige tashana. Sketched left. To its jaunty silhouette is added the softening touch of a band of fitch at the collar.

$75

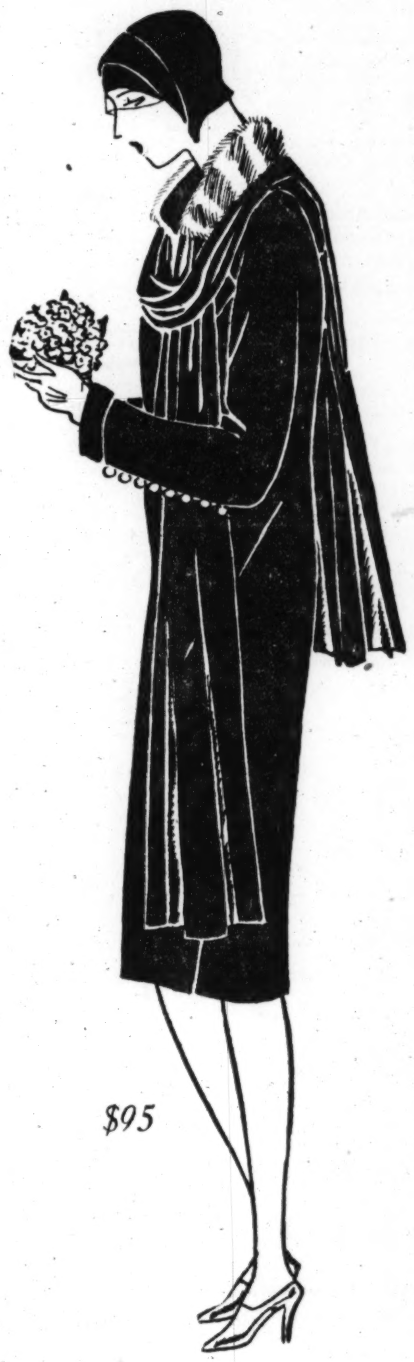
$95

A charming sophistication is effected in the handsome black coat (sketched right) by means of the fashionable new scarf throw with the interesting flare-ends. Its attractive lining of heavy white silk crepe is finished at hem with a wide irregular band of black satin.

Mandel Brothers, fourth floor.



3500 yards all-silk flat crepe and radium in a remarkable, timely offering

54-inch flat crepes

Firmly woven and durable—though of a suppleness that makes it particularly adaptable to the graceful, draped silhouette—is this material. Its added width makes for greater economy.

Mandel Brothers, "famous for silks," second floor.

1.75 yd.

52-inch Radium

The fine soft weave and gleaming lustre finish of this radium suggests its use in lingerie, slips, linings and frock foundations. A comfortable, cool silk especially suitable for spring and summer use.

Mandel Brothers, "famous for silks," second floor.

A host of charming costume shades include: honeydew, maize, seafoam, Goya red, almond green, coral, the newest shades of blue, white, flesh, tan, grey, navy, black.

A special selling of compacts by Poirette

Medium length $10

Ideal foundations for the smart ensemble are these compacts, which present most exceptional values. The one sketched is of silk broche and hand-knitted elastic with brassiere top of figured rayon. Long model, $12. Expert fitters in attendance.

Mandel Brothers, fifth floor.

This flower turban a decided value

$10

Little spring blossoms (in a refreshing shade of young green) are artfully strewn over this cap-like visca. A youthful hat style introduced this season by a foremost French milliner. Other fashionable models in felt, with the piquant nose veil, smart eyebrow niche, or softening brim—likewise at this moderate price—in new shades.

Mandel Brothers, fifth floor.

All-Over Mohair Suites

in a choice of colors at this unusually low price

$139

Two sturdily constructed pieces having hardwood inner frame; moss and cotton filling and fully webbed. Their carved, shaped frames are exceptional in suites at this price. Reversible cushions are a practical and attractive feature. The color choice includes tones of: taupe, green, red, brown, and black.

Mandel Brothers, tenth floor.

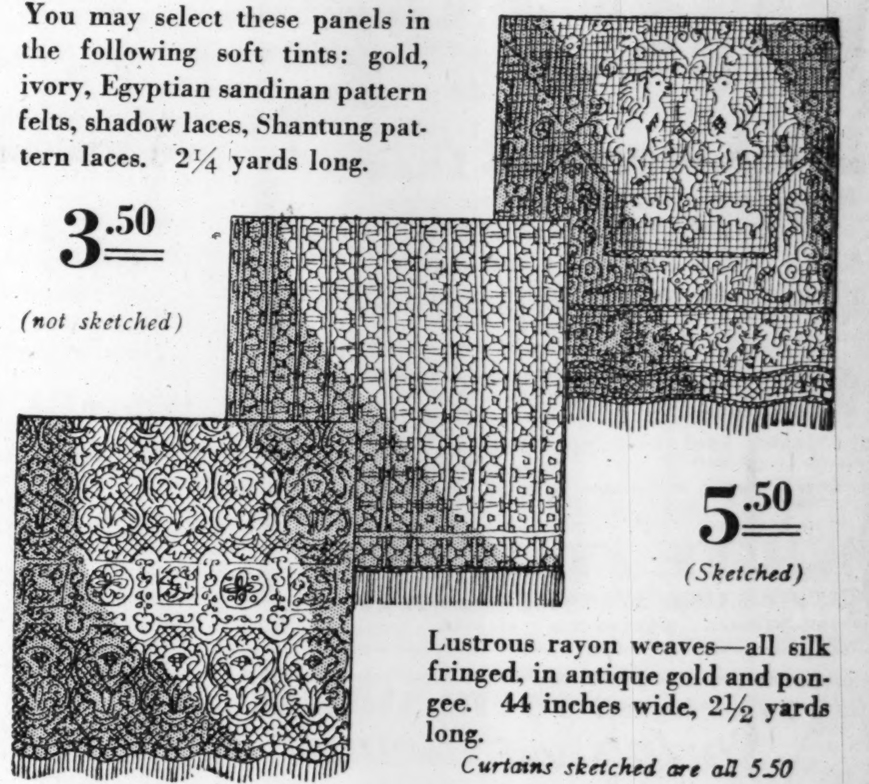
Lace Panel Values

An opportunity to re-curtain
at worthwhile savings

You may select these panels in the following soft tints: gold, ivory, Egyptian sandinan pattern felts, shadow laces, Shantung pattern laces. 2¼ yards long.

3.50

(not sketched)



5.50

(Sketched)

Lustrous rayon weaves—all silk fringed, in antique gold and pongee. 44 inches wide, 2½ yards long.

Curtains sketched are all 5.50

From one of America's most prominent makers we secured this lot—at a decidedly advantageous price. Consequently, we are able to offer these attractive panels at prices unusually low for curtains of quality.

Mandel Brothers, eighth floor.

Persian Arak Rugs—Special

—just arrived from the Orient and offered at this notable price

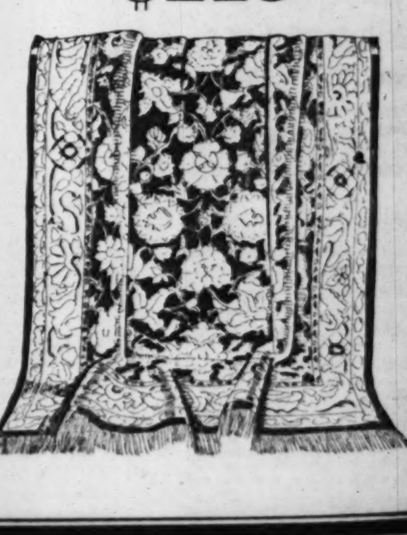
$215

The practical 9 by 12 foot size is in the majority. The famous looms of Persia have given a rich beauty and a desirable durability to these handsome rugs.



Soft rose, cool blue and deep mahogany tones predominate in the color choice. There's an attractive assortment of designs for selection.

CAPT. AL FRANCIS OBRILL, commander of the Disabled War Veterans, recently enjoyed a two weeks' vacation at Judge Oscar Hebel's winter home in Florida. According to Capt. Obrill, prices at hotels in Florida have been cut considerably during the last twelve months.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Jacobs celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last Sunday at their home, 2019 North Kedzie boulevard. They are Gold Star parents, two sons having laid down their lives for the nation. The immediate family, consisting of two sons, three daughters, and eight grandchildren, attended the celebration. Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs are both 72 years old.

* *

* *

Mose Lamson, the well known detective, is debating the launching of a detective agency. Mose states that his record to date is 100 per cent—hunted one man and found him. He is now busy catching up on some of the sleep and entertainment that he missed while sleuthing.

* *

George E. Q. Johnson, our able district attorney, injured his side slightly when he attempted to keep from falling on an icy sidewalk. He lingered about the Washington Park hospital, where he is president of the board, long enough to receive quite a bit of attention, and then returned to his duties as chief prosecutor for Uncle Sam.

Otto is his name, Otto Doerrlamn, and he lives at 1700 Lotus street. He is the blind fellow who sells you morning papers at Clark and Randolph streets and has a cheery word for his customers, regular and otherwise.

Robert E. McMillan, now an assistant state's attorney, was a great little young man of 6 years when this tintype was taken. He hasn't grown much in stature since then, but his boss and his fellow prosecutors say he has grown very wise.

Otto plans to "see" Chicago from an airplane shortly. A kindly aviator has volunteered to take Otto for a ride.

Magic Politeness Card Goes to Howard Jeweler

Kindly Storekeeper on North Side Is Made Happy

By The Politeness Reporter.

"THIS," announced the conductor of the Clark-Howard car, "is as far as we go."

I glanced up, to discover that I was the only passenger left in the car. I must have been day dreaming those last few blocks. I aroused myself and realized that taking the first car that had come along had landed me almost at the city's northern boundary. Ah, well, Howard street would not be expecting me. The magic card and I had arrived with no blare of trumpets.

Miles back, I had boarded the car, to find that the only chance to sit down was beside a man who was sprawled over more than half of the seat. As I sat down the man, hedging an inch or two, continued to sit sort of sideways, oblivious to the fact, apparently, that he was depriving me of my share of the seat. Had I been important looking he probably would have moved over. It was well, I thought, that—so far as the magic card was concerned—my personality was more or less of a blank.

But, as I have said, I had the car all to myself when I reached Howard street.

There is an inspiration to be derived from that neighborhood. It is all so new and its residents all seem to have the realization that they are a part of a great growing district.

I visited a bit with a lady who had the flower shop. She had on the wall a sign which said something to the effect that it was her desire to keep customers as much as to get them. A printed sign, to be sure, and possibly perfunctory in its sentiment. Yet she tried to be as cheery as her flowers.

Bigger and Better.

In Tom's sandwich shop, at the Malvern avenue corner, the two children of the owners were just home from school at noon and were eating their lunch at the counter. The woman back of the counter told me they were her children and she asked them to shake hands with her so she could give them the money for carfare back to school. They called back, "Good-by, mamma." Then the woman turned to me and asked me if I lived in Chicago.

"Yes," I told her, "I'm just paying a visit to Howard street."

"Well," she answered, "it's getting bigger every day."

I walked under the viaduct and across the street to the cigar store on the corner. I tried to change a bill, but the man back of the counter said he'd just been to the bank and didn't have the change for it. A Yellow taxi driver left the place with me and we stood for a moment in front of his cab that had been drawn up to the curb. He showed me where the bank

$6,000 in Cash Prizes Await the Winners

All Letters Must Be Mailed Before 12 o'Clock.

By Margaret Stevers.

TONIGHT'S the night, all you housekeeping Cinderellas. If you have not yet sent in your coupon for entering the Home Harmonious contest, your glass slippers will have until midnight tonight to tinkle to the nearest mailbox and drop your entry in. But no letters postmarked after that hour will be accepted.

That's all you need to do, for, of course by this time you've learned all about the $6,000 in prizes to be distributed by THE TRIBUNE to the 99 most attractive homes in Chicago and suburbs. And of course you've straightened out the children's play corner, and hemmed the new chintz curtains, and repainted the kitchen, in readiness for the judges.

Speaking of judges, your homes are to be scored by committees of three persons, all of them home makers and women vitally interested in knowing about and applying that knowledge to the homelike harmony of the American house or apartment.

Ready to Start Work.

The names of the final judging committee have been mentioned in the Home Harmonious stories since the beginning of the contest. They are Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, president of the Chicago Housewives' league; Mrs. Walter H. Buhlig, president of the Illinois Parent-Teacher association; Mrs. Constant C. Hopkins, American home department chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Leeds Mitchell, treasurer of the Association of Housekeeping Centers; Miss Lucy Silke, art director of the elementary and junior high schools; Andre Rebori, authority on harmonious interiors as well as an architect of recognized ability; Dudley Crafts Watson, extension lecturer for the Chicago Art institute, and Holmes Onderdonk, building manager for THE TRIBUNE.

Through these judges, THE TRIBUNE has obtained the names of club women, their co-workers, who have studied home equipment, who are sympathetic with and know the problems of the average housewife in making the home a place to run to instead of away from; women who will do their judging from the angle of expertism attained from long study, as well as from the angle of the homekeeper.

The home atmosphere, discernible from the moment a guest enters one's door, will count a great deal more than fine hangings. Oriental rugs will not cause an oilcloth floor to blush in the final summing up of points. It will be the harmonious whole, for which this contest was named, that will decide who will be prize winners.

The Plan of Procedure.

Under the plan devised by the general committee in charge of the contest there will be groups of district judges throughout the city and suburbs and one zone committee for each side of the city. All homes will be visited first by the district judges. These judges then will recommend the homes which are to be considered for prizes and the zone judges will visit every home on this list. The zone judges will award twenty-nine of the thirty-three prizes to be given on each side of the city. They also will recommend four homes in each division to be considered for the leading prizes. The general committee then will visit these twelve homes and award the principal prizes.

THE TRIBUNE has been in constant touch with the judging committees, and, with the aid of a large clerical force in its own offices, has endeavored to make the judging as simple and as fair as possible. Within as brief a time as is practical after the closing of the contest tonight the contestants will be notified of the approximate hour they should remain at home in order to receive the judges when they arrive.

You Must Be There!

Owing to the distances to be covered, and the number of homes to be judged, it will be necessary for contestants to be at home for certain hours on certain days. They will be notified in ample time for them to make arrangements for their houses to be shown in case they cannot be there. If a contestant who has been notified

Edgar Wallace Is Champion at Mystery Story

LONDON.—(AP)—Edgar Wallace has been voted the most persistent writer of mystery stories "who has ever spoken into a dictaphone."

He turns them out half a dozen at a time. His paper covered books month after month go like hot cakes and are on sale at every bookstall and newspaper stand throughout the country. His mystery stories alone are said to reap him a fortune every year.

In addition to these tales, Wallace writes for nearly half the newspapers of London. He has a daily column on racing in the Evening Star, has a serial running in the Daily Mail, and writes for others on politics and all the popular topics of the times.

One or two Wallace plays are nearly always running at some of the London theaters. His latest is "The Yellow Mask," which he described as "a good old fashioned Drury Lane melodrama with music." He lately has been at work on three other plays, one of which is for Peggy O'Neil. Wallace is also interested in films and is a director in one of the London producing companies.

Arnold Bennett recently turned out his seventy-first work of letters. He is credited with 23 novels, five volumes of short stories, nineteen volumes of essays, fourteen dramas, seven "fantasies," and three "romances."

Shoppers' Service Tales

An Honest Clerk.

Last spring I purchased a coat and scarf in a department store. I charged the coat but paid cash for the scarf. That week, for some reason or other, I was short of money. You will not wonder at my surprise when some days later a check for $16.05 was mailed to me along with a note explaining that as I had not waited for the change from my $20 bill when I had purchased my scarf [the scarf had cost $3.95] it was being sent to me. The salesperson had my name and address, for I had charged my other purchase.

Needless to say, I have been a loyal patron of that store ever since.

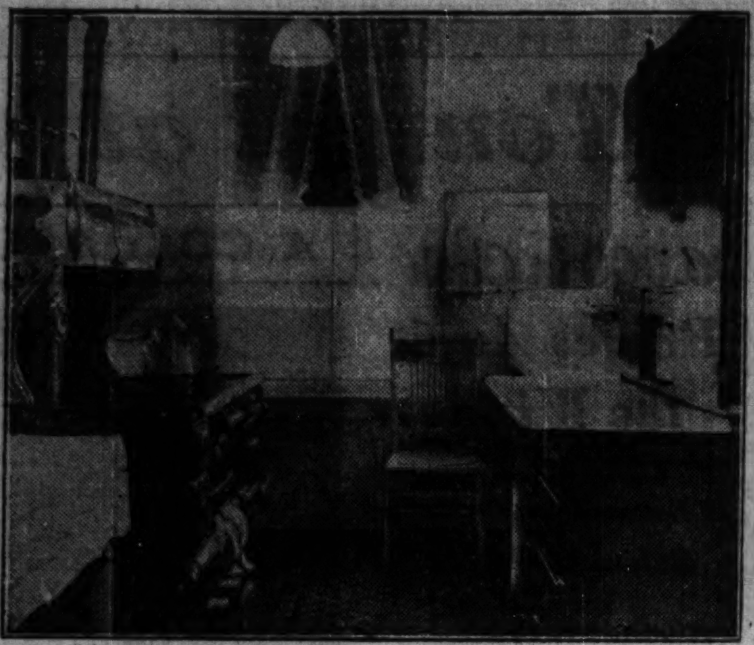
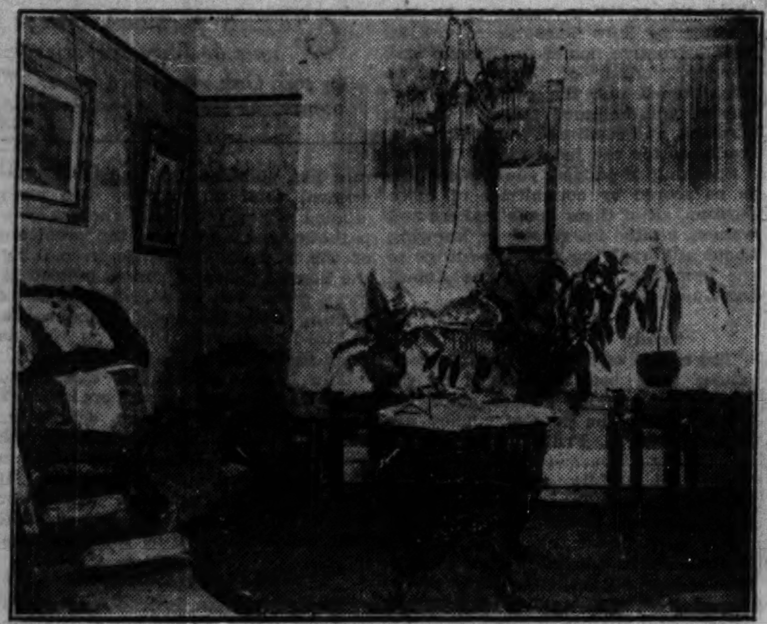
A SPOTLESS KITCHEN



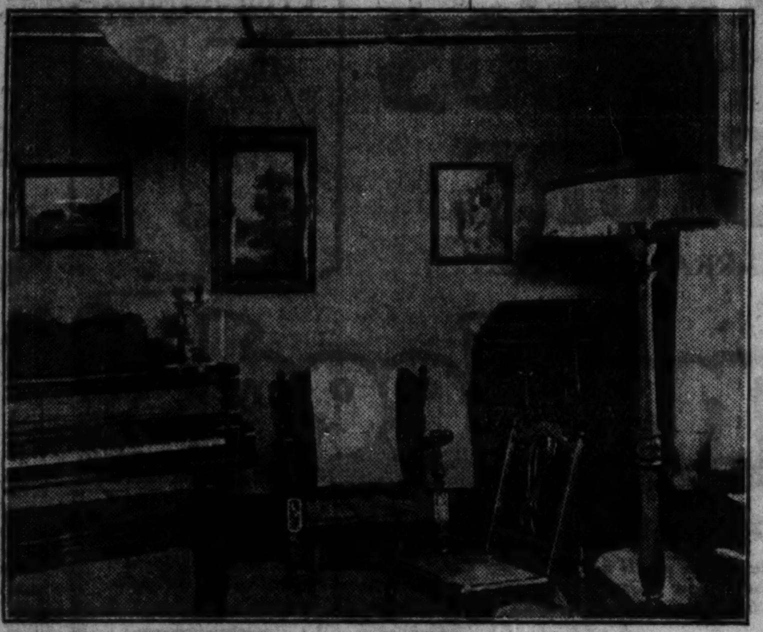
CLEANLINESS as a virtue is at its highest in a kitchen, and it is safe to say that no home in Chicago boasts a kitchen more spotless than the one in the cottage belonging to the 87 year old couple.

OLD FASHIONED PARLOR



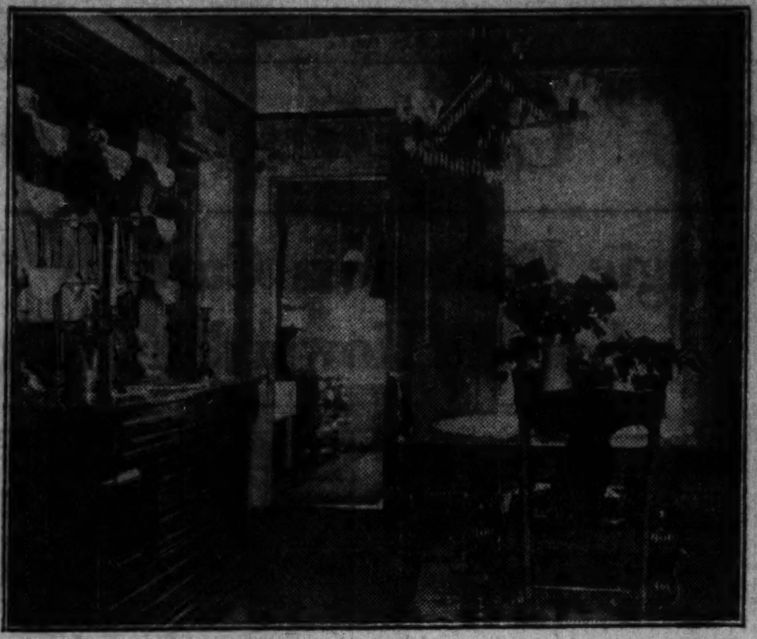
HERE we have a nice old fashioned parlor, made attractive and homey by the elderly couple who are the occupants, and who respect the older custom of reserving the parlor for the entertainment of honored guests.

HOME MADE LIVING ROOM



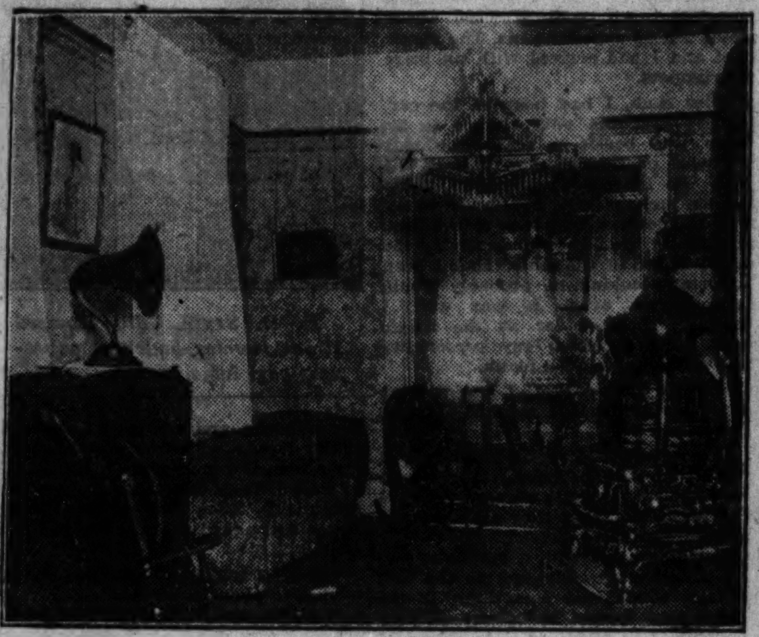
THE north side home on Troy street, of which this is the living room, may really be called the handiwork of the homemaker. The floor in the room is varnished wall board, which the widowed owner laid herself.

CHEERY DINING ROOM



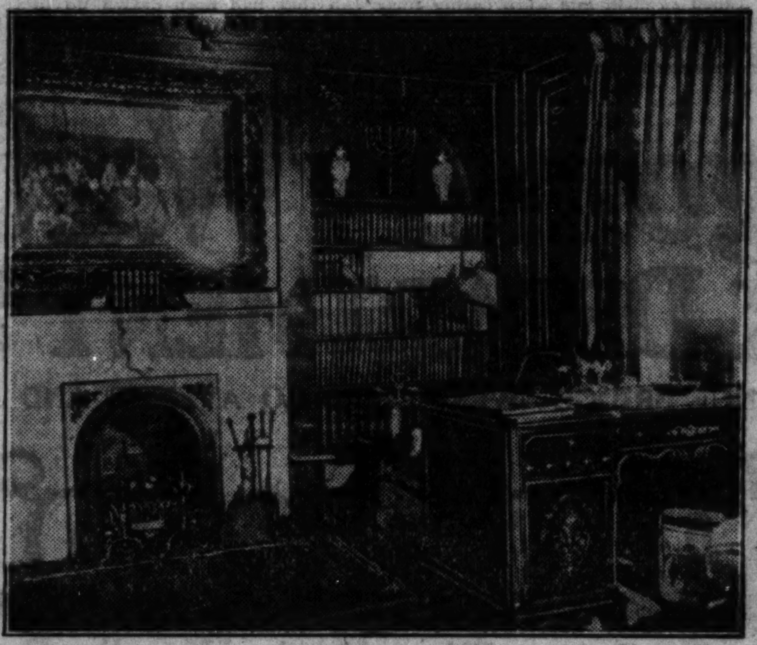
POTTED plants and a singing canary lend charm and cheeriness to this dining room in the northwest side cottage. Oak is the furniture and the curtains at the window are of starchy lace.

COZY SITTING ROOM



THIS is what might be called the sitting room and music room in the comfortable little cottage.

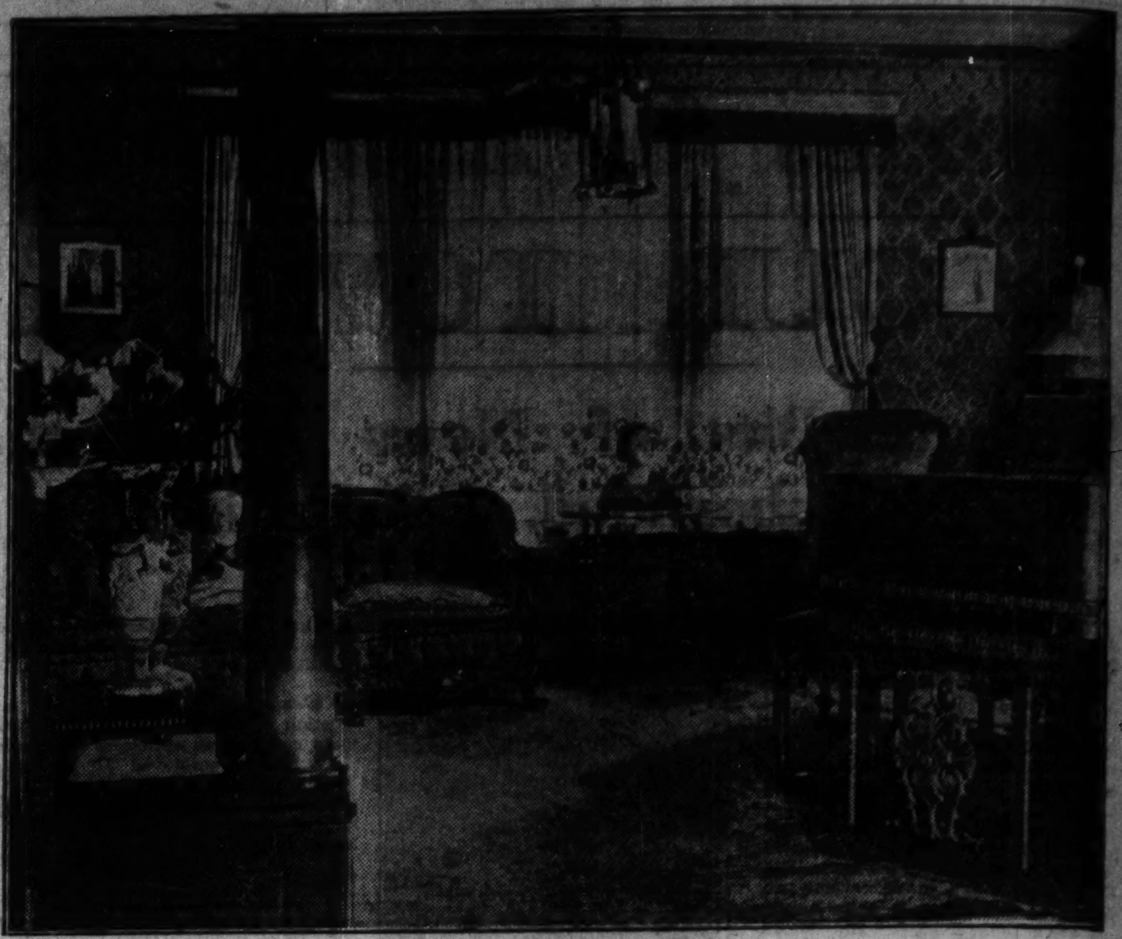
CANVAS-WALLED LIBRARY



THE walls of the library in a Chicago Beach hotel apartment are grained canvas, walnut stained, giving a rich background for the marble mantle piece taken from an old house. The Korean chest of camphor wood and the carved walnut desk are interesting pieces. The whole treatment speaks the spirit of a library.

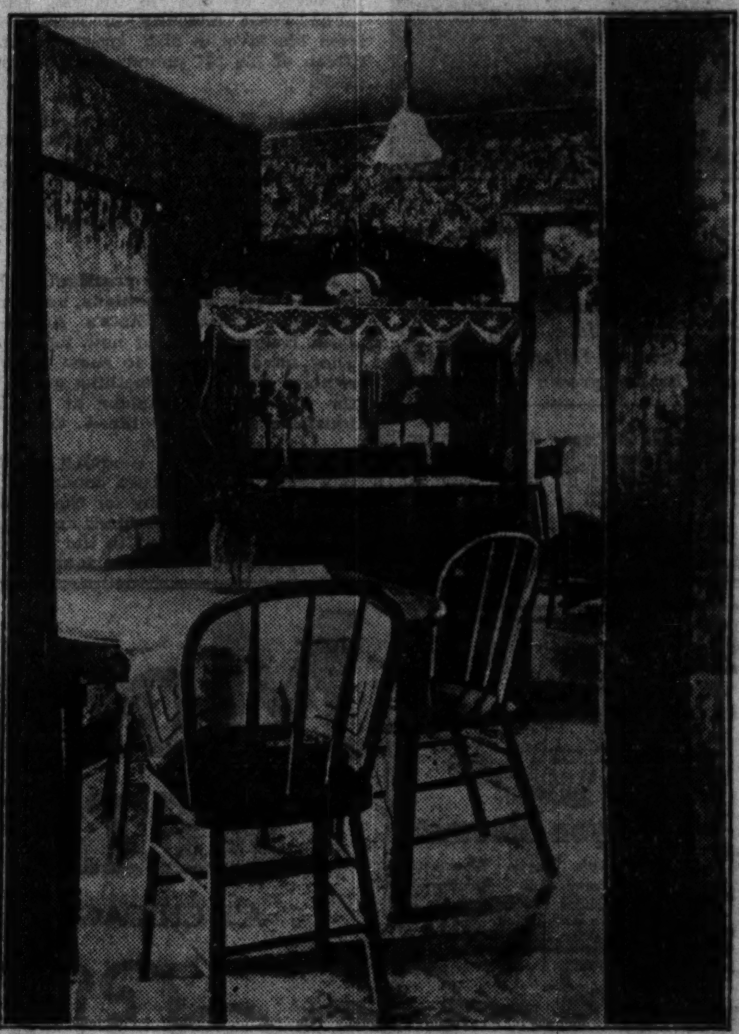
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

A CHEERFUL LIVING ROOM



THIS living room is the pride of a house on West 48th street, inherited by its present owner from his mother. The simple surroundings have been enhanced by colorful walls, draperies, and furniture. Mulberry and gold are accentuated in the rugs, couch, and upholstery. The piano is antique walnut, with bench to harmonize.

JUST BUILT FOR SIX



BEING the mother and support of five children has not deterred the mistress of this little cottage on North Paulina street from making it a place of neatness and cheer. With the aid of a teacher from the Association of Housekeeping Centers, the breakfast set was painted a bright orange, to match the crisp flowered valance which tops the scrim curtains. Linoleum rugs are used throughout the four rooms.

'Prince of Beggars' Ends Philanthropic Career of 32 Years

LONDON.—(AP)—England's "Prince of Beggars," Viscount Knutsford, is soon to retire from the begging business.

In his begging career of thirty-two years as chairman of the London hospital he estimates he has collected something like $30,000,000 which went toward the institution's upkeep, rebuilding, and providing research funds.

In an article in the Sunday Express entitled "How to 'Pick' Pockets," Viscount Knutsford says:

"This lifelong rôle as 'beggar' has embraced all phases of drama—tragedy, comedy, and sometimes melodrama which behind the footlights would stir the emotions of the most blasé audience."

Lord Knutsford tells how a shabbily dressed man called once and left with him $5,000 in cash. He was a workman who had saved for years with the ultimate aim of giving the money to the hospital as soon as he had accumulated that much in gold.

Millionaires are the hardest to deal with, says the peer.

Mends Bodies and Spirits of Forlorn Birds

They Sing Again When She Is Through with 'Em.

By Marion Reagan.

IT SEEMED stuffy in the little room, actually hot; and in the air was a scent that was a combination of the odor of bird seed, medicine, and the characteristic aroma that arises from the warm little bodies of the birds themselves.

All along the walls were shelves with scores of cages, large brass ones, some extremely ornate, and then others of plain wire. There were wicker cages, wooden cages, iron grill cages, cages of every sort imaginable! In them the birds were perched, many on one foot, with their heads under their wings, looking like no more than little balls of feathers stuck on the ends of tooth picks. Others, in a fairer state of health, munched in the seed boxes, their beaks making a light, clicking sound.

An occasional thin, throaty attempt at singing floated out in a trembling sound above the loud, mockish jumble of talk from the parrots, and from the convalescent canaries, in a group by themselves, came clear, bell-like trills. It was a bedlam of noises and melodies sung a little off tune.

She Talks to 'Em.

A thin, gray haired woman in a white apron went among the cages, chirping staccato questions which the birds seemed to understand. Forlorn little creatures, bunched into balls, drew their heads up slowly when she talked and their feathers went back into the usual elongated contour of the canary.

"Come, tell the lady how you feel today?" she questioned of a mournful parrot whose head seemed buried 'way down between his shoulders. The head came up. He said something which sounded very much like: "I'm sick."

"Well, don't you worry, I'm going to make you better!" promised the sympathetic voice. And well might the promise, for many a parrot has come into her little hospital before, diseasebound, and has gone away free.

Her name is—quite aptly—Carrie Liberty. Many persons have thought she took the name for trade purposes, so perfectly does it suit her calling, but Carrie was the name her parents gave her at christening and Liberty was the name of her husband.

In Widow's Weeds.

When her husband died some 24 years ago, Mrs. Liberty, left quite alone with her daughter, found herself penniless. She had a little furniture and she had a few canary birds. That was all. She knew a good deal about canary birds. Her father had raised chickens all his life and from him she learned to judge with accuracy what ailed a bird when it wouldn't eat, when its feathers fell out, when it sulked alone on the perch. Her father knew all kinds of remedies for these ailments and taught them to Carrie. And Carrie even made some experiments for herself, found new remedies, and took delight in her skill at mending a broken leg of hen or rooster.

She was living in a small flat on the south side, on Dorchester, near 55th street, when her husband died. A living had to be made somehow and she was untrained in any of the usual occupations undertaken by women. She first thought of raising canaries, and did, but it was difficult, with neighbors complaining of noises. (It was a good many years before the radio was to boom in its loud speaking way into the tranquillity of apartment living.) A flat full of canaries was a flat full of pests.

She Starts with an Ad.

Mrs. Liberty put an ad in THE TRIBUNE.

"Has anybody a place in the loop suitable for use as a bird hospital?" the ad queried. "There are havens for dogs, cats, and other pets, but no place to care for the little birds when they're sick," the ad continued.

Her plea was eloquent. There were several replies. One struck her fancy. It read:

"I can let you have a room at 183 North Wabash for your hospital. The office is not rented anyway, and if it suits your purposes you may have it for a song."

Now, with an apartment full of canaries, songs were a commodity Mrs. Liberty was best prepared to offer in exchange. She took the room and put another ad in the paper. "Wanted," read this second ad, "birds to board. Sick birds cared for at the Liberty bird hospital."

The Liberty bird hospital was as bare as the cupboard of Old Mother Hubbard. There wasn't even a shelf to put the cages on. She had no desk. There was no carpet. She brought a chair down from home, and on the bare floor set the cages of her own birds and sat down to contemplate how she would fix the place when she made a little money.

Away she went with her imagination. The room was filled with bird cages. There was a rich green rug on the floor. She herself sat at a long, flat desk looking into an adjoining room which was all white tile—her operating room and clinic. What a glorious thought!

But, getting back to earth, or rather back to the four bare walls of the room, she confessed to herself a little dismally that at first, of course, it would be hard going.

Laying the Foundations.

Then, as if by magic, out of the thin air came people in answer to her ad. It was summer, and families going away on vacations were glad to know of a place to put their birds for a few cents a day. She asked the customers to pay in advance.

"And what do you think?" asks Mrs. Liberty. "On the very first day I took in $25. That was a wonderful lot of money in those days—a wonderful lot of money. Why, I didn't know whether to walk or ride home. I was feeling so mighty I could have walked all over the earth without getting tired. I was so proud of myself and so confident!

"First thing I got a carpenter in to make shelves to hold the cages. I had enough shelves made to take care of all the business I hoped to do, and not long afterwards I got myself a desk and these filing cases. Then I moved over here, after a long time, of course, to 208 North Wabash, and, while I haven't made a million dollars, I've made a nice living for myself and daughter all these years, and I've made a nice, tidy sum to lay away in the bank, too."

Mrs. Liberty winks her eye slyly. She is justly proud of herself. Then her face straightens soberly. Her mouth moves into a round little pout. Her eyes look as if they were about to fill with tears.

"And, say, I've done a sight of good, too, in this little place," she says. "Poor little bits of birds; they bring them in here half dead, some of them, and I've cured them; and, well, that's something to be proud of, isn't it?"

Operating on Polly.

Two Bee-bee parrots set up a cackling, noisy chatter. The canaries begin to chirp about in their cages, too; a few trill away in song, and soon there is so much noise that conversation is impossible. Mrs. Liberty is commanding.

"Now, look here, you two," she addresses the Bee-bee parrots. "You started all this; now be still."

She slips a white cloth over their cage, and they are silent at once. When the rest of the birds silence down, too, Mrs. Liberty resumes:

"I must tell you about the first time I ever operated on a bird. You know, I operate on them all the time now if there's anything real serious the matter with them. Well, a parrot was brought in here with his craw all swollen out like a golf ball—bigger even than that. The owner had been everywhere with the bird. Nobody could do anything for him and finally he came in here. My heart sank when I saw the polly. He was a wonderful bird, valued at $1,000, and the owner was clear wild over him.

"Well, sir, I knew that bird was doomed to death. There was only one chance in a thousand to save him and that was to lance that craw somehow and clean out whatever was clogging it. To feel the swelling, it was as hard as cement. So, after debating with myself for a couple of hours, I finally decided to chance an operation. 'Don't surgeons and physicians, the best of them, experiment?' I says to myself. 'They're not always sure.'

The Crisis.

"And I got the anaesthetic, the catgut for sewing up the incision, and all the implements I needed. It was a terrible suspense to be in. I didn't know how much anaesthetic to give the bird for sure, but I took a chance. I worked as fast as I could, cleaned out that craw, sewed it up, and waited and waited for the bird to come to. I waited till almost midnight before he finally reeled about and got enough strength to stand up on his feet. Then I went home and just hoped.

"Next day he was much stronger, and every day he got better, until finally he was completely well. The owner had gone away on his vacation, and every day I had to send him a wire telling how Polly was getting along. I wired at last that Polly was entirely cured; to come and get him when he was ready.

"Well, that man was so grateful to me when he heard his bird calling away when he came in here—'The carriage is coming, Ma-Ma, Ma-Ma'—that he almost cried. 'God bless you,' he said, and he gave me a check for $50. What do you think of that?"

Mending Broken Bones.

Mrs. Liberty's long fingers are deft. They would have to be to perform such delicate operations as setting broken bones of canary birds, or removing tumors from under canaries' wings, and these little operations are, if not the daily, at least the frequent work of Mrs. Liberty.

In her apartment at 5437 Harper avenue she still raises canaries. She has a variety of them, tiny Harz mountain canaries and the big Yorkshire canaries. She has doves, too, and South American cardinals, and several different species of parrots.

The Leap Year Girl Hasn't a Chance Here

Northwest Siders Say the Man Should Propose.

WOULD you dodge or fall if your best girl made you a leap year proposal? The answers given to this question by a group of northwest siders were mostly opposed to the idea of the girl proposing.

George Boehmer, 2304 Logan boulevard, said: "I wouldn't accept a girl unless I really loved her. I would rather give her a little pain now than a great deal of pain later on."

Paul Richter, 3040 Diversey avenue, favored prevention. He said, "I believe I would let the girl know the truth about my attitude all along, so there would be no danger of her proposing if I didn't want to marry her."

Practical considerations came to the mind of Gilbert Schultz, 2529 Milwaukee avenue. "I'd ask to see her bank roll first," he insisted. "If that were sufficient, we'd try it out."

Said W. J. Connor, 1256 Bryn Mawr avenue: "If I thought enough of her to make her propose, I would probably beat her to it and propose first myself."

"I'd laugh at her," said Herman Guttman, 3052 Logan boulevard. "Leap year is just a fad. Marriage is too serious to come that way. Most girls have no means to support a husband."

Dr. D. Reininger of Logan Square was also opposed to feminine proposals. "In a case like that," he said, "I wouldn't feel obliged to marry her. I don't like proposals to make marriage seem more like a forced obligation than a case of love."

There is more than one side to such a question, according to E. D. Koppelmyer, 2559 Milwaukee avenue. "The average individual male is too much inclined to take such a proposal otherwise than as intended. If she is certain of her young man and his understanding let the maiden go ahead. Boys today are not like boys when I was young. They put a wrong construction on almost everything."

A young Logan Square artist, too shy to disclose his name, was in favor of half way measures. "There ought to be some kind of compromise," was his verdict. "Alimony or something. A young man should be perfectly sober and use every ounce of his brains in such a matter."

Others were even shyer about answering, especially the married men who were questioned. Jack O'Fallon, 2440 North Kedzie boulevard, said, "If you had asked me that a year ago I could have answered. I have been married almost a year now, and it is naturally impossible for me to say a word."

Not a soul interviewed suggested companionate marriage as the answer to the leap year problem.

Snakes Able to Face the World Without Mother

BERLIN.—(AP)—Snakes, unlike any other animals, do not have to be taught by their mothers how to face life. Dr. Heinroth, custodian of the aquarium at the Berlin zoo, offers interesting data on this point.

Heinroth succeeded in inducing a twelve foot boa constrictor to lay thirty eggs in captivity. Out of ten of them crept little boas, each about 1½ feet in length and weighing 3 ounces. They were immediately separated from their mother and raised by themselves.

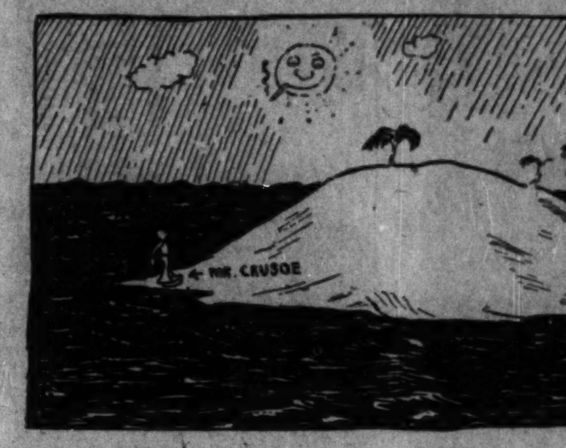
Mice and small birds were put into their cage, and without previous training by their mother they attacked their prey and strangled it just as any grown up boa would. Their method of devouring their booty was also exactly like that of their forebears.

Al Gives the Low Down on Robinson Crusoe

Nobody Else There Except Friday? New Histories Needed!

By Snowshoe Al.

When Mr. Defoe wrote his Robinson Crusoe he made several errors which have remained undiscovered until a few days ago, when I checked up on the narrative. For instance, Mr. Defoe stated that Mr. Crusoe lived for years and years on an island with nobody to keep him company except his man Friday. I have before me at this moment the personal letters written by Robinson to my great-grandfather's papa, so here comes the genuine dirt on Senor Crusoe's island activities.



IT was the night of Sept. 16, 1659, and the good ship Kangaroo, bound for Guinea with a heavy cargo of hand organs, peanut roasters, banana stands, and other articles which Guinea needed badly, was rolling merrily along under full sail. Among the members of the crew was a young gentleman named Crusoe. This was his first ocean voyage, and he was taking it for his health, as the police department had just discovered that he committed a slight error. It seems as how he had borrowed a couple thousand berries from the First National bank—somewhere between midnight and 3 o'clock in the a. m.

As we mentioned before, the ship was bouncing merrily along over the deep blue bathing fluid. Our hero was leaning over the rail, making funny faces at the waves. Him and his supper weren't on speaking terms, and they were now bidding each other farewell. The first mate walked over and patted him reassuringly on the back.

"'Tis a grand evening!" says the mate.

"Who cares?" remarks Robinson, who was not in the best of humor.

"The moon just came up," continues the mate.

"Moon, hell! That was good whisky!" snorted our hero. "Anyhow, quit watching me. Go tend to your own business!"

* *

The Debacle.

At this moment there was a terrific crash. The entire ship trembled violently and then stood perfectly still. The Kangaroo had just met an affectionate sand bar, and it was a case of love at first sight. They just couldn't bear to part with one another!

"We are lost!" the captain shouted, as he staggered down the stairs, but nobody paid any attention to him, because he had been staggering upstairs and downstairs for the last two weeks.

The next morning a violent storm came up and started battering the Kangaroo to pieces. Then one of the men claimed he saw land about a mile away, so the crew fell into a lifeboat and started in that direction. They didn't even get to third base!

A big wave walked right across their faces and yelled, "Hello, boys!"

When Robinson Crusoe woke up he found himself lying on the shore of a lonely island, where the waves had washed him. He was the only membr of the crew what had escaped. He looked around himself in a suspicious manner. Everything was real still; in fact, the silence was deathlike. Right away he decided to investigate this hunk of real estate, so he explored the entire island, but he couldn't find no signs of life. At last he gave three cheers!

"By golly," says our hero, "this is too good to be true! No landlords, no pesky women, no mother-in-laws, no radios, no policemen, no nothing! Just what I've always wanted! There must be a catch in it somewhere."

Just then a cute little parrot flew down from a nearby tree and says "Hello!"

"Well, well!" says Mr. Crusoe. "How come you speak English? I can't understand it! There ain't a living soul on this island except myself."

"Is that so?" grins the parrot. "Har, har!"

"Yes, that's so, thank gawd!" yells Robinson; "I am the only bimbo on this vacant property, and I'm tickled cock-eyed to know it, because I never want to see another human being! All they ever did was cause me trouble."

* *

Alone!

Mr. Crusoe spent the next few days building himself a cute little four room bungalow. He stuck in all the modern conveniences. He sure had a neat layout. When it was all finished, he went outside and gave it the once-over.

"A swell dump, even if I do say it myself," says he, rubbing his mitts together; "a real ritzy dive, where a guy can live peacefully and unmolested for the rest of his life." Then he raised his hands toward the sky and murmured, "Alone! Alone at last!"

Just then his phone started ringing! With an amazed look on his mug he galloped into the house and picked up the receiver.

"Good morning, Mr. Crusoe," says a voice; "this is the Stickem Real Estate company. Your name has just been given to us by a friend who thought you might be interested in our proposition. We are located on Cocoanut island, just three miles east of you, and we have some nice corner lots over here which we are selling on easy terms. If you care to trade your funny looking bungalow in towards the purchase of same, we will allow you three dollars an' sixty cents——"

"Wait a minute! Somebody's knocking at my back door!" yells our hero, dropping the receiver and galloping to the rear of the house.

"Good morning!" says the gink at the back door; "would you like to subscribe to these four magazines? Only ten cents a week! Much cheaper than you can——"

Ding-a-ling-aling! (Front door bell.)

Our hero rushed through the house and found three guys standing on the front porch.

"Nice little place you have here, Mr. Crusoe," says the first hombre, "and I suppose you'll want to take out some fire insurance! Just suppose lightning should strike this dump; you'll want to be protected—"

"Mr. Crusoe," butts in the second guy, "have you arranged to have milk delivered yet? If you ain't, I'll be glad to take your order, and I assure you that we——"

"Pardon me for horning in," remarks the third gink, "but have you anything you want to send this morning to the Damfine Cleaners & Dyers?"

* *

The Home Harmonious.

At this moment two laundry wagons stopped in front of the house and the drivers started a fist fight in the front yard. Each of them claimed he saw the joint first.

"Har, har!" yelled the little parrot from a nearby tree. "'Alone! Alone at last!' Har, har!"

Our hero slammed the door in their faces and rushed back into the living room. He found a guy sitting in his rocking chair.

"Hello," says the guy, "I just came in through the window. I see you have no sewing machine. Our firm sells 'em on the installment plan. Mr. Crusoe, no home is complete without a sewing machine. You only pay three dollars down an' two dollars every week for the next——"

"ICE!!!!!" squawks some bozo at the rear door.

Mr. Robinson Crusoe did a nosedive through the window and ran frantically towards the beach, pursued by six bond salesmen, nine automobile demonstrators, and a guy who wanted to sell him an electric radio. They were joined a few moments later by several ginks who sold vacuum cleaners.

Robinson escaped this mob by climbing a tree and disguising himself as a bunch of bananas. From this treetop he could see in all directions, but all he could see was house-to-house canvassers, district managers, special representatives, demonstrators, and the et cetera. Then he glanced towards the beach and grabbed off another surprise! Several large canoes were drawn up on the sand, and two hundred Ethiopian Blondes were doing the Black Bottom around a large bonfire. Another of these dark complexioned boys was tied to a tree. Mr. Crusoe climbed down and galloped over towards this mob.

"What's the idea?" says our hero.

"O," says one of them, "dis am de ninth annual picnic of de Barbershop Porters' Benevolent fraternity. Groceries am going to be served, an' a good time am going to be had by all!"

"And who is that African Eskimo that's tied to the tree?" asks Crusoe

"He am de groceries! He am a member what ain't in good standing at present, 'cause he am way back in de payment of his dues. When we ask him fo' de money he keep telling us 'Come around next Friday—come around next Friday,' so now we is mad, and we——"

Kidded by Experts.

BLAMMM!!!!!! It was a terrible noise, just like an explosion, and it came from the other side of the island. Rushing to the scene of the racket our hero saw a large pirate ship going up in smoke. Somebody had blown up her powder magazine! Robinson saw a small boat coming towards the shore, so he climbed a tree in order to conceal himself. The small boat contained Captain Kidd and six sailors. As soon as they landed they carried several heavy iron chests from the boat and dumped them under the tree.

"Dig a hole an' bury them boxes!" yelled Captain Kidd, shooting four of the sailors, just for the hell of it, so the other two sailors buried the boxes, after which the captain shot both of them. Then Mr. Kidd laughed, raised both arms towards the sky, and yelled:

"Alone! Alone at last!"

"O, FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE!" laughs Mr. Crusoe; in fact, he laughed so hard that he fell out of the tree and landed on the captain's neck.

This made Mr. Kidd sore as hell, so he picked up a large rock and socked Mr. Crusoe so hard that our hero didn't recover consciousness until twenty-seven years later. And this, ladies and gentlemen, accounts for Robinson Crusoe's long and protracted stay on the island.

Anyhow, that's my story and I'll stick to it!

French Officers Pay Four Cents for Their Rooms

PARIS.—(AP)—Four cents a night for the best rooms in the house is all a French hotelkeeper gets from the army when it is on the march. A law passed 42 years ago fixes one franc a person as the proper allowance and that's all that was paid recently to the keeper of a hotel near Paris who sent in a bill of thousands of francs.

Officers directing maneuvers in this district made the hotel their headquarters and spent a night there. They gave the proprietor an order on the quartermaster for a certain number of lodgings, thanked him and left. The hotelkeeper, when the army check came, threatened lawsuits and vengeance, but his lawyers showed him the code and he will welcome no more army business. If his rooms are requisitioned, however, he will have to take his military guests at four cents each and try to be happy about it.

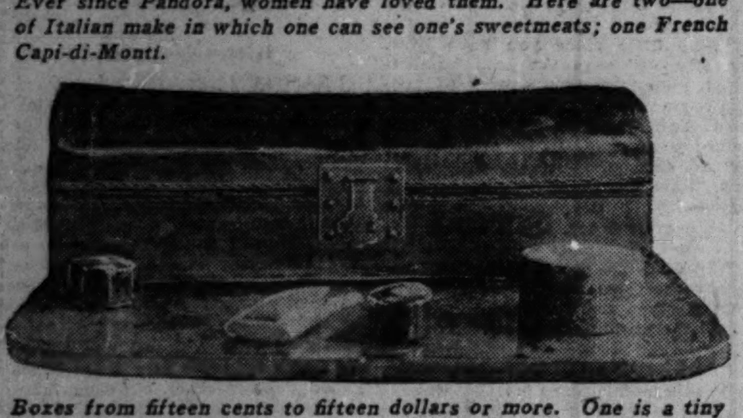
Intriguing Boxes from Other Lands

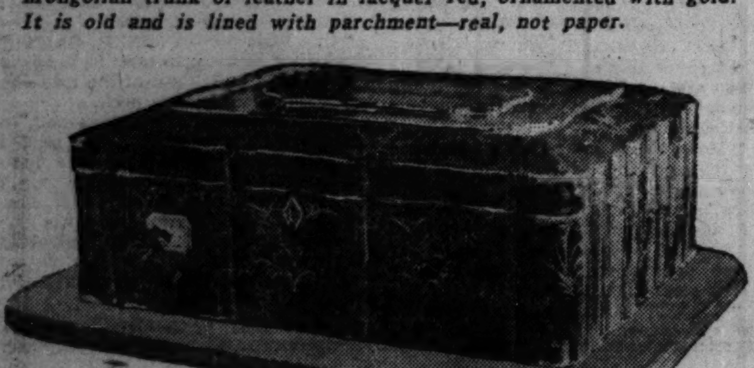
These Ornamental Chests Serve Many Useful Purposes

Three Chinese boxes. One is Chinese silver, which the natives model while sitting on the street in the sun. One is cinnabar lacquer and holds just one package of cigarets. The third is enamel on copper, and is two stories high, for holding sweetmeats.

Boxes, boxes, and again boxes if you wish to fascinate a woman. Ever since Pandora, women have loved them. Here are two—one of Italian make in which one can see one's sweetmeats; one French Capi-di-Monti.

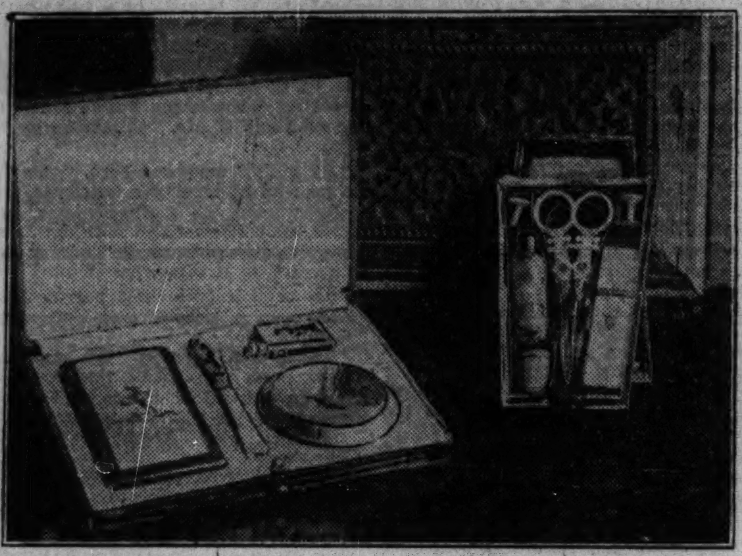


Boxes from fifteen cents to fifteen dollars or more. One is a tiny box of red lacquer. Another is an inlaid wooden box. There is a silver cigaret box with an enameled motif; and the big one is a Mongolian trunk of leather in lacquer red, ornamented with gold. It is old and is lined with parchment—real, not paper.

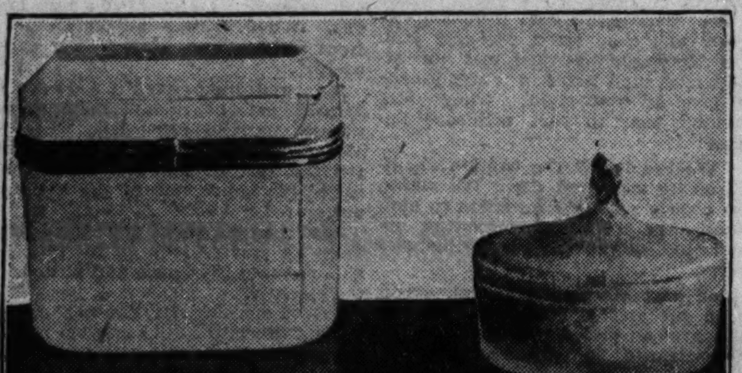


An old lacquer tea chest. One of the kind that came to New England in the early days in ships that went out of Salem to the orient. This box is a delightful adaptation for cigars, stationery or anything that must be kept in the living room.

More boxes which fascinate every woman. Three are old tortoise shell, those in the case being ornamented with gold and silver. The tiny box is old silver with a Limoges enamel top. It is a convenient size for powder or rouge.



The new and the old—both gifts for a woman. One is a modern enameled smoking set for a dainty but ultra-modern miss. The other is an eighteenth century sewing set of gold and mother of pearl in a red morocco case. Also a carved sandalwood box from India.



Two glass boxes. One is ciel blue bound in brass, and the cover is part of the box. An especially nice present for a man because it is small and compact and yet holds a surprising number of cigarets. The other is opaque crystal on which sits a lady by the famous French modeler, Lalique.

German War Captive Returns Home After 11 Years in Siberia

BERLIN.—(AP)—Bruno Stapelt, a soldier reported "missing" on the eastern front in the world war, unexpectedly has returned to his home at Geltow, near Potsdam, after eleven years of captivity in Siberia.

With his Russian wife and two children he made his way with great difficulty across Russia. He says he was held at Kansk, a village near Krasnoyarsk in the heart of Siberia, and that 150 other Germans, officers and privates, still remain there, destitute and anxious to get back home but without means to get transportation.

A meeting of reichstag members of all parties, except communists, has made formal request of the German government to take steps to get these men repatriated.

Paris Doesn't Like "Modern" Buildings; Reform Demanded

PARIS.—(AP)—Modern "palaces," too big, too high, and too new, do not please some of the lovers of old Paris, quaint in architecture and seasoned by centuries.

Public officials and private organizations have battled to enforce all the laws there are against violation of what they esteem the city's harmonious beauty. They have caused some of the electric signs to be moved, forced the remodeling of a few buildings, and preserved the ancient aspect of historic spots.

They are aided now by a new and private censor of taste, Eugene Marsan, a writer of note and an arbiter of fashion and style.

"Paris is being spoiled," is the title of a long series of first page articles running in the aristocratic old Figaro, in which Marsan flays the builders who, he thinks, offend public taste, and he calls for "a committee of men of taste" to do something about it. If he can't tear down new structures he doesn't like, he says, he is determined to make those responsible for them unhappy and prevent others from imitating them.

Japan Sends Exhibit to Fair at Leipsic

BERLIN.—(AP)—For the first time Japan has accepted the invitation to exhibit at the annual Leipsic spring fair.

Ninety varieties of goods were shipped by boat from Tokio to Marseilles, where they arrived early in February, and thence by rail to Leipsic.

The exhibit consists of some 3,000 individual objects, and includes silk, porcelain, and lacquered goods, besides articles of food.

The fair management expects the Japanese exhibit to prove one of the centers of attraction.

Things that Count Most—

—In business are qualities that the poorest can have—industry, integrity, loyalty.

—In religion are subject to no argument — honesty, sincerity, faith.

—In life are things that can't be counted—love, hope, kindness.

—In a home cost nothing but are priceless — peace, forgiveness, trust.

—In friendship are things we cannot define—personality, understanding, congeniality.

—In progress are attitudes of mind —imagination, determination, fearlessness.

—With God are eternal—character, consecration, open-mindedness.

Two Water Diviners Make Good in England

REVESBY, England.—(AP)—Water wizards are still in favor in Lincolnshire. Before the Boston Waterworks company purchased an additional 37 acres for the extension of its plant two water diviners were employed independently and the company closed the deal after both reported that hazel switches indicated water in abundance would be found under the land.

PLANNING HIS PARTY

WHAT Mrs. James' rooster wants to crow about these days is the party that's to be given on his birthday the latter part of March. Soon "Roostie" will be 7 years old, and he's to have a birthday cake with seven candles. Mrs. Martin James, who lives at 4915 Ravenswood avenue, bought the bird when he was a week old. He knows any number of clever tricks.

THEY MEET AGAIN

AFTER having been scattered far and wide, this brother and four sisters recently gathered in reunion following a separation of forty-six years. Standing are Mrs. John Miller, Piper City, Ill.; Mrs. H. F. Jordon, 6229 Norwood Park avenue, Chicago, at whose home the reunion was held; and Mrs. George Powell, Marathon City, Wis. Seated are Mrs. Leslie Lane, Kankakee, Ill., and H. J. Spice of Spruce Lake, Canada.

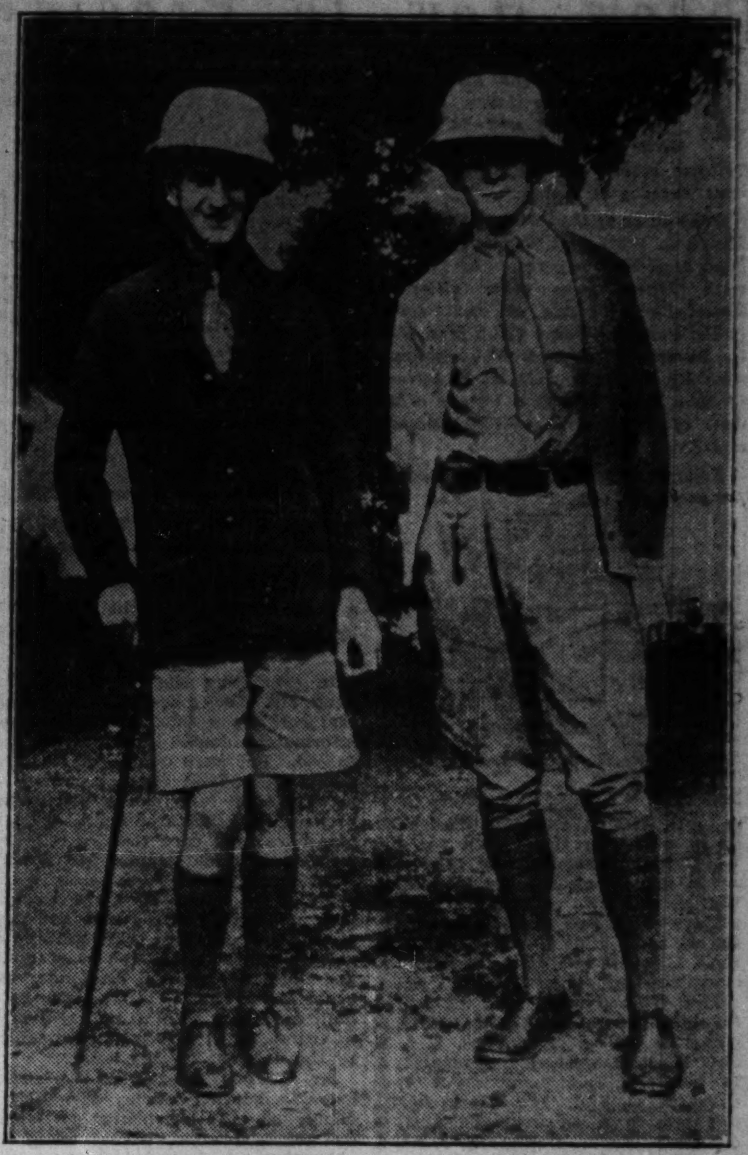
YOUNG GLOBE TROTTERS



NOW back at Loyola university, Paul J. Tambornino and Edward W. Kelly have many a tale of adventure for their fraternity brothers in the Phi Mu Chi house at 1620 Morse avenue. The two college boys have returned from a trip to India which cost them, in all, about $75 each. They hitch-hiked to New York, secured free passage on a freighter to Calcutta, and served as firemen on the S. S. Algic for the journey home. Note how travel influenced the boys in the matter of clothes.

Union Cards, Pay Scale, for College Boys

Wisconsin Student League Asks 40c an Hour.

UNION cards are now carried by student workers at the University of Wisconsin. The cards are issued by the Student Workers' league, which has established a definite rate of pay and checks up on the quality of student work. Forty cents an hour is the rate of pay for unskilled student labor.

* *

That eight cents is too much to pay for forty-two kidney beans is the opinion of a Kansas university student who counted the beans served him in the university cafeteria.

* *

"Should Undergraduate Marriages Be Condemned?" is one of the topics selected for the annual women's speaking contest at the University of Iowa.

* *

Boys are easier to handle, do more studying, use the telephone less, do not eat in their rooms, and do not need as much heat as girls because they wear more clothing, according to landladies at Bloomington, Ind., who were interviewed by an Indiana university student reporter.

* *

Football stars will cavort in the chorus when the letter men of Notre Dame present their annual "Monogram Absurdities" on March 27. Among the ballet dancers will be Capt. John Smith, Capt.-Elect Fred Miller, Voedisch, Chevigny, Collins, and other Notre Dame gridiron notables.

* *

A trip to Paris is in prospect for the orchestra of Illinois Wesleyan university at Bloomington. The orchestra will play on one of the French line boats on the trip across and, after a six weeks' engagement in a Paris hotel, will visit other European cities.

* *

Old newspapers and printing presses will be preserved in a journalism museum to be established in Wieboldt hall on McKinlock campus of Northwestern university.

* *

Two students of Ohio State university, both totally blind, have made "B" grades or better during their three years in school.

Friday, the 13th of April, is the date selected for the leap year dance at Coe college, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

THE STRONG GUY.

By Walter M. Schwimmer.

Is he strong? I'll tell the world he is,
In using force he's certainly a whiz,
Why ev'ry guy he knows agrees
That he is built like Hercules.

Say, yesterday you should have seen
Him try that strength-testing machine.
He slammed the mallet hard, and—well,
I'm telling you, he smashed the bell!

His muscles simply bulge and bulge,
And here's a secret I'll divulge,
There ain't a single pugilist
Who has as mean a punching fist.

Folks, here's the stunts this bird can do,
He bends a crowbar right in two,
And with his thumb he never fails
To push in tacks, and also nails!

Yes, he's a lallapalooza, quite,
A cuss with beefy brawn and might,
A stalwart strapping hulk with nerve,
A gent with vigor, vim, and verve.

But here's a tough, perplexing feat
That makes this Samson own defeat,
No matter how he tugs and strains,
He can't raise windows in the trains!

Husbandless Wives Increase in Glasgow

GLASGOW, Scotland.—(AP)—Wife desertion is on the increase in Glasgow, says the parish council, which has 570 "flight widows" on its hands.

The husbands of these women have gone abroad, or left for "parts unknown," and the council is powerless to take any action in the matter.

The husbandless wives and their thousand children cost the parish council £700 a week, or about $3,500, which the authorities contribute toward their support.

A NATURAL ACCIDENT.

Hostess—Marie, did you get the flowers that I'm to wear in my hair tonight?

Marie—Yes, ma'am, but—

Hostess—But what?

Marie—I've mislaid the hair, ma'am.
—Exchange.

WON'T STAY DOWN.

Professor—What is an island, Charles?

Charley—A place where the bottom of the sea sticks up through the water.
—Washington Post.

OBSTRUCTING JUSTICE.

Prisoner—Judge, I don't know what to do.

Judge—Why, how's that?

Prisoner—I swore to tell the truth.

Judge—Well?

Prisoner—But every time I try to tell it some lawyer objects.

A Coat for a Dollar.

One day I saw an unusual sale advertised. It was called an Hour Sale and each hour the things on sale were reduced one dollar in price.

I was down town bright and early and saw the loveliest coat in the window, and I considered it a good bargain at $10, but since I had nowhere near that sum I went back home. I couldn't get the thought of that coat out of my mind, so went back again after lunch. It was still there and although it was now only $5 it was still beyond my means.

I went to the public library and killed time until about 4:30, and went back to find my beloved coat still there. In breathless anxiety I waited in front of the store, hardly daring to look into the window for fear some one would snatch it away before my eyes.

The clock hadn't finished striking five when I dashed into the store and told the first clerk I saw that I wanted the coat in the window. After verifying the time I secured the coat for a dollar. I wore it for four years all the year round and then passed it on to another girl who was able to wear it several years more. H. H.

A Country Sale.

It was in the fall, when most of the country sales are on. We were coming back from the cottage, and decided to stop at one of these sales, to see what it was like.

Such luck! I bought six large napkins, linen and hand hemstitched for 50 cents, a box of old books, including Riley's, Longfellow's and Poe's works, along with some old French novels, for $2.50. It was the best bargain I had ever made. B. T.

HIS LAST THOUGHT.

Square Green—Mandy, after I die, I wish you would marry Deacon Brown.

Mandy—Why so, Hiram?

Squire Green—Well, the deacon trimmed me on a hoss trade once.—Montreal Gazette.

HIS HEAVY "DOGS."

Madge—So Jack is no longer in your good graces. You found your idol had feet of clay, eh?

Ethel—Worse. I danced with him and found he had feet of lead.—Boston Transcript.

Boston Stars Play in Radio Bridge Game

Show How to Provide Entries for Finesses

THE twentieth and final radio auction bridge game of the present series will be broadcast from W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel, next Tuesday at 9 o'clock.

Each game of the series has featured Milton C. Work and Wilbur C. Whitehead, New York experts, in association with players from other cities in America and Canada, the contestants in the twentieth game being Mrs. Guy U. Purdy of Omaha, Neb., playing with Mr. Work, against W. E. Byrnes of New York, who is a former president of the American Whist league, and Mr. Whitehead.

Following are the advance hands for game No. 20:

MR. WORK.
Spades—Q, 9, 8.
Hearts—J, 9.
Diamonds—A, J, 9, 8, 6.
Clubs—Q, J, 7.

MR. WHITEHEAD.
Spades—K, J, 7, 2.
Hearts—None.
Diamonds—K, Q, 10, 7.
Clubs—A, K, 9, 8, 4.

N.
W. E.
S.

MR. BYRNES.
Spades—A, 10, 5, 3.
Hearts—8, 5, 3.
Diamonds—4, 3, 2.
Clubs—10, 5, 3.

MRS. PURDY [Dealer].
Spades—6, 4.
Hearts—A, K, Q, 10, 7, 6, 4, 2.
Diamonds—5.
Clubs—6, 2.

MR. WORK and Mr. Whitehead made up their table for the radio bridge game, broadcast last Tuesday from station W-G-N, with two of Boston's famous players—Mrs. Prescott Warren, noted for her radio bridge lectures, and Maj. R. J. Herman, one of the best of the many excellent players in army circles.

Mrs. Warren was south, the dealer. She held: spades, 9, 8, 7, 4, 2; hearts, 6; diamonds, K, Q, 9, 8; clubs, 8, 5, 4. Maj. Herman, west, had: spades, K, J, 10; hearts, 8, 7, 5; diamonds, A, 6, 2; clubs, A, Q, 7, 2. Mr. Work, north, had: spades, A, Q, 5; hearts, A, J, 3; diamonds, J, 10, 4; clubs, K, J, 10, 3. Mr. Whitehead, east, held: spades, 6, 3; hearts, K, Q, 10, 9, 4, 2; diamonds, 7, 5, 3; clubs, 9, 6.

Mrs. Warren, south, passed. Maj. Herman, west, with three suits stopped, and the desirable no trump distribution of 4-3-3-3, bid one no trump. Mr. Work, north, doubled informatory. He held a typical no trump hand, but Maj. Herman had anticipated the bid. In such case the informatory double serves its most useful purpose. Mr. Work, sitting over the no trump bidder, had a distinct advantage in position, which was somewhat offset by the fact that his partner already had passed. However, the high card strength of Mr. Work's hand, and the strong support it would afford for a major suit answer by his partner, justified Mr. Work's hope that a game going bid might be reached by means of the informatory double.

Estimating Value.

In estimating the strength of his hand, Mr. Work followed his own general rule for a third or fourth hand informatory double after partner has passed. For such double his requirements are at least six high cards that probably will take tricks, distributed between at least three suits. This is one more high card than is required for a second hand double. Mr. Work's hand contained six high cards in the ace and queen of spades, the ace and jack of hearts, and the king and jack of clubs. In addition there were valuable intermediates in the 10 of clubs and the jack and 10 of diamonds. He could count the jack of hearts as a high card in his hand, sitting over a no trump, because it was accompanied by the ace and another heart.

Mr. Whitehead, east, bid two hearts over Mr. Work's double. Mr. Work's double of Maj. Herman's no trump did not relieve Mr. Whitehead of his obligation to show his partner any strong suit he might hold.

Opening the second round of bidding, Mrs. Warren showed the high caliber of her game by bidding two spades on her five spades to the 9 spot. Her partner's double presumably was made with the hope of a response in a major suit, manifestly a spade. Mr. Whitehead's intervening bid relieved Mrs. Warren of the obligation to bid; but Mrs. Warren rightly considered that with the king-queen of diamonds and five spades she had the strength to bid voluntarily. Mr. Work, her partner, could not have expected her to hold much strength after her initial pass and Maj. Herman's no trump bid, and yet Mr. Work had requested her to bid. She therefore had no hesitation in naming the spade suit.

MRS. PRESCOTT WARREN.

MAJ. R. J. HERMAN.

Three Hearts Bid.

Maj. Herman bid three hearts. He realized that the strength lying over him in Mr. Work's hand materially decreased his own trick taking possibilities. Yet with three hearts and strong support for the bid were it not for his unfavorable position, Maj. Herman felt called upon to give one assist to his partner's free heart bid, as he knew that Mr. Whitehead would not have called a weak suit over an intervening double.

Mr. Work bid three spades. All passed, and Mrs. Warren became declarer with her contract three spades.

Maj. Herman opened the play by leading the 8 of hearts, his highest of three small cards of his partner's suit. Dummy went down, and Mrs. Warren played from it the ace of hearts; Mr. Whitehead played the encouraging 9; and Mrs. Warren her singleton 6.

Mrs. Warren noted the desirability of leading both trumps and clubs from her own hand through Maj. Herman's strong holding. The question of entries in her own hand therefore became of paramount importance. She had two entries in the diamond suit and two more could be secured by heart ruffs. Four seemed sufficient for her purpose. Accordingly she proceeded to establish her diamond entries by an unblocking lead of the jack of diamonds from dummy. Mr. Whitehead played the 3; declarer herself covered the jack with the queen to gain an immediate entry if the ace did not fall; Maj. Herman won with the ace.

Mrs. Warren Trumps.

Maj. Herman led the 7 of hearts; dummy played the 3; Mr. Whitehead the 10; Mrs. Warren trumped with the 2 of spades.

Declarer led the 9 of spades; Maj. Herman played the 10; dummy finessed the queen; and Mr. Whitehead played the 3. Dummy returned the 4 of diamonds to put declarer in for another trump lead through Maj. Herman's strength. Mr. Whitehead played the 5 of diamonds; declarer the 9; Maj. Herman the 2.

Declarer led another spade, the 8 spot; Maj. Herman played the jack; dummy the ace; and Mr. Whitehead the 6. Again dummy returned diamonds, the 10 spot; Mr. Whitehead played the 7; declarer the king; Maj. Herman the 6.

Mrs. Warren then held the thirteenth diamond. She could have led it and have discarded dummy's losing jack of hearts upon it. But she realized that should she do so, she would then have to lead a club for a finesse which would later have to be followed by a second club finesse, for which it would be necessary to enter her own hand again. Accordingly, instead of leading the thirteenth diamond and discarding a heart, Mrs. Warren led a club, the 4 spot, for the first finesse, reserving the jack of hearts in dummy for an exit card to be trumped in her own hand for the second club lead. Mrs. Warren might have led the thirteenth diamond and have discarded a club on it, but such discard at that stage of the game could not have resulted in any advantage. On Mrs. Warren's 4 of clubs Maj. Herman played the 2; dummy finessed the 10; Mr. Whitehead played the 6.

Must Take Finesse.

Dummy led the jack of hearts; Mr. Whitehead played the queen; declarer trumped with the 4 of spades; Maj. Herman played the 5 of hearts.

Mrs. Warren then led her thirteenth diamond, the 8 spot; Maj. Herman discarded the 7 of clubs; dummy the 3 of clubs, and Mr. Whitehead the 2 of hearts. Mrs. Warren next led the 5 of clubs; Maj. Herman played the ace; dummy the jack; Mr. Whitehead the 9.

Maj. Herman led the king of spades; dummy played the 5, Mr. Whitehead discarded the 4 of hearts; and declarer followed suit with the 7 of spades.

Maj. Herman, for the last trick, led the queen of clubs; dummy won with the king; Mr. Whitehead discarded the king of hearts; and declarer played the 8 of clubs. Mrs. Warren, as declarer, took ten tricks altogether, scoring game, 36 points. The adversaries scored 30 honor points for simple honors.

The correct play of this hand was so involved that the majority of players unquestionably would have muffed it. Mrs. Warren not only had to conduct the play so as to drive out two adverse aces, but she also had to provide entries in her own hand to take three finesses, and all of this in a manner that would involve the least risk.

Jeanne Gordon to Sing in Kent Series Tonight

A spring program will be presented tonight in the Atwater Kent hour, when Jeanne Gordon, contralto of the Metropolitan Opero company, will be assisted by the orchestra under the direction of Robert Hood Bowers, and a chorus of sixteen male voices. The program will be presented by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel.

The chorus will present as its big number, "Greeting to Spring" (Blue Danube) by Johann Strauss, as arranged by Hans Lichter. The majority of Miss Gordon's selections will be spring songs.

A Canadian, Miss Gordon obtained most of her schooling in Canada, at Havergal college in Toronto, and later at the Toronto Conservatory of Music. She has since studied abroad, more recently with the Marquis de Trabadelo, in Paris.

Shortly after coming to New York, Miss Gordon sang for six weeks in motion picture houses, and was then engaged to tour with Creatore and his orchestra. Immediately after signing with Creatore she was engaged by Scotti as leading contralto with the Scotti Opera company, remaining with that company for two years. It was while with Scotti that she had her Metropolitan opera audition, resulting in a three year contract.

Spanish Program Tuesday Night on Tribune Station

"En Espana," or "In Spain," is the title of the swiftly moving musical show to be presented Tuesday night by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, starting at 10:35 o'clock. Featured in this production are the Pedrozas, Alfonso and Sophia, Spanish singers of great popularity.

Alfonso Pedroza has a fine bass voice, while Sophia Pedroza is a coloratura soprano whose voice has great purity and charm. They will be heard in Spanish and Mexican songs throughout the program.

Inside the Loud Speaker

By Quin A. Ryan

"GOOD MORNING, children, away out there at your radio horns! Now, every time we assemble in these jolly radio classes of ours, we shall strive earnestly to learn something new and different. Last week, you remember, we took up the raising of clay pigeons. Now, this morning we are to set ourselves about the memorizing of some famous college cheers. There is nothing in life that so marks the cultured man as a knowledge of college yells. First of all, let us see if we commit to memory the alma mater cheer of the barbers' college. Are you all ready? Now, all together:

"Breckity—Eckity—Brex.
We'll shave their bloomin' necks.
Raw—raw—raw,
Slice 'em on the jaw.
Umty—um,
Bay rum!
Snip 'em, scalp 'em, treat 'em rough,

UMTY—UM BAY RUM!

Make 'em yell they've had enough!
Tip 'em over, make 'em tip!
Pinch 'em on the upper lip.
Cut their hair and threads off,
Talk their bloomin' heads off—
Rah—rah—rah!

"Very good, indeed. Now, let us all lend our voices to the leading cheer of the electoral college. Are you listening? Well, let's go:

"Grab a ballot, grab a mallet,
Sock a Democrat.
Hip-hip, and whee! for the G. O. P.
And then we'll pass the hat.
Rah—rah—rah—rah—rah—rah!
Get a Republican on the pan,
Line up precincts man for man.
Sizz—boom—wow!
Who'll we put up now?
Give the donkey's tail a twist,
Paste a prohibitionist,
Throw the Socialists in jail,
Pull the elephant's lazy tail.
Rah!
When do we eat?

"That's all now. Hurry away, and next week we'll have a few lessons in shadow boxing or sleight of hand. Toodle-oo!"

THE GAME that most fascinates children listeners on the radio is the naming of an animal or a doll. Last year we asked the Punch and Judy listeners to send us names for the two baby giraffes in the circus, and we received mail bag after mail bag filled with nominations.

Recently we have added a new character to our troupe—Joey, the Littlest Clown—who is a rag doll, dressed as a circus performer. We started the children guessing what the boy's name is. Five thousand letters came pouring in from between northern Canada and Central America, each carrying an average of five suggestions for clown names—25,000 names in all.

One little lady, June Levy, 1623 North Shore avenue, Chicago, hit on the right name, "Joey." We had named the doll Joey, which is the circus slang for a clown.

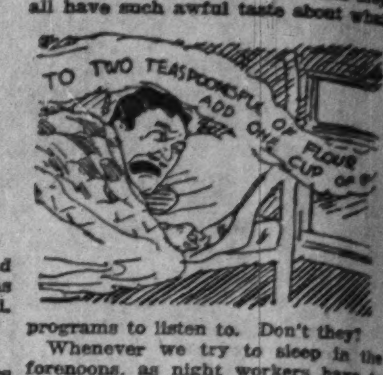
THERE MUST be some people who buy radio sets out of self-protection, especially in apartment buildings. The only way to combat your neighbor's perpetually ear-splitting radio is to turn on one of your own—and let the machines fight it out.

Neighbors are funny folks, aren't they? They always leave all their windows open, they keep their receiving sets flaring up full blast, and they all have such awful taste about what programs to listen to. Don't they?



TO TWO TEASPOONSFUL OF ADD ONE CUP OF FLOUR

Whenever we try to sleep in the forenoons, as night workers have to do, somebody in our big building keeps the morning recipes tuned in. And from the way it comes booming through our windows the recipe lady must be hollering her head off.

So, we've decided, the only means of duelling with a radio set is to sic another radio set onto it. We're going to get a radio set, tune in a storm of static—and point it out the open window. Beware, neighbors!

And we'll go down to the beach and sleep.

HEADLINERS THIS WEEK

MARIA KURENKO.

FREDERIC FRADKIN.
[White Photo.]

JEANNE GORDON.
[Mishkin Photo.]

THESE three stars of the musical world will be heard on different programs from W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel this week. Mme. Kurenko sings tomorrow night in the Family Party program; Mr. Fradkin, con cert violinist, will be heard on Tuesday night, while Miss Gordon will be on the air tonight.

Frederic Fradkin, Concert Violinist, on W-G-N Tuesday

Frederic Fradkin, the concert violinist, will be the principal attraction of a program of classical music which will be heard Tuesday night at 8 o'clock from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, over the N. B. C. chain.

Mr. Fradkin, born at Troy, N. Y., of Russian-American parentage has had a notable career as concert master. Franco, Lichtenberg, Lefort and Ysaye were among his teachers. He has been concert master at Monte Carlo and Vienna and was concert master of the Russian Symphony orchestra and the Diaghilev ballet in New York, and of the Boston Symphony orchestra, successively. He has toured extensively in this country and abroad.

The Rondo Capriccioso of Saint Saens, and the Chanson Bohemienne of Poldi will be played by Mr. Fradkin.

Radio Aids Honor System at State Prison in Arkansas

Denver, Colo., March 10.—The honor system at the Arkansas state penitentiary is to be retained because of assistance given penitentiary inmates recently by radio station KOA, here.

The prisoners had been placed on their honor and given exceptional liberties, with the provision that if one man escaped and was not captured the honor system would be abolished.

A man escaped. The remaining inmates, resenting his breach of trust, asked KOA to broadcast his description, and offered a $50 reward for his capture. A listener in McLeod, N. D., heard the description broadcast, met the man on the street, captured him and turned him over to the authorities. Warden Todhunter notified KOA that because of the capture the honor system is to be retained.

Labor Federation Here Planning 50 Kilowatt Station

Plans for a 50,000 watt broadcasting station to cost $300,000, intended to be the most powerful in the midwest have been divulged to members of the Chicago Federation of Labor by Secretary Ed Nockels. Application for permission to build a 10,000 watt station 20 miles west of Chicago, has already been made to the federal radio commission, and 12,000 members of the Farmers' Union of Iowa have offered to buy land for a site and pledge $1 each a year to maintain the station, he said. Additional money is to be raised by the labor group demonstration at Soldier's field next Labor day.

THIRTY LESS STATIONS.

There are between 25 to 30 less broadcasting stations than there were last March when the radio commission came in. These stations all died a natural death.

The modern note in radio

"HOW up-to-date!" people exclaim when they see this new Atwater Kent A. C. set. For it has brought the modern note into radio.

They find it as fresh and interesting as the architecture of the newer skyscrapers, the design of the newer furniture, the newer thinking about art.

A new kind of radio

How modern is the cabinet that envelops this wonderful set! How beautiful is the sheen of the new satin finish, how pleasing the new color combinations! How simple the design!

And not only is this new A. C. set modern in appearance, but it is modern in the way it gets its power from the house-lighting circuit, without batteries of any kind. Modern in the cabinet construction that shields the set from outside electrical interference. Modern in the double shielding of the built-in power unit. Modern in space-saving compactness.

Modern in the astonishing certainty of single dial operation—the FULL-VISION Dial, readable at a glance, summoning your programs with unbelievable speed.

Made in a modern factory by the most modern methods, which not only assure quantity production, but minute accuracy of every working part—the matching of all the parts—222 tests or inspections for every set before it leaves the factory—the protection of every part against deterioration—freedom from service costs.

Up-to-the-minute in every way

It's an up-to-the-minute set from any standpoint, including price. We believe the Atwater Kent 37 will give you greater service, greater satisfaction, than any other receiver you can buy at any price.

So many people share this belief that since January 1st well over 100,000 Atwater Kent 37's have been sold. To own one is to know that this new A. C. set marks the highest development in radio today. At an Atwater Kent dealer's—try this modern set NOW.

W-G-N Receives 47,748 Letters in February

Maine and Arizona Only States Not Writing.

The extent of a radio station's sphere of influence was well demonstrated by the mail bag of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S station on the Drake hotel, during the month of February. The mail count for the month totaled 47,748 letters, received from every state in the Union except Maine and Arizona. One letter was received from Hawaii and about one per cent of the total came from the various provinces of Canada.

The week of Feb. 20 was the best of the four composing the month. More than 18,000 letters were received during this six day period, with Canada supplying about two per cent. In the United States, Illinois led with 6,604 and Wisconsin was second with 2,496. Iowa supplied 994; Indiana, 598; Michigan, 396, while Missouri postmarks were on 732 pieces of mail received by the station. Letters from Minnesota totaled 717.

With both January and February of 1928 showing up as record months so far as mail is concerned, W-G-N's mail total for the year is expected to surpass any figures previously attained. The mail received by the station during 1927 was 121,870, and the count for the first two months of this year is equal to half that.

Station officials declare these totals to be amazing in the face of a recognized decrease in radio "fan" mail. It is a known fact that listeners are no longer writing as they once did, since the amazing programs of a few years back which were certain to bring bags of mail have become the commonplace, regular features of the present day broadcasting schedule. The radio listeners has come to demand good programs as a matter of course.

Exceptional programs, coupled with a number of new, high quality commercial broadcasts are the reasons to which officials of W-G-N attribute the growth of the station's mail in the last two months. According to W-G-N's mail, listeners continue to show the greatest amount of interest in classical music, preferring that to a steady diet of jazz.

Dr. Copeland Smith's Question Box

THE Radio Question Box is a regular Sunday afternoon feature of W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station. The Rev. Copeland Smith uses the half hour between 4 and 4:30 o'clock to discuss and answer questions relating to problems of faith and morals.

Those seeking advice on such problems are invited to write to Dr. Smith, addressing him in care of W-G-N. Questions will be answered by mail, those of general interest being used for the radio talks.

Consolation for a Child.

MANY correspondents have requested that I repeat my answer to Betty in a more permanent form. Betty is aged eleven or twelve. She recently lost her mother after a long and intensely painful sickness from cancer. This is what I said to Betty over the air, through W-G-N:

If I am not mistaken, you are not more than ten or eleven years of age, Betty. It would be a dreadful thing if it were true that we lost our mothers at that age. But we do not lose them and they do not lose us. They are only withdrawn from us. I believe that they take more interest in us than ever when withdrawn and they only lose us when we forget them by doing the things that good mothers teach us not to do. I'm sure you are always going to remember that. What a fine thing it is that grandma, who loves both mother and you, is still there to take care of you. Of course, she is older than she was and needs a great deal of care and consideration.

You say in your letter that mother could not possibly have lived and ever been well. She suffered dreadfully. Then it is fine to know that she suffers no more, but is in the place where the flowers are always blowing and the grass always green; where the sun is in her hair and the glow of morning always in her face. She must be very beautiful where she is and you must try to be as beautiful here. Then she will be even happier than she is at present. God bless you. Be sure to write me again. I just live on letters. Other men eat bread and meat and things. But I devour stationery and when folk don't write me I only exist. Adieu, Betty.

Jairus' Daughter.

DID Jesus raise the daughter of Jairus from the dead to demonstrate His power and forecast His own resurrection to the three disciples who were with Him? The question comes to me from Rockford, Ill.

I do not like to think that purposes of publicity moved Jesus and I am sure that he was thinking much more of the hurt in the heart of Jairus—that bereaved father—than of His own disciples. I would attribute the miracles of Jesus solely to the boiling over of His unfailing compassion.

Tithing.

I HAVE received a question from Elgin, Ill., relative to tithing. The writer asks whether he is to regard it as a Christian duty as he can find nothing about tithing in the words of Jesus or the apostles anywhere although there are frequent references to it in the Old Testament.

Tithing is not a Christian duty. It is a Christian privilege. My friend is right in thinking that no record of Jesus having advised tithing remains. Nor do the apostles mention it. But there is no comfort to the anti-tither in that fact because Christ approved the woman with the two mites who gave half what she had and told the rich young ruler to give up everything, at the same time commending the disciples for having done so. The early church shared everything—not the tithe merely. The tithe is an artificial proportion, excessive for a man with $1,000 and ten children but woefully inadequate for the man with no children and $10,000 a year. Even the United States government seems to think that 15% is not excessive for those who can pay income tax, but the truth is that fixed rules and regulations are un-Christian. The motive is the thing.

Is Marriage a Failure?

THEY have been asking that question from the beginning about all kinds of marriage. Suetonius asked it 2,000 years ago and decided that it was, in Rome. Now I am asked it again from Kalamazoo, Mich.

The answer is that civil marriage is a failure, for the most part—increasingly so. The very fact that a civil marriage is contracted implies a thought in the minds of those who make that contract that they can dissolve it if desired. That makes a bad start. I would like to see a set of statistics prepared of the continuity of Christian marriages. I also would like to see what proportion of the divorces are obtained by those who have been married less than fifteen years. Not merely is it true that the first hundred years are the worst, but the first fifteen years are worse than that. In so far as marriage seems to be increasingly a failure, it is due to the change in our thought from the welfare of the group—the family—to our own selfish welfare.

That Younger Generation!

HERE comes, from Dubuque, Ia., a repetition of that recurring question about the younger generation and their morals. Are they worse than we were?

No. They are much better—all things considered. For the most part, they have not so much time with their mothers as we had. They have much more reliable scientific knowledge of the facts of generation. Many members of our generation were virtuous because they were scared. Moreover, most of our generation were brought up in the country and adolescence does not come to the country-bred boy or girl so quickly as to the town dweller. There are fewer home restraints and there is much more immoral allure. Especially is there that habit of memory which leads us to remember the rosy facts in our youth at the expense of the facts less rosy. The younger generation are making a wonderfully brave fight in a country where the old maps are destroyed and not yet replaced by new ones.

Maria Kurenko Sings Tomorrow on Trib Station

Stars in Family Party Program.

Maria Kurenko, the "Russian Nightingale," one of the foremost artists of the microphone and the concert stage, will be heard in a program of popular classics and ballads during the family party broadcast tomorrow night by W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel.

She will appear twice in the first section of the hour, singing with a symphony orchestra under the direction of Roderic Graham, and again in the third section, when the accompaniment to her group of songs will be played by a concert band led by Edwin Franko Goldman. Between the orchestral and band periods of the program there will be a short interlude of popular music by Joe Green with his novelty orchestra.

Studied for Law.

Mme. Kurenko has the distinction of being the only noted singer in the world whose voice has been heard in defense of prisoners before the bar. As a child in Moscow, she poured over her uncle's law books, and, early in her 'teens, entered the University of Moscow, hoping to become a modern Portia and defend the unfortunates who were being persecuted under the Czar's government.

Hearing her beautiful soprano voice, when she sang for them after classes, Mme. Kurenko's fellow law students persuaded her to develop her local talents at the Moscow conservatory. She became a pupil of the famed Mazetti there, and graduated in music from the conservatory and in law from the university the same year.

U. S. Début in Los Angeles.

She was admitted to the bar in Moscow and was practicing law when Mazetti prevailed upon her to accept an engagement at the opera house in Kharkoff, and it was there that she made her début a little over eight years ago.

Kurenko the lawyer became Kurenko, the popular prima donna, overnight. She was called to the Grand Opera house at Moscow. She made triumphal concert tours through Germany, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. Heeding an urgent call, she made an uninterrupted trip from Riga, Russia, to Los Angeles, Cal., for her American début with the Los Angeles Opera company three years ago, singing Gilda in Rigoletto without rehearsal, because her train was late, but achieving an instant triumph in the part.

JUNE NAMES JOEY

LITTLE June Levy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Levy, 1623 North Shore avenue, who won the clown doll offered by Uncle Quin of W-G-N to the member of his child audience who picked the best name for the new puppet in his circus.

Parrot Is Latest Recruit of Radio

LONDON.—A three year old, gray West African parrot is the latest recruit to England's broadcasting ranks, having just been installed at Savoy Hill. The bird was uncovered in a corner of London and its vocabulary of twenty words is believed to be capable of considerable extension. The first day before the microphone the bird was seized with the customary "stage fright" and it has since been glowering angrily at visitors.

Bishop Freeman of Washington at Sunday Club

Dr. Albert W. Palmer, First Congregational church, Oak Park, and Bishop James E. Freeman, Church of the Epiphany, Washington, D. C., will be the speakers on the Sunday Evening club tonight. The program will be broadcast by WMAQ.

Dr. Palmer will begin a series of talks on the subject "Some Typical Saints and Sinners," studies in Old Testament characters, which he will continue at the seven o'clock service during March and April.

Bishop Freeman will speak at the main meeting beginning at eight. Courtenay Barber will have a part in this service, and one of the trustees of the Sunday Evening club will preside in the absence of the president, Clifford W. Barnes.

Broken Bones and Their Care, Subject of Radio Address

Broken bones and their care, is the theme of Dr. R. G. Leland's health talk on station KFKX, tomorrow. Accident resulting in broken bones are all too common these days. It is well to be able to render first aid in such cases so that the patient may be made as comfortable as possible and further damage may be avoided.

Magic Card of Politeness to Jeweler

Storekeeper on the North Side Is $50 Richer.

was down the street, and I followed his directions.

In the Howard Avenue Trust and Savings bank I went to the No. 2 window and a young man changed the bill for me. The sign at the window gave the name as W. Frank Graham, but whether he was the one who happened to be at the window at the time I don't know. There was the click of adding machines in the place and considerable business being transacted. I left the bank and, walking east, met a fellow coming out of Meyer Brothers' shoe store. I asked him where Evanston was and, continuing his pace, he pointed westward and said it was on the other side of the "L."

The Poor Fish.

Across the street, at the Arcadia fish market, there was a display of freshly caught fish in the window, and against the pane was a wooden fish, several feet long, that I judged had once been used for a sign to hang out in front. The sign was a fairly good imitation of a real fish and I remarked to passing pedestrians that it would be an easy fish to catch.

I thought the passing pedestrian was going to offer no comment in return, but just as he was getting beyond earshot he called back: "I'll say. Catch it in a hurry."

I crossed to the south side of the street and went into Irwin's Fair, at 1519. A couple of women were in there, studying some aluminum ware. Also they were discussing a party, and one told the other she would be able to get the favors she sought at a gift shop down the street.

In the Howard Cub clothing store a salesman was talking about water heaters to one of the proprietors. The motto of this store, according to the advertising on the tape it uses to wrap up packages, is "smiling service."

My quest was on my mind, mainly, and I asked one of the proprietors about the motto.

"It's like this," he explained, "if you get something in here I want it to be what you want. I might sell you something I think you want and you might take it and go out because you didn't want to leave without making a purchase. I'd rather you'd go out satisfied, because I'd want you to come back again."

I liked the motto and I think the magic card did.

Music in the Air.

When we had left the store we went down the street, and when we reached the corner we heard music. I traced the music until I came to the Neutrowound radio service store. The music was coming from a loud speaker in the entry above the door. I went inside, and there were two young men there. One of them was Tom Keyworth, who gave me his card. There were two comfortable chairs in the place and I seated myself in one of them.

"I heard the music," I explained, "and I followed along to see where it came from."

"This was the place," the two gentlemen told me.

And then they told me all about their radio stuff. When they got into deep water, mechanically, I couldn't follow them, but I could enjoy the music.

They switched from the radio to the phonograph records. They let me hear the pieces loud and then soft. They said that before I bought a machine they'd install it in my home and I could see how it sounded there. I sat for some time, interested and pleased, and I was trying to figure some way to bring about a situation, aside from salesmanship talk, that would bring the magic card out of my pocket. Some day, I thought, I might get one of the sets, but on this occasion I had no money to spend—only $50 to give away.

The girl in the glass booth at the Howard theater told me the film being shown was "Wickedness Preferred." I hesitated, but she assured me with a smile that oftentimes one couldn't tell a thing from the title.

Trail's End.

Why the magic card led me to Mr. Sayre's jewelry repair shop only the card knows. Mr. Sayre was bending over a watch as I entered and, in greeting me, it was necessary for him to take the magnifying glass contrivance from his eye. I asked him where Evanston was and, with great pains, he took a pencil and paper and drew a little map for me, showing that the suburb lay both to the north and west of where we stood. He told me the names of the streets in between, and he said Jonquil street was spelled the same as the flower.

When he had finished the map I told him I wouldn't bother him further, as he was busy and there was nothing I wished to purchase, and he replied with a smile:

"Yes, I'm busy. But that doesn't mean I can't stop for a minute to chew the rag."

So we talked about many things. He told me he'd been a watchmaker "at the bench" for nearly twenty years, and with the money he made at repair work he had bought stock for his jewelry department. I asked him about the amber beads in the window and he lifted one of them out for my closer inspection.

"No, they're not a mineral," he explained. "They come from a growth in a prehistoric tree that's related to our pine. The pitch was caught in a stratum and fossilized. If this strand was genuine it would be very valuable."

Then he hunted for one that was genuine and he let me heft it along with one of the imitations. The real one was light.

A man in overalls entered with a stone he had picked up in a rubbish heap, and he wanted the jeweler to tell him whether it was a diamond or not. There was a moment of suspense as Mr. Sayre adjusted his glass to make the examination, but he finished with regret that the shiny particle was only a bit of well cut glass.

E. D. Sayre and I visited on and on. He showed me the earrings that women like to purchase nowadays to go with their different colored gowns. He smiled as he talked. Several times he excused himself to put the magnifying glass back to his eye and started to work at the bench, but he took it off again to answer my questions about everything and nothing in particular.

* *

Politeness' Profits.

"Mr. Sayre," I said finally, glancing at his name on the window, "it strikes me you are mighty courteous to a noncustomer. You must be in one of your pleasant moods today."

"Fact is," he admitted, "it's been one of the most trying days I've had in a long time. The March weather and this watch I'm working on."

"Ere this," I mused, "you've no doubt come to the conclusion that I've wasted considerable of your time in profitless conversation."

The kindly, gray haired man stood listening.

"Still," I added, "the transaction I am about to make will leave you with a good profit, even though you make no sale."

It unnerved Mr. Sayre for several moments when I gave him the magic card. He said he was glad to have met me. Then he begged my pardon while he went to the phone to tell his wife.

CHICAGO BACHELORS

JOHN BORIE RYERSON.

[Phillip R. Moore Photo.]

JOHN BORIE Ryerson, the son of Mrs. Holmes Sherfesse, who until last fall was Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, rarely gives Chicago's belles a chance to prove their charms. The last few years he has gone in for professional golf and is making quite a name for himself. He is the only person ever to have taken the championship out of southern California. His Chicago clubs include Onwentsia and the Racquet club. He is a Yale man of the class of 1922.

SARCASM.

One of the best anecdotes about Prof. Copeland, who is resigning from Harvard, is the following:

One day he had occasion to reprove some of his students for coming late to class.

"This is a class in English composition," he remarked with sarcasm, "not an afternoon tea."

At the next meeting one young woman was 20 minutes late. Prof. Copeland waited until she had taken her seat. Then he remarked bitingly, "How will you have your tea, Miss Brown?"

"Without lemon, please," Miss Brown answered quite gently.—Boston Transcript.

A photographer for the Metropolitan Section snapped this picture at Lawrence avenue and Broadway, probably without his subject knowing that the camera man was near. If this girl will bring in this clipping we'll present her with a fine sepia print of the picture, neatly enclosed in a folder. We'll have the photograph waiting for her if she will phone the picture editor first.

Canada Cannot Be Overlooked on Short Waves

U.S. to Give Consideration to Her Needs.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—In the allocation of short wave channels the federal radio commission will give special consideration to the needs of Canada.

The Canadian government has written the state department that it is greatly interested in the short wave question and suggests a uniform policy of allotment.

The Canadian government has made general assignments of radio service in this order of priority:

Service with ships and aircraft which depend entirely on radio for communication.

Emergency Service.

Public commercial service between points not reached by any other existing communication.

Emergency service for public utilities.

Private services for communication with points not reached by other communication.

Public commercial services with points which already have adequate means of wire communication.

Article 8 of the international radio Telegraph conference of 1927 stipulates that "all stations must so far as practicable be established and operated so as not to interfere with the radio communication or services of other contracting governments and of individuals or private enterprises authorized by these contracting governments to carry on public radio communication service."

Coöperated with U. S.

It is pointed out that in cases where the radio service of private commercial enterprises of the United States interfered or conflicted with Canadian public service communication, priority should be accorded the Canadian service. In expressing the hope that a way be found to fulfill the Canadians' request for a uniform policy the state department points out that Canada coöperated fully with the United States in the international radio telegraph conference. The state department also expresses the desire that the United State, as the host and because the convention was drawn largely along lines suggested by its representatives, be the first government to ratify it.

American Radio Amateur Talks with 34 Nations

Cleveland, O., March 10.—[U. P.]—The far corners of the world are reached by two radio stations operated by Allen F. Prescott, University of Michigan student.

Much of the radio traffic conducted by Prescott is with Donald McMillan station on the vessel Bowdoin, caught in the Arctic ice at Anatalok Bay, Labrador. Messages from the crew of the Bowdoin are relayed by Prescott to all parts of the United States.

Besides holding frequent conversations with the McMillan party, Prescott has conversed with the station operated by the University of Michigan party, wintering in Greenland, and also has talked with a Norwegian whaler within 13 degrees of the South pole in the Antarctic sea. He has scores of radio friends in Australia and New Zealand with whom he communicates.

Although he has talked with amateurs in 34 countries, Prescott believes that his most interesting experience was in following the fated course of the British barkentine, E. R. Sterling, enroute last December from Australia to England.

By arrangement with its radio operator, Prescott conversed with the vessel daily on its course around the Cape of Good Hope and up the west coast of Africa.

Then one night he heard an S O S sent out as the ship was wrecked off the Cape Verde Islands. He took a graphic story from the radio operator, learned some of the crew had been killed, and then the ship's station became silent.

Radio Will Aid in Government's Fight on the Corn Borer

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Radio stations in twenty-five states will join this spring with other information agencies in putting before the farmers the facts about new farm problems growing out of the ravages of the European corn borer.

Coöperating stations will broadcast for farm listeners one 10 minute program each week, prepared by the radio service of the United States department of agriculture, in collaboration with the information section of the corn borer control campaign organization. The programs will continue for eight weeks, from March 5 to May 1.

Stations in Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New York, and the New England states will transmit the first series; those in Delaware, New Jersey, West Virginia, North Carolina, Virginia, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, and Wisconsin will broadcast the second.

"Miles Ahead!"

Says a broadcasting station manager, formerly radio editor of two different papers. He states further: "I have made extensive tests on what are supposed to be the best radio receivers, each of them nationally advertised. After trying more than half a dozen, under all conditions, have come to one conclusion—my B-T is miles ahead of any of them."

WGN RADIO PROGRAM

The Chicago Tribune Station on the Drake Hotel
416.4 Meters—720 Kilocycles
Sunday, March 11

The call of an Arab Lover . . . street noises of a Persian bazaar . . . tinkle of camel bells . . . cries of turbaned merchants in the market place . . . soft melodies heard over the walls of a Chinese tea garden—all blended into the great symphony of dream music that we call the Arabian Nights Entertainment . . . on the air from 4:30 to 6 this afternoon! . . . Walter Pontius sings in this superb program and Alfred G. Wathall, the musical genius back of the mythical Aladdin, has woven an ethereal tapestry of the world's finest descriptive and impressionistic music. . . . Tune in at 4:30 for the call of "The Caravan"! A spring-time program will be presented in the Atwater Kent hour at 8:15 when Jeanne Gordon, celebrated contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, will be assisted by an orchestra under the direction of Robin Hood Bowers, and a double octet of male voices. . . . The chorus will present as their piece de resistance "Greeting to Spring" by Johann Strauss, as arranged by Hans Lichter. . . . Among the solos by Miss Gordon will be "Habanera" from Carmen and "The Evening Song." . . . And look at this! . . . Another old-time Radio Review staged by Mac Sattley, merry master of ceremonies! . . . Veteran listeners will remember these favorites of five years ago when radio was in knee pants—George Little, Jimmie Eggert, Tommie Malie . . . "Dream Daddy" Davis will be there singing the song he made famous over the old microphones. . . And here are more names that evoke memories from old-time dial twisters—Herbie Mintz, Erwin Barg, Phil Schwartz, Art Sizemore . . . And girls! . . . Say, remember the "Harmony Girls?" . . . And Grace Wilson and Bee Preston? This lively gang throws melody all over the place in the old style . . . today! . . . from 1 till 2! . . . the rythmic melodies of Godard will be presented in Our Music Room at 9:15. . . . Tune yourself in to this pleasant chamber, yield to the infectious gaiety of the music by this old master, and listen to the biographical glimpses at his life. . . . You'll like Our Music Room! Dr. Copeland Smith again opens "The Question Box" at 4, discussing questions of faith and of moral portent. Announcer Hay reads the queries that have been sent in. . . . Dr. Smith answers them. . . . Those who listen to H. F. Kamp at 3 will be conducted into the wilds of South Africa in a thrilling lecture that tells a story of game hunting at night! . . . At noon comes the children's hour! Uncle Quin spreads the funnies on the floor . . . The world of kids does likewise . . . and he reads to them. . . . It makes Dad happy, too . . . it used to be his job!

Magic Politeness Card Goes to Young Librarian

Assistant at West Side Branch Is Made Happy

By The Politeness Reporter.

A STREET car motorman, standing in the cigar store at North and Crawford avenues, was telling his blue coated companion, waiting with him to start on their run, how his pet canary had died that morning. He seemed to feel badly about it. I asked him for details.

"I think it must have been the change in temperature that killed him," he told me. "You know, they can stand a lot of cold, but I think his trouble was trying to meet the change from hot to cold in the house. He was only six weeks old, and I've heard of 'em living for 16 years. We'd been letting him out of the cage so he could fly around the house. It was just a canary, of course, but it makes me feel—well, maybe you think it's odd I feel so bad about it."

He stood looking out the window, waiting for his car to come.

"No," I consoled, "it's tough to lose a pet."

"Then I'll tell you something else I did," the motorman went on. "I took him over to the furniture store and the furniture man and I dug a little grave in the back yard and I put a little tree in front of it. My wife don't know it yet, but she'll know it quick enough. She'll get home before I do and the bird won't be there. . . . It was a wedding present."

Duty Calls.

He dashed out of the store to get aboard his car. The magic card had been interested in the story of the canary's death and the tenderness of its burial, but duty had called and the fellow had gone. I might have followed after him, but my way was obstructed by a swerving individual who seemed to have a chip on his shoulder. He told me he had just had a fight down the street and was not adverse to having another. I could see he was rather unsteady on his legs.

"Yep," he leered, "some one moved in on top of me this morning. What have you got to say about it?"

I had nothing to say, not knowing the circumstances of the situation, which circumstances, I judged, were not clear to him.

When the man had gone his way I remarked to the clerk and another bystander that Crawford and North avenues was pretty far west.

They both laughed, and the bystander said:

"That all depends. It's east to me, because I just came from 76th street."

I went out and stood on the corner and, if I had only known it, the winner of the magic card was then within a stone's throw of where I stood. But

$6,000 in Cash Prizes Await the Winners

All Letters Must Be Mailed Before 12 o'Clock.

By Margaret Stevers.

TONIGHT'S the night, all you housekeeping Cinderellas. If you have not yet sent in your coupon for entering the Home Harmonious contest, your glass slippers will have until midnight tonight to tinkle to the nearest mailbox and drop your entry in. But no letters postmarked after that hour will be accepted.

That's all you need to do, for, of course by this time you've learned all about the $6,000 in prizes to be distributed by THE TRIBUNE to the 99 most attractive homes in Chicago and suburbs. And of course you've straightened out the children's play corner, and hemmed the new chintz curtains, and repainted the kitchen, in readiness for the judges.

Speaking of judges, your homes are to be scored by committees of three persons, all of them home makers and women vitally interested in knowing about and applying that knowledge to the homelike harmony of the American house or apartment.

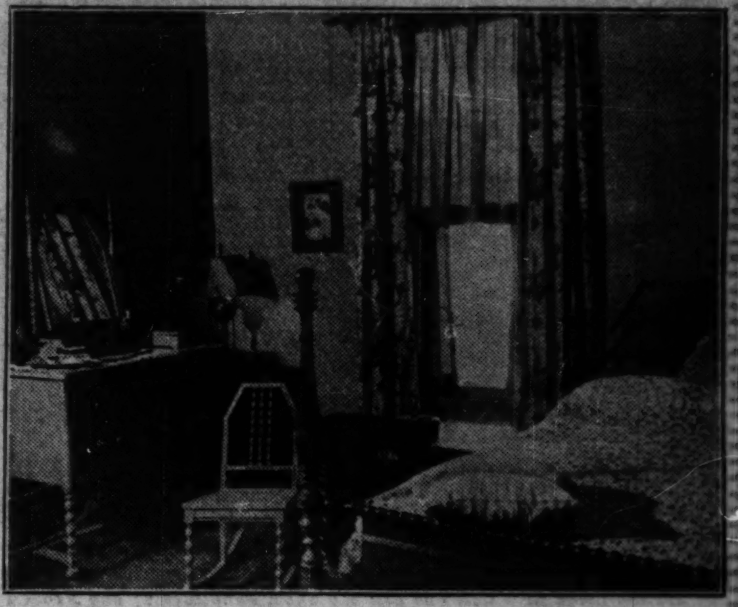
Ready to Start Work.

The names of the final judging committee have been mentioned in the Home Harmonious stories since the beginning of the contest. They are Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, president of the Chicago Housewives' league; Mrs. Walter H. Buhlig, president of the Illinois Parent-Teacher association; Mrs. Constant C. Hopkins, American home department chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Leeds Mitchell, treasurer of the Association of Housekeeping Centers; Miss Lucy Silke, art director of the elementary and junior high schools; Andre Rebori, authority on harmonious interiors as well as an architect of recognized ability; Dudley Crafts Watson, extension lecturer for the Chicago Art institute, and Holmes Onderdonk, building manager for THE TRIBUNE.

A COLORFUL BEDROOM



GREEN furniture, orange sash curtains, and red and gold toile de Jouy draperies form a gay and lasting combination in this Oak street bedroom. The bedspread was made by the owner, as were the pretty pillows.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Through these judges, THE TRIBUNE has obtained the names of club women, their co-workers, who have studied home equipment, who are sympathetic with and know the problems of the average housewife in making the home a place to run to instead of away from; women who will do their judging from the angle of expertism attained from long study, as well as from the angle of the homekeeper.

The home atmosphere, discernible from the moment a guest enters one's door, will count a great deal more than fine hangings. Oriental rugs will not cause an oilcloth floor to blush in the final summing up of points. It will be the harmonious whole, for which this contest was named, that will decide who will be prize winners.

The Plan of Procedure.

Under the plan devised by the general committee in charge of the contest there will be groups of district judges throughout the city and suburbs and one zone committee for each side of the city. All homes will be visited first by the district judges. These judges then will recommend the homes which are to be considered for prizes and the zone judges will visit every home on this list. The zone judges will award twenty-nine of the thirty-three prizes to be given on each side of the city. They also will recommend four homes in each division to be considered for the leading prizes. The general committee then will visit these twelve homes and award the principal prizes.

THE TRIBUNE has been in constant touch with the judging committees, and, with the aid of a large clerical force in its own offices, has endeavored to make the judging as simple and as fair as possible. Within as brief a time as is practical after the closing of the contest tonight the contestants will be notified of the approximate hour they should remain at home in order to receive the judges when they arrive.

You Must Be There!

Owing to the distances to be covered, and the number of homes to be judged, it will be necessary for contestants to be at home for certain hours on certain days. They will be notified in ample time for them to make arrangements for their houses to be shown in case they cannot be there. If a contestant who has been notified

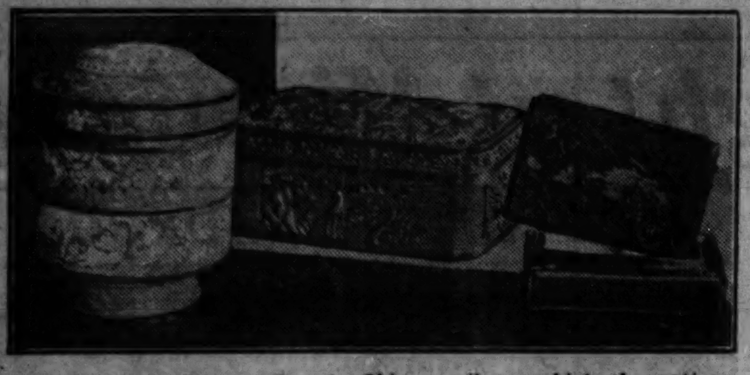
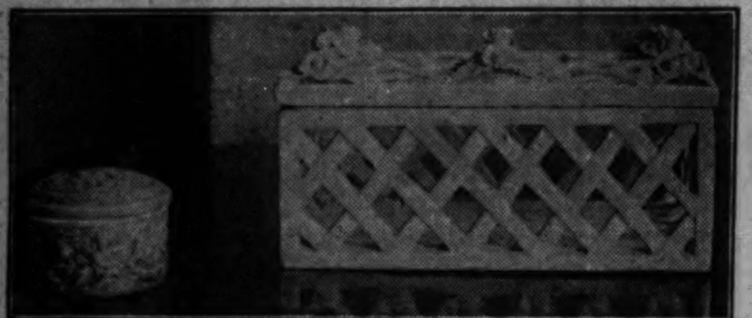
Intriguing Boxes from Other Lands

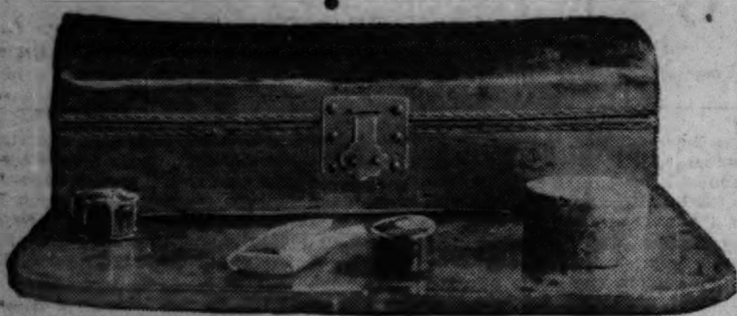
These Ornamental Chests Serve Many Useful Purposes



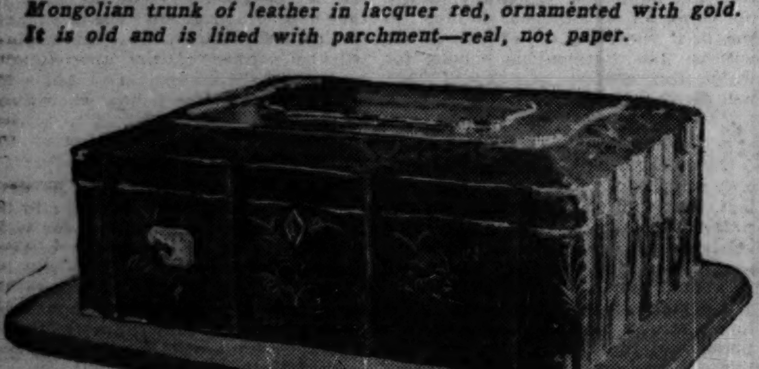
Three Chinese boxes. One is Chinese silver, which the natives model while sitting on the street in the sun. One is cinnabar lacquer and holds just one package of cigarets. The third is enamel on copper, and is two stories high, for holding sweetmeats.



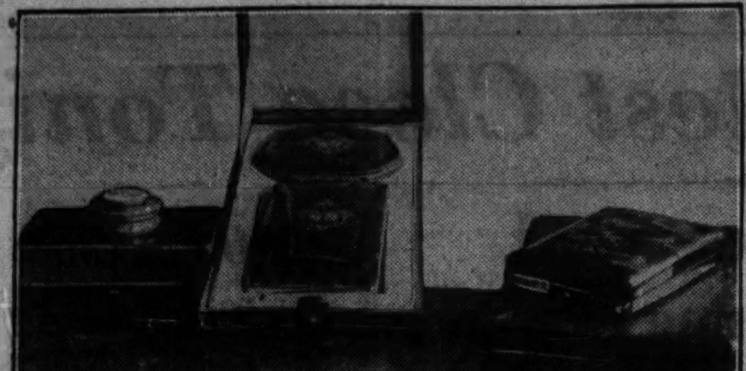
Boxes, boxes, and again boxes if you wish to fascinate a woman. Ever since Pandora, women have loved them. Here are two—one of Italian make in which one can see one's sweetmeats; one French Capi-di-Monti.



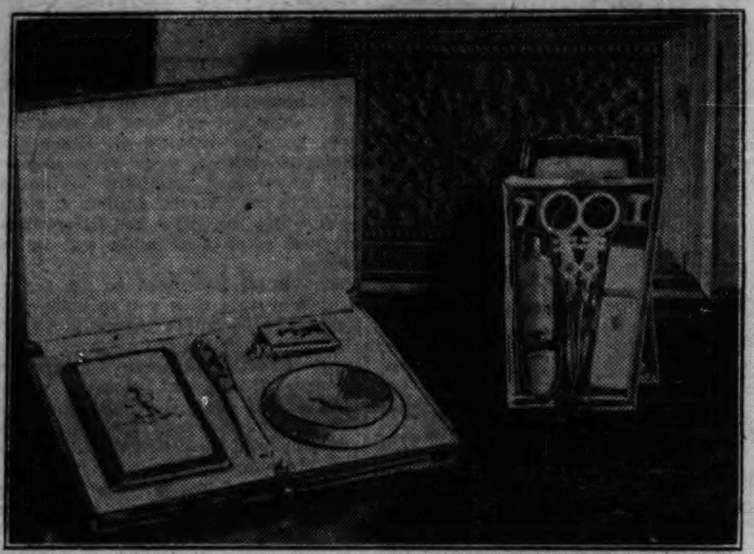
Boxes from fifteen cents to fifteen dollars or more. One is a tiny box of red lacquer. Another is an inlaid wooden box. There is a silver cigaret box with an enameled motif; and the big one is a Mongolian trunk of leather in lacquer red, ornamented with gold. It is old and is lined with parchment—real, not paper.



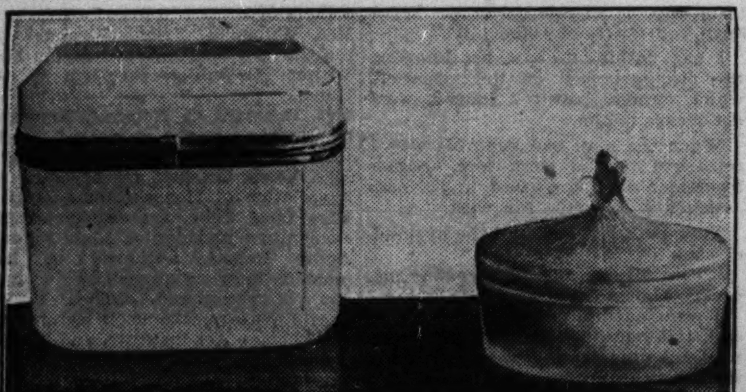
An old lacquer tea chest. One of the kind that came to New England in the early days in ships that went out of Salem to the orient. This box is a delightful adaptation for cigars, stationery or anything that must be kept in the living room.



More boxes which fascinate every woman. Three are old tortoise shell, those in the case being ornamented with gold and silver. The tiny box is old silver with a Limoges enamel top. It is a convenient size for powder or rouge.



The new and the old—both gifts for a woman. One is a modern enameled smoking set for a dainty but ultra-modern miss. The other is an eighteenth century sewing set of gold and mother of pearl in a red morocco case. Also a carved sandalwood box from India.



Two glass boxes. One is ciel blue bound in brass, and the cover is part of the box. An especially nice present for a man because it is small and compact and yet holds a surprising number of cigarets. The other is opaque crystal on which sits a lady by the famous French modeler, Lalique.

Edgar Wallace Is Champion at Mystery Story

LONDON.—(AP)—Edgar Wallace has been voted the most persistent writer of mystery stories "who has ever spoken into a dictaphone."

He turns them out half a dozen at a time. His paper covered books month after month go like hot cakes and are on sale at every bookstall and newspaper stand throughout the country. His mystery stories alone are said to reap him a fortune every year.

In addition to these tales, Wallace writes for nearly half the newspapers of London. He has a daily column on facing in the Evening Star, has a serial running in the Daily Mail, and writes for others on politics and all the popular topics of the times.

One or two Wallace plays are nearly always running at some of the London theaters. His latest is "The Yellow Mask," which he described as "a good old fashioned Drury Lane melodrama with music." He lately has been at work on three other plays, one of which is for Peggy O'Neil.

Paris Doesn't Like "Modern" Buildings; Reform Demanded

PARIS.—(AP)—Modern "palaces," too big, too high, and too new, do not please some of the lovers of old Paris, quaint in architecture and seasoned by centuries.

Public officials and private organizations have battled to enforce all the laws there are against violation of what they esteem the city's harmonious beauty. They have caused some of the electric signs to be moved, forced the remodeling of a few buildings, and preserved the ancient aspect of historic spots.

They are aided now by a new and private censor of taste, Eugene Marsan, a writer of note and an arbiter of fashion and style.

"Paris is being spoiled," is the title of a long series of first page articles running in the aristocratic old Figaro, in which Marsan flays the builders who, he thinks, offend public taste, and he calls for "a committee of men of taste" to do something about it. If he can't tear down new structures he doesn't like, he says, he is determined to make those responsible for them unhappy and prevent others from imitating them.

A Coat for a Dollar.

One day I saw an unusual sale advertised. It was called an Hour Sale and each hour the things on sale were reduced one dollar in price.

I was down town bright and early and saw the loveliest coat in the window, and I considered it a good bargain at $10, but since I had nowhere near that sum I went back home. I couldn't get the thought of that coat out of my mind, so went back again after lunch. It was still there and although it was now only $5 it was still beyond my means.

I went to the public library and killed time until about 4:30, and went back to find my beloved coat still there. In breathless anxiety I waited in front of the store, hardly daring to look into the window for fear some one would snatch it away before my eyes.

The clock hadn't finished striking five when I dashed into the store and told the first clerk I saw that I wanted the coat in the window. After verifying the time I secured the coat for a dollar. I wore it for four years all the year round and then passed it on to another girl who was able to wear it several years more. H. H.

A Country Sale.

It was in the fall, when most of the country sales are on. We were coming back from the cottage, and decided to stop at one of these sales, to see what it was like.

Such luck! I bought six large napkins, linen and hand hemstitched for 50 cents, a box of old books, including Riley's, Longfellow's and Poe's works, along with some old French novels, for $2.50. It was the best bargain I had ever made. B. T.

An Old Violin.

I am a lover of music and have always had a longing to own a good violin. But being a married man with a family and not having too big a salary, circumstances never permitted me to get gratifying my wish.

My dreams came true one day when I stopped in to a junk shop and bought a cheap violin for $17. I did not realize my bargain till I had it priced elsewhere. It proved to be 130 years old and is valued at $100. I consider that a bargain. F. W.

Guessed at the Size.

Talk about bargains! I have one. My bargains are mostly in shoes, as I wear a very narrow last which is the last to sell. I never pay full price for my shoes. My husband and I usually go shopping together, and as I can pick out my size off a table full of shoes at a glance, I scarcely look for numbers, as shoes are so often misnumbered.

He had noticed my selecting this one size often, as I was on the lookout for a high top pair, but failed to find one.

He had occasion to go to one of our leading stores and was attracted by a crowd of women at a table of ladies shoes. To his astonishment they were the high tops I had been looking for, selling for 49 cents. He picked a pair, guessing at the size. They fit me perfectly. J. L. S.

Japan Sends Exhibit to Fair at Leipsic

BERLIN.—(AP)—For the first time Japan has accepted the invitation to exhibit at the annual Leipsic spring fair.

Ninety varieties of goods were shipped by boat from Tokio to Marseilles, where they arrived early in February, and thence by rail to Leipsic.

The exhibit consists of some 3,000 individual objects, and includes silk, porcelain, and lacquered goods, besides articles of food.

The fair management expects the Japanese exhibit to prove one of the centers of attraction.

He—That's so? Well, believe me, I was at somebody's party.—Vassar Vagabond.

Snakes Able to Face the World Without Mother

BERLIN.—(AP)—Snakes, unlike any other animals, do not have to be taught by their mothers how to face life. Dr. Heinroth, custodian of the aquarium at the Berlin zoo, offers interesting data on this point.

Heinroth succeeded in inducing a twelve foot boa constrictor to lay thirty eggs in captivity. Out of ten of them crept little boas, each about 1½ feet in length and weighing 3 ounces. They were immediately separated from their mother and raised by themselves.

Mice and small birds were put into their cage, and without previous training by their mother they attacked their prey and strangled it just as any grown up boa would. Their method of devouring their booty was also exactly like that of their forebears.

Mends Bodies and Spirits of Forlorn Birds

They Sing Again When She Is Through with 'Em.

By Marion Reagan.

IT SEEMED stuffy in the little room, actually hot; and in the air was a scent that was a combination of the odor of bird seed, medicine, and the characteristic aroma that arises from the warm little bodies of the birds themselves.

All along the walls were shelves with scores of cages, large brass ones, some extremely ornate, and then others of plain wire. There were wicker cages, wooden cages, iron grill cages, cages of every sort imaginable! In them the birds were perched, many on one foot, with their heads under their wings, looking like no more than little balls of feathers stuck on the ends of tooth picks. Others, in a fairer state of health, munched in the seed boxes, their beaks making a light, clicking sound.

An occasional thin, throaty attempt at singing floated out in a trembling sound above the loud, mockish jumble of talk from the parrots, and from the convalescent canaries, in a group by themselves, came clear, bell-like trills. It was a bedlam of noises and melodies sung a little off tune.

She Talks to 'Em.

A thin, gray haired woman in a white apron went among the cages, chirping staccato questions which the birds seemed to understand. Forlorn little creatures, bunched into balls, drew their heads up slowly when she talked and their feathers went back into the usual elongated contour of the canary.

"Come, tell the lady how you feel today?" she questioned of a mournful parrot whose head seemed buried 'way down between his shoulders. The head came up. He said something which sounded very much like: "I'm sick."

"Well, don't you worry, I'm going to make you better!" promised the sympathetic voice. And well might she promise, for many a parrot has come into her little hospital before, diseasebound, and has gone away free.

Her name is—quite aptly—Carrie Liberty. Many persons have thought she took the name for trade purposes, so perfectly does it suit her calling, but Carrie was the name her parents gave her at christening and Liberty was the name of her husband.

In Widow's Weeds.

When her husband died some 24 years ago, Mrs. Liberty, left quite alone with her daughter, found herself penniless. She had a little furniture and she had a few canary birds. That was all. She knew a good deal about canary birds. Her father had raised chickens all his life and from him she learned to judge with accuracy what ailed a bird when it wouldn't eat, when its feathers fell out, when it sulked alone on the perch. Her father knew all kinds of remedies for these ailments and taught them to Carrie. And Carrie even made some experiments for herself, found new remedies, and took delight in her skill at mending a broken leg of hen or rooster.

She was living in a small flat on the south side, on Dorchester, near 55th street, when her husband died. A living had to be made somehow and she was untrained in any of the usual occupations undertaken by women. She first thought of raising canaries, and did, but it was difficult, with neighbors complaining of noises. (It was a good many years before the radio was to boom in its loud speaking way into the tranquillity of apartment living.) A flat full of canaries was a flat full of pests.

She Starts with an Ad.

Mrs. Liberty put an ad in THE TRIBUNE.

"Has anybody a place in the loop suitable for use as a bird hospital?" the ad queried. "There are havens for dogs, cats, and other pets, but no place to care for the little birds when they're sick," the ad continued.

Her plea was eloquent. There were several replies. One struck her fancy. It read:

"I can let you have a room at 183 North Wabash for your hospital. The office is not rented anyway, and if it suits your purposes you may have it for a song."

Now, with an apartment full of canaries, songs were a commodity Mrs. Liberty was best prepared to offer in exchange. She took the room and put another ad in the paper. "Wanted," read this second ad, "birds to board. Sick birds cared for at the Liberty bird hospital."

The Liberty bird hospital was as bare as the cupboard of Old Mother Hubbard. There wasn't even a shelf to put the cages on. She had no desk. There was no carpet. She brought a chair down from home, and on the bare floor set the cages of her own birds and sat down to contemplate how she would fix the place when she made a little money.

Away she went with her imagination. The room was filled with bird cages. There was a rich green rug on the floor. She herself sat at a long, flat desk looking into an adjoining room which was all white tile—her operating room and clinic. What a glorious thought!

But, getting back to earth, or rather back to the four bare walls of the room, she confessed to herself a little ruefully that at first, of course, it would be hard going.

Laying the Foundations.

Then, as if by magic, out of the thin air came people in answer to her ad. It was summer, and families going away on vacations were glad to know of a place to put their birds for a few cents a day. She asked the customers to pay in advance.

"And what do you think?" asks Mrs. Liberty. "On the very first day I took in $25. That was a wonderful lot of money in those days—a wonderful lot of money. Why, I didn't know whether to walk or ride home. I was feeling so mighty I could have walked all over the earth without getting tired. I was so proud of myself and so confident!

"First thing I got a carpenter in to make shelves to hold the cages. I had enough shelves made to take care of all the business I hoped to do, and not long afterwards I got myself a desk and these filing cases. Then I moved over here, after a long time, of course, to 208 North Wabash, and, while I haven't made a million dollars, I've made a nice living for myself and daughter all these years, and I've made a nice, tidy sum to lay away in the bank, too."

Mrs. Liberty winks her eye slyly. She is justly proud of herself. Then her face straightens soberly. Her mouth moves into a round little pout. Her eyes look as if they were about to fill with tears.

"And, say, I've done a sight of good, too, in this little place," she says. "Poor little bits of birds; they bring them in here half dead, some of them, and I've cured them; and, well, that's something to be proud of, isn't it?"

Operating on Polly.

Two Bee-bee parrots set up a cackling, noisy chatter. The canaries begin to chirp about in their cages, too; a few trill away in song, and soon there is so much noise that conversation is impossible. Mrs. Liberty is commanding.

"Now, look here, you two," she addresses the Bee-bee parrots. "You started all this; now be still."

She slips a white cloth over their cage, and they are silent at once. When the rest of the birds silence down, too, Mrs. Liberty resumes:

"I must tell you about the first time I ever operated on a bird. You know, I operate on them all the time now if there's anything real serious the matter with them. Well, a parrot was brought in here with his craw all swollen out like a golf ball—bigger even than that. The owner had been everywhere with the bird. Nobody could do anything for him and finally he came in here. My heart sank when I saw the polly. He was a wonderful bird, valued at $1,000, and the owner was clear wild over him.

"Well, sir, I knew that bird was doomed to death. There was only one chance in a thousand to save him and that was to lance that craw somehow and clean out whatever was clogging it. To feel the swelling, it was as hard as cement. So, after debating with myself for a couple of hours, I finally decided to chance an operation. 'Don't surgeons and physicians, the best of them, experiment?' I says to myself. 'They're not always sure.'

The Crisis.

"And I got the anaesthetic, the catgut for sewing up the incision, and all the implements I needed. It was a terrible suspense to be in. I didn't know how much anaesthetic to give the bird for sure, but I took a chance. I worked as fast as I could, cleaned out that craw, sewed it up, and waited and waited for the bird to come to. I waited till almost midnight before he finally reeled about and got enough strength to stand up on his feet. Then I went home and just hoped.

"Next day he was much stronger, and every day he got better, until finally he was completely well. The owner had gone away on his vacation, and every day I had to send him a wire telling how Polly was getting along. I wired at last that Polly was entirely cured; to come and get him when he was ready.

"Well, that man was so grateful to me when he heard his bird calling away when he came in here—'The carriage is coming, Ma-Ma, Ma-Ma'—that he almost cried. 'God bless you,' he said, and he gave me a check for $50. What do you think of that?"

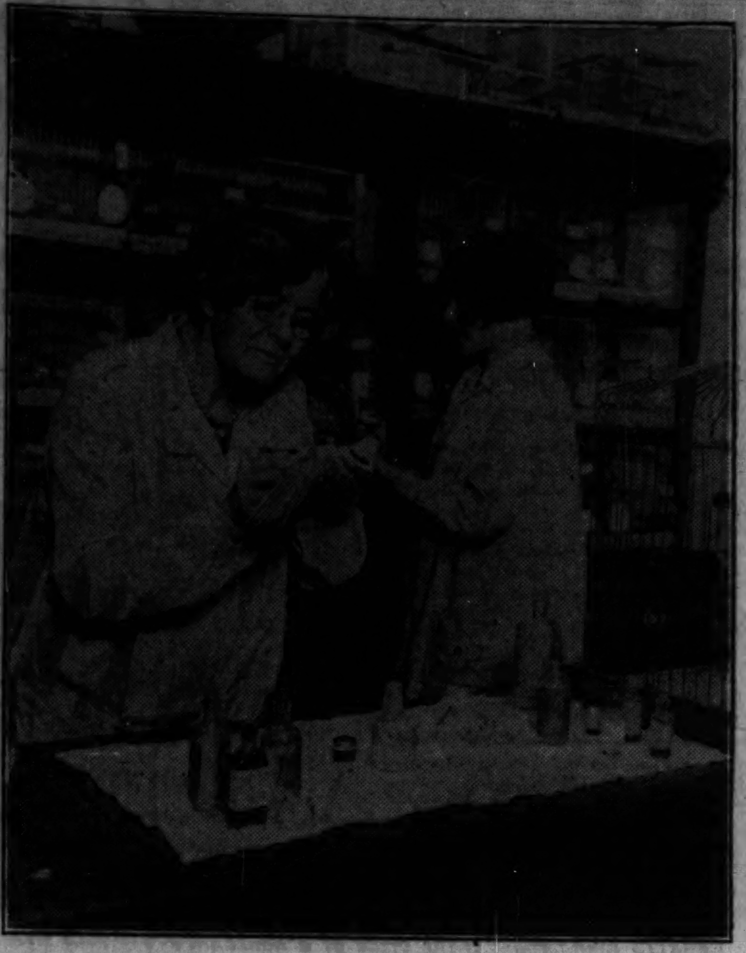
Mending Broken Bones.

Mrs. Liberty's long fingers are deft. They would have to be to perform such delicate operations as setting broken bones of canary birds, or removing tumors from under canaries' wings, and these little operations are, if not the daily, at least the frequent work of Mrs. Liberty.

In her apartment at 5437 Harper avenue she still raises canaries. She has a variety of them, tiny Harz mountain canaries and the big Yorkshire canaries. She has doves, too, and South American cardinals, and several different species of parrots.

THE DOVE OF PIECES



"The bird with the broken pinion" gets speedy relief when it lands in Carrie Liberty's hospital. Mrs. Liberty, assisted by Miss Evelyn Moats, is shown repairing the damaged wing of a pigeon.

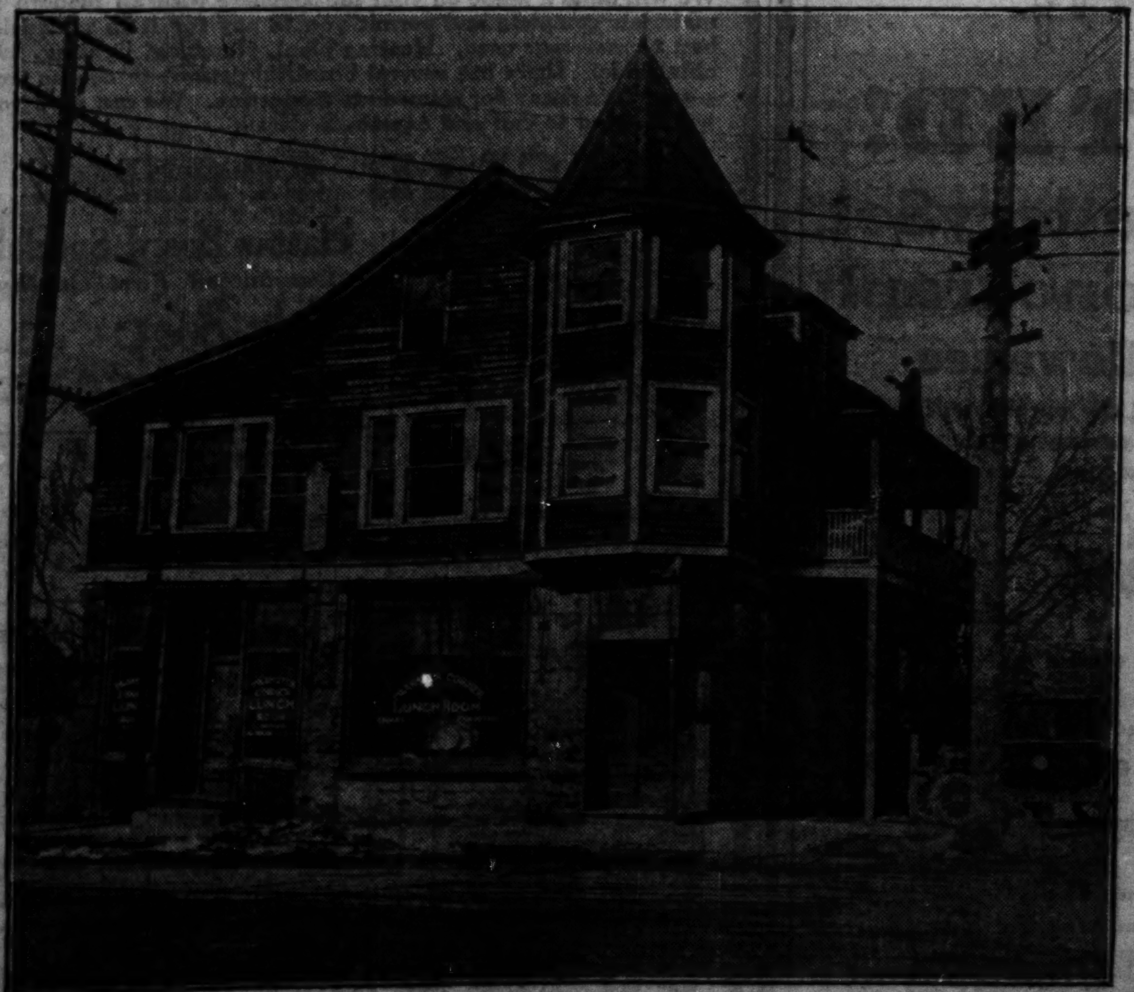
Husbandless Wives Increase in Glasgow

GLASGOW, Scotland.—(AP)—Wife desertion is on the increase in Glasgow, says the parish council, which has 570 "flight widows" on its hands.

The husbands of these women have gone abroad, or left for "parts unknown," and the council is powerless to take any action in the matter.

The husbandless wives and their thousand children cost the parish council £700 a week, or about $3,500, which the authorities contribute toward their support.

KNEW CATTLEMEN OF OLD



THE old tavern and trading post on Archer road at Summit, just outside the city limits, is in ruins now, but i twas a lively place when it was built back in 1850, and for many years thereafter. Farmers, driving their stock to market, made the tavern their last night's stop on their tedious trips to Chicago. Later, in bicycling days, the place was famous as a roadhouse. Recently, it has served only as a street car transfer station and lunch room.

Al Gives the Low Down on Robinson Crusoe

Nobody Else There Except Friday? New Histories Needed!

By Snowshoe Al.

When Mr. Defoe wrote his Robinson Crusoe he made several errors which have remained undiscovered until a few days ago, when I checked up on the narrative. For instance, Mr. Defoe stated that Mr. Crusoe lived for years and years on an island with nobody to keep him company except his man Friday. I have before me at this moment the personal letters written by Robinson to my great-grandfather's papa, so here comes the genuine dirt on Senor Crusoe's island activities.

IT was the night of Sept. 14, 1659, and the good ship Kangaroo, bound for Guinea with a heavy cargo of hand organs, peanut roasters, banana stands, and other articles which Guinea needed badly, was rolling merrily along under full sail. Among the members of the crew was a young gentleman named Crusoe. This was his first ocean voyage, and he was taking it for his health, as the police department had just discovered that he committed a slight error. It seems as how he had borrowed a couple thousand berries from the First National bank—somewhere between midnight and 3 o'clock in the a. m.

As we mentioned before, the ship was bouncing merrily along over the deep blue bathing fluid. Our hero was leaning over the rail, making funny faces at the waves. Him and his supper weren't on speaking terms, and they were now bidding each other farewell. The first mate walked over and patted him reassuringly on the back.

"Tis a grand evening!" says the mate.

"Who cares?" remarks Robinson, who was not in the best of humor.

"The moon just came up," continues the mate.

"Moon, hell! That was good whisky!" snorted our hero. "Anyhow, quit watching me. Go tend to your own business!"

* *

The Debacle.

At this moment there was a terrific crash. The entire ship trembled violently and then stood perfectly still. The Kangaroo had just met an affectionate sand bar, and it was a case of love at first sight. They just couldn't bear to part with one another!

"We are lost!" the captain shouted, as he staggered down the stairs, but nobody paid any attention to him, because he had been staggering upstairs and downstairs for the last two weeks.

The next morning a violent storm came up and started battering the Kangaroo to pieces. Then one of the men claimed he saw land about a mile away, so the crew fell into a lifeboat and started in that direction. They didn't even get to third base! A big wave walked right across their faces and yelled, "Hello, boys!"

When Robinson Crusoe woke up he found himself lying on the shore of a lonely island, where the waves had washed him. He was the only member of the crew what had escaped. He looked around himself in a suspicious manner. Everything was real still; in fact, the silence was deathlike. Right away he decided to investigate this hunk of real estate, so he explored the entire island, but he couldn't find no signs of life. At last he gave three cheers!

"By golly," says our hero, "this is too good to be true! No landlords, no pesky women, no mother-in-laws, no radios, no policemen, no nothing! Just what I've always wanted! There must be a catch in it somewhere."

Just then a cute little parrot flew down from a nearby tree and says "Hello!"

"Well, well!" says Mr. Crusoe, "How come you speak English? I can't understand it! There ain't a living soul on this island except myself."

"Is that so?" grins the parrot. "Har, har!"

"Yes, that's so, thank gawd!" yells Robinson; "I am the only bimbo on this vacant property, and I'm tickled cock-eyed to know it, because I never want to see another human being! All they ever did was cause me trouble."

* *

Alone!

Mr. Crusoe spent the next few days building himself a cute little four room bungalow. He stuck in all the modern conveniences. He sure had a neat layout. When it was all finished, he went outside and gave it the once-over.

"A swell dump, even if I do say it myself," says he, rubbing his mitts together; "a real ritzy dive, where a guy can live peacefully and unmolested for the rest of his life." Then he raised his hands toward the sky and murmured, "Alone! Alone at last!"

Just then his phone started ringing! With an amazed look on his mug he galloped into the house and picked up the receiver.

"Good morning, Mr. Crusoe," says a voice; "this is the Stickem Real Estate company. Your name has just been given to us by a friend who thought you might be interested in our proposition. We are located on Cocoanut island, just three miles east of you, and we have some nice corner lots over here which we are selling on easy terms. If you care to trade your funny looking bungalow in towards the purchase of same, we will allow you three dollars an' sixty cents——"

"Wait a minute! Somebody's knocking at my back door!" yells our hero, dropping the receiver and galloping to the rear of the house.

"Good morning!" says the gink at the back door; "would you like to subscribe to these four magazines? Only ten cents a week! Much cheaper than you can——"

Ding-a-ling-aling! (Front door bell.)

Our hero rushed through the house and found three guys standing on the front porch.

"Nice little place you have here, Mr. Crusoe," says the first hombre, "and I suppose you'll want to take out some fire insurance! Just suppose lightning should strike this dump; you'll want to be protected—"

"Mr. Crusoe," butts in the second guy, "have you arranged to have milk delivered yet? If you ain't, I'll be glad to take your order, and I assure you that we——"

"Pardon me for horning in," remarks the third gink, "but have you anything you want to send this morning to the Damfine Cleaners & Dyers?"

* *

The Home Harmonious.

At this moment two laundry wagons stopped in front of the house and the drivers started a fist fight in the front yard. Each of them claimed he saw the joint first.

"Har, har!" yelled the little parrot from a nearby tree. "'Alone! Alone at last!' Har, har!"

Our hero slammed the door in their faces and rushed back into the living room. He found a guy sitting in his rocking chair.

"Hello," says the guy, "I just came in through the window. I see you have no sewing machine. Our firm sells 'em on the installment plan. Mr. Crusoe, no home is complete without a sewing machine. You only pay three dollars down an' two dollars every week for the next——"

"ICE!!!!" squawks some bozo at the rear door.

Mr. Robinson Crusoe did a nose-dive through the window and ran frantically towards the beach, pursued by six bond salesmen, nine automobile demonstrators, and a guy who wanted to sell him an electric radio. They were joined a few moments later by several ginks who sold vacuum cleaners.

Robinson escaped this mob by climbing a tree and disguising himself as a bunch of bananas. From this treetop he could see in all directions, but all he could see was house-to-house canvassers, district managers, special representatives, demonstrators, and the et cetera. Then he glanced towards the beach and grabbed off another surprise! Several large canoes were drawn up on the sand, and two hundred Ethiopian Blondes were doing the Black Bottom around a large bonfire. Another of these dark complexioned boys was tied to a tree. Mr. Crusoe climbed down and galloped over towards this mob.

"What's the idea?" says our hero.

"O," says one of them, "dis am de ninth annual picnic of de Barbershop Porters' Benevolent fraternity. Groceries am going to be served, an' a good time am going to be had by all!"

"And who is that African Eskimo that's tied to the tree?" asks Crusoe.

"He am de groceries! He am a member what ain't in good standing at present, 'cause he am way back in de payment of his dues. When we ask him fo' de money he keep telling us 'Come around next Friday—come around next Friday,' so now we is mad, and we——"

Kidded by Experts.

BLAMMM!!!!!! It was a terrible noise, just like an explosion, and it came from the other side of the island. Rushing to the scene of the racket our hero saw a large pirate ship going up in smoke. Somebody had blown up her powder magazine! Robinson saw a small boat coming towards the shore, so he climbed a tree in order to conceal himself. The small boat contained Captain Kidd and six sailors. As soon as they landed they carried several heavy iron chests from the boat and dumped them under the tree.

"Dig a hole an' bury them boxes!" yelled Captain Kidd, shooting four of the sailors, just for the hell of it, so the other two sailors buried the boxes, after which the captain shot both of them. Then Mr. Kidd laughed, raised both arms towards the sky, and yelled: "Alone! Alone at last!"

"O, FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE!" laughs Mr. Crusoe; in fact, he laughed so hard that he fell out of the tree and landed on the captain's neck.

This made Mr. Kidd sore as hell, so he picked up a large rock and socked Mr. Crusoe so hard that our hero didn't recover consciousness until twenty-seven years later. And this, ladies and gentlemen, accounts for Robinson Crusoe's long and protracted stay on the island.

Anyhow, that's my story and I'll stick to it!

PLANNING HIS PARTY

WHAT Mrs. James' rooster wants to crow about these days is the party that's to be given on his birthday the latter part of March. Soon "Roostie" will be 7 years old, and he's to have a birthday cake with seven candles. Mrs. Martin James, who lives at 4915 Ravenswood avenue, bought the bird when he was a week old. He knows any number of clever tricks.

Find Gobelins in Castle Are Centuries Old

BERLIN.—(AP)—Historical tapestries of great value were brought to light during the restoration of five well known gobelins in Charlottenburg castle.

For years past these tapestries, which had been mortared into the walls, were shown with pride to visitors as French gobelins of the beginning of the eighteenth century, believed to have been brought to Germany during the reign of Frederick the Great. But when in the course of their restoration they were taken out of the mortarwork, they were found to be almost twice as large as hitherto believed and recognized as rare specimens of the fourteenth century, whereby the previous estimate of their value has been so materially enhanced that they are now considered to be worth many million marks. Three of the gobelins are in a state of perfect preservation while the two others can be readily restored.

It is believed that the tapestries were mortared into the walls to disguise their real value from the invading forces of the Austrian Field Marshal Hadik, which in 1760 looted or demolished all objects of value around Berlin on which they could lay their hands.

'Prince of Beggars' Ends Philanthropic Career of 32 Years

LONDON.—(AP)—England's "Prince of Beggars," Viscount Knutsford, is soon to retire from the begging business.

In his begging career of thirty-two years as chairman of the London hospital he estimates he has collected something like $30,000,000 which went toward the institution's upkeep, rebuilding, and providing research funds.

In an article in the Sunday Express entitled "How to 'Pick' Pockets," Viscount Knutsford says:

"This lifelong rôle as 'beggar' has embraced all phases of drama—tragedy, comedy, and sometimes melodrama which behind the footlights would stir the emotions of the most blasé audience."

Lord Knutsford tells how a shabbily dressed man called once and left with him $5,000 in cash. He was a workman who had saved for years with the ultimate aim of giving the money to the hospital as soon as he had accumulated that much in gold.

Millionaires are the hardest to deal with, says the peer.

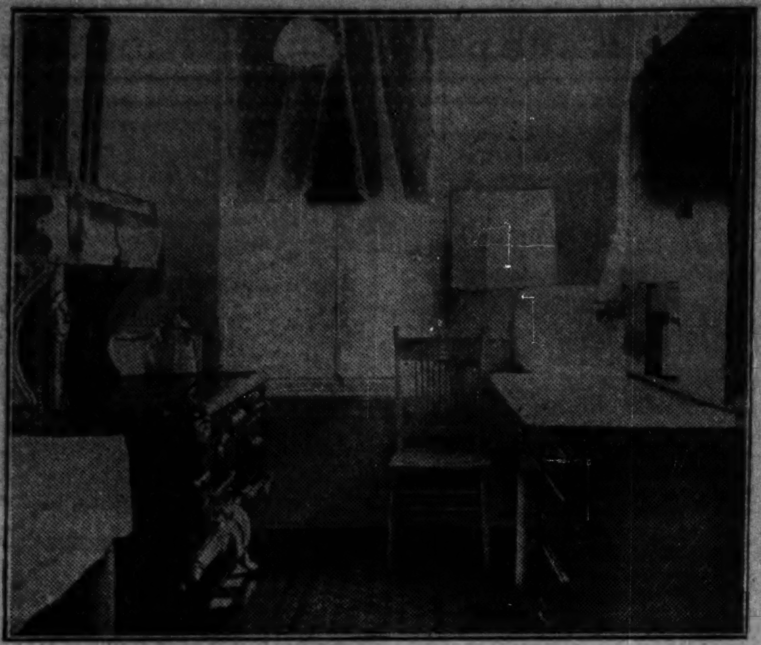
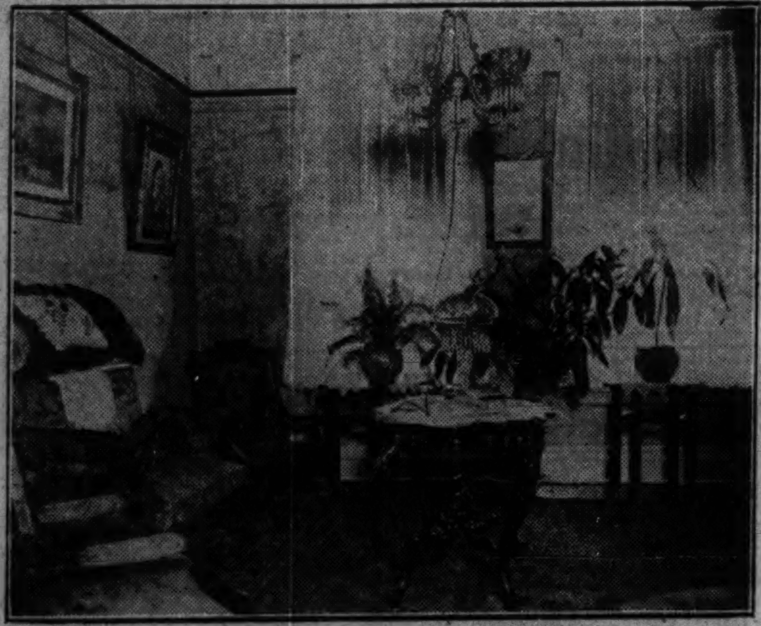
A SPOTLESS KITCHEN



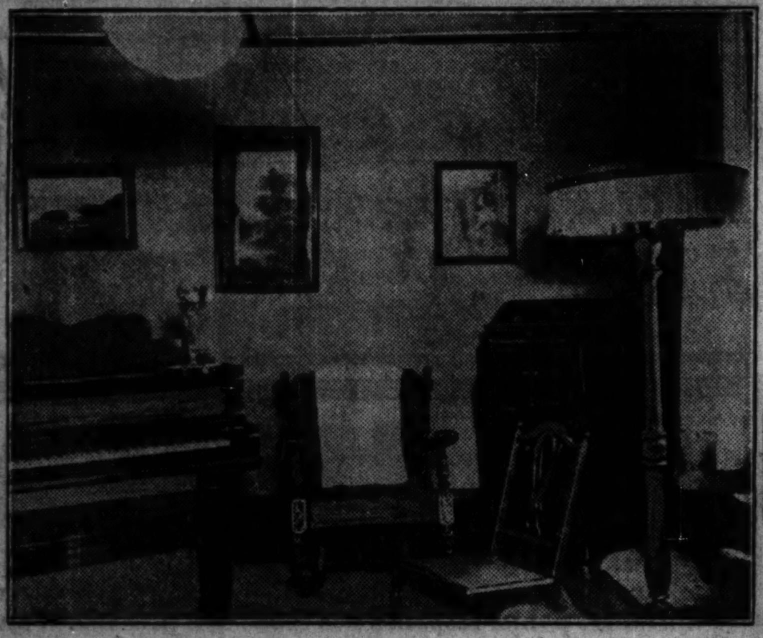
CLEANLINESS as a virtue is at its highest in a kitchen, and it is safe to say that no home in Chicago boasts a kitchen more spotless than the one in the cottage belonging to the 87 year old couple.

OLD FASHIONED PARLOR



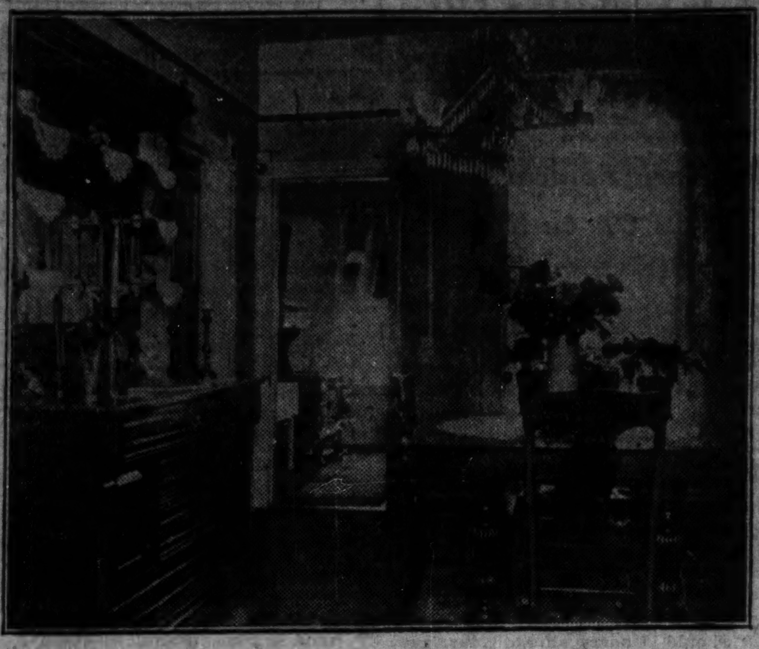
HERE we have a nice old fashioned parlor, made attractive and homey by the elderly couple who are the occupants, and who respect the older custom of reserving the parlor for the entertainment of honored guests.

HOME MADE LIVING ROOM



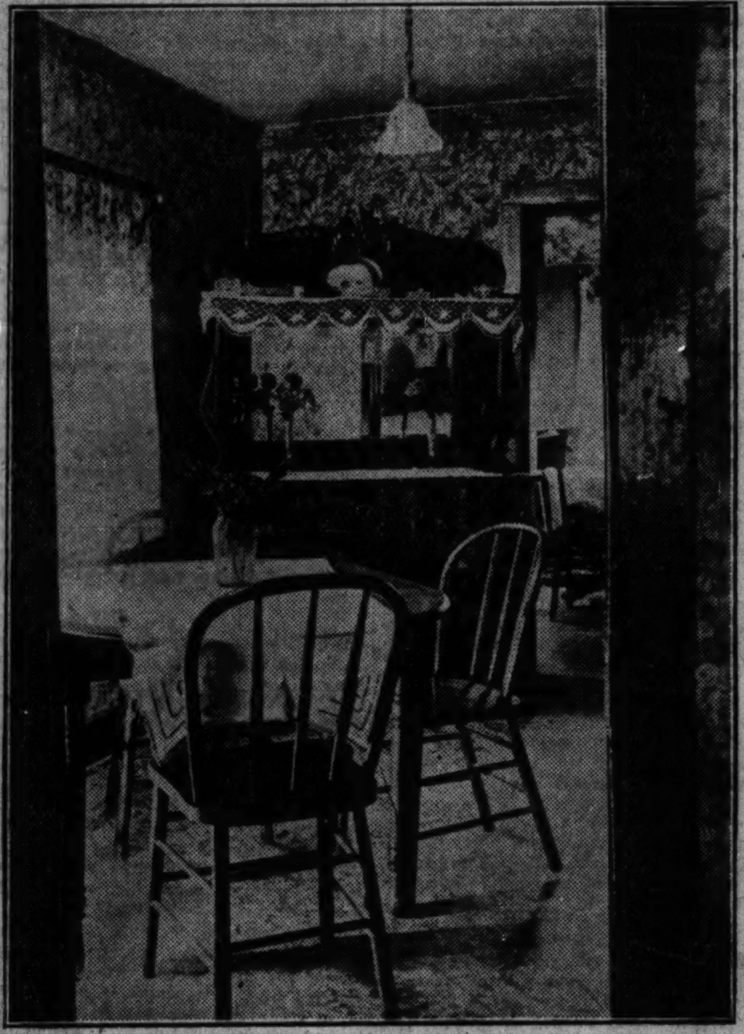
THE north side home on Troy street, of which this is the living room, may really be called the handiwork of the homemaker. The floor in the room is varnished wall board, which the widowed owner laid herself.

CHEERY DINING ROOM



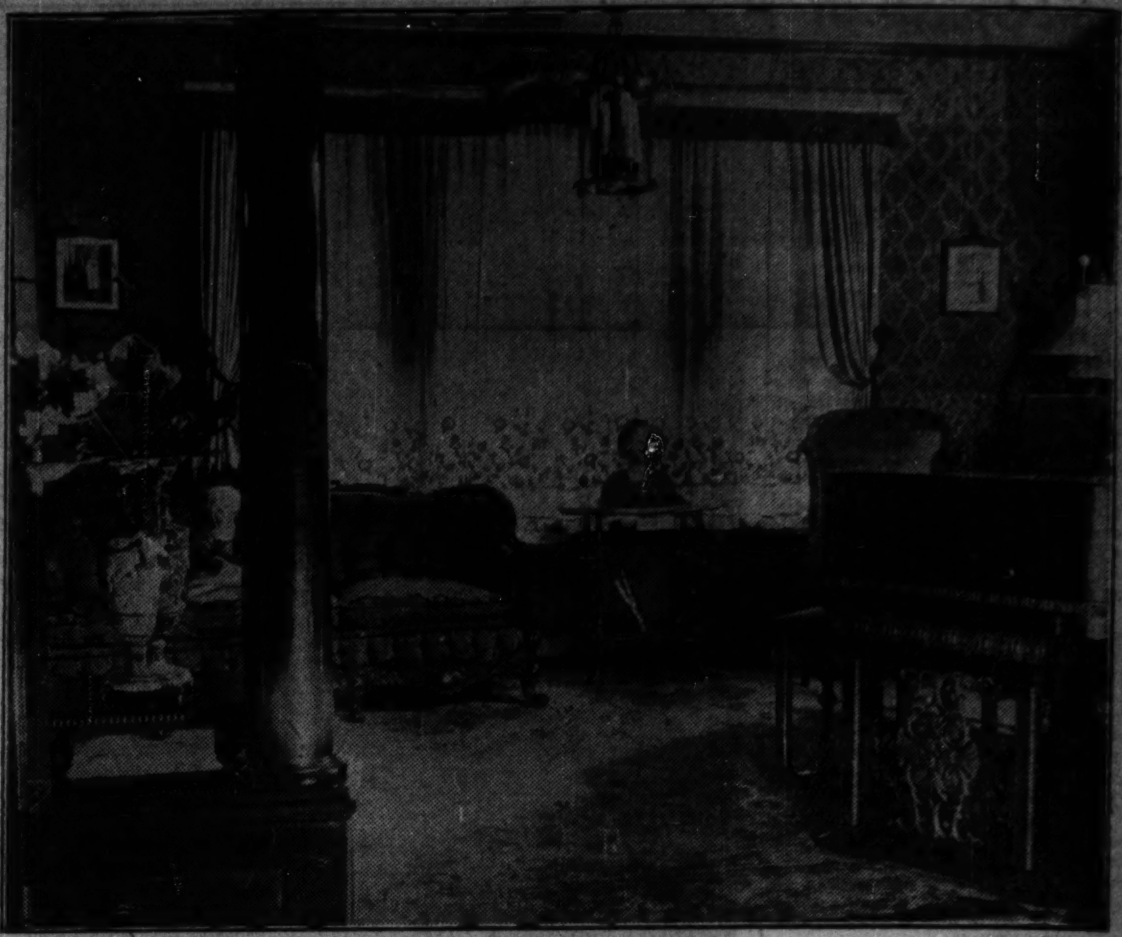
POTTED plants and a singing canary lend charm and cheeriness to this dining room in the northwest side cottage. Oak is the furniture and the curtains at the window are of starchy lace.

JUST BUILT FOR SIX



BEING the mother and support of five children has not deterred the mistress of this little cottage on North Paulina street from making it a place of neatness and cheer. With the aid of a teacher from the Association of Housekeeping Centers, the breakfast set was painted a bright orange, to match the crisp flowered valance which tops the scrim curtains. Linoleum rugs are used throughout the four rooms.

A CHEERFUL LIVING ROOM



THIS living room is the pride of a house on West 48th street, inherited by its present owner from his mother. The simple surroundings have been enhanced by colorful walls, draperies, and furniture. Mulberry and gold are accentuated in the rugs, couch, and upholstery. The piano is antique walnut, with bench to harmonise.

An Honest Clerk.

Last spring I purchased a coat and scarf in a department store. I charged the coat but paid cash for the scarf. That week, for some reason or other, I was short of money. You will not wonder at my surprise when some days later a check for $16.05 was mailed to me along with a note explaining that as I had not waited for the change from my $20 bill when I had purchased my scarf [the scarf had cost $3.05] it was being sent to me. The salesperson had my name and address, for I had charged my other purchase.

Needless to say, I have been a loyal patron of that store ever since.

The Leap Year Girl Hasn't a Chance Here

Northwest Siders Say the Man Should Propose.

WOULD you dodge or fall if your best girl made you a leap year proposal? The answers given to this question by a group of northwest siders were mostly opposed to the idea of the girl proposing.

George Boehmer, 2304 Logan boulevard, said: "I wouldn't accept a girl unless I really loved her. I would rather give her a little pain now than a great deal of pain later on."

Paul Richter, 3040 Diversey avenue, favored prevention. He said, "I believe I would let the girl know the truth about my attitude all along, so there would be no danger of her proposing if I didn't want to marry her."

Practical considerations came to the mind of Gilbert Schultz, 2529 Milwaukee avenue, "I'd ask to see her bank roll first," he insisted, "If that were sufficient, we'd try it out."

Said W. J. Connor, 1256 Bryn Mawr avenue: "If I thought enough of her to make her propose, I would probably beat her to it and propose first myself."

"I'd laugh at her," said Herman Guttman, 3052 Logan boulevard. "Leap year is just a fad. Marriage is too serious to come that way. Most girls have no means to support a husband."

Dr. D. Reininger of Logan Square was also opposed to feminine proposals. "In a case like that," he said, "I wouldn't feel obliged to marry her. I don't like proposals to make marriage seem more like a forced obligation than a case of love."

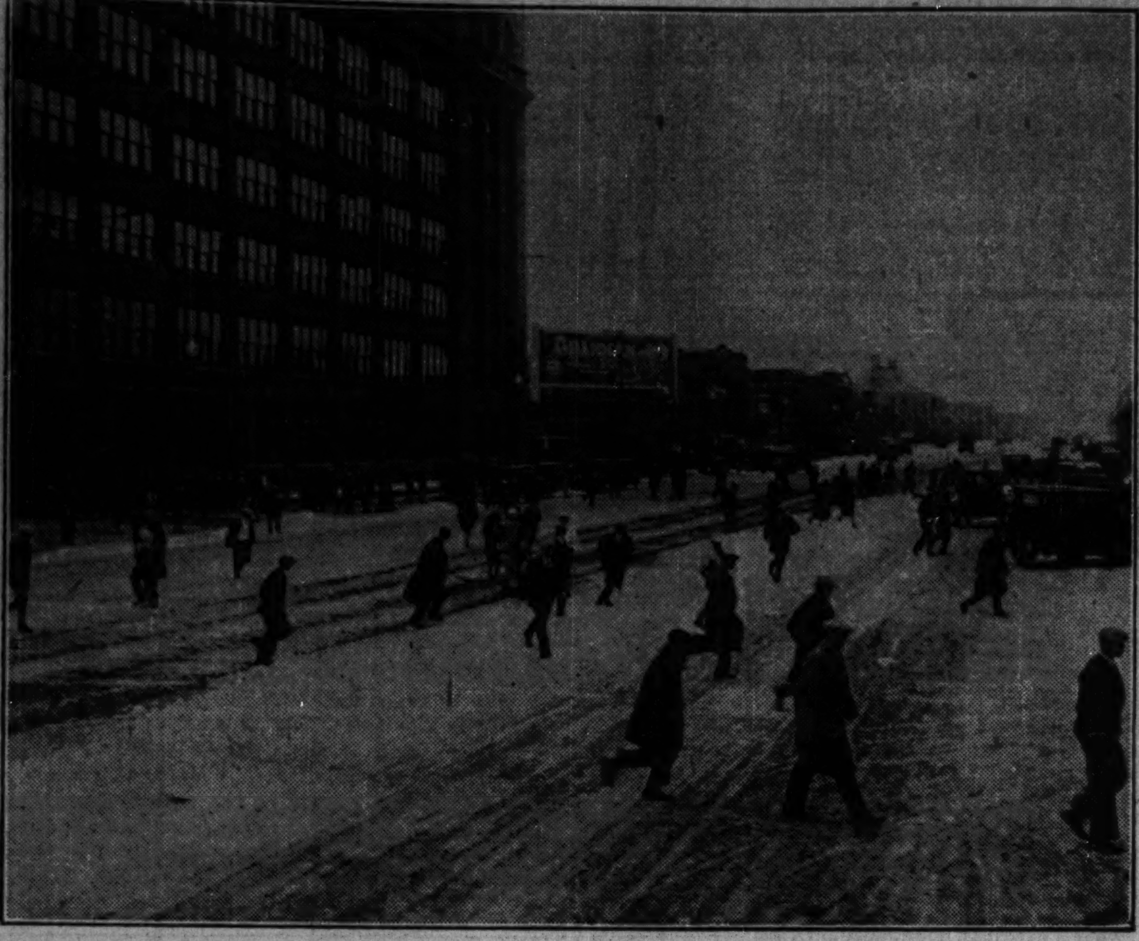
There is more than one side to such a question, according to E. D. Koppelmyer, 2559 Milwaukee avenue. "The average individual male is too much inclined to take such a proposal otherwise than as intended. If she is certain of her young man and his understanding let the maiden go ahead. Boys today are not like boys when I was young. They put a wrong construction on almost everything."

A young Logan Square artist, too shy to disclose his name, was in favor of half way measures. "There ought to be some kind of compromise," was his verdict. "Alimony or something. A young man should be perfectly sober and use every ounce of his brains in such a matter."

Others were even shyer about answering, especially the married men who were questioned. Jack O'Fallon, 2440 North Kedzie boulevard, said, "If you had asked me that a year ago I could have answered. I have been married almost a year now, and it is naturally impossible for me to say a word."

Not a soul interviewed suggested companionate marriage as the answer to the leap year problem.

LUNCH TIME AT WESTERN ELECTRIC



THE figures hurrying across the street are headed for a row of restaurants that have the plates all set up to take care of feeding a good-sized army. West 22nd street at 48th avenue is a lively spot when the Western Electric plant pours forth its thousands of workers. The photographer, happening along at mid-day, has caught a view of the advance guard intent on getting a little chow. Some of the workers are obliged to travel a couple of blocks to reach their desks after they get inside the big building at the left.

TRAGIC FINANCIAL TROUBLES.

"You say financial troubles brought you here?" asked the hospital visitor. "Why, that's hardly possible!"

"It's a fact, though," retorted the patient. "I was crossing to the other side of the street to avoid one of my creditors, and saw another creditor on the other side. While I was trying to escape, a car hit me."—Montreal Gazette.

A NATURAL ACCIDENT.

Hostess—Marie, did you get the flowers that I'm to wear in my hair tonight?

Marie—Yes, ma'am, but—

Hostess—But what?

Marie—I've mislaid the hair, ma'am.—Exchange.

Wives Given Edge on Mothers-in-Law by German Court

BERLIN.—(AP) — The rights of mothers-in-law do not stand so high as they might with the German federal Supreme court, the Reichsgericht. Wives have precedence over them in all family disputes, says the Reichsgericht in repealing a number of decisions of the lower courts in which the wives were given the edge over their husbands' mothers.

The cases in point dealt with married couples maintaining a joint household with the wife's mother-in-law. In the ensuing disagreements between the two women friend husband invariably sided with his mother.

Such an attitude on the part of a husband, the German Supreme court decided, represented a flagrant violation of connubial rights and duties, involving the respect of one party for another, and entitled the wife with her child or children to leave her husband.

Turk Takes His Salary Out in Historic Relics

PARIS.—(AP) — Selling historic treasures stolen from museums is getting to be difficult. Essad Nassouhi, formerly assistant curator of the Constantinople Museum of Antiquities, tried to pay himself his back salary by peddling a few little things he picked out of the cases there but he found his taste in antiques was too good.

A Hittite tablet, 3,000 years old, was sold for $700 to a Paris expert but at the Louvre museum it was identified immediately as one of the oldest and rarest things of its kind. Essad Nassouhi was arrested and turned over other things he had taken.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha's new government, he said, paid him lots of compliments for his work—for he is reputed to be an eminent authority—but it didn't pay his salary and when his family got hungry he took some of the museum stock in his pocket and walked out.

Famous Women of Chicago

MRS. EDITH ROCKEFELLER McCORMICK.

[Underwood & Underwood Photo.]

BEING the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick is one of Chicago's women of great wealth. Her splendid homes—one at Bellevue place and Lake Shore drive and the other at Lake Forest—have been loaned for charity benefits on many occasions. Mrs. McCormick is one of the main sponsors for the zoological garden being established at Riverside, toward which she has donated a large tract of land.

THEN HE BUMPED.

Mrs. Smart had two "stars" at her social gathering—Schpuntz, the pianist, and Bumpfeeler, the phrenologist.

"Listen!" said Mrs. Smart, just before the latter entered the room. "I am going to let the professor feel Schpuntz' bumps. I'll wager anything he'll be able to tell that Schpuntz is a musician!"

Excitement ran high. Bumpfeeler entered and began playing a five-finger exercise that would have done credit to Schpuntz himself on the muscian's classic head.

"Here," he began, "is a practical business man, a man of great common sense, with no nonsense about him. No wasteful arts for him! No wanderings in the realms of fancy! No dreamer of—"

He caught the hostess' pleading eye. She was playing scales upon her lip.

"Ah," he concluded, "this man lives by the skill of his hands! I should say he is one of the most expert typists in the kingdom!"—London Tit-Bits.

PROOF POSITIVE.

"Look at that pretty telephonist at the next table."

"How do you know she is a telephonist?"

"I have said 'hello' twice and got no reply."—Ulk, Berlin.

Try These POETIC POSERS

By Norman Lustig and William J. Fadiman.

Is poetry still at the tip of your tongue? Haven't you often wondered where the famous lines that are quoted daily come from? See if you can guess the authors and titles of these famous quotations.

Count 5 for each correct author and 5 for the name of the poem to which the excerpt belongs, and try to score 60 per cent. Seventy per cent means a retentive memory, 80 is remarkable, and 90 signifies a few anthologies in the bookcase. 100? Then you have taken courses in memory training!

A few allusions can't be amiss. The title of the fifth quotation, by the "Bard of Avon," may be taken from the opening line, while the poet laureate who wrote the eighth composed "The Charge of the Light Brigade." The ninth poet was one of the first "romanticists." The woman who penned the tenth was writing of the "way of the world," and the third poet is noted for his couplets. A theologian "told" the author of "Paul Revere's Ride" the sixth excerpt. "Alice in Wonderland" is also by the fourth author. The second is from the best kown poems by an American who also wrote "The Chinese Nightingale." Of course, R. L. S. penned the first, but what is the title? The seventh, rather difficult to guess, although well known, is from an old play by the author of "Love for Love." If you are "posed," answers, in another column on this page, may be consulted.

THE STRONG GUY.

By Walter M. Schwimmer.

Is he strong? I'll tell the world he is,
In using force he's certainly a whiz,
Why ev'ry guy he knows agrees
That he is built like Hercules.

Say, yesterday you should have seen
Him try that strength-testing machine.
He slammed the mallet hard, and—well,
I'm telling you, he smashed the bell!

His muscles simply bulge and bulge,
And here's a secret I'll divulge,
There ain't a single pugilist
Who has as mean a punching fist.

Folks, here's the stunts this bird can do,
He bends a crowbar right in two,
And with his thumb he never fails
To push in tacks, and also nails!

Yes, he's a lallapalooza, quite,
A cuss with beefy brawn and might,
A stalwart strapping hulk with nerve,
A gent with vigor, vim, and verve.

But here's a tough, perplexing feat
That makes this Samson own defeat,
No matter how he tugs and strains,
He can't raise windows in the trains!

London Clubwomen Are Taking to Cigars

LONDON.—(AP)—Women's clubs in London are up against cigar smoking. Cigarets were assumed to be the limit of woman's smoking when several clubs established a rule that their drawing rooms might be used as smoking rooms. But many women are now smoking cigars, and cigaret smokers seem to have as much prejudice against cigars in the mouths of members of their own sex as many Victorian ladies have against cigarets.

WAITING FOR SPRING

THERE is a sort of pathos connected with what might be termed "settings out of season." This scene overlooking the river at Belmont avenue and Rockwell street, for instance—houseboats of fishermen in the foreground, across the water a row of harbored motor boats, and, at the extreme right, the T. E. Banner excursion boat. When summer rolls 'round again, seekers of lake breezes will be more interested in the Banner than they are inclined to be just now. Music will float from its decks then, as it plies its way between the Municipal pier and Lincoln park. "Just you wait," seem to say these craft held in leash, "there never was a winter yet that didn't come to an end."

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

LEAVE IT TO THE IRISH.

An Irishman applied for a job at the gas works.

"What can you do?" asked the foreman.

"Most anything," replied the man.

"Well," said the foreman, who was a bird of a joker, "you seem to be all right. Could you wheel out a barrel of smoke?"

"Sure, fill it up for me."—Toronto Gazette.

French Public Officials Shy About Checks

PARIS—(AP)—The French government is going to take some of its own medicine and pay by check all functionaries getting more than $30 a week.

For years ministers of finance have urged the public to use checks as an aid to keeping down inflation. Meantime, all officials except cabinet ministers and the president of the republic, were paid in cash.

Stranger than this governmental reluctance to do what it told the people to do is the reason for sticking to cash pay rolls. "It might seem strange for a public official to receive a check," it was explained in whispers, for during and after the war men were shot as spies on the evidence of checks they couldn't justify. This fear of scandal made the higher officials loath to take up the pay roll checks.

It is even commented that Premier Poincare's action in ordering checks used "may not be his most important act but it may be his most courageous one."

With all the talk of checks they still are regarded with suspicion by many people and there are but few who have bank accounts. Many firms delay giving receipts until the check given in payment for a bill has been cashed. Even in real estate deals it frequently is required that the actual cash be paid before a notary.

COULDN'T LIE, EITHER.

"So your name is George Washington?" the old lady asked the small colored boy.

"Yessum."

"And do you try to be exactly like him, or as nearly as possible?"

"Lak who?"

"Why, like George Washington."

"Ah kain't help being lak Jahg Washin'ton, 'cause dat's who Ah is."
—Lethridge Herald.

THE POST-GRADUATE WIFE.

She registers attention at all her husband's stories when he is telling them to callers, but she never attempts to tell one herself.

She remembers to speak once in a while in admiration of his masterful way with the radio and to wonder how he does it.

She asks him to fix the electric washing machine just as if she thought he really could.

When she calls for him at his office with the car she always slides out of the driver's seat.

About six times a year she asks him to explain some political or international affair that is in the newspapers. —Life.

A WAR-TIME TOUCH

THERE was a rumble as the 124th field artillery crossed the link bridge at Michigan avenue and the river. Pedestrians admired the patriotic spectacle. Also they wondered what was up. The organization was on its way to compete against the 122d field artillery in a series of drills and riding, jumping and polo contests. On this occasion the 124th won the most points, and the cup offered by Brig. Gen. Frank R. Schwendel.

STORIES of GIRLS

Rescued from the Octopus.

By Margaret Orr.

UNCLE PETE couldn't be kept down, although by profession he had been a diver. Now he was merely something old that sat in a rocking chair by the stove. Everybody, particularly Imogene, ignored him. But when there was company he always shuffled in and told his astounding lie about how he rescued a beautiful mermaid from being squeezed to death by an octopus.

Folks knew the yarn was but the whimsical story of a wish. They smiled and pitied him. But Imogene bawled him out.

For Imogene was smart. She earned good money. She had been promoted twice and had two girls under her.

Yet her mother still considered her a child. The mother talked about going downtown to buy Imogene a "little dress"—size 40. And she kept bringing clothes home till she mortgaged the girl's salary weeks in advance. Imogene not only had no personal choice in the matter, but little chance to save.

Then there was the maternal advice about boy friends, tooth paste, letters, telephone calls, cigarets, moral uplift, kimonos, and dog biscuit. Imogene was as free as a blind bird with broken legs and its wings beaded with bullets. So she had no extra patience to cast around the kitchen stove at Uncle Pete and his octopus.

But the neighbors voted her mother ideal and "an awfully good woman."

She was also so omnipresent that Imogene finally revolted. Frequently she told her mother she would have to work at the office in the evening. The girl used these evenings to have rather wild little dinners with whatever men were available for such dates.

The only men who would sneak a girl round this way were married or were sophisticated beings to whom Imogene was merely "the girl I had dinner with Thursday night—what was her name?"

Among this crowd was Ed. Ed was a 20 minute egg. He had an inexhaustible fund of experiences and took her out several times. He always chose expensive, fashionable dinner places.

Imogene realized she didn't have the clothes to continue these sparkling moments. But Ed offered to get her a "swell evening dress at wholesale—like magenta or violet best?" Imogene drew out her Christmas fund and paid cash. Then he knew a "feller who carried evening wraps," etc.

For all of these Imogene paid cash. On several occasions, however, she had to get a loan from the ignoble Uncle Pete.

Then along came Phil. As he was young and fine looking, Imogene ditched Ed. And he was furious.

One morning Imogene got a letter which contained an itemized account of all the things he had ever bought her. The list was not figured at all on the "wholesale" basis. He wrote he was sorry to ask for the money, but he was strapped.

Imogene had no receipts for her cash. She was afraid Ed would rush to her mother for the money. So once more she held up Uncle Pete.

This time she told him the story. He didn't say anything. But the next morning he hobbled down to the savings bank and drew out all but $2.13. And his life work lay in these dollars!

That noon Imogene met Ed at a hotel, where they quarreled violently, but she got the receipt.

When she went home that night she discovered her mother's eyes were red. The telephone bell rang, but the mother did not use usual hurry to listen in. She quietly said at the supper table that she had canceled Imogene's debt for clothes Imogene hadn't chosen, as the girl should have more freedom about things. Suspicious stuff!

Imogene wondered at all this strangeness. She looked at Uncle Pete. There was a fiery glitter in his old eyes.

Whether he knew it or not, his dream had at last come true.

A beautiful mermaid, who should have been free to explore the marvels of life's sea, he had at least partly rescued from the maternal octopus.

"The World's Greatest" at Home.

HE was disillusioned in his mother, himself, his girl, and in the bank which refused to cash the check he so blithely offered it.

It had been circus time and a small, unknown show had found its way to the village where Raymond's mother had her summer home. She was a widow. She was very modern. She adored Raymond. He called her Emily. She was his comrade.

That is, every night Raymond's mother invited him in while her maid applied the mud bath to her face. Then she would talk to him about Poms, whisky and soda, Freud, and Parisian life.

In return Raymond told Emily all his secrets.

This was going on at a great rate when the tiny circus pitched its tent in a meadow. Of course, Raymond grabbed Annabelle, his high-powered roadster, and dashed over.

At dinner that night he informed Emily that love had come. He had seen the only girl in the world. She swung on the flying trapeze. He had gone to her dressing tent afterward and she had called, "Get out."

Raymond's mother did not have hysterics. She merely reminded him he was the latest drop of indigo blood. When he was small he had kicked the shins and bitten the hands of bell boys in the costliest hotels. He had been expelled from the most exclusive schools. Therefore he should marry his equal—if, indeed, any existed.

Raymond said he had just seen her. He even drove Emily over to see the circus that night that she might see her prospective daughter-in-law hang by her neck.

Emily wore a dress too elaborate for a coronation. Her complexion was a marvel of artificiality, and she lacked the slightest touch of naturalness. But she was clever.

She pointed out that "the creature" had a mechanical smile; her lips were too red; her makeup had been captivated by the rhythm of those marvelous swings through the air. For Raymond was the soul of poetry—blank verse. The blaring of the calliope was dreadful. And, of course, she was no better than she should be!

Thus the episode ended.

Back in the city in the fall, however, Raymond had a relapse. He wrote the manager of the show.

The embossed coat of arms so impressed the manager with visions of noble patronage that he sent back Mlle. Francine's correct name and address. And Raymond, aided by the faithful Annabelle, took a little run down.

Francine, normally known as Susie, lived down a country lane in a cottage that was picturesque. Around it was a hedge. Crisp gingham curtains were at the windows of the kitchen and a kitten was sleeping on the sill.

Raymond knocked timidly at the back door. "The world's greatest" opened it herself. She was making pop-overs. The table was set with a snowy cloth and pretty blue dishes.

She thought Raymond's knock was that of her old uncle, whom she took care of, or her brother, who was an acrobat also, or her cousin, John, who lived with them; or Phoebe, the tiny motherless sister.

Raymond, the most sophisticated adolescent in his ultra modern hotel, couldn't stammer a word. He, who had faced the season's most flippant sub-debs with hauteur and cocktails, stood dumb before the simplicity, unselfish humanity, and sparkling health of Mlle. Francine.

Finally he asked how to get to Europe from there and, without waiting for the answer, jumped into Annabelle and sped back to the nearest city.

Falling out of funds, the next day he tried to cash a check on a peculiarly disobliging bank. Now he didn't care what happened to him. He was so disillusioned.

"The world's greatest" made pop-overs. She took care of her folks. "The world's greatest" was too good for him!

SARCASM.

One of the best anecdotes about Prof. Copeland, who is resigning from Harvard, is the following:

One day he had occasion to reprove some of his students for coming late to class.

"This is a class in English composition," he remarked with sarcasm, "not an afternoon tea."

At the next meeting one young woman was 20 minutes late. Prof. Copeland waited until she had taken her seat. Then he remarked bitingly, "How will you have your tea, Miss Brown?"

"Without lemon, please," Miss Brown answered quite gently.—Boston Transcript.

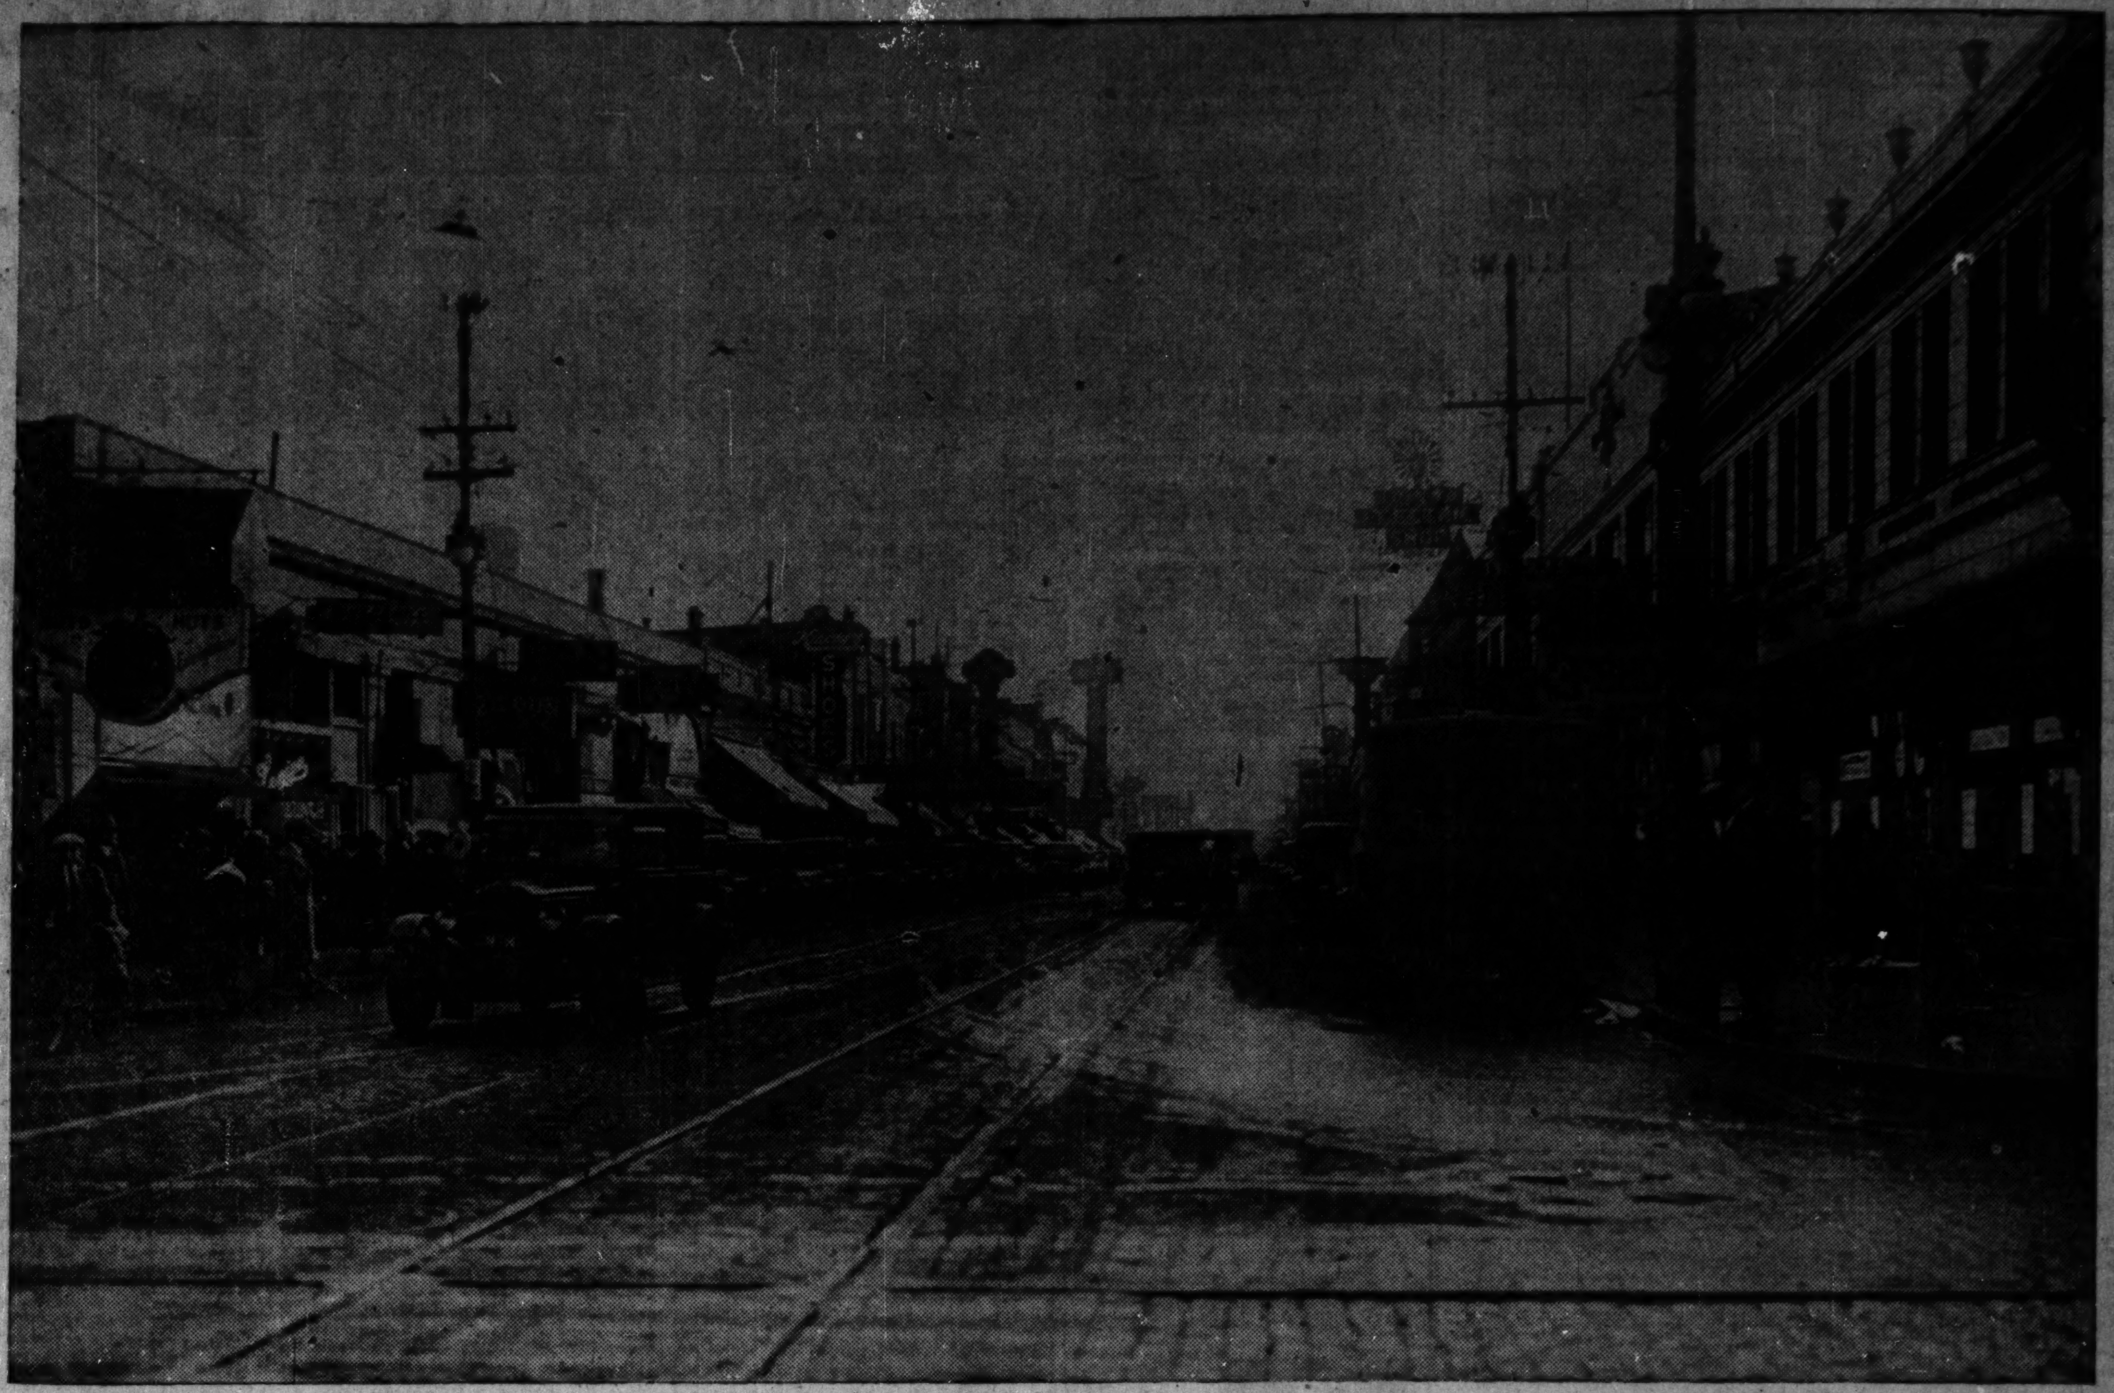
PROFITABLE.

"I don't know what to think of you, Cohen. You bought a piano the other day on the installment plan; you paid $5 down, and the next week you let them take the piano away from you. What kind of business do you call that?"

"Well, it cost them $10 to move it," said Cohen.

"But what did you make out of it?"

"I made $5. My son moved it."—Exchange.



111th Street and Michigan Avenue fights and wins in "the battle of the neighborhoods"

PASTURE land—acres of it—dotted with a few widely-scattered houses. Dirt roads that part of the year were stretches of gummy mud. That is what a visitor to Roseland would have seen twenty years ago . . . nothing more. There was no visible indication that the district would become the populous, thriving community it is today . . . no evidence that 111th Street and Michigan Avenue would be one of the city's foremost business centers.

It Had to Come . . . .

But Roseland had great potential advantages . . . fine transportation, clean, uncrowded living conditions, and to the south and east huge manufacturing plants that beckoned to increasing thousands of workers. These advantages Chicagoans did not overlook as the city pushed its boundaries ever farther southward. Houses were built by the score. Then came apartment buildings . . . and still more apartments to answer the constantly greater demand for living quarters.

The Growth of a Center . . . . . .

As the neighborhood grew in size, more stores came to 111th and Michigan. As the people progressed, the merchants expanded . . . began to sell higher grade merchandise to meet the higher standard of buying power of their customers. The phenomenal development of the center is graphically shown by the rise in commercial property values along Michigan avenue. In 1910 business property was worth $500 a foot. In 1920 it had jumped to $2,500. Today the average appraisal value is $5,000 a foot—an increase of 900% in seventeen years!

Every need of the neighborhood can be supplied at this center. There are two large department stores, several furniture stores, men's and women's clothing shops—even a minor "Automobile Row." Its merchants serve a vast territory of thirty-five square miles in which 300,000 people live!

All Over Chicago . . .

That is Michigan Avenue and 111th Street today—a major business center. Scores of others in Chicago have had similar success. But there are many more which, after a brief spurt of activity, have lost their momentary prestige and prosperity.

These have been eliminated in "the battle of the neighborhoods." But the struggle continues and always will. Those who weaken and underestimate the necessity for fighting cannot help but lose. The merchant who wins out is the one who thinks faster and acts quicker than his competitor . . . who realizes that business has changed . . . and can capitalize on these changes to his own advantage!

A Change You Can Use . . . . . .

The greatest sales force in the world . . . Tribune advertising . . . is now available to neighborhood merchants! The power that has brought success to scores of manufacturers and downtown stores is now yours through the Metropolitan Section of The Sunday Tribune!

No matter where in the city you are located—North, South or West—the Metropolitan Section reaches 250,000 families all living within shopping distance of your store! The cost of this circulation is about a third of the Sunday Tribune rate for the full city and suburban circulation.

Increase Your Profits NOW! . . . . .

Every Sunday you do not use the Metropolitan Section you are holding back your opportunity for growth. Ask a Tribune man to call—he will give you all the details of the Metropolitan Section—the greatest aid ever offered to the neighborhood merchant! Phone Superior 0100.

Magic Card of Politeness to Librarian

Assistant at West Side Branch $50 Richer.

what a roundabout way I traveled in order to reach her!

The card could have saved me a good deal of walking had it so desired. But it was in whimsical mood and it caused me first to walk west as far as Armitage avenue. After maneuvering around the Cragin neighborhood for a brief spell I took a street car back east on Armitage and landed farther north on Crawford. Then I walked down Crawford and stopped at the Northwest town branch of the Chicago public library—almost at my starting point.

Long and Lonely.

It had been an uneventful journey westward on North avenue and later on Grand. There were long blocks where there were no business houses and where I passed few pedestrians. I remembered that along about 4723 Grand avenue I met a young fellow and asked him how far it was to Armitage and he said I'd have to walk another mile.

"That's odd," I remarked. "Some one just told me it was but a few blocks."

"Whoever told you that," he replied, "didn't know what he was talking about."

At the North-Grand drug store I had entered on North avenue and came out on Grand avenue. The card seemed to will that I do all this walking regardless of the few encounters made, and, knowing it always led to some one it had in mind, I offered no complaint.

There were ragged edges of snowdrifts remaining along the gutters and here and there were tiny pools of unfrozen water, but the wind was raw.

I supposed I was taking a North avenue car back east rather than an Armitage car, but the newsman on the corner at Crawford told me where I was and that I could reach Crawford avenue again with not too far a walk.

And so, as I have said, I eventually found myself nearing the point from which I had started my quest, but this time I noticed what I had not observed before—the branch library. I crossed the street and entered the building to find that there were several young women in charge. I had no plan of procedure, but presently found myself talking to a dark haired girl about books in general. I told her I had just read the novel, "Wild Geese." Her face brightened and she said she also had read it and that it left a lasting impression.

"Didn't you think," she asked, "that Caleb Gare was the meanest character you had ever come across?"

I agreed with her and, secretly, thought how far Caleb would ever have come from winning the politeness card. The girl was busy making out cards for the books that were being brought to her desk. I felt I must have appeared to her a most querulous old fogey.

* *

Book Shopping.

"Why do you suppose I liked that book so well?" I pressed.

"Perhaps," she answered, "it was because of its—" she thought a moment—"well, its sincerity and its vividness."

"There was no propaganda in it," I ventured.

"No," she admitted, "just a story. And which character did you figure the author was? I thought it must be the school teacher."

"Can't you give me a book something like that?" I suggested.

The magic card liked the fact that, in spite of all the people going and coming at her desk, the girl racked her mind in taking pains to meet my peculiar and particular needs.

"I wonder," she mused, "if you wouldn't like 'Sorrel and Son,' by Deeping. I don't mean it's the same kind of a book. There are two other books by the same author of 'Wild Geese,' but I don't think they're as good, and I don't think you'd like them as well. But I can see what you mean—the novel you speak of just happened to strike you. Books can do that if they're sincerely done. They can lift us out of ourselves. But——" she went to a shelf to rummage among the books, "'Sorrel and Son' is out. I'd have to take your name and put it on the waiting list. Maybe, though, you'd like 'Barren Ground,' by Ellen Glasgow."

I took the book over to one of the tables, and turned the first page. I didn't like the way it started out and as I sat there it became 4 o'clock and the children were coming in from school by droves. One of them told me the book he had brought with him was a Latin grammar. The lad looked as if his ancestors had been able to understand the book without studying it.

Presently I heard a voice beside me. "I can see you don't care for the novel I picked out," she ventured.

* *

The Card Comes to Rest.

Her voice was low and pleasingly modulated. She was a young girl and, aside from any interest the magic card might have in her, she seemed so intelligent. But with all her gray matter there was nothing high hat about her attitude.

"I thought of something else," she went on, "I wonder if you wouldn't like a book called 'Trader Horn.' It's nonfiction, but some critic has called it 'the literary accident of the age.' Think of it—— by a man of 78 who had never written anything before. A woman in South Africa ran across the old man and, after hearing some of his stories of adventure, got him to write them down."

I told her I didn't think I'd bother about it. I left the place and went back on North avenue to where Blumer's bakery was holding an anniversary after extensive remodeling. Souvenirs were being given away with every purchase and there was quite a crowd on hand, but after standing around a while I thought that instead of partaking of pastry I'd go back to the library after more mental food.

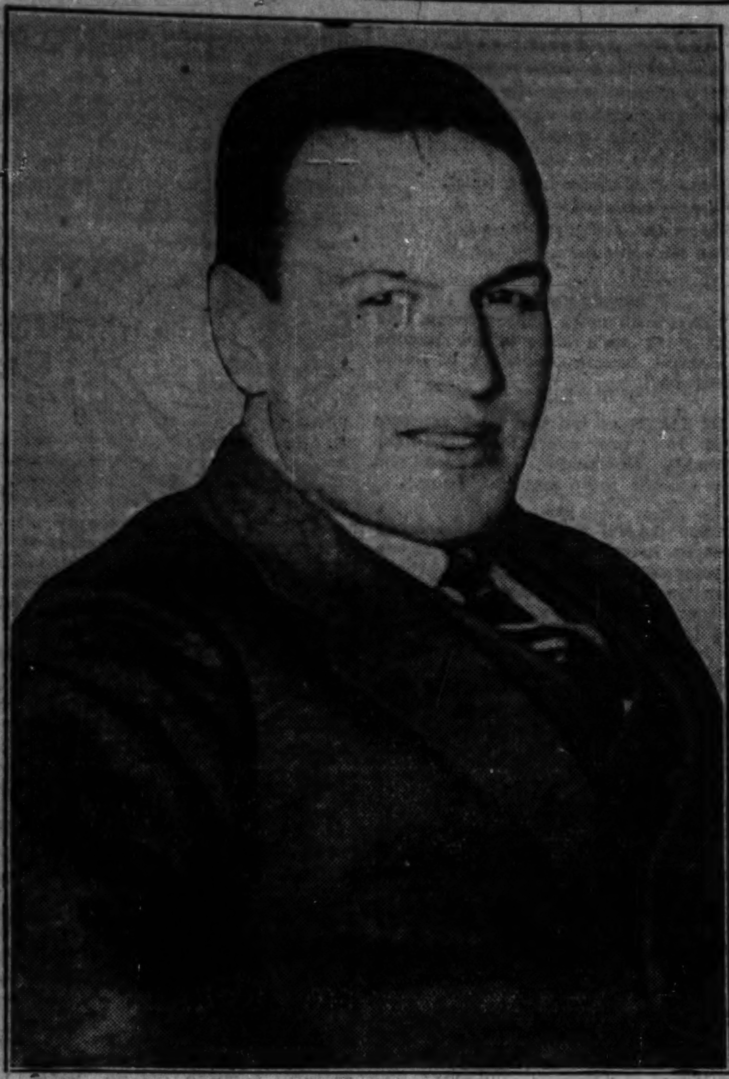
Possibly Miss Dorothy Elaine Frankel—as I later learned her name to be—would be gone. Maybe her patience with me would be exhausted by this time. But no, she remembered me and remembered my whims. She said she had written the name of "Sorrel and Son" and its author on the typewriter for me and, inasmuch as I hadn't expressed a dislike for the volume, the notation would give me a chance to keep it in mind until it was on the shelf again. She introduced the chief librarian.

"We have such a big turnover here," Miss Blake, the librarian, told me. "Out of our 10,000 volumes, we had a turnover of 5,000 books last week. I'm sorry you haven't found what you wanted."

"But I have found what I wanted," I answered, "and the magic card has decided where it wants to go."

I don't know who was happier about the award, Miss Blake, the librarian, or Miss Frankel, her senior assistant. Both of them knew all about the magic card, but neither had imagined it would visit the library.

CHICAGO BACHELORS

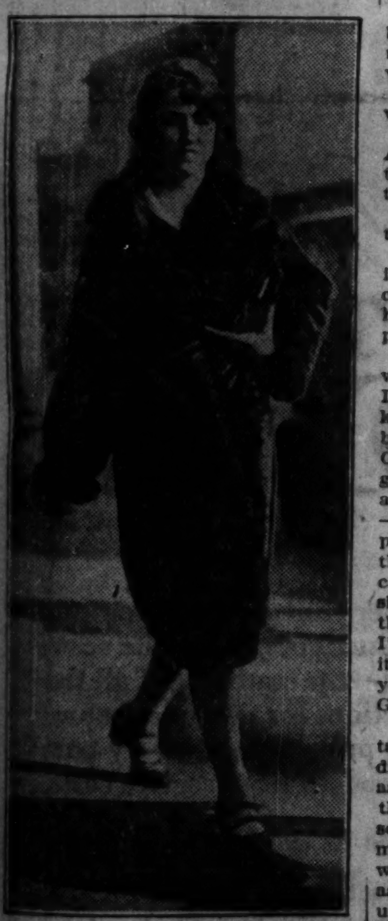


JOHN BORIE RYERSON.

[Phillip B. Moore Photo.]

JOHN BORIE RYERSON, the son of Mrs. Holmes Sherfesse, who until last fall was Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, rarely gives Chicago's belles a chance to prove their charms. The last few years he has gone in for professional golf and is making quite a name for himself. He is the only person ever to have taken the championship out of southern California. His Chicago clubs include Onwentsia and the Racquet club. He is a Yale man of the class of 1922.

Free Pictures



A photographer for the Metropolitan section snapped this picture at Madison street, between Kedzie and Spaulding avenues, probably without his subject knowing that she was being photographed. If this girl will bring in the clipping we'll present her with a fine sepia print of her picture, neatly encased in a splendid folder. If she will phone the picture editor first, we'll have the photograph waiting for her.

Canada Cannot Be Overlooked on Short Waves

U.S. to Give Consideration to Her Needs.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—In the allocation of short wave channels the federal radio commission will give special consideration to the needs of Canada.

The Canadian government has written the state department that it is greatly interested in the short wave question and suggests a uniform policy of allotment.

The Canadian government has made general assignments of radio service in this order of priority:

Service with ships and aircraft which depend entirely on radio for communication.

Emergency Service.

Public commercial service between points not reached by any other existing communication.

Emergency service for public utilities.

Private services for communication with points not reached by other communication.

Public commercial services with points which already have adequate means of wire communication.

Article 8 of the international radio Telegraph conference of 1927 stipulates that "all stations must so far as practicable be established and operated so as not to interfere with the radio communication or services of other contracting governments and of individuals or private enterprises authorized by these contracting governments to carry on public radio communication service."

Coöperated with U. S.

It is pointed out that in cases where the radio service of private commercial enterprises of the United States interfered or conflicted with Canadian public service communication, priority should be accorded the Canadian service. In expressing the hope that a way be found to fulfill the Canadians' request for a uniform policy the state department points out that Canada coöperated fully with the United States in the international radio telegraph conference. The state department also expresses the desire that the United State, as the host and because the convention was drawn largely along lines suggested by its representatives, be the first government to ratify it.

American Radio Amateur Talks with 34 Nations

Cleveland, O., March 10.—[U. P.]—The far corners of the world are reached by two radio stations operated by Allen F. Prescott, University of Michigan student.

Much of the radio traffic conducted by Prescott is with Donald McMillan station on the vessel Bowdoin, caught in the Arctic ice at Anatalok Bay, Labrador. Messages from the crew of the Bowdoin are relayed by Prescott to all parts of the United States.

Besides holding frequent conversations with the McMillan party, Prescott has conversed with the station operated by the University of Michigan party, wintering in Greenland, and also has talked with a Norwegian whaler within 13 degrees of the South pole in the Antarctic sea. He has scores of radio friends in Australia and New Zealand with whom he communicates.

Although he has talked with amateurs in 34 countries, Prescott believes that his most interesting experience was in following the fated course of the British barkentine, E. R. Sterling, enroute last December from Australia to England.

By arrangement with its radio operator, Prescott conversed with the vessel daily on its course around the Cape of Good Hope and up the west coast of Africa.

Then one night he heard an S O S sent out as the ship was wrecked off the Cape Verde Islands. He took a graphic story from the radio operator, learned some of the crew had been killed, and then the ship's station became silent.

Radio Will Aid in Government's Fight on the Corn Borer

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Radio stations in twenty-five states will join this spring with other information agencies in putting before the farmers the facts about new farm problems growing out of the ravages of the European corn borer.

Coöperating stations will broadcast for farm listeners one 10 minute program each week, prepared by the radio service of the United States department of agriculture.

COUNTERPHASE RADIO

"Miles Ahead!"

Says a broadcasting station manager, formerly radio editor of two different papers. He states further: "I have made extensive tests on what are supposed to be the best radio receivers, each of them nationally advertised. After trying more than half a dozen, under all conditions, have come to one conclusion—my B-T is miles ahead of any of them."

Complete information on the Bremer-Tully Counterphase is given in our booklet, "Better Tuning." Send for it.

The call of an Arab Lover . . . street noises of a Persian bazaar . . . tinkle of camel bells . . . cries of turbaned merchants in the market place . . . soft melodies heard over the walls of a Chinese tea garden—all blended into the great symphony of dream music that we call the Arabian Nights Entertainment . . . on the air from 4:30 to 6 this afternoon! . . . Walter Pontius sings in this superb program and Alfred G. Wathall, the musical genius back of the mythical Aladdin, has woven an ethereal tapestry of the world's finest descriptive and impressionistic music. . . . Tune in at 4:30 for the call of "The Caravan"! A spring-time program will be presented in the Atwater Kent hour at 8:15 when Jeanne Gordon, celebrated contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, will be assisted by an orchestra under the direction of Robin Hood Bowers, and a double octet of male voices. . . . The chorus will present as their piece de resistance "Greeting to Spring" by Johann Strauss, as arranged by Hans Lichter. . . . Among the solos by Miss Gordon will be "Habanera" from Carmen and "The Evening Song." . . . And look at this! . . . Another old-time Radio Review staged by Mac Sattley, merry master of ceremonies! . . . Veteran listeners will remember these favorites of five years ago when radio was in knee pants—George Little, Jimmie Eggert, Tommie Malie . . . "Dream Daddy" Davis will be there singing the song he made famous over the old microphones. . . And here are more names that evoke memories from old-time dial twisters—Herbie Mintz, Erwin Barg, Phil Schwartz, Art Sizemore . . . And girls! . . . Say, remember the "Harmony Girls?" . . . And Grace Wilson and Bee Preston? This lively gang throws melody all over the place in the old style . . . today! . . . from 1 till 2! . . . the rythmic melodies of Godard will be presented in Our Music Room at 9:15. . . . Tune yourself in to this pleasant chamber, yield to the infectious gaiety of the music by this old master, and listen to the biographical glimpses at his life. . . . You'll like Our Music Room! Dr. Copeland Smith again opens "The Question Box" at 4, discussing questions of faith and of moral portent. Announcer Hay reads the queries that have been sent in. . . . Dr. Smith answers them. . . . Those who listen to H. F. Kamp at 3 will be conducted into the wilds of South Africa in a thrilling lecture that tells a story of game hunting at night! . . . At noon comes the children's hour! Uncle Quin spreads the funnies on the floor . . . The world of kids does likewise . . . and he reads to them. . . . It makes Dad happy, too . . . it used to be his job!

Boston Stars Play in Radio Bridge Game

Show How to Provide Entries for Finesses

THE twentieth and final radio auction bridge game of the present series will be broadcast from W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel, next Tuesday at 9 o'clock.

Each game of the series has featured Milton C. Work and Wilbur C. Whitehead, New York experts, in association with players from other cities in America and Canada, the contestants in the twentieth game being Mrs. Guy U. Purdy of Omaha, Neb., playing with Mr. Work, against W. E. Byrnes of New York, who is a former president of the American Whist league, and Mr. Whitehead.

Following are the advance hands for game No. 20:

MR. WORK.
Spades—Q, 9, 8.
Hearts—J, 9.
Diamonds—A, J, 9, 8, 6.
Clubs—Q, J, 7.

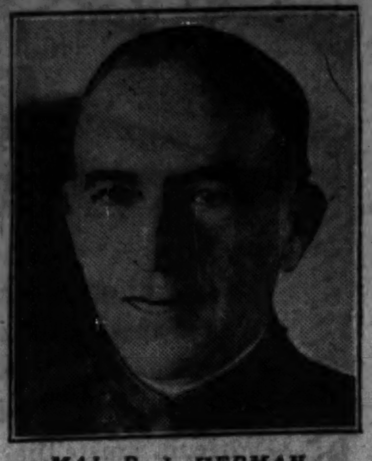
MR. WHITEHEAD.
Spades—K, J, 7, 2.
Hearts—None.
Diamonds—K, Q, 10, 7.
Clubs—A, K, 9, 8, 4.

N.
W. E.
S.

MR. BYRNES.
Spades—A, 10, 5, 3.
Hearts—8, 5, 3.
Diamonds—4, 3, 2.
Clubs—10, 5, 3.

MRS. PURDY [Dealer].
Spades—6, 4.
Hearts—A, K, Q, 10, 7, 6, 4, 2.
Diamonds—5.
Clubs—6, 2.

MRS. PRESCOTT WARREN.



MAJ. R. J. HERMAN.

MR. WORK and Mr. Whitehead made up their table for the radio bridge game, broadcast last Tuesday from station W-G-N, with two of Boston's famous players—Mrs. Prescott Warren, noted for her radio bridge lectures, and Maj. R. J. Herman, one of the best of the many excellent players in army circles.

Mrs. Warren was south, the dealer. She held: spades, 9, 8, 7, 4, 2; hearts, 6; diamonds, K, Q, 9, 8; clubs, 8, 5, 4. Maj. Herman, west, had: spades, K, J, 10; hearts, 8, 7, 5; diamonds, A, 6, 2; clubs, A, Q, 7, 2. Mr. Work, north, had: spades, A, Q, 5; hearts, A, J, 3; diamonds, J, 10, 4; clubs, K, J, 10, 3. Mr. Whitehead, east, held: spades, 6, 3; hearts, K, Q, 10, 9, 4, 2; diamonds, 7, 5, 3; clubs, 9, 6.

Mrs. Warren, south, passed. Maj. Herman, west, with three suits stopped, and the desirable no trump distribution of 4-3-3-3, bid one no trump. Mr. Work, north, doubled informatorily. He held a typical no trump hand, but Maj. Herman had anticipated the bid. In such case the informatory double serves its most useful purpose. Mr. Work, sitting over the no trump bidder, had a distinct advantage in position, which was somewhat offset by the fact that his partner already had passed. However, the high card strength of Mr. Work's hand, and the strong support it would afford for a major suit answer by his partner, justified Mr. Work's hope that a game going bid might be reached by means of the informatory double.

Estimating Value.

In estimating the strength of his hand, Mr. Work followed his own general rule for a third or fourth hand informatory double after partner has passed. For such double his requirements are at least six high cards that probably will take tricks, distributed between at least three suits. This is one more high card than is required for a second hand double. Mr. Work's hand contained six high cards in the ace and queen of spades, the ace and jack of hearts, and the king and jack of clubs. In addition there were valuable intermediates in the 10 of clubs and the jack and 10 of diamonds. He could count the jack of hearts as a high card in his hand, sitting over a no trump, because it was accompanied by the ace and another heart.

Mr. Whitehead, east, bid two hearts over Mr. Work's double. Mr. Work's double of Maj. Herman's no trump did not relieve Mr. Whitehead of his obligation to show his partner any strong suit he might hold.

Opening the second round of bidding, Mrs. Warren showed the high caliber of her game by bidding two spades on her five spades to the 9 spot. Her partner's double presumably was made with the hope of a response in a major suit, manifestly a spade. Mr. Whitehead's intervening bid relieved Mrs. Warren of the obligation to bid; but Mrs. Warren rightly considered that with the king-queen of diamonds and five spades she had the strength to bid voluntarily. Mr. Work, her partner, could not have expected her to hold much strength after her initial pass and Maj. Herman's no trump bid, and yet Mr. Work had requested her to bid. She therefore had no hesitation in naming the spade suit.

Three Hearts Bid.

Maj. Herman bid three hearts. He realized that the strength lying over him in Mr. Work's hand materially decreased his own trick taking possibilities. Yet with three hearts and strong support for the bid were it not for his unfavorable position, Maj. Herman felt called upon to give one assist to his partner's free heart bid, as he knew that Mr. Whitehead would not have called a weak suit over an intervening double.

Mr. Work bid three spades. All passed, and Mrs. Warren became declarer with her contract three spades.

Maj. Herman opened the play by leading the 8 of hearts, his highest of three small cards of his partner's suit. Dummy went down, and Mrs. Warren played from it the ace of hearts; Mr. Whitehead played the encouraging 9; and Mrs. Warren her singleton 6.

Mrs. Warren noted the desirability of leading both trumps and clubs from her own hand through Maj. Herman's strong holding. The question of entries in her own hand therefore became of paramount importance. She had two entries in the diamond suit and two more could be secured by heart ruffs. Four seemed sufficient for her purpose. Accordingly she proceeded to establish her diamond entries by an unblocking lead of the jack of diamonds from dummy. Mr. Whitehead played the 3; declarer herself covered the jack with the queen to gain an immediate entry if the ace did not fall; Maj. Herman won with the ace.

Mrs. Warren Trumps.

Maj. Herman led the 7 of hearts; dummy played the 3; Mr. Whitehead the 10; Mrs. Warren trumped with the 2 of spades.

Declarer led the 9 of spades; Maj. Herman played the 10; dummy finessed the queen; and Mr. Whitehead played the 3. Dummy returned the 4 of diamonds to put declarer in for another trump lead through Maj. Herman's strength. Mr. Whitehead played the 5 of diamonds; declarer the 9; Maj. Herman the 2.

Declarer led another spade, the 8 spot; Maj. Herman played the jack; dummy the ace; and Mr. Whitehead the 6. Again dummy returned diamonds, the 10 spot; Mr. Whitehead played the 7; declarer the king; Maj. Herman the 6.

Mrs. Warren then held the thirteenth diamond. She could have led it and have discarded dummy's losing jack of hearts upon it. But she realized that should she do so, she would then have to lead a club for a finesse which would later have to be followed by a second club finesse, for which it would be necessary to enter her own hand again. Accordingly, instead of leading the thirteenth diamond and discarding a heart, Mrs. Warren led a club, the 4 spot, for the first finesse, reserving the jack of hearts in dummy for an exit card to be trumped in her own hand for the second club lead. Mrs. Warren might have led the thirteenth diamond and have discarded a club on it, but such discard at that stage of the game could not have resulted in any advantage. On Mrs. Warren's 4 of clubs Maj. Herman played the 2; dummy finessed the 10; Mr. Whitehead played the 6.

Must Take Finesse.

Dummy led the jack of hearts; Mr. Whitehead played the queen; declarer trumped with the 4 of spades; Maj. Herman played the 5 of hearts.

Mrs. Warren then led her thirteenth diamond, the 8 spot; Maj. Herman discarded the 7 of clubs; dummy the 3 of clubs, and Mr. Whitehead the 2 of hearts. Mrs. Warren next led the 5 of clubs; Maj. Herman played the ace; dummy the jack; Mr. Whitehead the 9.

Maj. Herman led the king of spades; dummy played the 5, Mr. Whitehead discarded the 4 of hearts; and declarer followed suit with the 7 of spades.

Maj. Herman, for the last trick, led the queen of clubs; dummy won with the king; Mr. Whitehead discarded the king of hearts; and declarer played the 8 of clubs. Mrs. Warren, as declarer, took ten tricks altogether, scoring game, 36 points. The adversaries scored 30 honor points for simple honors.

The correct play of this hand was so involved that the majority of players unquestionably would have muffed it. Mrs. Warren not only had to conduct the play so as to drive out two adverse aces, but she also had to provide entries in her own hand to take three finesses, and all of this in a manner that would involve the least risk.

HEADLINERS THIS WEEK

MARIA KURENKO.

FREDERIC FRADKIN.
[White Photo.]

JEANNE GORDON.
[Mishkin Photo.]

THESE three stars of the musical world will be heard on different programs from W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel this week. Mme. Kurenko sings tomorrow night in the Family Party program; Mr. Fradkin, concert violinist, will be heard on Tuesday night, while Miss Gordon will be on the air tonight.

Frederic Fradkin, Concert Violinist, on W-G-N Tuesday

Frederic Fradkin, the concert violinist, will be the principal attraction of a program of classical music which will be heard Tuesday night at 8 o'clock from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel.

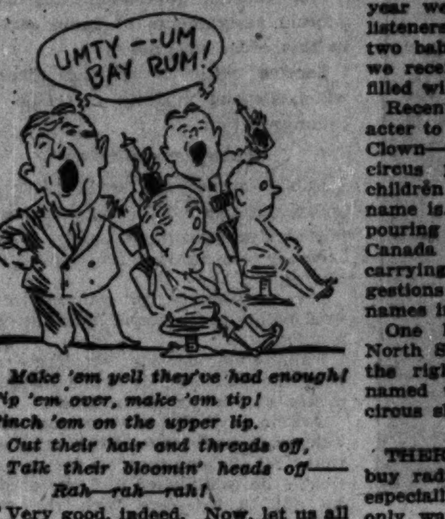
Mr. Fradkin, born at Troy, N. Y., of Russian-American parentage has had a notable career as concert master. Franco, Lichtenberg, Lefort and Ysaye were among his teachers. He has been concert master at Monte Carlo and Vienna and was concert master of the Russian Symphony orchestra and the Diaghilev ballet in New York, and of the Boston Symphony orchestra, successively. He has toured extensively in this country and abroad.

Inside the Loud Speaker

By Quin A. Ryan

"GOOD MORNING, children, away out there at your radio horns! Now, every time we assemble in these jolly radio classes of ours, we shall strive earnestly to learn something new and different. Last week, you remember, we took up the raising of clay pigeons. Now, this morning we are to set ourselves about the memorizing of some famous college cheers. There is nothing in life that so marks the cultured man as a knowledge of college yells. First of all, let us see if we commit to memory the alma mater cheer of the barbers' college. Are you all ready? Now, all together:

"Breckity—Eckity—Brex.
We'll shave their bloomin' necks.
Raw—raw—raw,
Slice 'em on the jaw.
Umty—um,
Bay rum!
Snip 'em, scalp 'em, treat 'em rough,



UMTY—UM BAY RUM!

Make 'em yell they've had enough!
Tip 'em over, make 'em tip!
Pinch 'em on the upper lip.
Cut their hair and threads off,
Talk their bloomin' heads off—
Rah—rah—rah!

"Very good, indeed. Now, let us all lend our voices to the leading cheer of the electoral college. Are you listening? Well, let's go:

"Grab a ballot, grab a mallet,
Sock a Democrat.
Hip-hip, and whee! for the G. O. P.
And then we'll pass the hat.
Rah—rah—rah—rah—rah—rah!
Get a Republican on the gun,
Line up precincts man for man.
Siss—boom—wow!
Who'll we put up now?
Give the donkey's tail a twist,
Paste a prohibitionist,
Throw the Socialists in jail,
Pull the elephant's lazy tail.
Rah!
When do we eat?

"That's all now. Hurry away, and next week we'll have a few lessons in shadow boxing or sleight of hand. Toodle-oo!"

THE GAME that most fascinates children listeners on the radio is the naming of an animal or a doll. Last year we asked the Punch and Judy listeners to send us names for the two baby giraffes in the circus, and we received mail bag after mail bag filled with nominations.

Recently we have added a new character to our troupe—Joey, the Littlest Clown—who is a rag doll, dressed as a circus performer. We started the children guessing what the boy's name is. Five thousand letters came pouring in from between northern Canada and Central America, each carrying an average of five suggestions for clown names—25,000 names in all.

One little lady, June Levy, 1623 North Shore avenue, Chicago, hit on the right name, "Joey." We had named the doll Joey, which is the circus slang for a clown.

THERE MUST be some people who buy radio sets out of self-protection, especially in apartment buildings. The only way to combat your neighbor's perpetually ear-splitting radio is to turn on one of your own—and let the machines fight it out.

Neighbors are funny folks, aren't they? They always leave all their windows open, they keep their receiving sets flaring up full blast, and they all have such awful taste about what programs to listen to. Don't they?

Whenever we try to sleep in the forenoons, as night workers have to do, somebody in our big building keeps the morning recipes tuned in. And from the way it comes booming through our windows the recipe lady must be hollering her head off.

TO TWO TEASPOONSFUL OF FLOUR ADD ONE CUP OF G

So, we've decided, the only means of duelling with a radio set is to sic another radio set onto it. We're going to get a radio set, tune in a storm of static—and point it out the open window. Beware, neighbors!

And we'll go down to the beach and sleep.

Spanish Program Tuesday Night on Tribune Station

"En Espana," or "In Spain," is the title of the swiftly moving musical show to be presented Tuesday night by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, starting at 10:35 o'clock. Featured in this production are the Pedrozas, Alfonso and Sophia, Spanish singers of great popularity.

Alfonso Pedroza has a fine bass voice, while Sophia Pedroza is a coloratura soprano whose voice has great purity and charm. They will be heard in Spanish and Mexican songs throughout the program.

W-G-N Receives 47,748 Letters in February

Maine and Arizona Only States Not Writing.

The extent of a radio station's sphere of influence was well demonstrated by the mail bag of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S station on the Drake hotel, during the month of February. The mail count for the month totaled 47,748 letters, received from every state in the Union except Maine and Arizona. One letter was received from Hawaii and about one per cent of the total came from the various provinces of Canada.

The week of Feb. 20 was the best of the four composing the month. More than 18,000 letters were received during this six day period, with Canada supplying about two per cent. In the United States, Illinois led with 6,604 and Wisconsin was second with 2,496. Iowa supplied 994; Indiana, 598; Michigan, 396, while Missouri postmarks were on 732 pieces of mail received by the station. Letters from Minnesota totaled 717.

With both January and February of 1928 showing up as record months so far as mail is concerned, W-G-N's mail total for the year is expected to surpass any figures previously attained. The mail received by the station during 1927 was 121,870, and the count for the first two months of this year is equal to half that.

Station officials declare these totals to be amazing in the face of a recognized decrease in radio "fan" mail. It is a known fact that listeners are no longer writing as they once did, since the amazing programs of a few years back which were certain to bring bags of mail have become the commonplace, regular features of the present day broadcasting schedule. The radio listeners has come to demand good programs as a matter of course.

Exceptional programs, coupled with a number of new, high quality commercial broadcasts are the reasons to which officials of W-G-N attribute the growth of the station's mail in the last two months. According to W-G-N's mail, listeners continue to show the greatest amount of interest in classical music, preferring that to a steady diet of jazz.

Dr. Copeland Smith's Question Box

THE Radio Question Box is a regular Sunday afternoon feature of W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station. The Rev. Copeland Smith uses the half hour between 4 and 4:30 o'clock to discuss and answer questions relating to problems of faith and morals.

Those seeking advice on such problems are invited to write to Dr. Smith, addressing him in care of W-G-N. Questions will be answered by mail, those of general interest being used for the radio talks.

Consolation for a Child.

MANY correspondents have requested that I repeat my answer to Betty in a more permanent form. Betty is aged eleven or twelve. She recently lost her mother after a long and intensely painful sickness from cancer. This is what I said to Betty over the air, through W-G-N:

If I am not mistaken, you are not more than ten or eleven years of age, Betty. It would be a dreadful thing if it were true that we lost our mothers at that age. But we do not lose them and they do not lose us. They are only withdrawn from us. I believe that they take more interest in us than ever when withdrawn and they only lose us when we forget them by doing the things that good mothers teach us not to do. I'm sure you are always going to remember that. What a fine thing it is that grandma, who loves both mother and you, is still there to take care of you. Of course, she is older than she was and needs a great deal of care and consideration.

You say in your letter that mother could not possibly have lived and ever been well. She suffered dreadfully. Then it is fine to know that she suffers no more, but is in the place where the flowers are always blowing and the grass always green; where the sun is in her hair and the glow of morning always in her face. She must be very beautiful where she is and you must try to be as beautiful here. Then she will be even happier than she is at present. God bless you. Be sure to write me again. I just live on letters. Other men eat bread and meat and things. But I devour stationery and when folk don't write me I only exist. Adieu, Betty.

Jairus' Daughter.

DID Jesus raise the daughter of Jairus from the dead to demonstrate His power and forecast His own resurrection to the three disciples who were with Him? The question comes to me from Rockford, Ill.

I do not like to think that purposes of publicity moved Jesus and I am sure that he was thinking much more of the hurt in the heart of Jairus—that bereaved father—than of His own disciples I would attribute the miracles of Jesus solely to the boiling over of His unfailing compassion.

Tithing.

I HAVE received a question from Elgin, Ill., relative to tithing. The writer asks whether he is to regard it as a Christian duty as he can find nothing about tithing in the words of Jesus or the apostles anywhere although there are frequent references to it in the Old Testament.

Tithing is not a Christian duty. It is a Christian privilege. My friend is right in thinking that no record of Jesus having advised tithing remains. Nor do the apostles mention it. But there is no comfort to the anti-tither in that fact because Christ approved the woman with the two mites who gave half what she had and told the rich young ruler to give up everything, at the same time commending the disciples for having done so. The early church shared everything—not the tithe merely. The tithe is an artificial proportion, excessive for a man with $1,000 and ten children but woefully inadequate for the man with no children and $10,000 a year. Even the United States government seems to think that 15% is not excessive for those who can pay income tax, but the truth is that fixed rules and regulations are un-Christian. The motive is the thing.

Is Marriage a Failure?

THEY have been asking that question from the beginning about all kinds of marriage. Suetonius asked it 2,000 years ago and decided that it was, in Rome. Now I am asked it again from Kalamazoo, Mich.

The answer is that civil marriage is a failure, for the most part—increasingly so. The very fact that a civil marriage is contracted implies a thought in the minds of those who make that contract that they can dissolve it if desired. That makes a bad start. I would like to see a set of statistics prepared of the continuity of Christian marriages. I also would like to see what proportion of the divorces are obtained by those who have been married less than fifteen years. Not merely is it true that the first hundred years are the worst, but the first fifteen years are worse than that. In so far as marriage seems to be increasingly a failure, it is due to the change in our thought from the welfare of the group—the family—to our own selfish welfare.

That Younger Generation!

HERE comes, from Dubuque, Ia., a repetition of that recurring question about the younger generation and their morals. Are they worse than we were?

No. They are much better—all things considered. For the most part, they have not so much time with their mothers as we had. They have much more reliable scientific knowledge of the facts of generation. Many members of our generation were virtuous because they were scared. Moreover, most of our generation were brought up in the country and adolescence does not come to the country-bred boy or girl so quickly as to the town dweller. There are fewer home restraints and there is much more immoral allure. Especially is there that habit of memory which leads us to remember the rosy facts in our youth at the expense of the facts less rosy. The younger generation are making a wonderfully brave fight in a country where the old maps are destroyed and not yet replaced by new ones.

Maria Kurenko Sings Tomorrow on Trib Station

Stars in Family Party Program.

Maria Kurenko, the "Russian Nightingale," one of the foremost artists of the microphone and the concert stage, will be heard in a program of popular classics and ballads during the family party broadcast tomorrow night by W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel.

She will appear twice in the first section of the hour, singing with a symphony orchestra under the direction of Roderic Graham, and again in the third section, when the accompaniment to her group of songs will be played by a concert band led by Edwin Franko Goldman. Between the orchestral and band periods of the program there will be a short interlude of popular music by Joe Green with his novelty orchestra.

Studied for Law.

Mme. Kurenko has the distinction of being the only noted singer in the world whose voice has been heard in defense of prisoners before the bar. As a child in Moscow, she poured over her uncle's law books, and, early in her 'teens, entered the University of Moscow, hoping to become a modern Portia and defend the unfortunates who were being persecuted under the Czar's government.

Hearing her beautiful soprano voice, when she sang for them after classes, Mme. Kurenko's fellow law students persuaded her to develop her local talents at the Moscow conservatory. She became a pupil of the famed Mazetti there, and graduated in music from the conservatory and in law from the university the same year.

U. S. Début in Los Angeles.

She was admitted to the bar in Moscow and was practicing law when Mazetti prevailed upon her to accept an engagement at the opera house in Kharkoff, and it was there that she made her début a little over eight years ago.

Kurenko the lawyer became Kurenko, the popular prima donna, overnight. She was called to the Grand Opera house at Moscow. She made triumphal concert tours through Germany, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. Heeding an urgent call, she made an uninterrupted trip from Riga, Russia, to Los Angeles, Cal., for her American début with the Los Angeles Opera company three years ago, singing Gilda in Rigoletto without rehearsal, because her train was late, but achieving an instant triumph in the part.

JUNE NAMES JOEY

LITTLE June Levy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Levy, 1623 North Shore avenue, who won the clown doll offered by Uncle Quin of W-G-N to the member of his child audience who picked the best name for the new puppet in his circus.

Parrot Is Latest Recruit of Radio

LONDON.—A three year old, gray West African parrot is the latest recruit to England's broadcasting ranks, having just been installed at Savoy Hill. The bird was uncovered in a corner of London and its vocabulary of twenty words is believed to be capable of considerable extension. The first day before the microphone the bird was seized with the customary "stage fright" and it has since been glowering angrily at visitors.

Bishop Freeman of Washington at Sunday Club

Dr. Albert W. Palmer, First Congregational church, Oak Park, and Bishop James E. Freeman, Church of the Epiphany, Washington, D. C., will be the speakers on the Sunday Evening club tonight. The program will be broadcast by WMAQ.

Dr. Palmer will begin a series of talks on the subject "Some Typical Saints and Sinners," studies in Old Testament characters, which he will continue at the seven o'clock service during March and April.

Bishop Freeman will speak at the main meeting beginning at eight. Courtenay Barber will have a part in this service, and one of the trustees of the Sunday Evening club will preside in the absence of the president, Clifford W. Barnes.

Broken Bones and Their Care, Subject of Radio Address

Broken bones and their care, is the theme of Dr. R. G. Leland's health talk on station KFKX, tomorrow. Accident resulting in broken bones are all too common these days. It is well to be able to render first aid in such cases so that the patient may be made as comfortable as possible and further damage may be avoided.

German War Captive Returns Home After 11 Years in Siberia

BERLIN.—(AP)—Bruno Stapelt, a soldier reported "missing" on the eastern front in the world war, unexpectedly has returned to his home at Geltow, near Potsdam, after eleven years of captivity in Siberia.

With his Russian wife and two children he made his way with great difficulty across Russia. He says he was held at Kansk, a village near Krasnoyarsk in the heart of Siberia, and that 150 other Germans, officers and privates, still remain there, destitute and anxious to get back home but without means to get transportation.

A meeting of reichstag members of all parties, except communists, has made formal request of the German government to take steps to get these men repatriated.

Two Water Diviners Make Good in England

REVESBY, England.—(AP)—Water wizards are still in favor in Lincolnshire. Before the Boston Waterworks company purchased an additional 37 acres for the extension of its plant two water diviners were employed independently and the company closed the deal after both reported that hazel switches indicated water in abundance would be found under the land.

Magic Politeness Card Goes to Drug Store Clerk

Young Woman on South Side Is Made Happy

By The Politeness Reporter.

IF, on first getting off the bus at Cottage Grove avenue and 47th street, I had walked into the drug store on the corner, it would have saved me a good many steps. The magic card gave indications that it wished me to get off the bus at that point, but seemed to desire that I maneuver around considerably before meeting Miss Holzhausen.

Mr. Ortenstein told me afterwards that the magic card had been heading for his clerk—Miss Holzhausen—at the outset. He said it would be impossible for the card to come into her presence without falling into her hands.

"I can realize that," I agreed with the druggist. "The magic card is an all-wise bit of pasteboard."

To tell the truth, I was not feeling well when I started on my quest. I told the gentleman beside me in the bus that I had a bad cold which I had caught from some one else, and that, if he believed in the germ theory, he was in danger of catching the cold from me. He said he'd bet he had one just as bad. If so, he felt pretty rotten.

The Quest Begins.

It didn't help matters, so far as my disposition was concerned, to have my hat blow off shortly after I had alighted from the bus. When I had chased and caught up with the headgear, I stepped into a cleaning place at 738 East 47th street. I told the man in charge I wanted to get the hat brushed off a little and he took hold of it and said, "I'll have to clean the whole thing."

"No, you won't," I retorted, taking my hat back.

A little later I went into the Progressive store at 836 East 47th. Entering with me were two young men, and I have an idea, perhaps, that the proprietor thought the three of us were together. He seemed to know one of the boys, who lived in the neighborhood, so I found myself basking in the attitude which the proprietor extended toward an acquaintance and his friends.

Miss Mathilde Holzhausen, clerk, 1300 East 47th street, finds that politeness pays huge profits.

Almost immediately a conversation began. Rather it was a discussion of politics, economics, and other interesting subjects.

One of the boys said nothing, and presently his companion explained that this boy had arrived from Poland but a few days previously. The proprietor said he could talk Polish, and that he had come to this country the year Taft was elected. So the two exchanged a few questions and answers.

Theory and Practice.

Well, it seems the other boy was a traveling salesman with a territory

$6,000 in Cash Prizes Await the Winners

All Letters Must Be Mailed Before 12 o'Clock.

By Margaret Stevers.

TONIGHT'S the night, all you housekeeping Cinderellas. If you have not yet sent in your coupon for entering the Home Harmonious contest, your glass slippers will have until midnight tonight to tinkle to the nearest mailbox and drop your entry in. But no letters postmarked after that hour will be accepted.

That's all you need to do, for, of course by this time you've learned all about the $6,000 in prizes to be distributed by THE TRIBUNE to the 99 most attractive homes in Chicago and suburbs. And of course you've straightened out the children's play corner, and hemmed the new chintz curtains, and repainted the kitchen, in readiness for the judges.

Speaking of judges, your homes are to be scored by committees of three persons, all of them home makers and women vitally interested in knowing about and applying that knowledge to the homelike harmony of the American house or apartment.

Ready to Start Work.

The names of the final judging committee have been mentioned in the Home Harmonious stories since the beginning of the contest. They are Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, president of the Chicago Housewives' league; Mrs. Walter H. Buhlig, president of the Illinois Parent-Teacher association; Mrs. Constant C. Hopkins, American home department chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Leeds Mitchell, treasurer of the Association of Housekeeping Centers; Miss Lucy Silke, art director of the elementary and junior high schools; Andre Rebori, authority on harmonious interiors as well as an architect of recognized ability; Dudley Crafts Watson, extension lecturer for the Chicago Art institute, and Holmes Onderdonk, building manager for THE TRIBUNE.

Through these judges, THE TRIBUNE has obtained the names of club women, their co-workers, who have studied home equipment, who are sympathetic with and know the problems of the average housewife in making the home a place to run to instead of away from; women who will do their judging from the angle of expertism attained from long study, as well as from the angle of the homekeeper.

The home atmosphere, discernible from the moment a guest enters one's door, will count a great deal more than fine hangings. Oriental rugs will not cause an oilcloth floor to blush in the final summing up of points. It will be the harmonious whole, for which this contest was named, that will decide who will be prize winners.

The Plan of Procedure.

Under the plan devised by the general committee in charge of the contest there will be groups of district judges throughout the city and suburbs and one zone committee for each side of the city. All homes will be visited first by the district judges. These judges then will recommend the homes which are to be considered for prizes and the zone judges will visit every home on this list. The zone judges will award twenty-nine of the thirty-three prizes to be given on each side of the city. They also will recommend four homes in each division to be considered for the leading prizes. The general committee then will visit these twelve homes and award the principal prizes.

THE TRIBUNE has been in constant touch with the judging committees, and, with the aid of a large clerical force in its own offices, has endeavored to make the judging as simple and as fair as possible. Within as brief a time as is practical after the closing of the contest tonight the contestants will be notified of the approximate hour they should remain at home in order to receive the judges when they arrive.

You Must Be There!

Owing to the distances to be covered, and the number of homes to be judged, it will be necessary for contestants to be at home for certain hours on certain days. They will be notified in ample time for them to make arrangements for their houses to be shown in case they cannot be there. If a contestant who has been notified

Shoppers' Service Tales

An Honest Clerk.

Last spring I purchased a coat and scarf in a department store. I charged the coat but paid cash for the scarf. That week, for some reason or other, I was short of money. You will not wonder at my surprise when some days later a check for $16.05 was mailed to me along with a note explaining that as I had not waited for the change from my $20 bill when I had purchased my scarf [the scarf had cost $3.05] it was being sent to me. The salesperson had my name and address, for I had charged my other purchase.

Needless to say, I have been a loyal patron of that store ever since.

TRAGIC FINANCIAL TROUBLES.

"You say financial troubles brought you here?" asked the hospital visitor. "Why, that's hardly possible!"

"It's a fact, though," retorted the patient. "I was crossing to the other side of the street to avoid one of my creditors, and saw another creditor on the other side. While I was trying to escape, a car hit me."—Montreal Gazette.

SENTENCE SERMONS

BY THE REV. ROY L. SMITH.

Consider Yourself—

—An object of pity as soon as you begin pitying yourself.
—Whipped as soon as you admit it to yourself.
—A victor as long as you keep up the fight.
—A success if you can honestly say you have done your best.
—A misfit if you are unable to respect your job.
—On the toboggan when you begin thinking your second best is good enough.
—Fortunate if you have a friend honest enough to tell you the truth.

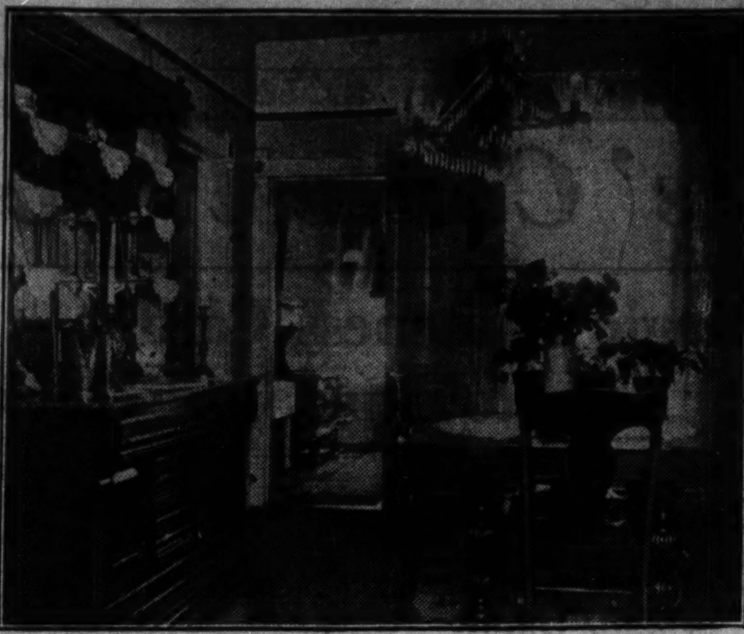
Young Men Who Hope—

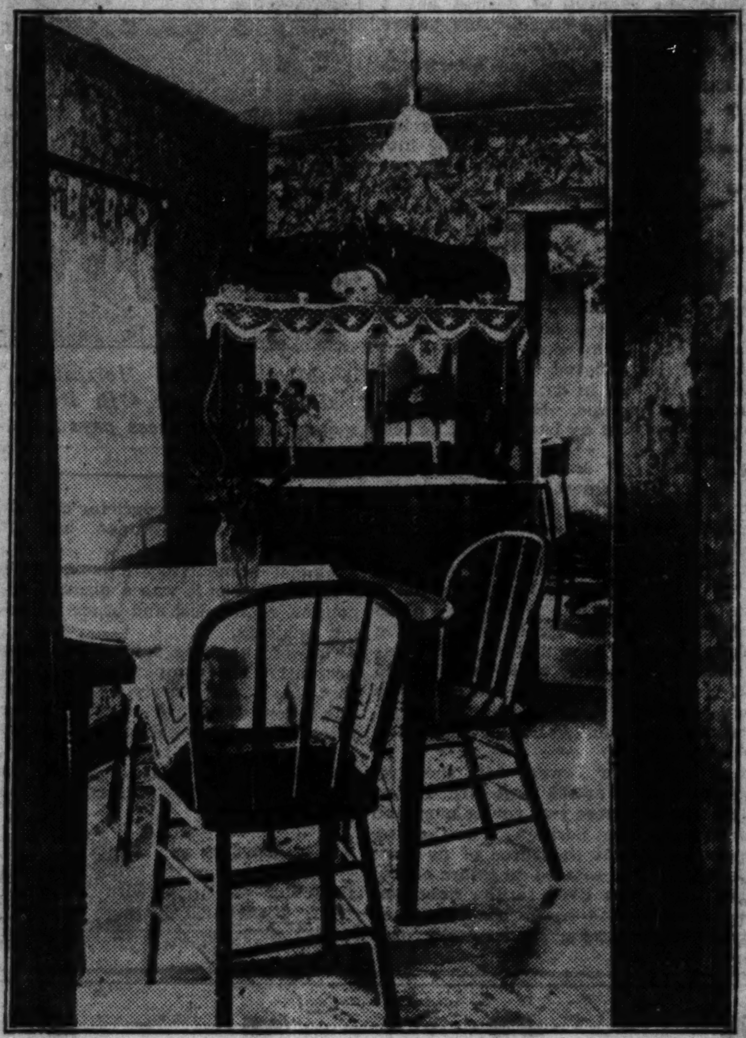
—For happy homes must learn to be good companions.
—For great careers must be prepared to lay broad foundations.
—For a big fortune must learn to do without little things.
—For promotions must learn to deserve them.
—For a happy old age must avoid a wasteful youth.
—For soft snaps are in for some hard knocks.
—For a friendly world must start looking for it with a smile.

CHEERY DINING ROOM



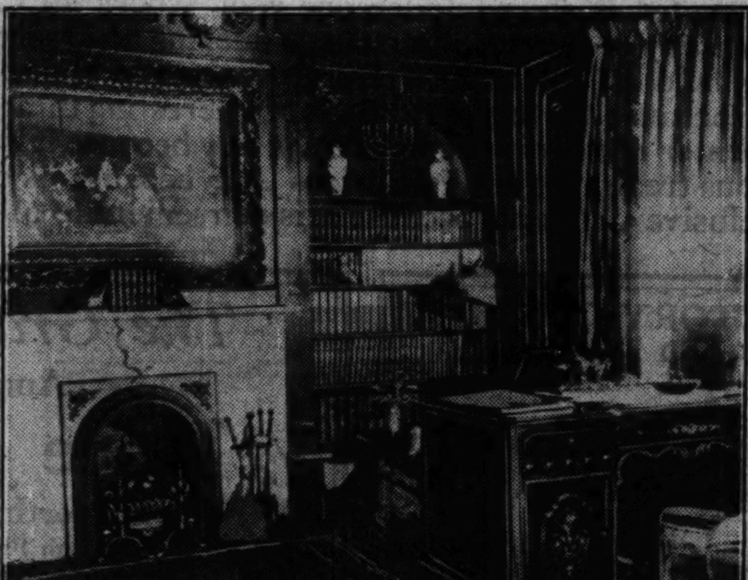
POTTED plants and a singing canary lend charm and cheeriness to this dining room in the northwest side cottage. Oak is the furniture and the curtains at the window are of starchy lace.

JUST BUILT FOR SIX



BEING the mother and support of five children has not deterred the mistress of this little cottage on North Paulina street from making it a place of neatness and cheer. With the aid of a teacher from the Association of Housekeeping Centers, the breakfast set was painted a bright orange, to match the crisp flowered valance which tops the scrim curtains. Linoleum rugs are used throughout the four rooms.

CANVAS-WALLED LIBRARY



THE walls of the library in a Chicago Beach hotel apartment are grained canvas, walnut stained, giving a rich background for the marble mantle piece taken from an old house. The Korean chest of camphor wood and the carved walnut desk are interesting pieces. The whole treatment speaks the spirit of a library.

Husbandless Wives Increase in Glasgow

GLASGOW, Scotland.—(AP)—Wife desertion is on the increase in Glasgow, says the parish council, which has 570 "flight widows" on its hands.

The husbands of these women have gone abroad, or left for "parts unknown," and the council is powerless to take any action in the matter.

The husbandless wives and their thousand children cost the parish council £700 a week, or about $3,500, which the authorities contribute toward their support.

Edgar Wallace Is Champion at Mystery Story

LONDON.—(AP)—Edgar Wallace has been voted the most [illegible]tent writer of mystery [illegible] "who has ever spoken [illegible] a dictaphone."

He turns them out half a [illegible] at a time. His paper covered [illegible] month after month go like hot cakes and are on sale at every bookstall and newspaper stand throughout the country. His mystery stories alone are said to reap him a fortune every year.

In addition to these tales, Wallace writes for nearly half the newspapers of London. He has a daily column on racing in the Evening Star, has a serial running in the Daily Mail, and writes for others on politics and all the popular topics of the times.

One or two Wallace plays are nearly always running at some of the London theaters. His latest is "The Yellow Mask," which he described as "a good old fashioned Drury Lane melodrama with music." He lately has been at work on three other plays, one of which is for Peggy O'Neil.

Find Gobelins in Castle Are Centuries Old

BERLIN.—(AP)—Historical tapestries of great value were brought to light during the restoration of five well known gobelins in Charlottenburg castle.

For years past these tapestries, which had been mortared into the walls, were shown with pride to visitors as French gobelins of the beginning of the eighteenth century, believed to have been brought to Germany during the reign of Frederick the Great. But when in the course of their restoration they were taken out of the mortarwork, they were found to be almost twice as large as hitherto believed and recognized as rare specimens of the fourteenth century, whereby the previous estimate of their value has been so materially enhanced that they are now considered to be worth many million marks. Three of the gobelins are in a state of perfect preservation while the two others can be readily restored.

It is believed that the tapestries were mortared into the walls to disguise their real value from the invading forces of the Austrian Field Marshal Hadik, which in 1760 looted or demolished all objects of value around Berlin on which they could lay their hands.

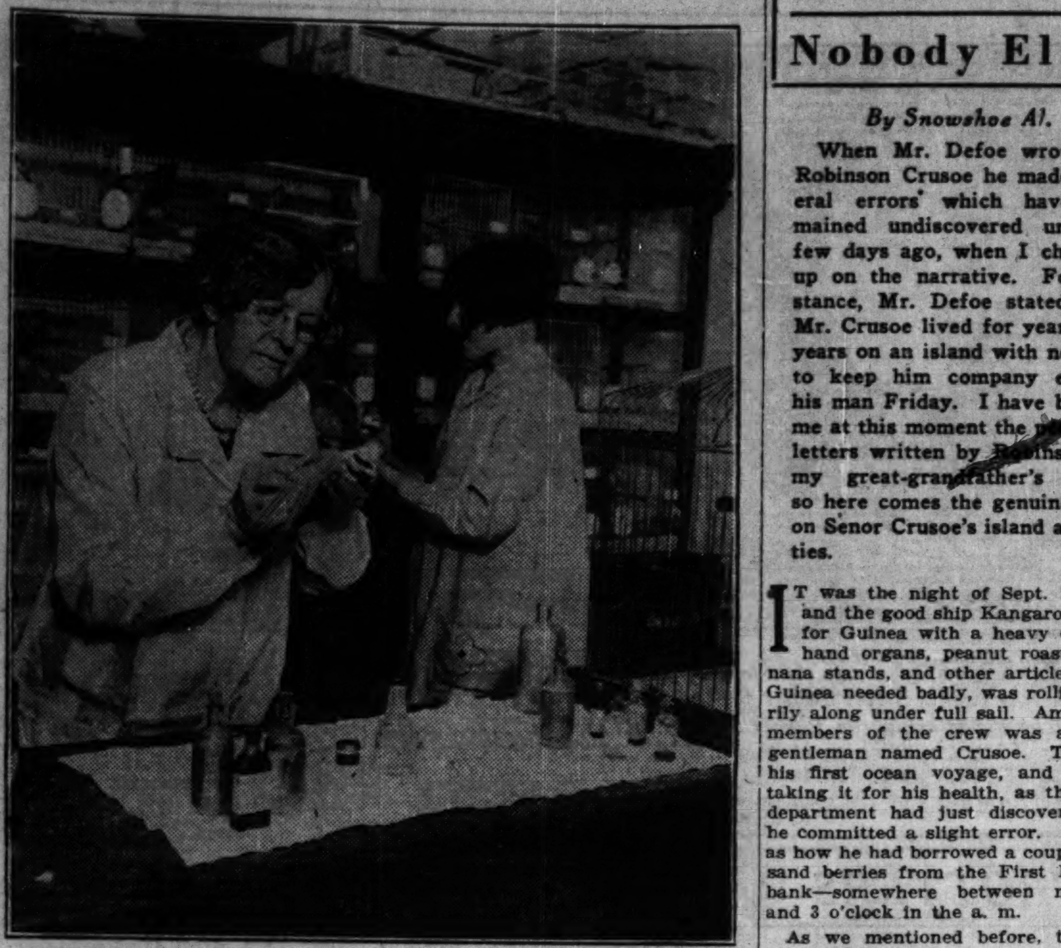
Mends Bodies and Spirits of Forlorn Birds

They Sing Again When She Is Through with 'Em.

By Marion Reagan.

THE DOVE OF PIECES



"The bird with the broken pinion" gets speedy relief when it lands in Carrie Liberty's hospital. Mrs. Liberty, assisted by Miss Evelyn Moats, is shown repairing the damaged wing of a pigeon.

IT SEEMED stuffy in the little room, actually hot; and in the air was a scent that was a combination of the odor of bird seed, medicine, and the characteristic aroma that arises from the warm little bodies of the birds themselves.

All along the walls were shelves with scores of cages, large brass ones, some extremely ornate, and then others of plain wire. There were wicker cages, wooden cages, iron grill cages, cages of every sort imaginable! In them the birds were perched, many on one foot, with their heads under their wings, looking like no more than little balls of feathers stuck on the ends of tooth picks. Others, in a fairer state of health, munched in the seed boxes, their beaks making a light, clicking sound.

An occasional thin, throaty attempt at singing floated out in a trembling sound above the loud, mockish jumble of talk from the parrots, and from the convalescent canaries, in a group by themselves, came clear, bell-like trills. It was a bedlam of noises and melodies sung a little off tune.

She Talks to 'Em.

A thin, gray haired woman in a white apron went among the cages, chirping staccato questions which the birds seemed to understand. Forlorn little creatures, bunched into balls, drew their heads up slowly when she talked and their feathers went back into the usual elongated contour of the canary.

"Come, tell the lady how you feel today?" she questioned of a mournful parrot whose head seemed buried 'way down between his shoulders. The head came up. He said something which sounded very much like: "I'm sick."

"Well, don't you worry, I'm going to make you better!" promised the sympathetic voice. And well might she promise, for many a parrot has come into her little hospital before, diseasebound, and has gone away free.

Her name is—quite aptly—Carrie Liberty. Many persons have thought she took the name for trade purposes, so perfectly does it suit her calling, but Carrie was the name her parents gave her at christening and Liberty was the name of her husband.

In Widow's Weeds.

When her husband died some 24 years ago, Mrs. Liberty, left quite alone with her daughter, found herself penniless. She had a little furniture and she had a few canary birds. That was all. She knew a good deal about canary birds. Her father had raised chickens all his life and from him she learned to judge with accuracy what ailed a bird when it wouldn't eat, when its feathers fell out, when it sulked alone on the perch. Her father knew all kinds of remedies for these ailments and taught them to Carrie. And Carrie even made some experiments for herself, found new remedies, and took delight in her skill at mending a broken leg of hen or rooster.

She was living in a small flat on the south side, on Dorchester, near 55th street, when her husband died. A living had to be made somehow and she was untrained in any of the usual occupations undertaken by women. She first thought of raising canaries, and did, but it was difficult, with neighbors complaining of noises. (It was a good many years before the radio was to boom in its loud speaking way into the tranquillity of apartment living.) A flat full of canaries was a flat full of pests.

She Starts with an Ad.

Mrs. Liberty put an ad in THE TRIBUNE.

"Has anybody a place in the loop suitable for use as a bird hospital?" the ad queried. "There are havens for dogs, cats, and other pets, but no place to care for the little birds when they're sick," the ad continued.

Her plea was eloquent. There were several replies. One struck her fancy. It read:

"I can let you have a room at 183 North Wabash for your hospital. The office is not rented anyway, and if it suits your purposes you may have it for a song."

Now, with an apartment full of canaries, songs were a commodity Mrs. Liberty was best prepared to offer in exchange. She took the room and put another ad in the paper. "Wanted," read this second ad, "birds to board. Sick birds cared for at the Liberty bird hospital."

The Liberty bird hospital was as bare as the cupboard of Old Mother Hubbard. There wasn't even a shelf to put the cages on. She had no desk. There was no carpet. She brought a chair down from home, and on the bare floor set the cages of her own birds and sat down to contemplate how she would fix the place when she made a little money.

Away she went with her imagination. The room was filled with bird cages. There was a rich green rug on the floor. She herself sat at a long, flat desk looking into an adjoining room which was all white tile—her operating room and clinic. What a glorious thought!

But, getting back to earth, or rather back to the four bare walls of the room, she confessed to herself a little dismally that at first, of course, it would be hard going.

Laying the Foundations.

Then, as if by magic, out of the thin air came people in answer to her ad. It was summer, and families going away on vacations were glad to know of a place to put their birds for a few cents a day. She asked the customers to pay in advance.

"And what do you think?" asks Mrs. Liberty. "On the very first day I took in $25. That was a wonderful lot of money in those days—a wonderful lot of money. Why, I didn't know whether to walk or ride home. I was feeling so mighty I could have walked all over the earth without getting tired. I was so proud of myself and so confident!

"First thing I got a carpenter in to make shelves to hold the cages. I had enough shelves made to take care of all the business I hoped to do, and not long afterwards I got myself a [illegible] and these filing cases. Then I [illegible] course, to 208 North Wabash, and, while I haven't made a million dollars, I've made a nice living for myself and daughter all these years, and I've made a nice, tidy sum to lay away in the bank, too."

Mrs. Liberty winks her eye slyly. She is justly proud of herself. Then her face straightens soberly. Her mouth moves into a round little pout. Her eyes look as if they were about to fill with tears.

"And, say, I've done a sight of good, too, in this little place," she says. "Poor little bits of birds; they bring them in here half dead, some of them, and I've cured them; and, well, that's something to be proud of, isn't it?"

Operating on Polly.

Two Bee-bee parrots set up a cackling, noisy chatter. The canaries begin to chirp about in their cages too; a few trill away in song, and soon there is so much noise that conversation is impossible. Mrs. Liberty is commanding.

"Now, look here, you two," she addresses the Bee-bee parrots. "You started all this; now be still."

She slips a white cloth over their cage, and they are silent at once. When the rest of the birds silence down, too, Mrs. Liberty resumes:

"I must tell you about the first time I ever operated on a bird. You know, I operate on them all the time now if there's anything real serious the matter with them. Well, a parrot was brought in here with his craw all swollen out like a golf ball—bigger even than that. The owner had been everywhere with the bird. Nobody could do anything for him and finally he came in here. My heart sank when I saw the polly. He was a wonderful bird, valued at $1,000, and the owner was clear wild over him.

"Well, sir, I knew that bird was doomed to death. There was only one chance in a thousand to save him and that was to lance that craw somehow and clean out whatever was clogging it. To feel the swelling, it was as hard as cement. So, after debating with myself for a couple of hours, I finally decided to chance an operation. 'Don't surgeons and physicians, the best of them, experiment?' I says to myself. 'They're not always sure.'

The Crisis.

"And I got the anaesthetic, the catgut for sewing up the incision, and all the implements I needed. It was a terrible suspense to be in. I didn't know how much anaesthetic to give the bird for sure, but I took a chance. I worked as fast as I could, cleaned out that craw, sewed it up, and waited and waited for the bird to come to. I waited till almost midnight before he finally reeled about and got enough strength to stand up on his feet. Then I went home and just hoped.

"Next day he was much stronger, and every day he got better, until finally he was completely well. The owner had gone away on his vacation, and every day I had to send him a wire telling how Polly was getting along. I wired at last that Polly was entirely cured; to come and get him when he was ready.

"Well, that man was so grateful to me when he heard his bird calling away when he came in here—'The carriage is coming, Ma-Ma, Ma-Ma'—that he almost cried. 'God bless you,' he said, and he gave me a check for $50. What do you think of that?"

Mending Broken Bones.

Mrs. Liberty's long fingers are deft. They would have to be to perform such delicate operations as setting broken bones of canary birds, or removing tumors from under canaries' wings, and these little operations are, if not the daily, at least the frequent work of Mrs. Liberty.

In her apartment at 5437 Harper avenue she still raises canaries. She has a variety of them, tiny Harz mountain canaries and the big Yorkshire canaries. She has doves, too, and South American cardinals, and several different species of parrots.

SCHOLASTICALLY SPEAKING.

Bona fide gems from examination papers:

"The Saxons were a lazy and gluttinous race."

"Wordsworth saw in the French revolution a new error of happiness."

"The Magna Charta occurred in the reign of King John. The barons compelled him to sing it."

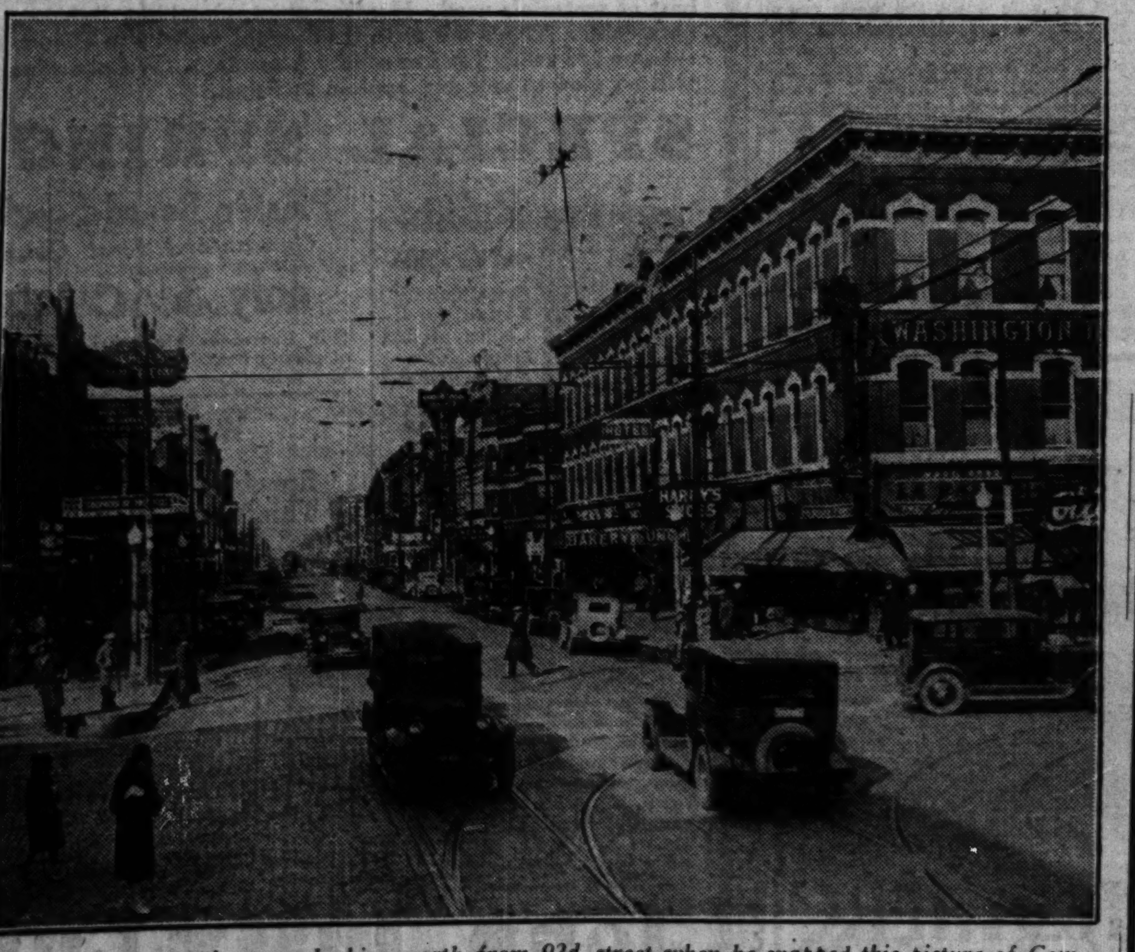
"Lack of indiscretion was Stephen's greatest personal enemy."

"Although Henry was not outwardly offended with Cromwell, after he had made him a baronet he sent him to the block for being a nuisance."

"Woolsey was a great, daring, and bold warrior. Some of his chief victories were the capture of Quebec, the battle of Waterloo, and the battle of Trafalgar square." (Student appears to have made the cardinal a composite of Wolfe and Wellington, with a dash of Nelson.)

After telling of the clash between Henry VIII. and the pope one student concluded: "England was freed from the ecclesiastical jokes of the pope"—the most amusing of which appear to have been his bulls.—Boston Transcript.

COMMERCIAL AND NINETY-SECOND



THE photographer was looking north from 92d street when he snapped this picture of Commercial avenue. The young woman in the left hand corner, waiting for the car to pass, glanced up, curiously, wondering why any one wanted her likeness. She just happened to be in the landscape, that was all, and yet what could be more fitting for a figure in the foreground of this busy shopping center? She'll have more bundles in her arms, no doubt, before she gets through the day.

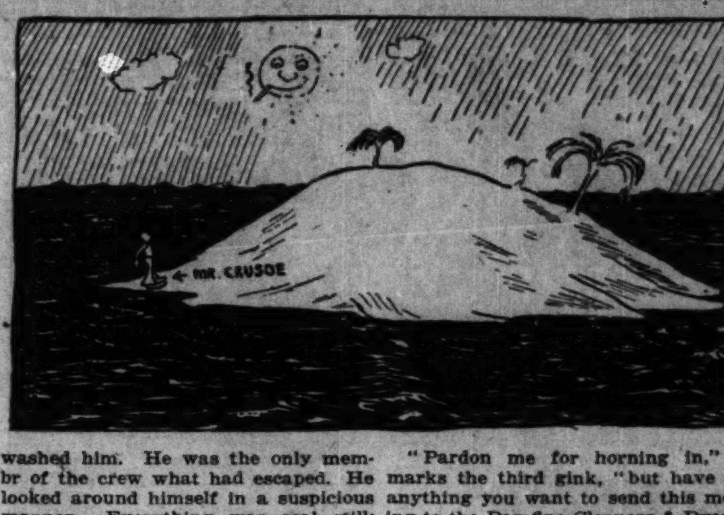
Al Gives the Low Down on Robinson Crusoe

Nobody Else There Except Friday? New Histories Needed!

By Snowshoe Al.

When Mr. Defoe wrote his Robinson Crusoe he made several errors which have remained undiscovered until a few days ago, when I checked up on the narrative. For instance, Mr. Defoe stated that Mr. Crusoe lived for years and years on an island with nobody to keep him company except his man Friday. I have before me at this moment the personal letters written by Robinson to my great-grandfather's papa, so here comes the genuine dirt on Senor Crusoe's island activities.



IT was the night of Sept. 16, 1659, and the good ship Kangaroo, bound for Guinea with a heavy cargo of hand organs, peanut roasters, banana stands, and other articles which Guinea needed badly, was rolling merrily along under full sail. Among the members of the crew was a young gentleman named Crusoe. This was his first ocean voyage, and he was taking it for his health, as the police department had just discovered that he committed a slight error. It seems as how he had borrowed a couple thousand berries from the First National bank—somewhere between midnight and 3 o'clock in the a. m.

As we mentioned before, the ship was bouncing merrily along over the deep blue bathing fluid. Our hero was leaning over the rail, making funny faces at the waves. Him and his supper weren't on speaking terms, and they were now bidding each other farewell. The first mate walked over and patted him reassuringly on the back.

"'Tis a grand evening!" says the mate.

"Who cares?" remarks Robinson, who was not in the best of humor.

"The moon just came up," continues the mate.

"Moon, hell! That was good whisky!" snorted our hero. "Anyhow, quit watching me. Go tend to your own business!"

* *

The Debacle.

At this moment there was a terrific crash. The entire ship trembled violently and then stood perfectly still. The Kangaroo had just met an affectionate sand bar, and it was a case of love at first sight. They just couldn't bear to part with one another!

"We are lost!" the captain shouted, as he staggered down the stairs, but nobody paid any attention to him, because he had been staggering upstairs and downstairs for the last two weeks.

The next morning a violent storm came up and started battering the Kangaroo to pieces. Then one of the men claimed he saw land about a mile away, so the crew fell into a lifeboat and started in that direction. They didn't even get to third base! A big wave walked right across their faces and yelled, "Hello, boys!"

When Robinson Crusoe woke up he found himself lying on the shore of a lonely island, where the waves had washed him. He was the only membr of the crew what had escaped. He looked around himself in a suspicious manner. Everything was real still; in fact, the silence was deathlike. Right away he decided to investigate this hunk of real estate, so he explored the entire island, but he couldn't find no signs of life. At last he gave three cheers!

"By golly," says our hero, "this is too good to be true! No landlords, no pesky women, no mother-in-laws, no radios, no policemen, no nothing! Just what I've always wanted! There must be a catch in it somewhere."

Just then a cute little parrot flew down from a nearby tree and says "Hello!"

"Well, well!" says Mr. Crusoe. "How come you speak English? I can't understand it! There ain't a living soul on this island except myself."

"Is that so?" grins the parrot. "Har, har!"

"Yes, that's so, thank gawd!" yells Robinson; "I am the only bimbo on this vacant property, and I'm tickled cock-eyed to know it, because I never want to see another human being! All they ever did was cause me trouble."

* *

Alone!

Mr. Crusoe spent the next few days building himself a cute little four room bungalow. He stuck in all the modern conveniences. He sure had a neat layout. When it was all finished, he went outside and gave it the once-over.

"A swell dump, even if I do say it myself," says he, rubbing his mitts together; "a real ritzy dive, where a guy can live peacefully and unmolested for the rest of his life." Then he raised his hands toward the sky and murmured, "Alone! Alone at last!"

Just then his phone started ringing! With an amazed look on his mug he galloped into the house and picked up the receiver.

"Good morning, Mr. Crusoe," says a voice; "this is the Stickem Real Estate company. Your name has just been given to us by a friend who thought you might be interested in our proposition. We are located on Cocoanut island, just three miles east of you, and we have some nice corner lots over here which we are selling on easy terms. If you care to trade your funny looking bungalow in towards the purchase of same, we will allow you three dollars an' sixty cents——"

"Wait a minute! Somebody's knocking at my back door!" yells our hero, dropping the receiver and galloping to the rear of the house.

"Good morning!" says the gink at the back door; "would you like to subscribe to these four magazines? Only ten cents a week! Much cheaper than you can——"

Ding-a-ling-aling! (Front door bell.)

Our hero rushed through the house and found three guys standing on the front porch.

"Nice little place you have here, Mr. Crusoe," says the first hombre, "and I suppose you'll want to take out some fire insurance! Just suppose lightning should strike this dump; you'll want to be protected—"

"Mr. Crusoe," butts in the second guy, "have you arranged to have milk delivered yet? If you ain't, I'll be glad to take your order, and I assure you that we——"

"Pardon me for horning in," remarks the third gink, "but have you anything you want to send this morning to the Damfine Cleaners & Dyers?"

* *

The Home Harmonious.

At this moment two laundry wagons stopped in front of the house and the drivers started a fist fight in the front yard. Each of them claimed he saw the joint first.

"Har, har!" yelled the little parrot from a nearby tree. "'Alone! Alone at last!' Har, har!"

Our hero slammed the door in their faces and rushed back into the living room. He found a guy sitting in his rocking chair.

"Hello," says the guy, "I just came in through the window. I see you have no sewing machine. Our firm sells 'em on the installment plan. Mr. Crusoe, no home is complete without a sewing machine. You only pay three dollars down an' two dollars every week for the next——"

"ICE!!!!!" squawks some bozo at the rear door.

Mr. Robinson Crusoe did a nose-dive through the window and ran frantically towards the beach, pursued by six bond salesmen, nine automobile demonstrators, and a guy who wanted to sell him an electric radio. They were joined a few moments later by several ginks who sold vacuum cleaners.

Robinson escaped this mob by climbing a tree and disguising himself as a bunch of bananas. From this treetop he could see in all directions, but all he could see was house-to-house canvassers, district managers, special representatives, demonstrators, and the et cetera. Then he glanced towards the beach and grabbed off another surprise! Several large canoes were drawn up on the sand, and two hundred Ethiopian Blondes were doing the Black Bottom around a large bonfire. Another of these dark complexioned boys was tied to a tree. Mr. Crusoe climbed down and galloped over towards this mob.

"What's the idea?" says our hero.

"O," says one of them, "dis am de ninth annual picnic of de Barbershop Porters' Benevolent fraternity. Groceries am going to be served, an' a good time am going to be had by all!"

"And who is that African Eskimo that's tied to the tree?" asks Crusoe.

"He am de groceries! He am a member what ain't in good standing at present, 'cause he am way back in de payment of his dues. When we ask him fo' de money he keep telling us 'Come around next Friday—come around next Friday,' so now we is mad, and we——"

Kidded by Experts.

BLAMMM!!!!!! It was a terrible noise, just like an explosion, and it came from the other side of the island. Rushing to the scene of the racket our hero saw a large pirate ship going up in smoke. Somebody had blown up her powder magazine! Robinson saw a small boat coming towards the shore, so he climbed a tree in order to conceal himself. The small boat contained Captain Kidd and six sailors. As soon as they landed they carried several heavy iron chests from the boat and dumped them under the tree.

"Dig a hole an' bury them boxes!" yelled Captain Kidd, shooting four of the sailors, just for the hell of it, so the other two sailors buried the boxes, after which the captain shot both of them. Then Mr. Kidd laughed, raised both arms towards the sky, and yelled: "Alone! Alone at last!"

"O, FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE!" laughs Mr. Crusoe; in fact, he laughed so hard that he fell out of the tree and landed on the captain's neck.

This made Mr. Kidd sore as hell, so he picked up a large rock and socked Mr. Crusoe so hard that our hero didn't recover consciousness until twenty-seven years later. And this, ladies and gentlemen, accounts for Robinson Crusoe's long and protracted stay on the island.

Anyhow, that's my story and I'll stick to it!

A Coat for a Dollar.

One day I saw an unusual sale advertised. It was called an Hour Sale and each hour the things on sale were reduced one dollar in price.

I was down town bright and early and saw the loveliest coat in the window, and I considered it a good bargain at $10, but since I had nowhere near that sum I went back home. I couldn't get the thought of that coat out of my mind, so went back again after lunch. It was still there and although it was now only $5 it was still beyond my means.

I went to the public library and killed time until about 4:30, and went back to find my beloved coat still there. In breathless anxiety I waited in front of the store, hardly daring to look into the window for fear some one would snatch it away before my eyes.

The clock hadn't finished striking five when I dashed into the store and told the first clerk I saw that I wanted the coat in the window. After verifying the time I secured the coat for a dollar. I wore it for four years all the year round and then passed it on to another girl who was able to wear it several years more. H. H.

A Country Sale.

It was in the fall, when most of the country sales are on. We were coming back from the cottage, and decided to stop at one of these sales, to see what it was like.

Such luck! I bought six large napkins, linen and hand hemstitched for 50 cents, a box of old books, including Riley's, Longfellow's and Poe's works, along with some old French novels, for $2.50. It was the best bargain I had ever made. B. T.

An Old Violin.

I am a lover of music and have always had a longing to own a good violin. But being a married man with a family and not having too big a salary, circumstances never permitted me to get gratifying my wish.

My dreams came true one day when I stopped in to a junk shop and bought a cheap violin for $17. I did not realize my bargain till I had it priced elsewhere. It proved to be 130 years old and is valued at $100. I consider that a bargain. F. W.

Thomas Mackey's airedale disappeared from his home at 1556 North Long avenue. The harassed owner searched four days, and, tired and thirsty, dropped into a little store that sells cigars and thirst quenchers, and there sat his airedale, peacefully munching a pretzel from the free lunch counter.

Charles "Chuckie" Range, 417 West 69th street, son of the south side cleaner and dyer, and a sophomore at Englewood High, felt the urge to forsake student life for the world of business. A week under eagle-eyed floorwalkers in loop stores and an equal period as equerry to a flock of flivvers in a garage made him decide to give the educators a break.

George and Otto Hartle say they were playing pinochle with their brother-in-law, Oscar Anderson, in Otto's house at 4461 Keokuk avenue, when on one deal each of them held 1500 trumps, barring one card, which, for each, or the bidder, was in the blind. Laugh that off.

YOUNG GLOBE TROTTERS

NOW back at Loyola university, Paul J. Tambornino and Edward W. Kelly have many a tale of adventure for their fraternity brothers in the Phi Mu Chi house at 1620 Morse avenue. The two college boys have returned from a trip to India which cost them, in all, about $75 each. They hitch-hiked to New York, secured free passage on a freighter to Calcutta, and served as firemen on the S. S. Algic for the journey home. Note how travel influenced the boys in the matter of clothes. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

REAL SALESMANSHIP.

A large concern selling electrical appliances to jobbers and retailers advertised in one of the leading dailies recently for a salesman and received a large number of replies. Most of them came from young men who suggested that as they had graduated from Stevens institute and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, they were willing to start as salesmen with the view to gaining promotion because of their knowledge. One answer stood out prominently. It said:

"I am a real salesman and can prove it. I recently sold fifteen electric vacuum cleaners in a town which is not supplied with electricity and has little chance of being supplied in less than two years. That's real salesmanship, in my opinion. How about that position?—Wall Street Journal Straws.

THOSE CHILDREN!

Little Johnny [looking curiously at the visitor]—Where did the chicken bite you, Mr. Bilious? I don't see any marks.

Visitor—Why, Johnny, I haven't been bitten by any chicken.

Tommy—Mamma, didn't you tell papa Mr. Bilious was dreadfully henpecked? Why, mamma, how funny you look! Your face is all red.—Montreal Gazette.

SOME TIME, SOMEWHERE.

He—I had a wonderful time at your party last night.

She—Why, I had no party last night.

He—That's so? Well, believe me, I was at somebody's party.—Vassar Vagabond.

THE WRONG PEW.

A little girl was seated on the front porch when the salesman approached the gate. He tried to open it but it stuck.

"Mother at home, little one?" he inquired, before making further attempt to enter the yard. "Yes, sir," replied the child, "she's always home."

The agent jumped the gate and rang the door bell. There was no response. He rang it several times more, and waited. The door remained closed. Somewhat vexed, he turned to the little girl and asked, "Didn't you say your mother was at home?"

"Yes, sir, and I'm sure she is," answered the youngster.

"Then why in the world doesn't she answer my ring, I wonder?"

"I think she will, sir, when you reach our house," came the prompt reply; "we live four doors down the street."—Forbes Magazine.

SITUATION WELL IN HAND.

"Nope," replied Tommy, "I've got the meat."—Children.

THE POST-GRADUATE WIFE.

She registers attention at all her husband's stories when he is telling them to callers, but she never attempts to tell one herself.

She remembers to speak once in a while in admiration of his masterful way with the radio and to wonder how he does it.

She asks him to fix the electric washing machine just as if she thought he really could.

When she calls for him at his office with the car she always slides out of the driver's seat.

About six times a year she asks him to explain some political or international affair that is in the newspapers. —Life.

Magic Card of Politeness to Girl Clerk

Young Woman on South Side $50 Richer.

in the agricultural districts of Iowa. The man back of the counter said he hadn't been in Iowa, but he had read how the farmers were having a hard time. The salesman said they were, but that the boy from Poland told of having been unable to get hold of eggs over in his country.

The traveling salesman had several theories for helping the distressed farmer and I was interested in hearing him talk. He was a positive person. I might not believe his theories, but I could see he did, and that was something. It is negative persons who are so unentertaining. But I was really looking for politeness rather than entertainment. So I expressed my views. I forget now just what they were. I offered some panacea for the farmer's dilemma and the fellow from Poland, who couldn't understand English, offered no argument in return.

I could see that the young salesman—back in the old neighborhood after one of his trips—was bright and well posted, and the proprietor of the place evidently had done a good deal of thinking, too. At times we all three started to talk at once. I really enjoyed the open forum.

I walked down East 47th street. My head was aching, my throat felt sore, and I regretted that I didn't have two or three more handkerchiefs along. I had forgotten about the discussion on economics, except to realize that my theories, such as they may have been, probably had amounted to naught.

* *

The Sniffling Shopper.

As I stepped inside the William R. Hill book store a woman asked me what I wanted and I told her I didn't know, and she replied, tactfully and pleasantly, "I see; you just come in to look around."

She seemed to think it was all right for me to look around, and a moment later I heard her talking with a customer who was more familiar with the store. It had just moved into the new location, it seemed. I was gratified that the woman didn't press me as to my wants. It is best, I think, to show a customer he is privileged to browse around. Chances are he will speak up sooner or later.

I thought the clerk in the Big Ben Praline company might tell me something real interesting about romantic New Orleans of which the confection reminded me. But he confessed he had never been in New Orleans. He felt sure, however, that his product was made in strict accordance to the French recipe.

I was getting rather far east on 47th street by this time—further and further away, in fact, from Miss Mathilde Holzhausen. But, then, I didn't know Miss Holzhausen existed. No doubt the magic card did. But the card kept me hiking until I came to Lake Park avenue. A marble game was in progress on the pavement there, and whilst I stood watching the game, the barber from the Kenwood barber shop stepped to the doorway and asked the boys to resume their activities further down the street. The game, I observed, had changed its rules considerably since I had played it last.

The Quest Ends.

I went across the street and retraced my steps. I was feeling quite miserable when I entered Ortenstein's drug store at 4701 Cottage Grove avenue. Back of one of the counters the magic card called my attention to a blonde young woman who was acting in the capacity of postmistress as well as clerk for a variety of articles. She was a busy woman, I perceived. In fact as I drew near she was instructing the purchaser of a stamp on how to place it on the wrinkled paper package so as to stick.

The woman with the package was having a terrible time with the stamp. Miss Mathilde Holzhausen (I may as well use her name at this juncture) came forward with mucilage. The woman with the package mussed the stamp about in the liquid for some time, but it remained a free agent. She was becoming disgruntled with her experiments, so Miss Holzhausen finally took the package and held it still long enough for the mucilage to set.

"Is this the cold department?" I asked of Miss Holzhausen.

My question puzzled her, but, without attempting to give me an inferiority complex, she questioned me pleasantly until I had made my self clear.

"It's too bad if you've got a cold," she sympathized.

She came around from back of her counter and personally conducted me to the prescription case, nor did she leave me until the pharmacist had appeared on the scene.

She might have merely pointed to the other department, or stated more or less glumly where it was situated, instead of accompanying me to where the pills and powders were kept. The thought came to me afterward that maybe Miss Holzhausen made the extra trip so as to be effectively rid of me, rather than out of special courtesy; but if so the gesture was so tactful at the time that I was not cynical about it. And, after all, tact is about everything.

* *

He Feels Better.

But I was not finished with Miss Holzhausen. I went back to her department, where she was trotting back and forth to meet the needs of patrons, and I told her in detail, not only about my present affliction, but of colds I'd had in the past.

She knocked on wood and said she hadn't had a cold yet this winter. Still, she felt sorry for me.

"I'll tell you what you ought to do," she suggested. "You take good care of yourself. Why can't you go home now and get a good rest?"

"I can't do that," I disparaged, "I've got to keep going."

"I do hope you'll feel better," she consoled.

"You can say that," I complained, "but I think what you hope most is that I'd quit standing here and telling you about my cold."

She was making some sort of post office record in a ledger.

"No," she said, glancing up, "I think I've got your viewpoint. I find that if I can get the other person's viewpoint I can get along with them. If I didn't consider other people's viewpoints I'd be harassed more than I am because of being on my feet all day. I realize your viewpoint is that of a man with a cold and, seriously, I hope you get a good rest and feel better tomorrow. You look lots better already."

"I feel better," I told her, "that's because you've made me forget myself. You've smiled my troubles away, and who am I?—just an atom in the mass, a troublesome, unattractive passerby with a sniffling cold. Colds are common these days and you have met and will meet thousands of passersby. But also, I am The Politeness Reporter."

I gave her the card.

She thought it wasn't the real magic card, but the boss, nearing where we stood, assured her it was as genuine as her day-in-and-day-out courtesy and good humor.

BEING the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick is one of Chicago's women of great wealth. Her splendid homes—one at Bellevue place and Lake Shore drive and the other at Lake Forest—have been loaned for charity benefits on many occasions. Mrs. McCormick is one of the main sponsors for the zoological garden being established at Riverside, toward which she has donated a large tract of land.

'Prince of Beggars' Ends Philanthropic Career of 32 Years

LONDON.—(AP)—England's "Prince of Beggars," Viscount Knutsford, is soon to retire from the begging business.

In his begging career of thirty-two years as chairman of the London hospital he estimates he has collected something like $30,000,000 which went toward the institution's upkeep, rebuilding, and providing research funds.

In an article in the Sunday Express entitled "How to 'Pick' Pockets," Viscount Knutsford says:

"This lifelong rôle as 'beggar' has embraced all phases of drama—tragedy, comedy, and sometimes melodrama which behind the footlights would stir the emotions of the most blasé audience."

Lord Knutsford tells how a shabbily dressed man called once and left with him $5,000 in cash. He was a workman who had saved for years with the ultimate aim of giving the money to the hospital as soon as he had accumulated that much in gold.

Millionaires are the hardest to deal with, says the peer.

Two Water Diviners Make Good in England

REVESBY, England.—(AP)—Water wizards are still in favor in Lincolnshire. Before the Boston Waterworks company purchased an additional 37 acres for the extension of its plant two water diviners were employed independently and the company closed the deal after both reported that hazel switches indicated water in abundance would be found under the land.

Turk Takes His Salary Out in Historic Relics

PARIS.—(AP)—Selling historic treasures stolen from museums is getting to be difficult. Essad Nassouhi, formerly assistant curator of the Constantinople Museum of Antiquities, tried to pay himself his back salary by peddling a few little things he picked out of the cases there but he found his taste in antiques was too good.

A Hittite tablet, 3,000 years old, was sold for $700 to a Paris expert but at the Louvre museum it was identified immediately as one of the oldest and rarest things of its kind. Essad Nassouhi was arrested and turned over other things he had taken.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha's new government, he said, paid him lots of compliments for his work—for he is reputed to be an eminent authority—but it didn't pay his salary and when his family got hungry he took some of the museum stock in his pocket and walked out, coming to France to earn a living.

Sentence Sermons

BY THE REV. ROY L. SMITH.

Things that Count Most—

—In business are qualities that the poorest can have—industry, integrity, loyalty.

—In religion are subject to no argument—honesty, sincerity, faith.

—In life are things that can't be counted—love, hope, kindness.

—In a home cost nothing but are priceless—peace, forgiveness, trust.

—In friendship are things we cannot define—personality, understanding, congeniality.

—In progress are attitudes of mind—imagination, determination, fearlessness.

—With God are eternal—character, consecration, open-mindedness.

The Best Part—

—Of our pay is the satisfaction we get out of our work.

—Of our wealth is that which is invested for others.

—Of our religion is the part that bears the best fruit.

—Of our work is that which is done with the greatest cheerfulness.

—Of our patriotism is that which expresses itself in obedience to law.

—Of our preaching is that which hits the preacher first.

—Of our advice to others is that part which we take for ourselves.

If You Learn How—

—To hold your temper you have a better chance to hold your job.

—To laugh at trouble you will have less trouble to worry about.

—To speak courteously you will get more friendly answers.

—To use company manners on the highway you will miss lots of trouble.

—To work accurately you will not need to work so fast.

—To compliment the people you meet you will have a lot of boosters.

—To master your body for the sake of your soul you will always be free.

Artist Slashes Paintings That He Finds Forged

PARIS.—(AP)—Maurice de Vlaminck, notable among modernist painters, has been wielding a pen knife on some pictures instead of a paint brush. They are pictures which he didn't paint to which he says his name was forged.

His works and those of several other artists were reported to have been imitated and offered for sale with forged signatures.

He went, therefore, to a big art gallery that had "Vlamincks" for sale, saw his name forged, he says, on pictures he never painted and with his pen knife slashed them all and left.

There were cries for the police and threats of suits, but nothing happened.

Other artists, less known and less inclined to direct action, say they have found many bogus canvases of theirs scattered in reputable picture houses. They are working through their association to have these works confiscated and destroyed and the forgers traced and prosecuted.

Wives Given Edge on Mothers-in-Law by German Court

BERLIN.—(AP)—The rights of mothers-in-law do not stand so high as they might with the German federal Supreme court, the Reichsgericht. Wives have precedence over them in all family disputes, says the Reichsgericht in repealing a number of decisions of the lower courts in which the wives were given the edge over their husbands' mothers.

The cases in point dealt with married couples maintaining a joint household with the wife's mother-in-law. In the ensuing disagreements between the two women friend husband invariably sided with his mother and refused his wife's requests that they leave the "in law" out of the combination and live by themselves.

Such an attitude on the part of a husband, the German Supreme court decided, represented a flagrant violation of connubial rights and duties, involving the respect of one party for another, and entitled the wife with her child or children to leave her husband.

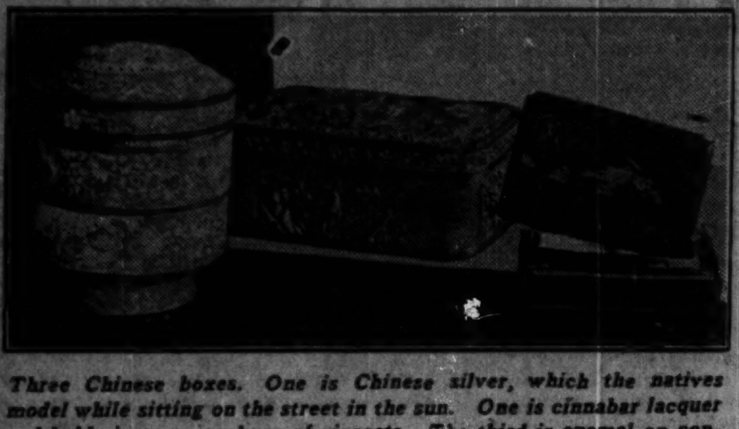
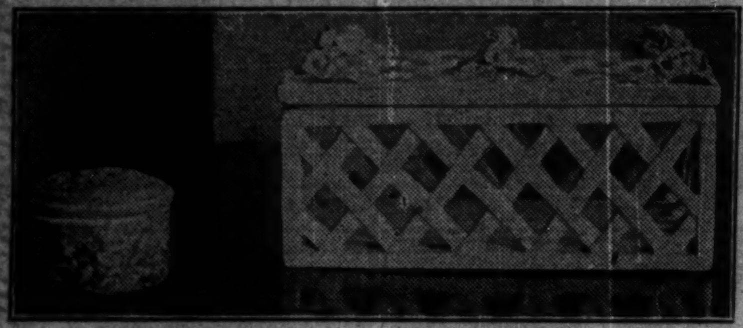
Intriguing Boxes from Other Lands

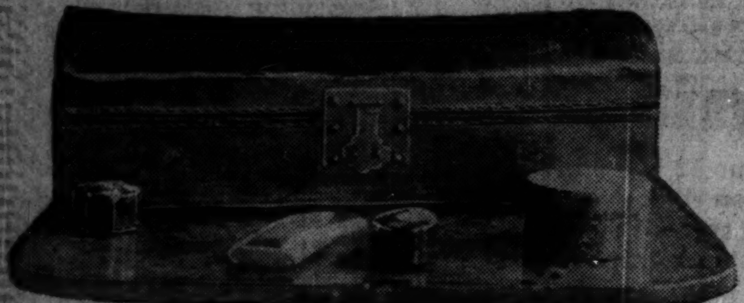
These Ornamental Chests Serve Many Useful Purposes



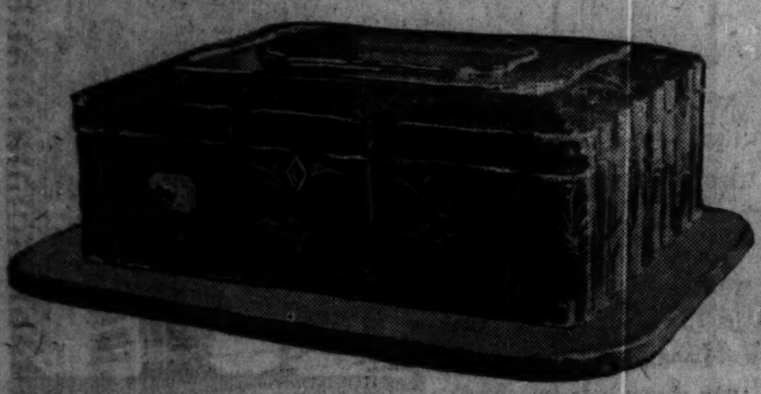
Three Chinese boxes. One is Chinese silver, which the natives model while sitting on the street in the sun. One is cinnabar lacquer and holds just one package of cigarets. The third is enamel on copper, and is two stories high, for holding sweetmeats.



Boxes, boxes, and again boxes if you wish to fascinate a woman. Ever since Pandora, women have loved them. Here are two—one of Italian make in which one can see one's sweetmeats; one French Capi-di-Monti.

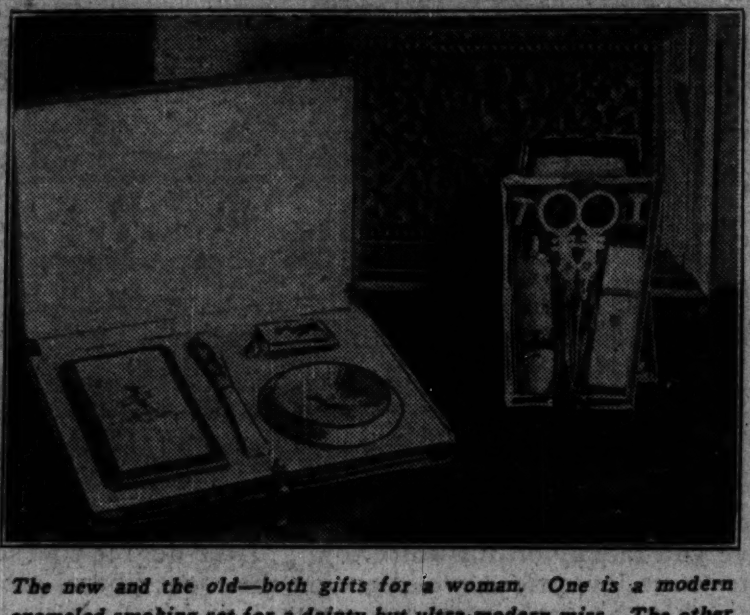


Boxes from fifteen cents to fifteen dollars or more. One is a tiny box of red lacquer. Another is an inlaid wooden box. There is a silver cigaret box with an enameled motif; and the big one is a Mongolian trunk of leather, in lacquer red, ornamented with gold. It is old and is lined with parchment—real, not paper.

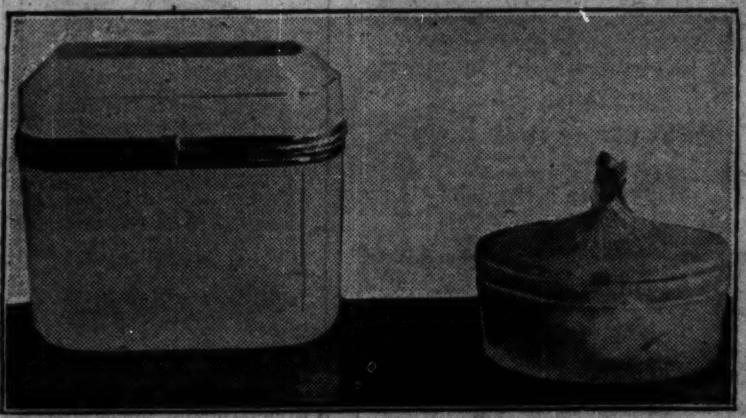


An old lacquer tea chest. One of the kind that came to New England in the early days in ships that went out of Salem to the orient. This box is a delightful adaptation for cigars, stationery or anything that must be kept in the living room.

More boxes which fascinate every woman. Three are old tortoise shell, those in the case being ornamented with gold and silver. The tiny box is old silver with a Limoges enamel top. It is a convenient size for powder or rouge.



The new and the old—both gifts for a woman. One is a modern enameled smoking set for a dainty but ultra-modern miss. The other is an eighteenth century sewing set of gold and mother of pearl in a red morocco case. Also a carved sandalwood box from India.



Two glass boxes. One is ciel blue bound in brass, and the cover is part of the box. An especially nice present for a man because it is small and compact and yet holds a surprising number of cigarets. The other is opaque crystal on which sits a lady by the famous French modeler, Lalique.

German War Captive Returns Home After 11 Years in Siberia

BERLIN.—(AP)—Bruno Stapelt, a soldier reported "missing" on the eastern front in the world war, unexpectedly has returned to his home at Geltow, near Potsdam, after eleven years of captivity in Siberia.

With his Russian wife and two children he made his way with great difficulty across Russia. He says he was held at Kansk, a village near Krasnoyarsk in the heart of Siberia, and that 150 other Germans, officers and privates, still remain there, destitute and anxious to get back home but without means to get transportation.

A meeting of reichstag members of all parties, except communists, has made formal request of the German government to take steps to get these men repatriated.

Paris Doesn't Like "Modern" Buildings; Reform Demanded

PARIS.—(AP)—Modern "palaces," too big, too high, and too new, do not please some of the lovers of old Paris, quaint in architecture and seasoned by centuries.

Public officials and private organizations have battled to enforce all the laws there are against violation of what they esteem the city's harmonious beauty. They have caused some of the electric signs to be moved, forced the remodeling of a few buildings, and preserved the ancient aspect of historic spots.

They are aided now by a new and private censor of taste, Eugene Marsan, a writer of note and an arbiter of fashion and style.

"Paris is being spoiled," is the title of a long series of first page articles running in the aristocratic old Figaro, in which Marsan flays the builders who, he thinks, offend public taste, and he calls for "a committee of men of taste" to do something about it. If he can't tear down new structures he doesn't like, he says, he is determined to make those responsible for them unhappy and prevent others from imitating them.

Japan Sends Exhibit to Fair at Leipsic

BERLIN.—(AP)—For the first time Japan has accepted the invitation to exhibit at the annual Leipsic spring fair.

Ninety varieties of goods were shipped by boat from Tokio to Marseilles, where they arrived early in February, and thence by rail to Leipsic.

The exhibit consists of some 3,000 individual objects, and includes silk, porcelain, and lacquered goods, besides articles of food.

The fair management expects the Japanese exhibit to prove one of the centers of attraction.

German Lends Hand on Russian Museum

BERLIN.—(AP)—Oscar von Miller, creator and curator of the world famed "Deutsches museum" at Munich, will soon show the Russians how to organize a somewhat similar, though more specialized, undertaking.

He has accepted an invitation of the supreme economic council of the soviet union to help with expert advice in the founding of a museum of industry at Leningrad.

The museum is to be an exposition of economic, scientific, and technical research, with special emphasis on industrial organization.

French Officers Pay Four Cents for Their Rooms

PARIS.—(AP)—Four cents a night for the best rooms in the house is all a French hotelkeeper gets from the army when it is on the march. A law passed 42 years ago fixes one franc a person as the proper allowance and that's all that was paid recently to the keeper of a hotel near Paris who sent in a bill of thousands of francs.

Officers directing maneuvers in this district made the hotel their headquarters and spent a night there. They gave the proprietor an order on the quartermaster for a certain number of lodgings, thanked him and left. The hotelkeeper, when the army check came, threatened lawsuits and vengeance, but his lawyers showed him the code and he will welcome no more army business. If his rooms are requisitioned, however, he will have to take his military guests at four cents each.

Snakes Able to Face the World Without Mother

BERLIN.—(AP)—Snakes, unlike any other animals, do not have to be taught by their mothers how to face life. Dr. Heinroth, custodian of the aquarium at the Berlin zoo, offers interesting data on this point.

Heinroth succeeded in inducing a twelve foot boa constrictor to lay thirty eggs in captivity. Out of ten of them crept little boas, each about 1½ feet in length and weighing 3 ounces. They were immediately separated from their mother and raised by themselves.

Mice and small birds were put into their cage, and without previous training by their mother they attacked their prey and strangled it just as any grown up boa would. Their method of devouring their booty was also exactly like that of their forebears.

THE STRONG GUY.

By Walter M. Schwimmer.

Is he strong? I'll tell the world he is,
In using force he's certainly a whiz,
Why ev'ry guy he knows agrees
That he is built like Hercules.

Say, yesterday you should have seen
Him try that strength-testing machine.
He slammed the mallet hard, and—well,
I'm telling you, he smashed the bell!

His muscles simply bulge and bulge,
And here's a secret I'll divulge,
There ain't a single pugilist
Who has as mean a punching fist.

Folks, here's the stunts this bird can do,
He bends a crowbar right in two,
And with his thumb he never fails
To push in tacks, and also nails!

Yes, he's a lallapalooza, quite,
A cuss with beefy brawn and might,
A stalwart strapping hulk with nerve,
A gent with vigor, vim, and verve.

But here's a tough, perplexing feat
That makes this Samson own defeat,
No matter how he tugs and strains,
He can't raise windows in the trains!

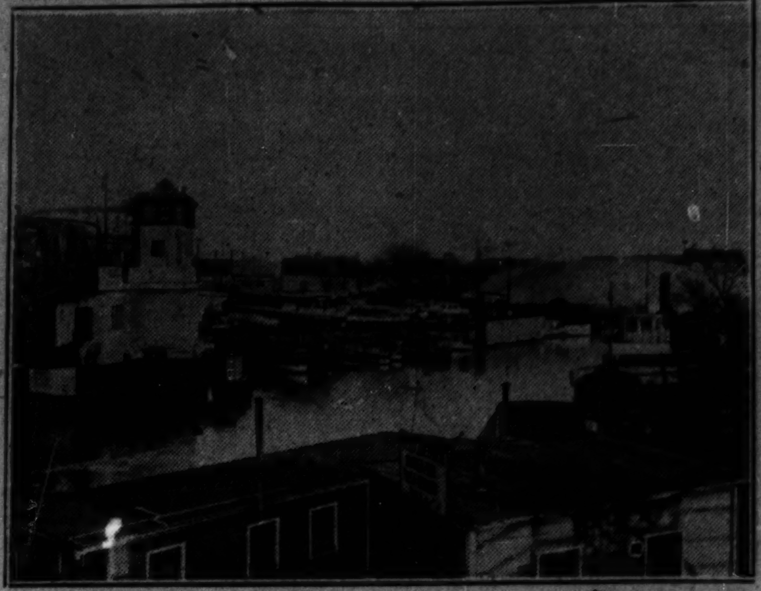
London Clubwomen Are Taking to Cigars

LONDON.—(AP)—Women's clubs in London are up against cigar smoking. Cigarets were assumed to be the limit of woman's smoking when several clubs established a rule that their drawing rooms might be used as smoking rooms. But many women are now smoking cigars, and cigaret smokers seem to have as much prejudice against cigars in the mouths of members of their own sex as many Victorian ladies have against cigarets.

WAITING FOR SPRING



THERE is a sort of pathos connected with what might be termed "settings out of season." This scene overlooking the river at Belmont avenue and Rockwell street, for instance—houseboats of fishermen in the foreground, across the water a row of harbored motor boats, and, at the extreme right, the T. E. Banner excursion boat. When summer rolls 'round again, seekers of lake breezes will be more interested in the Banner than they are inclined to be just now. Music will float from its decks then, as it plies its way between the Municipal pier and Lincoln park. "Just you wait," seem to say these craft held in leash, "there never was a winter yet that didn't come to an end."

LEAVE IT TO THE IRISH.

An Irishman applied for a job at the gas works.

"What can you do?" asked the foreman.

"Most anything," replied the man.

"Well," said the foreman, who was a bird of a joker, "you seem to be all right. Could you wheel out a barrel of smoke?"

"Sure, fill it up for me."—Toronto Gazette.

French Public Officials Shy About Checks

PARIS.—(AP)—The French government is going to take some of its own medicine and pay by check all functionaries getting more than $30 a week.

For years ministers of finance have urged the public to use checks as an aid to keeping down inflation. Meantime, all officials except cabinet ministers and the president of the republic, were paid in cash.

Stranger than this governmental reluctance to do what it told the people to do is the reason for sticking to cash pay rolls. "It might seem strange for a public official to receive a check," it was explained in whispers, for during and after the war men were shot as spies on the evidence of checks they couldn't justify. This fear of scandal made the higher officials loath to take up the pay roll checks.

It is even commented that Premier Poincare's action in ordering checks used "may not be his most important act but it may be his most courageous one."

With all the talk of checks they still are regarded with suspicion by many people and there are but few who have bank accounts. Many firms delay giving receipts until the check given in payment for a bill has been cashed. Even in real estate deals it frequently is required that the actual cash be paid before a notary.

COULDN'T LIE, EITHER.

"So your name is George Washington?" the old lady asked the small colored boy.

"Yessum."

"And do you try to be exactly like him, or as nearly as possible?"

"Lak who?"

"Why, like George Washington."

"Ah kain't help being lak John Washin'ton, 'cause dat's who Ah is."

JOHN BORIE RYERSON.
[Phillip R. Moore Photo.]

JOHN BORIE RYERSON, the son of Mrs. Holmes Sherfesse, who until last fall was Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, rarely gives Chicago's belles a chance to prove their charms. The last few years he has gone in for professional golf and is making quite a name for himself. He is the only person ever to have taken the championship out of southern California. His Chicago clubs include Onwentsia and the Racquet club. He is a Yale man of the class of 1922.

STORIES of GIRLS

Rescued from the Octopus.

By Margaret Orr.

UNCLE PETE couldn't be kept down, although by profession he had been a diver. Now he was merely something old that sat in a rocking chair by the stove. Everybody, particularly Imogene, ignored him. But when there was company he always shuffled in and told his astounding lie about how he rescued a beautiful mermaid from being squeezed to death by an octopus.

Folks knew the yarn was but the whimsical story of a wish. They smiled and pitied him. But Imogene bawled him out.

For Imogene was smart. She earned good money. She had been promoted twice and had two girls under her.

Yet her mother still considered her a child. The mother talked about going downtown to buy Imogene a "little dress"—size 40. And she kept bringing clothes home till she mortgaged the girl's salary weeks in advance. Imogene not only had no personal choice in the matter, but little chance to save.

Then there was the maternal advice about boy friends, tooth paste, letters, telephone calls, cigarets, moral uplift, kimonos, and dog biscuit. Imogene was as free as a blind bird with broken legs and its wings beaded with bullets. So she had no extra patience to cast around the kitchen stove at Uncle Pete and his octopus.

But the neighbors voted her mother ideal and "an awfully good woman." She was also so omnipresent that Imogene finally revolted. Frequently she told her mother she would have to work at the office in the evening. The girl used these evenings to have rather wild little dinners with whatever men were available for such dates.

The only men who would sneak a girl round this way were married or were sophisticated beings to whom Imogene was merely "the girl I had dinner with Thursday night—what was her name?"

Among this crowd was Ed. Ed was a 20 minute egg. He had an inexhaustible fund of experiences and took her out several times. He always chose expensive, fashionable dinner places.

Imogene realized she didn't have the clothes to continue these sparkling moments. But Ed offered to get her "swell evening dress at wholesale—like magenta or violet best?" Imogene drew out her Christmas fund and paid cash. Then he knew a "feller who carried evening wraps," etc.

For all of these Imogene paid cash. On several occasions, however, she had to get a loan from the ignoble Uncle Pete.

Then along came Phil. As he was young and fine looking, Imogene ditched Ed. And he was furious.

One morning Imogene got a letter which contained an itemized account of all the things he had ever bought her. The list was not figured at all on the "wholesale" basis. He wrote he was sorry to ask for the money, but he was strapped.

Imogene had no receipts for her cash. She was afraid Ed would rush to her mother for the money. So once more she held up Uncle Pete.

This time she told him the story. He didn't say anything. But the next morning he hobbled down to the savings bank and drew out all but $2.13. And his life work lay in these dollars!

That noon Imogene met Ed at a hotel, where they quarreled violently, but she got the receipt.

When she went home that night she discovered her mother's eyes were red. The telephone bell rang, but the mother did not use usual hurry to listen in. She quietly said at the supper table that she had canceled Imogene's debt for clothes Imogene hadn't chosen, as the girl should have more freedom about things. Suspicious stuff!

Imogene wondered at all this strangeness. She looked at Uncle Pete. There was a fiery glitter in his old eyes.

Whether he knew it or not, his dream had at last come true.

A beautiful mermaid, who should have been free to explore the marvels of life's sea, he had at least partly rescued from the maternal octopus.

* *

"The World's Greatest" at Home.

HE was disillusioned in his mother, himself, his girl, and in the bank which refused to cash the check he so blithely offered it.

It had been circus time and a small, unknown show had found its way to the village where Raymond's mother had her summer home. She was a widow. She was very modern. She adored Raymond. He called her Emily. She was his comrade.

That is, every night Raymond's mother invited him in while her maid applied the mud bath to her face. Then she would talk to him about Poms, whisky and soda, Freud, and Parisian life.

In return Raymond told Emily all his secrets.

This was going on at a great rate when the tiny circus pitched its tent in a meadow. Of course, Raymond grabbed Annabelle, his high-powered roadster, and dashed over.

At dinner that night he informed Emily that love had come. He had seen the only girl in the world. She swung on the flying trapeze. He had gone to her dressing tent afterward and she had called, "Get out."

Raymond's mother did not have hysterics. She merely reminded him he was the latest drop of indigo blood. When he was small he had kicked the shins and bitten the hands of bell boys in the costliest hotels. He had been expelled from the most exclusive schools. Therefore he should marry his equal—if, indeed, any existed.

Raymond said he had just seen her. He even drove Emily over to see the circus that night that she might see her prospective daughter-in-law hang by her neck.

Emily wore a dress too elaborate for a coronation. Her complexion was a marvel of artificiality, and she lacked the slightest touch of naturalness. But she was clever.

She pointed out that "the creature" had a mechanical smile; her lips were too red; her makeup had been captivated by the rhythm of those marvelous swings through the air. For Raymond was the soul of poetry—blank verse. The blaring of the calliope was dreadful. And, of course, she was no better than she should be!

Thus the episode ended.

Back in the city in the fall, however, Raymond had a relapse. He wrote the manager of the show.

The embossed coat of arms so impressed the manager with visions of noble patronage that he sent back Mlle. Francine's correct name and address. And Raymond, aided by the faithful Annabelle, took a little run down.

Francine, normally known as Susie, lived down a country lane in a cottage that was picturesque. Around it was a hedge. Crisp gingham curtains were at the windows of the kitchen, and a kitten was sleeping on the sill.

Raymond knocked timidly at the back door. "The world's greatest" opened it herself. She was making pop-overs. The table was set with a snowy cloth and pretty blue dishes.

She thought Raymond's knock was that of her old uncle, whom she took care of, or her brother, who was an acrobat also, or her cousin, John, who lived with them; or Phoebe, the tiny motherless sister.

Raymond, the most sophisticated adolescent in his ultra modern hotel, couldn't stammer a word. He, who had faced the season's most flippant sub-debs with hauteur and cocktails, stood dumb before the simplicity, unselfish humanity, and sparkling health of Mlle. Francine.

Finally he asked how to get to Europe from there and, without waiting for the answer, jumped into Annabelle and sped back to the nearest city.

Falling out of funds, the next day he tried to cash a check on a peculiarly disobliging bank. Now he didn't care what happened to him. He was so disillusioned.

"The world's greatest" made popovers. She took care of her folks. "The world's greatest" was too good for him!

SARCASM.

One of the best anecdotes about Prof. Copeland, who is resigning from Harvard, is the following:

One day he had occasion to reprove some of his students for coming late to class.

"This is a class in English composition," he remarked with sarcasm, "not an afternoon tea."

At the next meeting one young woman was 20 minutes late. Prof. Copeland waited until she had taken her seat. Then he remarked bitingly, "How will you have your tea, Miss Brown?"

"Without lemon, please," Miss Brown answered quite gently.—Boston Transcript.

Canada Cannot Be Overlooked on Short Waves

U.S. to Give Consideration to Her Needs.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—(AP)—In the allocation of short wave channels the federal radio commission will give special consideration to the needs of Canada.

The Canadian government has written the state department that it is greatly interested in the short wave question and suggests a uniform policy of allotment.

The Canadian government has made general assignments of radio service in this order of priority:

Service with ships and aircraft which depend entirely on radio for communication.

Emergency Service.

Public commercial service between points not reached by any other existing communication.

Emergency service for public utilities.

Private services for communication with points not reached by other communication.

Public commercial services with points which already have adequate means of wire communication.

Article 8 of the international radio Telegraph conference of 1927 stipulates that "all stations must so far as practicable be established and operated so as not to interfere with the radio communication or services of other contracting governments and of individuals or private enterprises authorized by these contracting governments to carry on public radio communication service."

Coöperated with U. S.

It is pointed out that in cases where the radio service of private commercial enterprises of the United States interfered or conflicted with Canadian public service communication, priority should be accorded the Canadian service. In expressing the hope that a way be found to fulfill the Canadians' request for a uniform policy the state department points out that Canada coöperated fully with the United States in the international radio telegraph conference. The state department also expresses the desire that the United State, as the host and because the convention was drawn largely along lines suggested by its representatives, be the first government to ratify it.

American Radio Amateur Talks with 34 Nations

Cleveland, O., March 10.—[U. P.]—The far corners of the world are reached by two radio stations operated by Allen F. Prescott, University of Michigan student.

Much of the radio traffic conducted by Prescott is with Donald McMillan station on the vessel Bowdoin, caught in the Arctic ice at Anatalok Bay, Labrador. Messages from the crew of the Bowdoin are relayed by Prescott to all parts of the United States.

Besides holding frequent conversations with the McMillan party, Prescott has conversed with the station operated by the University of Michigan party, wintering in Greenland, and also has talked with a Norwegian whaler within 13 degrees of the South pole in the Antarctic sea. He has scores of radio friends in Australia and New Zealand with whom he communicates.

Although he has talked with amateurs in 34 countries, Prescott believes that his most interesting experience was in following the fated course of the British barkentine, E. R. Sterling, enroute last December from Australia to England.

By arrangement with its radio operator, Prescott conversed with the vessel daily on its course around the Cape of Good Hope and up the west coast of Africa.

Then one night he heard an S O S sent out as the ship was wrecked off the Cape Verde Islands. He took a graphic story from the radio operator, learned some of the crew had been killed, and then the ship's station became silent.

Radio Will Aid in Government's Fight on the Corn Borer

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Radio stations in twenty-five states will join this spring with other information agencies in putting before the farmers the facts about new farm problems growing out of the ravages of the European corn borer.

Coöperating stations will broadcast for farm listeners one 10 minute program each week, prepared by the radio service of the United States department of agriculture, in collaboration with the information section of the corn borer control campaign organization.

Boston Stars Play in Radio Bridge Game

Show How to Provide Entries for Finesses

MRS. PRESCOTT WARREN.

MAJ. R. J. HERMAN.

THE twentieth and final radio auction bridge game of the present series will be broadcast from W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel, next Tuesday at 9 o'clock.

Each game of the series has featured Milton C. Work and Wilbur C. Whitehead, New York experts, in association with players from other cities in America and Canada, the contestants in the twentieth game being Mrs. Guy U. Purdy of Omaha, Neb., playing with Mr. Work, against W. E. Byrnes of New York, who is a former president of the American Whist league, and Mr. Whitehead.

Following are the advance hands for game No. 20:

MR. WORK.
Spades—Q, 9, 8.
Hearts—J, 9.
Diamonds—A, J, 9, 8, 6.
Clubs—Q, J, 7.

MR. WHITEHEAD.
Spades—K, J, 7, 2.
Hearts—None.
Diamonds—K, Q, 10, 7.
Clubs—A, K, 9, 8, 4.

N.
W. E.
S.

MR. BYRNES.
Spades—A, 10, 5, 3.
Hearts—8, 5, 3.
Diamonds—4, 3, 2.
Clubs—10, 5, 3.

MRS. PURDY [Dealer].
Spades—6, 4.
Hearts—A, K, Q, 10, 7, 6, 4, 2.
Diamonds—5.
Clubs—6, 2.

MR. WORK and Mr. Whitehead made up their table for the radio bridge game, broadcast last Tuesday from station W-G-N, with two of Boston's famous players—Mrs. Prescott Warren, noted for her radio bridge lectures, and Maj. R. J. Herman, one of the best of the many excellent players in army circles.

Mrs. Warren was south, the dealer. She held: spades, 9, 8, 7, 4, 2; hearts, 6; diamonds, K, Q, 9, 8; clubs, 8, 5, 4. Maj. Herman, west, had: spades, K, J, 10; hearts, 8, 7, 5; diamonds, A, 6, 2; clubs, A, Q, 7, 2. Mr. Work, north, had: spades, A, Q, 5; hearts, A, J, 3; diamonds, J, 10, 4; clubs, K, J, 10, 3. Mr. Whitehead, east, held: spades, 6, 3; hearts, K, Q, 10, 9, 4, 2; diamonds, 7, 5, 3; clubs, 9, 6.

Mrs. Warren, south, passed. Maj. Herman, west, with three suits stopped, and the desirable no trump distribution of 4-3-3-3, bid one no trump. Mr. Work, north, doubled informatorily. He held a typical no trump hand, but Maj. Herman had anticipated the bid. In such case the informatory double serves its most useful purpose. Mr. Work, sitting over the no trump bidder, had a distinct advantage in position, which was somewhat offset by the fact that his partner already had passed. However, the high card strength of Mr. Work's hand, and the strong support it would afford for a major suit answer by his partner, justified Mr. Work's hope that a game going bid might be reached by means of the informatory double.

Estimating Value.

In estimating the strength of his hand, Mr. Work followed his own general rule for a third or fourth hand informatory double after partner has passed. For such double his requirements are at least six high cards that probably will take tricks, distributed between at least three suits. This is one more high card than is required for a second hand double. Mr. Work's hand contained six high cards in the ace and queen of spades, the ace and jack of hearts, and the king and jack of clubs. In addition there were valuable intermediates in the 10 of clubs and the jack and 10 of diamonds. He could count the jack of hearts as a high card in his hand, sitting over a no trump, because it was accompanied by the ace and another heart.

Mr. Whitehead, east, bid two hearts over Mr. Work's double. Mr. Work's double of Maj. Herman's no trump did not relieve Mr. Whitehead of his obligation to show his partner any strong suit he might hold.

Opening the second round of bidding, Mrs. Warren showed the high caliber of her game by bidding two spades on her five spades to the 9 spot. Her partner's double presumably was made with the hope of a response in a major suit, manifestly a spade. Mr. Whitehead's intervening bid relieved Mrs. Warren of the obligation to bid; but Mrs. Warren rightly considered that with the king-queen of diamonds and five spades she had the strength to bid voluntarily. Mr. Work, her partner, could not have expected her to hold much strength after her initial pass and Maj. Herman's no trump bid, and yet Mr. Work had requested her to bid. She therefore had no hesitation in naming the spade suit.

Three Hearts Bid.

Maj. Herman bid three hearts. He realized that the strength lying over him in Mr. Work's hand materially decreased his own trick taking possibilities. Yet with three hearts and strong support for the bid were it not for his unfavorable position, Maj. Herman felt called upon to give one assist to his partner's free heart bid, as he knew that Mr. Whitehead would not have called a weak suit over an intervening double.

Mr. Work bid three spades. All passed, and Mrs. Warren became declarer with her contract three spades.

Maj. Herman opened the play by leading the 8 of hearts, his highest of three small cards of his partner's suit. Dummy went down, and Mrs. Warren played from it the ace of hearts; Mr. Whitehead played the encouraging 9; and Mrs. Warren her singleton 6.

Mrs. Warren noted the desirability of leading both trumps and clubs from her own hand through Maj. Herman's strong holding. The question of entries in her own hand therefore became of paramount importance. She had two entries in the diamond suit and two more could be secured by heart ruffs. Four seemed sufficient for her purpose. Accordingly she proceeded to establish her diamond entries by an unblocking lead of the jack of diamonds from dummy. Mr. Whitehead played the 3; declarer herself covered the jack with the queen to gain an immediate entry if the ace did not fall; Maj. Herman won with the ace.

Mrs. Warren Trumps.

Maj. Herman led the 7 of hearts; dummy played the 3; Mr. Whitehead the 10; Mrs. Warren trumped with the 2 of spades.

Declarer led the 9 of spades; Maj. Herman played the 10; dummy finessed the queen; and Mr. Whitehead played the 3. Dummy returned the 4 of diamonds to put declarer in for another trump lead through Maj. Herman's strength. Mr. Whitehead played the 5 of diamonds; declarer the 9; Maj. Herman the 2.

Declarer led another spade, the 8 spot; Maj. Herman played the jack; dummy the ace; and Mr. Whitehead the 6. Again dummy returned diamonds, the 10 spot; Mr. Whitehead played the 7; declarer the king; Maj. Herman the 6.

Mrs. Warren then held the thirteenth diamond. She could have led it and have discarded dummy's losing jack of hearts upon it. But she realized that should she do so, she would then have to lead a club for a finesse which would later have to be followed by a second club finesse, for which it would be necessary to enter her own hand again. Accordingly, instead of leading the thirteenth diamond and discarding a heart, Mrs. Warren led a club, the 4 spot, for the first finesse, reserving the jack of hearts in dummy for an exit card to be trumped in her own hand for the second club lead. Mrs. Warren might have led the thirteenth diamond and have discarded a club on it, but such discard at that stage of the game could not have resulted in any advantage. On Mrs. Warren's 4 of clubs Maj. Herman played the 2; dummy finessed the 10; Mr. Whitehead played the 6.

Must Take Finesse.

Dummy led the jack of hearts; Mr. Whitehead played the queen; declarer trumped with the 4 of spades; Maj. Herman played the 5 of hearts.

Mrs. Warren then led her thirteenth diamond, the 8 spot; Maj. Herman discarded the 7 of clubs; dummy the 3 of clubs, and Mr. Whitehead the 2 of hearts. Mrs. Warren next led the 5 of clubs; Maj. Herman played the ace; dummy the jack; Mr. Whitehead the 9.

Maj. Herman led the king of spades; dummy played the 5; Mr. Whitehead discarded the 4 of hearts; and declarer followed suit with the 7 of spades.

Maj. Herman, for the last trick, led the queen of clubs; dummy won with the king; Mr. Whitehead discarded the king of hearts; and declarer played the 8 of clubs. Mrs. Warren, as declarer, took ten tricks altogether, scoring game, 36 points. The adversaries scored 30 honor points for simple honors.

The correct play of this hand was so involved that the majority of players unquestionably would have muffed it. Mrs. Warren not only had to conduct the play so as to drive out two adverse aces, but she also had to provide entries in her own hand to take three finesses, and all of this in a manner that would involve the least risk.

HEADLINERS THIS WEEK

MARIA KURENKO.

FREDERIC FRADKIN.
[White Photo.]

JEANNE GORDON.
[Mishkin Photo.]

THESE three stars of the musical world will be heard on different programs from W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel this week. Mme. Kurenko sings tomorrow night in the Family Party program; Mr. Fradkin, concert violinist, will be heard on Tuesday night, while Miss Gordon will be on the air tonight.

Frederic Fradkin, Concert Violinist, on W-G-N Tuesday

Frederic Fradkin, the concert violinist, will be the principal attraction of a program of classical music which will be heard Tuesday night at 8 o'clock from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, over the N. B. C. chain.

Mr. Fradkin, born at Troy, N. Y., of Russian-American parentage has had a notable career as concert master. Franco, Lichtenberg, Lefort and Ysaye were among his teachers. He has been concert master at Monte Carlo and Vienna and was concert master of the Russian Symphony orchestra and the Diaghilev ballet in New York, and of the Boston Symphony orchestra, successively. He has toured extensively in this country and abroad.

The Rondo Capriccioso of Saint Saens, and the Chanson Bohemienne of Poldi will be played by Mr. Fradkin.

TALK SLOW TO PLANES.

Because of engine ignition, wind and other noises to be contended with in airplanes, navy land radio operators have been cautioned against using excessive speed when wirelessing aircraft.

THIRTY LESS STATIONS.

There are between 25 to 30 less broadcasting stations than there were last March when the radio commission came in. These stations all died a natural death.

Jeanne Gordon to Sing in Kent Series Tonight

A spring program will be presented tonight in the Atwater Kent hour, when Jeanne Gordon, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera company, will be assisted by the orchestra under the direction of Robert Hood Bowers, and a chorus of sixteen male voices. The program will be presented by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel.

The chorus will present as its big number, "Greeting to Spring" (Blue Danube) by Johann Strauss, as arranged by Hans Lichter. The majority of Miss Gordon's selections will be spring songs.

A Canadian, Miss Gordon obtained most of her schooling in Canada, at Havergal college in Toronto, and later at the Toronto Conservatory of Music. She has since studied abroad, more recently with the Marquis de Trabadelo, in Paris.

Shortly after coming to New York, Miss Gordon sang for six weeks in motion picture houses, and was then engaged to tour with Creatore and his orchestra. Immediately after signing with Creatore she was engaged by Scotti as leading contralto with the Scotti Opera company, remaining with that company for two years. It was while with Scotti that she had her Metropolitan opera audition, resulting in a three year contract.

Spanish Program Tuesday Night on Tribune Station

"En Espana," or "In Spain," is the title of the swiftly moving musical show to be presented Tuesday night by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, starting at 10:35 o'clock. Featured in this production are the Pedrozas, Alfonso and Sophia, Spanish singers of great popularity.

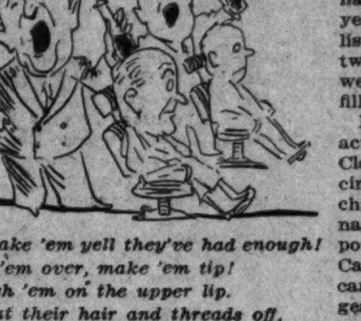
Alfonso Pedroza has a fine bass voice, while Sophia Pedroza is a coloratura soprano whose voice has great purity and charm. They will be heard in Spanish and Mexican songs throughout the program.

Inside the Loud Speaker

By Quin A. Ryan

"GOOD MORNING, children, away out there at your radio horns! Now, every time we assemble in these jolly radio classes of ours, we shall strive earnestly to learn something new and different. Last week, you remember, we took up the raising of clay pigeons. Now, this morning we are to set ourselves about the memorizing of some famous college cheers. There is nothing in life that so marks the cultured man as a knowledge of college yells. First of all, let us see if we commit to memory the alma mater cheer of the barbers' college. Are you all ready? Now, all together:

"Preckity—Eckity—Brew.
We'll shave their bloomin' necks.
Raw—raw—raw,
Slice 'em on the jaw.
Umty—um,
Bay rum!
Snip 'em, scalp 'em, treat 'em rough,



UMTY—UM BAY RUM!

Make 'em yell they've had enough!
Tip 'em over, make 'em tip!
Pinch 'em on the upper lip.
Cut their hair and threads off,
Talk their bloomin' heads off—
Rah—rah—rah!

"Very good, indeed. Now, let us all lend our voices to the leading cheer of the electoral college. Are you listening? Well, let's go:

"Grab a ballot, grab a mallet,
Sock a Democrat.
Hip-hip, and whee! for the G. O. P.
And then we'll pass the hat.
Rah—rah—rah—rah—rah—rah!
Get a Republican on the pan,
Line up precincts man for man.
Sizz—boom—wow!
Who'll we put up now?
Give the donkey's tail a twist,
Paste a prohibitionist,
Throw the Socialists in jail,
Pull the elephant's lazy tail.
Rah!
When do we eat?

"That's all now. Hurry away, and next week we'll have a few lessons in shadow boxing or sleight of hand. Toodle-oo!"

IN DAYS of old the pork packers used to "use everything but the squeal." Nowadays they even sell that—to the radio manufacturers.

THE GAME that most fascinates children listeners on the radio is the naming of an animal or a doll. Last year we asked the Punch and Judy listeners to send us names for the two baby giraffes in the circus, and we received mail bag after mail bag filled with nominations.

Recently we have added a new character to our troupe—Joey, the Littlest Clown—who is a rag doll, dressed as a circus performer. We started the children guessing what the boy's name is. Five thousand letters came pouring in from between northern Canada and Central America, each carrying an average of five suggestions for clown names—25,000 names in all.

One little lady, June Levy, 1623 North Shore avenue, Chicago, hit on the right name, "Joey." We had named the doll Joey, which is the circus slang for a clown.

THERE MUST be some people who buy radio sets out of self-protection, especially in apartment buildings. The only way to combat your neighbor's perpetually ear-splitting radio is to turn on one of your own—and let the machines fight it out.

Neighbors are funny folks, aren't they? They always leave all their windows open, they keep their receiving sets flaring up full blast, and they all have such awful taste about what programs to listen to. Don't they?

Whenever we try to sleep in the forenoons, as night workers have to do, somebody in our big building keeps the morning recipes tuned in. And from the way it comes booming through our windows the recipe lady must be hollering her head off.

So, we've decided, the only means of duelling with a radio set is to sic another radio set onto it. We're going to get a radio set, tune in a storm of static—and point it out the open window. Beware, neighbors!

And we'll go down to the beach and sleep.

The modern note in radio

"HOW up-to-date!" people exclaim when they see this new Atwater Kent A. C. set. For it has brought the modern note into radio.

They find it as fresh and interesting as the architecture of the newer skyscrapers, the design of the newer furniture, the newer thinking about art.

A new kind of radio

How modern is the cabinet that envelops this wonderful set! How beautiful is the sheen of the new satin finish, how pleasing the new color combinations! How simple the design!

And not only is this new A. C. set modern in appearance, but it is modern in the way it gets its power from the house-lighting circuit, without batteries of any kind. Modern in the cabinet construction that shields the set from outside electrical interference. Modern in the double shielding of the built-in power unit. Modern in space-saving compactness.

Modern in the astonishing certainty of single dial operation—the FULL-VISION Dial, readable at a glance, summoning your programs with unbelievable speed.

Made in a modern factory by the most modern methods, which not only assure quantity production, but minute accuracy of every working part—the matching of all the parts—222 tests or inspections for every set before it leaves the factory—the protection of every part against deterioration—freedom from service costs.

Up-to-the-minute in every way

It's an up-to-the-minute set from any standpoint, including price. We believe the Atwater Kent 37 will give you greater service, greater satisfaction, than any other receiver you can buy at any price.

So many people share this belief that since January 1st well over 100,000 Atwater Kent 37's have been sold. To own one is to know that this new A. C. set marks the highest development in radio today. At an Atwater Kent dealer's—try this modern set NOW.

W-G-N Receives 47,748 Letters in February

Maine and Arizona Only States Not Writing.

The extent of a radio station's sphere of influence was well demonstrated by the mail bag of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S station on the Drake hotel, during the month of February. The mail count for the month totaled 47,748 letters, received from every state in the Union except Maine and Arizona. One letter was received from Hawaii and about one per cent of the total came from the various provinces of Canada.

The week of Feb. 20 was the best of the four composing the month. More than 18,000 letters were received during this six day period, with Canada supplying about two per cent. In the United States, Illinois led with 6,604 and Wisconsin was second with 2,496. Iowa supplied 994; Indiana, 598; Michigan, 396, while Missouri postmarks were on 732 pieces of mail received by the station. Letters from Minnesota totaled 717.

With both January and February of 1928 showing up as record months so far as mail is concerned, W-G-N's mail total for the year is expected to surpass any figures previously attained. The mail received by the station during 1927 was 121,870, and the count for the first two months of this year is equal to half that.

Station officials declare these totals to be amazing in the face of a recognized decrease in radio "fan" mail. It is a known fact that listeners are no longer writing as they once did, since the amazing programs of a few years back which were certain to bring bags of mail have become the commonplace, regular features of the present day broadcasting schedule. The radio listeners has come to demand good programs as a matter of course.

Exceptional programs, coupled with a number of new, high quality commercial broadcasts are the reasons to which officials of W-G-N attribute the growth of the station's mail in the last two months. According to W-G-N's mail, listeners continue to show the greatest amount of interest in classical music, preferring that to a steady diet of jazz.

Dr. Copeland Smith's Question Box

THE Radio Question Box is a regular Sunday afternoon feature of W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station. The Rev. Copeland Smith uses the half hour between 4 and 4:30 o'clock to discuss and answer questions relating to problems of faith and morals.

Those seeking advice on such problems are invited to write to Dr. Smith, addressing him in care of W-G-N. Questions will be answered by mail, those of general interest being used for the radio talks.

Consolation for a Child.

MANY correspondents have requested that I repeat my answer to Betty in a more permanent form. Betty is aged eleven or twelve. She recently lost her mother after a long and intensely painful sickness from cancer. This is what I said to Betty over the air, through W-G-N:

If I am not mistaken, you are not more than ten or eleven years of age, Betty. It would be a dreadful thing if it were true that we lost our mothers at that age. But we do not lose them and they do not lose us. They are only withdrawn from us. I believe that they take more interest in us than ever when withdrawn and they only lose us when we forget them by doing the things that good mothers teach us not to do. I'm sure you are always going to remember that. What a fine thing it is that grandma, who loves both mother and you, is still there to take care of you. Of course, she is older than she was and needs a great deal of care and consideration.

You say in your letter that mother could not possibly have lived and ever been well. She suffered dreadfully. Then it is fine to know that she suffers no more, but is in the place where the flowers are always blowing and the grass always green; where the sun is in her hair and the glow of morning always in her face. She must be very beautiful where she is and you must try to be as beautiful here. Then she will be even happier than she is at present. God bless you. Be sure to write me again. I just live on letters. Other men eat bread and meat and things. But I devour stationery and when folk don't write me I only exist. Adieu, Betty.

Jairus' Daughter.

DID Jesus raise the daughter of Jairus from the dead to demonstrate His power and forecast His own resurrection to the three disciples who were with Him? The question comes to me from Rockford, Ill.

◆

I do not like to think that purposes of publicity moved Jesus and I am sure that he was thinking much more of the hurt in the heart of Jairus—that bereaved father—than of His own disciples I would attribute the miracles of Jesus solely to the boiling over of His unfailing compassion.

* *

Tithing.

I HAVE received a question from Elgin, Ill., relative to tithing. The writer asks whether he is to regard it as a Christian duty as he can find nothing about tithing in the words of Jesus or the apostles anywhere although there are frequent references to it in the Old Testament.

Tithing is not a Christian duty. It is a Christian privilege. My friend is right in thinking that no record of Jesus having advised tithing remains. Nor do the apostles mention it. But there is no comfort to the anti-tither in that fact because Christ approved the woman with the two mites who gave half what she had and told the rich young ruler to give up everything, at the same time commending the disciples for having done so. The early church shared everything—not the tithe merely. The tithe is an artificial proportion, excessive for a man with $1,000 and ten children but woefully inadequate for the man with no children and $10,000 a year. Even the United States government seems to think that 15% is not excessive for those who can pay income tax, but the truth is that fixed rules and regulations are un-Christian. The motive is the thing.

Is Marriage a Failure?

THEY have been asking that question from the beginning about all kinds of marriage. Suetonius asked it 2,000 years ago and decided that it was, in Rome. Now I am asked it again from Kalamazoo, Mich.

◆

The answer is that civil marriage is a failure, for the most part—increasingly so. The very fact that a civil marriage is contracted implies a thought in the minds of those who make that contract that they can dissolve it if desired. That makes a bad start. I would like to see a set of statistics prepared of the continuity of Christian marriages. I also would like to see what proportion of the divorces are obtained by those who have been married less than fifteen years. Not merely is it true that the first hundred years are the worst, but the first fifteen years are worse than that. In so far as marriage seems to be increasingly a failure, it is due to the change in our thought from the welfare of the group—the family—to our own selfish welfare.

* *

That Younger Generation!

HERE comes, from Dubuque, Ia., a repetition of that recurring question about the younger generation and their morals. Are they worse than we were?

No. They are much better—all things considered. For the most part, they have not so much time with their mothers as we had. They have much more reliable scientific knowledge of the facts of generation. Many members of our generation were virtuous because they were scared. Moreover, most of our generation were brought up in the country and adolescence does not come to the country-bred boy or girl so quickly as to the town dweller. There are fewer home restraints and there is much more immoral allure. Especially is there that habit of memory which leads us to remember the rosy facts in our youth at the expense of the facts less rosy. The younger generation are making a wonderfully brave fight in a country where the old maps are destroyed and not yet replaced by new ones.

Maria Kurenko Sings Tomorrow on Trib Station

Stars in Family Party Program.

Maria Kurenko, the "Russian Nightingale," one of the foremost artists of the microphone and the concert stage, will be heard in a program of popular classics and ballads during the family party broadcast tomorrow night by W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel.

She will appear twice in the first section of the hour, singing with a symphony orchestra under the direction of Roderic Graham, and again in the third section, when the accompaniment to her group of songs will be played by a concert band led by Edwin Franko Goldman. Between the orchestral and band periods of the program there will be a short interlude of popular music by Joe Green with his novelty orchestra.

Studied for Law.

Mme. Kurenko has the distinction of being the only noted singer in the world whose voice has been heard in defense of prisoners before the bar. As a child in Moscow, she poured over her uncle's law books, and, early in her 'teens, entered the University of Moscow, hoping to become a modern Portia and defend the unfortunates who were being persecuted under the Czar's government.

Hearing her beautiful soprano voice, when she sang for them after classes, Mme. Kurenko's fellow law students persuaded her to develop her local talents at the Moscow conservatory. She became a pupil of the famed Mazetti there, and graduated in music from the conservatory and in law from the university the same year.

U. S. Début in Los Angeles.

She was admitted to the bar in Moscow and was practicing law when Mazetti prevailed upon her to accept an engagement at the opera house in Kharkoff, and it was there that she made her début a little over eight years ago.

Kurenko the lawyer became Kurenko, the popular prima donna, overnight. She was called to the Grand Opera house at Moscow. She made triumphal concert tours through Germany, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. Heeding an urgent call, she made an uninterrupted trip from Riga, Russia, to Los Angeles, Cal., for her American début with the Los Angeles Opera company three years ago, singing Gilda in Rigoletto without rehearsal, because her train was late, but achieving an instant triumph in the part.

JUNE NAMES JOEY

LITTLE June Levy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Levy, 1623 North Shore avenue, who won the clown doll offered by Uncle Quin of W-G-N to the member of his child audience who picked the best name for the new puppet in his circus.

Parrot Is Latest Recruit of Radio

LONDON.—A three year old, gray West African parrot is the latest recruit to England's broadcasting ranks, having just been installed at Savoy Hill. The bird was uncovered in a corner of London and its vocabulary of twenty words is believed to be capable of considerable extension. The first day before the microphone the bird was seized with the customary "stage fright" and it has since been glowering angrily at visitors.

Bishop Freeman of Washington at Sunday Club

Dr. Albert W. Palmer, First Congregational church, Oak Park, and Bishop James E. Freeman, Church of the Epiphany, Washington, D. C., will be the speakers on the Sunday Evening club tonight. The program will be broadcast by WMAQ.

Dr. Palmer will begin a series of talks on the subject "Some Typical Saints and Sinners," studies in Old Testament characters, which he will continue at the seven o'clock service during March and April.

Bishop Freeman will speak at the main meeting beginning at eight. Courtenay Barber will have a part in this service, and one of the trustees of the Sunday Evening club will preside in the absence of the president, Clifford W. Barnes.

Radio Aids Honor System at State Prison in Arkansas

Denver, Colo., March 10.—The honor system at the Arkansas state penitentiary is to be retained because of assistance given penitentiary inmates recently by radio station KOA, here.

The prisoners had been placed on their honor and given exceptional liberties, with the provision that if one man escaped and was not captured the honor system would be abolished.

A man escaped. The remaining inmates, resenting his breach of trust, asked KOA to broadcast his description, and offered a $50 reward for his capture. A listener in McLeod, N. D., heard the description broadcast, met the man on the street, captured him and turned him over to the authorities. Warden Todhunter notified KOA that because of the capture the honor system is to be retained.

WHERE LISTENERS PAY.

Programs, on the whole, are on a rather high level in Germany, because, thanks to the licensing of broadcasting listeners, relatively large sums are placed at the disposal of the program committees of the broadcast stations.

Try These
POETIC POSERS

By Norman Lustig and William J. Fadiman.

Is poetry still at the tip of your tongue? Haven't you often wondered where the famous lines that are quoted daily come from? See if you can guess the authors and titles of these famous quotations.

Count 5 for each correct author and 5 for the name of the poem to which the excerpt belongs, and try to score 60 per cent. Seventy per cent means a retentive memory, 80 is remarkable, and 90 signifies a few anthologies in the bookcase. 100? Then you have taken courses in memory training!

A few allusions can't be amiss. The title of the fifth quotation, by the "Bard of Avon" may be taken from the opening line, while the poet laureate who wrote the eighth composed "The Charge of the Light Brigade." The ninth poet was one of the first "romanticists." The woman who penned the tenth was writing of the "way of the world," and the third poet is noted for his couplets. A theologian "told" the author of "Paul Revere's Ride" the sixth excerpt. "Alice in Wonderland" is also by the fourth author. The second is from the best known poems by an American who also wrote "The Chinese Nightingale." Of course, R. L. S. penned the first, but what is the title? The seventh, rather difficult to guess, although well known, is from an old play by the author of "Love for Love." If you are "posed," answers, in another column on this page, may be consulted.

Fat black bucks in a wine-barrel room,
Barrel-house kings, with feet unstable,
Sagged and reeled and pounded on the table,
Pounded on the table,
Beat an empty barrel with the handle of a broom,
Hard as they were able,
Boom, boom, boom!

A little learning is a dangerous thing;
Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian spring;
There shallow drafts intoxicate the brain,
And drinking largely sobers us again.

Ships that pass in the night, and speak each other in passing;
Only a signal shown and a distant voice in the darkness;
So on the ocean of life we pass and speak one another,
Only a look and a voice; then darkness again and a silence.

Yes, thou shalt know, spite of thy past distress,
And all those ills which thou so long hast mourned;
Heaven has no rage like love to hatred turned,
Nor hell a fury, like a woman scorned.

——Great God! I'd rather be
A pagan, suckled in a creed outworn;
So might I, standing on this pleasant lee,
Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn;
Have sight of Proteus rising from the sea,
Or hear old Triton blow his wreathed horn.

Laugh, and the world laughs with you;
Weep, and you weep alone;
For the brave old earth must borrow her mirth——
She has sorrow enough of her own.

SOMEBODY THREW MUD AT ME!
IT'S A CINCH I AIN'T GONNA FIGHT HIS WHOLE FAMBLY.
MY STARS ALIVE! HERE COMES MRS. GINRICKEY. THIS IS THE FIRST TIME SHE EVER CALLED ME.
OSWALD KNOWS OF NO OTHER CHILD CAPABLE OF SUCH AN OUTRAGE.
I WILL ADMIT THAT I DID NOT SEE THE BOY THROW THE MUD AT ME BUT—WHAT MADE YA THINK I THROWED MUD AT YA? YA CAN'T PROVE IT- YA CAN'T!
KAYO- LET ME SEE YOUR HANDS!
ULP!
AH-HA = JUST LOOK AT THAT- LOOK AT THOSE HANDS- SIMPLY COVERED WITH MUD!
I WOULD SUGGEST AS A FITTING PUNISHMENT THAT YOU PUT HIM TO BED IMMEDIATELY WITHOUT ANY SUPPER MY GOOD WOMAN—
KAYO- I HOPE YOU HAVE HAD AMPLE TIME FOR REFLECTION AND HAVE MADE UP YOUR MIND TO BETTER YOUR WAYS IN THE FUTURE.
I HOPE TO TELL YA I HAVE-

HAROLD GRAY
WELL, WE'RE ALL SET TO START FOR MAYFAIR TUESDAY- I'VE JUST BEEN DOIN' SOME SHOPPIN' WITH SOME O' TH' DOUGH I GOT WHEN I SOLD OUT MY STAND-
THEY'RE JUST CHEAP SUITCASES BUT THEY'LL HOLD ALL WE'LL HAVE TO TAKE WITH US AFTER WE SELL TH' FURNITURE AN' THINGS-GEE-
SWELL-
OH, LOOK- THEY'RE FULL O' THINGS-
I JUST BOUGHT A FEW CLOTHES I FIGGERED WE OUGHTA HAVE TRAVELIN'-
I THOUGHT THEY'D FIT- LITTLE BIG, BUT YOU'LL SOON GROW INTO 'EM- AN' YUH WANT TO LOOK AS GOOD AS YUH CAN WHEN YER GOIN' INTO A NEW PLACE-
I COULD HAVE GOT HATS FOR YOU FELLAS BUT I FIGGERED CAPS WOULD LAST LOTS LONGER AN' THEY WEAR BETTER AN' DON'T BLOW OFF SO EASY-
AN' HERE'S SOME NEW SHOES- TH' ONES YOU HAVE ARE 'BOUT SHOT- I SAW AN' AD IN TH' PAPER WHERE THEY WERE HAVIN' A SALE-
OH, ANNIE- IS THAT FOR ME?
SURE- AN' I GOT YOU SOME SHOES, TOO, AND A HAT- DON'T WANT TO CATCH COLD TRAVELIN', YUH KNOW-
AN' HERE'S A COAT FOR YOU, MRS. PEWTER- 'TISN'T SO SWELL, OR NOTHIN', BUT IT'S WARM-
IT'S BEAUTIFUL, ANNIE- BUT YOU SHOULDN'T HAVE DONE THAT FOR ME-
I'M NOTHING BUT TROUBLE AND EXPENSE- AND YOU'VE DONE SO MUCH FOR US ALREADY--- OH, ANNIE-!
SHUX! FORGET IT- I HAVEN'T DONE ANYTHING- I JUST WANT YOU AN' THE KIDS TO BE HAPPY-
WELL, I SURE MADE A GOOD DEAL ON THAT NEWS STAND- IF MR. WALSH, TH' CIRC'LATION MANAGER, HADN'T HELPED ME, I MOST LIKELY WOULDN'T HAVE GOT NEAR AS MUCH-
BUT I'VE SPENT MOST OF IT ON CLOTHES NOW- THEY NEEDED 'EM, THOUGH- AN' WHEN WE SELL TH' STOVE AN' TABLE AN' DISHES AN' BEDS AN' THINGS, WE'LL HAVE A LITTLE MORE MONEY-
AN' MR WELLS, TH' CONDUCTOR, IS TAKIN' US FREE ON HIS FREIGHT- WE WON'T HAVE MUCH WHEN WE LAND IN MAYFAIR, BUT MRS. PEWTER AN' HELEN'LL GET STRONG OUT THERE- AN' I FIGGER YUH CAN ALWAYS FIND SOME WAY TO GET ALONG ANYWHERE IF YUH LOOK HARD ENOUGH AND AREN'T 'FRAID O' WORKIN' UP A SWEAT-

GASOLINE ALLEY
UNCA WALT, IS THE MILKY WAY WHERE OUR MILKMAN GETS HIS MILK?
THERE'S A LOT O' BOTTLES BY THE PORCH. AIN'T YOU GOIN' TO TAKE 'EM?
NO. I'LL PICK THEM UP TOMORROW.
MILK
I'LL BE A MILKMAN MYSELF WITH THESE EMPTY BOTTLES AN' YOU CAN BE MY HORSE PAL.
THAT MILKMAN AIN'T GOT NO MARROW IN THAT SOLID BONE O' HIS. I HAD IT WRITTEN ON THE CARD TWO MILKS AN' ONE CREAM.
THIS THE SNOFLAKE DAIRY COMPANY? WELL SEND THAT DRIVA ROUND AGAIN, BUT LEARN HIM TO READ FIRST.
NOW WE'RE GOIN' TO STOP AT ALL THE HOUSES, PAL, BUT YOU AREN'T MUCH HELP.
I WISH I HAD A COW AN' I'D FILL 'EM UP WITH REAL MILK.
I GOT A IDEA! I FILL 'EM UP WITH SNOW. IT ISN'T ALL MELTED YET.
THERE THAT'S GOIN' TO BE ENOUGH MILK FOR ONE MORNIN'
FOR GOODNESS GRACIOUS! THAT FOOL MILKMAN TRYIN' TO GIT FRESH JES' CAUSE I TELEPHONED THE OFFICE
WAIT TILL MISTA WALT SEE THAT WHEN HE COME HOME! HELL RAZZ THAT MILKMAN TO A JELLY.
YOU DON'T SAY!
YASSA MISTA WALT- HE JES' GOT FUNNY AN' REPOSITED A HUNDRED BOTTLES OF MILK ON MY BACK STEP.
I DON'T SEE ALL THIS MILK YOU TELL ABOUT RACHEL!
THEY IS PLUMB BEWITCHED, MISTA WALT- THEY WAS ALL MILK AN HOUR AGO.
THE MILK ALL MELTED UNCA WALT.

Enjoy Europe Like a European

Speak . . . and understand the language of the country you are going to visit. It can be done before summer . . . in as short a time as three months, through the internationally famous Berlitz Method.

No English Spoken In Berlitz Classrooms.

You hear, speak, read, and write only the language you wish to master—French, Spanish, German, Italian, etc. Automatically you begin to THINK in the foreign language. So your progress is amazingly rapid, certain, and positive. The famous Berlitz Method and Expert Native Instructors make Berlitz Lessons so easy and so interesting that you never feel the need of using English while learning. Enjoy foreign travel . . . reap the cultural benefits that come to the linguist only—master a language the Berlitz way.

Executives and Managers.

A REAL CONNECTION FOR A REAL MAN.

We recently promoted six men to positions in which their earnings will approximate $25,000 per year each. We also recently promoted four men whose earnings will be approximately $40,000 per year each. Our business is big enough to attract the best selling minds in the United States. We have a number of men with us at the present time who are nationally and internationally known for their accomplishments.

Our books and auditor's statements show over 1000% increase in business in 1927 over 1926. We are constantly putting on new services which means that it is necessary for us to build an entirely new selling organization on each new unit; 1000% increase means that ten times more people bought our service the past year than the previous year, which proves conclusively that whatever we have for sale is salable, which naturally means that our men are making some real money.

We are in the Service Business. We have an Industrial Service which is sold to many thousands of the leading corporations in the United States for the purpose of developing constructive thinking among the employes.

We have a Sales Service which is sold to Executives for increasing their sales.

We have a School Service which is sold to schools for visualized education through posters for school children.

We have a Management Service which is sold to executives for the development of their junior officers and department heads.

Many of our territories are worth from $2,500 to $10,000 per year from renewals alone. The majority of our clients renew year after year.

We are not so much interested in salesmen as we are in potential executives who can learn our business and then qualify for promotion. In order for a man to qualify to join our organization he should have a record of earning [illegible] per year or better. He should be between the ages of 25 and 45, and he should have the reputation of honesty, reliability and integrity. We have men averaging [illegible] per week and we have men averaging [illegible] per week. A good man can pick his own niche in this business and earn any amount of money he is capable of earning.

Unless you feel that you are above the average and that you can qualify for an unusual position, do not waste our time or yours.

Our organization is the Parker-Holladay Company, Inc., an Illinois corporation which has been operating for eight years. Our telephone number is Superior 0835. You may phone the undersigned for an appointment and should you be able to qualify over the phone, we will be glad to give you a personal interview, or address [illegible] 354, Tribune.

H. H. MILLIGAN.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Executives and Managers

ASSISTANT EXECUTIVE.

The man we want is cultured, well spoken and dignified in bearing and appearance. He is about fifty years old and may have been a high school principal, former Chautauqua speaker or retired business man. He should have a capacity to inspire through ability as a fluent talker. He must have the combined faculties of a teacher and organizer and be able to direct the efforts of others. The position is steady and the compensation liberal. Only those with the best of references as to character and past ability need apply. The position is with a well established investment house. Write giving complete details as to qualifications and salary desired. Address S H 569, Tribune.

EXPERIENCED MERCHANDISING EXECUTIVE.

Must be a high grade, thoroughly experienced advertising or sales executive. He may be at present the advertising or sales promotion manager for a large national advertiser, thoroughly familiar with every detail of planning, preparing, and supervising promotion, and experienced in the management of a large advertising department. Or he may be the sales manager or assistant sales manager of a large company with vision, ability and training which fit him for a bigger position. He may be an account executive in one of the larger industrial or general agencies or a principal in a small agency who sees an opportunity to do bigger things under present business conditions. He must be accustomed to meeting big executives and dealing with them on an equal footing. He must have the experience and ability to enable him to assume full responsibility for handling important national accounts. His enthusiasm must be tempered by sound judgment and known facts. He must be thoroughly familiar with every phase of selling and sales problems. He must instinctively be a salesman with a selling sense. Preferably, he is now employed happily and will change positions only for a bigger opportunity to stand on his own feet. Past record must bear the closest scrutiny. Appointments will be made by telephone only.

E. B. Wells. Monroe 6100.

BUCKLEY, DEMENT & CO.

A1 DIVISION MANAGER. LIBERAL DRAWING ACCOUNT.

An unusual opportunity for a sound, proven man of energy and character is offered by one of Chicago's largest and most progressive subdivision houses, now preparing a tremendous and intensive campaign Northwest.

This firm has never before advertised for a Division Manager, and this ad represents an opportunity seldom offered. Your reply will be held in strictest confidence. Address P B 526, Tribune.

Assistant Sales Manager.

An advertising company of national scope, now serving several thousand retail clients, has an immediate opening for a man as Assistant to Sales Manager. The following characteristics are necessary: [1] Ability to write inspirational sales letters to field men; understands and has had experience in general office work, handling follow-ups and routing; had actual selling experience, perhaps limited, but must have been successful; strong personality and past record must demonstrate sticking ability; age 26-35; willingness to start at a reasonable salary to prove worth. The position is permanent and offers excellent opportunity for advancement. For particulars, see North American Service Company, Nixon Bldg., Monday or Tuesday.

SALES PROMOTION.

Assistant in sales promotion department of large electric appliance manufacturer located in Chicago.

Applicants must have following qualifications:

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A MAN OF EXCEPTIONAL MENTALITY

A manufacturer, rated AAA1, operating nationally, has an opening for a man of successful selling experience. Prefer one who has met and sold chief executives, although in the final analysis personality will be the determining factor.

We are not so much interested in a salesman as we are in a man with potential executive ability—one who can learn our business and then qualify to direct others. For such a man there is a brilliant future.

This is not stocks, bonds, real estate, insurance, check writers, or books. NOR IS IT POSTERS.

Do not investigate unless you feel confident that your services are worth $8,000 per year or more.

We can use a man immediately in each of the following territories: Minneapolis, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Detroit, and one for Chicago.

We will grant you a personal interview if you are able to interest us over the telephone. Phone Mr. C. C. Below on Monday, for appointment. Randolph 4745, or if you prefer, address D D 600, Tribune.

A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY AND YOU.

A high class, progressive manufacturer, the largest and most substantial of its kind, due to expansion and promotions, has a few positions to fill with hard hitting, progressive, direct to consumer salesmen. If you are the man, we present to you the Golden Opportunity to be a business man and manage your own business. This is highly remunerative to the men who qualify. This is neither washing machines, vacuum cleaners, real estate, books, nor electric appliances, but experience in above lines is helpful. Apply 9 to 12 a. m. See Mr. Gray or Mr. McDonald, 820 S. Michigan-av., Chicago, Ill.

A NOTICE TO ALL SUBDIVISION SALESMEN.

$100—WEEKLY CASH BONUS TO EVERY SALESMAN, WITH TOP CASH COMMISSIONS.

Close-in properties. All improvements in. Real Leads. 100% co-operation. Why waste your time elsewhere?

H. E. RUCK,
DIRECTOR OF SALES.
T. F. McFARLAND COMPANY.
Room 1020. 190 N. State-st.

A NEW TYPE INVESTMENT SALESMEN.

We have a plan for the sale of units of a new type real estate investment which will sell like "hot cakes." Our unique plan enables the buyer to carry investment on only 40% of sales price for a period of 3 years. Very attractive to stock and bond buyers. Liberal commission will enable you to make $1,000 a month.

For full information call in person between 9 a. m. and noon any day this week.

CRYER & COMPANY.
Room 201. 168 N. Michigan-av.

A REAL OPPORTUNITY.

Large insurance company is now expanding its force in the automobile department and will consider a college trained man between 25-30, with some sales experience. No knowledge of insurance is necessary, but willingness to work exceptionally hard is absolutely essential. Salary and real opportunity for advancement await the man who can fill this position. Phone Mr. Christiansen at Longbeach 8000 for an appointment.

A1 SALESMAN.

Do you know salesmanship and its responsibilities? If so we solicit your answer to this advertisement; if not, don't waste your time. Old established plumbing specialty company has Chicago and suburban territory open. Business is established. Strictly commission basis with drawing account. You must be between 30 and 40 years of age, able to furnish surety bond and first class sales references. Permanent. Give full particulars in first letter. Strictly confidential. Box 17, Station L, New York City.

AAA1 FAST DEAL.

Nationally known mfgr. requires immediately 3 high grade "live wires." Our product is well known and is sold through established dealers. Our "deal" is entirely new—has no competition—is in virgin territory—and has plenty of "sales dynamite" that makes it "fast." Our entire deal sells for $166 on which the immediate cash commission is $70 plus 10% on steady repeats. Permanent and good future. Our present boys "hit" 3 to 5 times weekly and we will select only such men that have successfully sold advertising agency contracts, intangibles, etc. For interview see Sales Director, Suite 1050, 332 S. Michigan-av.

AAA DO YOU WANT TO SUCCEED?

Isn't it much easier to sell subdivision property with improvements in and paid for than to sell without improvements? Isn't it much easier to sell with transportation now than to say it is to come? Isn't it much easier to sell in a built-up community 7½ miles from the loop, with every kind of business, schools, churches, and banks surrounding it? Isn't it a big help toward your sales when you represent one of Chicago's leading organizations, with the best of reputation, whose past properties have made large profits? With these few but important factors and the co-operation we give you and an opportunity for rapid advancement and a permanent position are you not assured of big money? See Director of Sales, Room 870 First Natl. Bank Bldg.

THE WM. H. BRITIGAN REALTY ASSOCIATION.

A A A THE BIG CAMPAIGN HAS BEGUN.

NOW The Finest Real Estate Opportunity in Chicago Is Open to You!

The preliminaries of our big campaign for the next five years are over. Real activity has begun. Our organization is rounded out, hitting hard and making money. We still have openings for salesmen and sales managers who mean business.

Clean your slate and make a fresh start with a real leader. Best property location in and around Chicago; excellent transportation; all improvements in; ready for the builder. Krenn & Dato's reputation, properties, and co-operation will be a tremendous help—a lineup that must produce results for you. Hesitate no longer. Come and share our 1928 prosperity. Apply any time and ask to be shown how.

A A A Straight from the Shoulder.

I know what it means to be hunting a job—to follow up ads all day long—to listen to a lot of high sounding talks. I have been through all this myself.

What you want is facts—a definite proposition. To be successful, three things are necessary:

a. The salesman must be right.
b. The thing to be sold must be right.
c. The house back of them must be right.

I can prove it to any one who is willing to make money and is of the right mental attitude toward Chicago's real estate and Chicago's future. A talk with me will open up a way for you to great financial returns. That is just what I have to offer—an opportunity to connect and get going on the best selling proposition in Chicago with the finest organization in the city. No ifs or ands about it. Come in tomorrow, hear by story, and judge for yourself. No drifters, loafers, or advance artists need apply.

AMBITIOUS SALESMEN.

Mr. C. was a crack specialty salesman—a real go-getter—but his biggest month's earnings were less than $600. He came with us on Feb. 14th and to date has collected $3,815 in commissions. Not so bad for a start, and he has some real business lined up for the rest of this week.

WHAT HE DID YOU CAN DO.

Here are some of the reasons: [1] we have a 41 year record of success behind us.

[2] The development of our properties in Chicago has created a reputation second to none for us in this district.

[3] We know how to train men and some of those who started with us 25 years ago are still here making big money just as they have been every year of their association with us.

[4] We know what co-operation really means. We give it—don't just merely talk it.

[5] The properties that we are selling now and those that we will sell through the future years are always the best that can be bought and back of their selection is years of experience, unlimited data on which is based investigation and tremendous resources.

WHAT MR. C. DID YOU CAN DO.

The above experience is based on actual facts and the correct name and address will be furnished on request.

Stop wishing! And call for interview today after 9 a. m.

SPECIALTY SALESMEN.

Men to qualify should be between 25 and 38 years. Must be well educated, present a neat appearance, and have a personality of such a nature as to be able to meet professional men on an equal basis.

Specialty is patented and well advertised. No competition. Used by all leaders in the professions.

Exceptional opportunities are open to men who have that rare combination of selling and executive ability, because we are not only increasing our sales force but are measuring men for executive positions.

While it takes an outstanding man to qualify, the earnings are unusual; minimum first year earnings $7,500; second year, $9,000 or better.

Among our 40 representatives we have some men making $20,000 a year, and they have not reached the limit of their possibilities.

Will interview men who have a proven record of specialty selling to a high class clientele. For interview, phone GENERAL MANAGER.

"MOLER" Trained Barbers Are in Demand and Are Paid Highest Salaries Here's Why

The first Moler College was founded in 1893, 35 years ago, and although being improved every day since then, it is still operating on the same sound basis on which it was founded. That is—giving abundance of practice and careful study—to be not only a barber, but graduate under the master stamp of approval. This large organization now has schools from coast to coast which guarantees the recognition of the Moler trained man all over the United States.

The better shops give preference to the Moler graduates on account of their affiliation.

Come in—allow us to show you through our school and explain the possibilities of this business or send for free catalog.

Here are 3,000 reasons for your purchase of one of these delightful co-operative homes. Every convenience is provided for your happiness—many thoughtful appointments to make your home here most enjoyable.

Your apartment would have light, airy rooms with spacious galleries, marble fireplaces, tiled bathrooms, canvased walls, ample clothes closets, and a Frigidaire.

You are also provided a children's playroom, a two story gymnasium, a large attractive lobby, and an outdoor 9 hole putting green.

BACKED BY OUR REPURCHASE GUARANTEE

If after living at 3000 for a reasonable length of time you are not satisfied, we guarantee to repurchase your apartment for the original price you paid. All you pay is the established normal rental for the period of your ownership.

Open for Your Inspection at Any Time Between 9 a. m. and 9 p. m.

999 LAKE SHORE-DR.
100% CO-OPERATIVE.
There is no location equal to it in all Chicago. There is no location which will be appreciated more by its owners in years to come. You can become part owner now of this property by purchasing one of the two available 11 rm. apts. at a lower price than will ever be quoted again for a similar apt. on Lake Shore-drive. A library with wood burning fireplace, living room 15x28, both paneled in mahogany to the ceiling, dining room 14x20, sun room 12x14, 4 chambers 13 x18.6 each with bath; 2 servants' rooms with bath, balcony breakfast rooms for servants, spacious butler's pantry and kitchen with electrical refrigeration, individual laundries and extra maid's room on 10th floor. This property is financed with a 15 year loan at 5¼% interest, with no prepayment. A real opportunity for those who know values.

LAKE SHORE TOWERS

3920 Lake Shore Drive

"At the Head of the Gold Coast" on the new outer drive just north of Grace-st., overlooking the lake and Lincoln Park—the location supreme.

With homes to please the most exacting taste and a location of matchless beauty and convenience, Lake Shore Towers appeals to a select group of occupants. Here is found everything to make life luxuriously comfortable, with added gratification in the certainty that all co-owners are persons of your own sort.

Only 31 apartments are contained in Lake Shore Towers—2 on each floor and a studio duplex occupies the two top stories. This assures the utmost enjoyment of air and light, with all outside rooms. Every apartment has 8 rooms and 3 baths, and fronts directly on the lake.

Visit Lake Shore Towers today or any day at your convenience. Inspect the beautiful model apartment furnished by a famous decorator and discuss terms with the management. Open evenings until 9 p. m.

100% CO-OPERATIVE.

8 ROOMS—3 BATHS.
COMPARABLE TO A FINE PRIVATE HOME

FAR ENOUGH REMOVED from Lake Shore-dr. to insure freedom from its automotive distractions; adjacent to Lincoln Park, and within walking distance of the Loop there are still available large, sunny 8 ROOM, 3 BATH apartments.

EACH APARTMENT
IS LIKE A REAL HOME, and its arrangement is so unique that you have the feeling you are living in an individual dwelling.

MANY PROMINENT FAMILIES
are housed in 1320 N. STATE. Of the few apartments still available some have two story living rooms and the duplex arrangement.

Representatives on the premises every day will gladly show you the apartments and tell you of our RENTAL-PURCHASE plan that saves 50% of your rental costs.

BUILDING OPEN

PAULINA ARMS

The ultimate in tenant ownership, in beautiful Ravenswood, with its spacious lawns, stately elms, wide streets; quiet, dignified, restful atmosphere; yet only a short walk from the unexcelled Uptown shopping district; churches of all denominations, schools, theaters, beaches and other recreation facilities, but a few minutes from you. You are assured of substantial neighbors by the management's rigid scrutiny of their credentials.

APARTMENTS ARE OF 4 AND 5 SPACIOUS ROOMS AND BREAKFAST ROOMS, SOME WITH 2 BATHS; MECHANICAL ICE, ELECTRICAL DISHWASHER, CANVASSED WALLS, BEAUTIFULLY FINISHED AND FACILITIES THAT EVERY HOUSEWIFE DREAMS OF; UNUSUAL TRANSPORTATION — STEAM, ELEVATED, SURFACE, AND MOTOR COACHES.

See the building. Make your own comparisons; then learn the unusually moderate cost and low upkeep, and your renting problem is solved.

DISTRIBUTORS WANTED.
Chicago, Wis., Ind., Ia., Minn.

Huntley Mfg. Co., Brocton, N. Y., established in 1853, will consider applications immediately from five men of good character to take over distribution of their line in the Chicago district; also the Wis., Minn., Iowa, and Ind. territories.

We are most faborably known to the jobber, whom you will sell in carload lots, as one of the oldest and most powerful corporations in the East, having the world's largest and most magnificent plant manufacturing this particular line.

Unusual activity in our particular field in the Middle West, adjacent to Chicago, where our line is particularly receptive, forces us to meet a competitive market on a local distributor basis, which is a decided change from our 75-year-old policy of operating exclusively from our main plants at Brocton and subsidiary factories at Tillsonburg, Ont., Canada, but has been employed with unusual success during the past few years by our competitors, and therefore provides an opening for five attractive permanent positions of a caliber seldom offered by an establishment as internationally famous as "Huntley of Brocton."

R. G. Dun & Co. rates us AA1. This information should be confirmed by you because you have turned to the Business Opportunity Page for investment and ours is such an opportunity. However, the distributor we select only needs from $1,000 to $1,200 to cover a fraction of the cost of actual merchandise, which is very nominal considering the splendid profit margin, which should average $200 weekly in either of these concentrated markets. The men we want are not high pressure salesmen, but the dignified, conscientious, ambitious though small and unpretentious business man over 29 years of age, capable of working and willing to learn, and to men of this type experience in our line will not be required.

Write in strict confidence to the address below stating qualifications, references, age, nationality, religion and territory interested in and our Sales Manager, Mr. J. S. Francis, will come out to Chicago and interview you in a week. Dept. A. Huntley Mfg. Co., Brocton, N. Y.

LINCOLN
AUTHORIZED DEALERS.

You Have Admired Lincolns Why Not Own One?

Reconditioned Lincolns are comparable only to new Lincolns, both in appearance and performance. The miles taken out by the original owner are put back in the reconditioning process, during which skilled mechanics of Lincoln training replace or readjust every part that is not in perfect condition. All are fully guaranteed.

LINCOLN Coupe, 4 pass. Latest model, delivered new 60 days ago, and after having been driven only 1,600 miles was traded back to us on a large sedan. Has full equipment, including wire wheels and balloon tires. Immaculate condition.

LINCOLN Sedan, 5 pass. model of the latest style, with 6 brake system and new headlamps. Actually driven only 9,198 mi. Beautiful marine blue finish, broadcloth upholstery. Has 6 wire wheels and balloon tires, 2 spares mounted in front fenders, and full equipment. $4,250.

LINCOLN Sedan Limousine. Latest style, with 6 brake system. Low mileage. Finished in Bambalina Blue, with mohair upholstery. Balloon tires. Lorraine spotlight, etc. $3,750.

LINCOLN Sedan, 7 pass., latest style; carefully driven less than 10,000 miles; cobalt blue finish and broadcloth upholstery; 6 wire wheels and balloon tires; spares mounted in front fenders; very completely equipped; does not show the slightest evidence of wear. $3,250.

LINCOLN Sport Phaeton, 4 pass; the very unusual smart type; finished in aluminum and trimmed in carmine red; carries 2 spare tire wheels and balloon tires in front fender wells; has tonneau deck and windshield, windshield wings, trunk on rear, and almost every accessory. $2,750.

LINCOLN Custom Built 3 window Le Baron Sedan, 4 pass. Driven 6,794 miles; very attractively finished in thistle green, with black trimming; virtually brand new in every detail; mohair upholstery, loose cushions, trunk on rear, Lorraine spotlight, etc. $2,750.

LINCOLN Coupe, 5 pass. model of the latest style. The keenest observer could not distinguish this from a brand new car in any particular; smartly finished in raven black; has practically brand new tires and standard equipment. $2,750.

LINCOLN Coupe, 4 pass. model of latest style. A very popular model that has been carefully driven and cared for and cannot be distinguished from new; finished in raven black and upholstered in mohair; has 6 very good tires, 2 mounted in rear, and complete equipment. Price only $1,650.

PACKARD
A Safe Place to Buy a Used Car—All Makes, All Prices, Easy Terms

FLINT, 1926, 5 PASS. SEDAN. This car has been kept out of the weather a great deal, consequently its appearance is very good. The former owner possessed considerable mechanical knowledge and together with its low mileage it comes to us in good condition. Has 6 good tires, 4 wheel brakes, Lorraine spotlight, and many other things. $585.

PACKARD TOURING CAR SINGLE 6, 1-33. We will have completed a thorough cleaning of this car by the time you read this. Permit us to suggest that if you are looking for good all around, economical transportation or want an excellent vacation car, this car will fulfill every requirement. It has good tires, winter front, bumpers, etc., and came to us in such mechanical condition that it would be a waste of money for us to touch it. $475.

STUDEBAKER 1926 COACH, BIG 6 PERFORMANCE. Should appeal to the buyer who wants big 6 performance on the smaller chassis, 120 inches. Every detail about it is exactly as you would have it and it is fully equipped. We are going to make a special out of it as it will be the means of selling many more cars for us. $775.

PACKARD 6, 3-33, 7 PASS. SEDAN. Check these items: New lacquer finish; first class motor, shock absorbers, disc wheels, 1-shot oiling, and you have but a few of the qualities offered in this special. Without doubt this will outlast and outperform anything you can buy within hundreds of dollars of our price. $1,375.

PACKARD 6, 3-33 SEDAN-LIMOUSINE, 7 PASS. Privately owned and cared for to the extent that the finish is as good as the day the car was delivered. Motor reconditioned by us and guaranteed. Tires excellent. Fully equipped. A-1 for private or commercial use. $1,575.

You Can Enjoy Transportation For About 1c Per Mile

If you have always considered a good, reliable make of car expensive, you will be astonished at what a few hundred dollars invested in any car in our large stock will buy.

Your selection here will do more to increase your personal efficiency and give your family comfortable, safe transportation than the same amount of money spent in any other way. Come in and see these beautiful cars. Terms to suit.

JEWETT 6-55 COACH, 5 PASS. With more room than many ordinary sedans, light in weight, thrifty, and with long life duco finish that stamps it as new. Interior, tires and mechanical condition excellent. Nothing to buy in the way of accessories. $595.

PEERLESS SEDAN. Dependable, clock-like performer and reputed for its ability to stay away from the repair shop. Ought to give good service for years. Paint and tires excellent, 2 spare tires, trunk, bumpers, and everything that goes to make up a complete car. $495.

PAIGE 6-72 5 PASS. DE LUXE SEDAN. Mechanically as perfect as trained hands can make it. With this car at your beck and call, you'll soon appreciate the enthusiasm of 6-72 owners and learn there is something real behind that enthusiasm. This is a very good one. Appears like new and fully equipped; 2 tires are like new, 2 excellent, and the spare never used. Price $850.

LINCOLN COUPE 5 PASS. One of the earlier models of a type that seem to never wear out. There is plenty of service left in it; the finish is well preserved and in excellent condition; interior A1, and fully equipped, including 6 good 33x5 tires. If you spend $3 to $5 daily for taxicabs, this car would pay for itself in 3 months. Our price is positively no index of its value. $375.

BUICK 1927 SEDAN, 5 PASS. We would like the opportunity of showing this car to a large number of Buick buyers. In our estimation it is the best conditioned Buick that has ever been traded to us. Flawless to the minutest detail, with tires like new, and fully equipped. If your choice is a Buick, you are invited to come in and see this rare buy. $900.

PAIGE 1927 6-45 SEDAN, 5 PASS. Here is a Paige in almost new condition mechanically, having been driven only a few thousand miles. Tires are perfect, and there is every conceivable accessory for the convenience of the owner. This is probably the first 6-45 Paige available to used car buyers, and we believe it to be an exceptional value. Space does not permit detailing mechanical refinements, but we are very sure you will find it to exceed your expectations. Price $775.

NASH COUPE. A very late car and adaptable for use by professional person or small family. Leather upholstered. Fully equipped. The finish is excellent. Any one looking for a coupe should find this one an ideal purchase. 100% mechanically. $750.

STUDEBAKER "PRESIDENT" 1927 SEDAN-LIMOUSINE. Probably the lowest priced high grade recent model in this body style available today. Suitable for private or commercial use. We have made some mechanical adjustments on it and you'll find it right. Has heater, 4 wheel brakes, and disc wheels. $950.

PAIGE 8, 8-85, 5 PASS. SEDAN. Traded after receiving only a few thousand miles of service. It is just as good today as it was when new, but it doesn't cost you as much Famous car with 4 speed transmission, prolonging car life and giving upheard of smoothness at all car speeds. Perfect in every detail and fully equipped. $1,650.

VERY LIBERAL TERMS.

HERTZ SEDANS

Here is your first opportunity to purchase one of these roomy 6 cylinder, 5 passenger sedans; built by the builders of the famous Yellow Cabs, with all the sturdiness and stability of a cab combined with the luxurious comforts and smooth running of a passenger car.

These are an ideal family car as well as an excellent car for salesmen's use and commercial work. They are painted standard Duco blue. They have been maintained in excellent coach and mechanical condition. Each one is guaranteed for 30 days.

We are offering these for sale in keeping with our policy to place new equipment at the disposal of our patrons from year to year.

They are very excellent values. Prices at from $500 to $600, cash or terms. This is less than the delivered cost of some of the smaller cars.

These cars can be seen at any local
